THE CHRISTIAN CONGRESS

A DOMINION EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE ESTABLISHED.

The Headquarters to be Located in Montreal—Senator Macdonald of Toronto Chosen President.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—At the morning session of the Christian Conference to-day the subject under discussion was the establishment of a Dominion Evangelical Alliance. Rev. Wm. Jackson read an admirable paper on its objects, needs, and possibilities, after which a draft of the constitution of the proposed alliance was adopted.

On behalf of the special committee appointed to prepare the details of the constitution Dr. Torrance brought up a report recommending that the headquarters be located in Montreal and that Sir William Dawson be elected its first President. This was received with loud applause, but Sir William explained that it was quite impossible for him to accept the responsibility of such a position, in view of the heavy work which now overburdened him.

The committee then retired to hold a special session and on their return these officers of the Dominion Evangelical Alliance for the coming year were elected:

President—Hon. Senator Macdonald of Toronto.

General Secretaries—J. J. Woodhouse of Toronto, R. Murray of Halifax, Rev. A. B. Sager of St. John's, Rev. F. McF. McLeod of Victoria, J. A. M. Aikins of Winnipeg, and W. Brown of Quebec.

Recording Secretary—Rev. W. Jackson of Montreal.

Treasurer—George Hague of Montreal.

A long list of Vice-Presidents was presented, among whom was Sir William Dawson, and a general committee was also appointed.

A lengthy letter from Mr. Arnold, sent by the English Alliance in lieu of the addresses of Sir R. Phayre, was then read.

At the afternoon session "Co-operation in Christian Work" was discussed.

In the evening Hon. Senator Macdonald presided, and Rev. Dr. Macpherson delivered a masterly address on the "Home Benefits of Foreign Missions." Rev. Dr. Sims, Chancellor of Syracuse University, spoke on "The Elements of Personal Character in Christian Usefulness."

A resolution was adopted to-day on the Jesuit grant, recording disapproval of the recent legislation.

SMALLPOX AT KESWICK.

The Authorities at Gwillimbury Vigilant and Taking Every Precaution.

SUTTON, Oct. 26.—The reports in the papers about the smallpox epidemic in North Gwillimbury are in some cases greatly exaggerated. David Sprague, ex-Reeve of the township, was ill with inflammation of the lungs. In the midst of it his son who had been on a visit to the fair in Toronto became ill and the doctors did not at first discover what his ailment was. Unfortunately in the meantime a number of neighbors came to assist at the threshing and with those who had volunteered to sit up with Mr. Sprague a larger number than usual came in contact with the boy whose ailment proved to be smallpox.

A Board of Health has been formed and every one who is known to have been exposed to the contagion is isolated; inspectors have been stationed at all roads leading from the township, public meetings of all kinds have been stopped, compulsory vaccination is being enforced and every precaution taken to stamp out the foul disease. Sutton is now completely free of it, and as the only approaches are across the different bridges over the Black River, the men stationed on them have instructions to keep out all who are in any way supposed to have had connection with it. So far as known there are only eight cases, the nearest to Sutton being six miles away.

LAUDANUM AND THE KNIFE.

Determined Efforts of Chauncey Goodrich to End His Own Life.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Chauncey Goodrich, a boarder at No. 383 Twelfth-street, South Brooklyn, did not appear at the breakfast table yesterday morning, and a domestic who went to his room on the third floor heard him groaning. Opening the door she saw him, bathed in blood, on the floor. A large sheath knife was beside the man, and it was ascertained that he had cut his throat, nearly severing his windpipe. He was removed to the Seney Hospital. It is believed he will die. He is 65 years of age, and was formerly in the clock business at No. 32 Warren-street, New York, with George W. Brown. For nearly six months he has done no business. Recently he separated from his wife. It is believed that he also swallowed some laudanum, as two empty bottles which had contained the poison were found on a table in his room.

He Was Better off Dead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—"I am better off dead than alive, Georgie, and I'm going to kill myself," said Robert McLeod, of No. 29 First avenue, to his 10-year old son yesterday. As he spoke he threw some oxalic acid powder into a cup of boiling water and hastily drank the mixture. Georgie tried to prevent him, but the powerful man easily put the lad aside until he had drained the last drop of the scalding poison. Then the boy ran for his mother, who was working in a dressmaker's shop. She arrived just in time to see her husband writhing in his last agonies. Dr. Bishop was hastily summoned, but when he arrived the man was dead. The poison was taken at 2.50 p.m., and he died at 3.30. McLeod had been using both liquor and tobacco to excess for some time past, and was under the influence of liquor when he took his life.

GAGGED AND ROBBED.

A Farmer Overpowered in Broad Daylight in New York City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Ten armed desperadoes, comprising a ring of the notorious Stable Gang of the First Ward, yesterday committed a most daring daylight robbery. Farmer August Therman, of No. 121 Macon-street, Brooklyn, was driving slowly along Greenwich-street with a load of produce when two young men climbed quietly into his wagon and seized him from behind. They gagged him before he could get out, while eight other robbers helped themselves to his property and disappeared with their arms full. When released the farmer seized one of his assailants and called for help. The fellow drew a loaded revolver and threatened to take the farmer's life and he released him. The other robber was captured by Detective Flynn, of the Second Precinct, and described himself as Daniel O'Connell, aged 19. Subsequently Michael Sullivan, aged 23, was arrested with some of the stolen property in his possession. Justice O'Reilly held the prisoners in $1000 bail each for trial.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—An action for $25,000 damages was instituted yesterday by La Minerve Printing Company against the publishers of La Patrie. The action is based on an article which appeared in La Patrie of Monday night, in which it is stated that La Minerve was bankrupt.

STOLE A MARCH BY NIGHT

A CROSSING OF THE MANITOB SOUTHWESTERN BRANCH MADE.

The C. P. R.'s Men Overpower the Police and Tear up the Diamond—No One Injured but Everybody Excited.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—The railway troubles still monopolize the public mind and nothing else is talked of.

During the night the government stole a march on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and made a crossing of the Manitoba Southwestern branch at Headingly, 12 miles west. This branch, although under Canadian Pacific control, is a separate corporation.

The Canadian Pacific Railway this morning sent out fifty men, who, overpowering the police, who only numbered twenty-two, removed the diamond and four rails that were on the Canadian Pacific Railway right-of-way. The police stood on the diamond, but were pushed off and no one was hurt.

An engine with a guard of men was left at the spot, and the Canadian Pacific also sent fifty men to Morris to prevent a crossing of the Pembina branch by the Brandon line.

A report is current to-night that an action will be taken against Superintendent Whyte appropriating the diamond and rails at Headingly.

Judgment on the second injunction will be delivered to-morrow morning, and the Government specials are ordered to muster, it being presumed that if the decision is favorable to the Government a forcible crossing of the branch near Winnipeg will be attempted.

Intense excitement prevails, and there is every prospect of lively times.

Preparing the Case.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Mr. Clark, soliciter for the Canadian Pacific Railway, is still here preparing the case to be submitted to the Supreme Court in connection with the railway troubles in Manitoba. It is understood that he will send it direct to Attorney-General Martin, and if he agrees as to the law points it will be submitted at once.

THE TREASURER'S CONFERENCE.

Interesting Traffic on the Intercolonial—The Supreme Court Vacancy.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—The Treasurers of Ontario and Quebec, and their assistants, had a further conference with the Minister and Deputy Minister of Finance to-day with reference to a settlement of the accounts between the Dominion and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which have been outstanding since Confederation, and a basis of settlement of a number of items was agreed to. The question of Indian annuities seems to be the only one likely to give serious trouble. At Confederation certain annuities were chargeable to the provinces, but the amounts have increased, and the provinces claim the Dominion has no right to charge them with the increase.

The Department of Railways and Canals has called for tenders for the construction of large warehouses for the storage of sugar at the Richmond terminus of the Intercolonial Railway. Traffic on the road is increasing so rapidly that twenty-two new locomotives and a large number of freight cars have been ordered.

The Journal to-night gives currency to the rumor that Judge King of New Brunswick will succeed the late Judge Henry on the Supreme Court bench.

In the Supreme Court to-day on motion the appeal of the Canadian Pacific Railway from the judgment of a Territorial Court condemning them to pay school taxes imposed by the Calgary Board of School Trustees on the company's lands there was quashed with costs.

Mr. John Lowe has rendered a decision in the trade mark case of the J. P. Bush Manufacturing Co. v Hanson & McLaughlin. He decided that the trademark registered by the latter must be cancelled. Priority is therefore awarded to the Bush Manufacturing Company and their claim of right to the trade mark "Rovinine" admitted.

A proclamation will shortly issue fixing Thursday, Nov. 29, as the day for the holdings of the poll on the question of repealing the Scott Act in Richmond county.

Policeman Cohen's Shot Was Fatal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—James Farley, the young man shot by Policeman Morris, Sunday night, while the officer was defending himself from an attack by a crowd of roughs, died at the Presbyterian Hospital yesterday. The examination in the case of Farley's confederates, Chas. Dunleavey, Edward Buggie, George Kohler and E. Farley, charged with feloniously assaulting the officer, was began in the Harlem Court in the afternoon. Policeman Cohen testified that he arrested Farley and was assaulted by the crowd, who rescued his prisoner. He broke his club in giving an alarm, and then the crowd began to stone him. Believing that his life was in danger he drew his pistol and fired into the crowd. Help arrived and the four other men were arrested. The further hearing was adjourned to Friday. The other four prisoners were admitted to bail in $1000 each.

A Bishop's Burial.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 26.—The obsequies of Right Rev. Bishop Welles of the Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee took place yesterday afternoon. The services at the cathedral were impressive and the cortege, preceded by a procession of priests behind a cross-bearer, attracted much attention as it slowly proceeded through the city to Forest Home Cemetery.

Mr. Colvin Gets Damages.

WALKERTON, Oct. 26.—At the Assize Court here before Judge Falconbridge, the jury returned a verdict of $285.25, which carries full costs, in favor of Mr. Colvin, ex-treasurer of Culross, in his libel suit against Mr. McKay, a member of the council of the same township.

The Orillias of Orillia and Excelsiors of Brampton Suspended.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 26.—Yesterday President Dan A. Rose of the Canadian Lacrosse Association visited St. Catharines and discussed with Secretary O'Laughlin the charges made by the Thistle Club of Fergus against the Orillia club of Orillia and Excelsior Club of Brampton, in connection with the Intermediate Championship matches. As the Fergus Club had not made any charge in the formal way provided by the rules no action could legally be taken in the matter, but to secure a thorough investigation into the matter the president has taken advantage of the power given him and suspended both clubs on the plea that they have violated article 6, sec. 6, of the constitution, and the clubs will be summoned to appear before the Judicial Committee and Council at a meeting to be held at Hamilton on Nov. 7.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Wm. O'Connor, the oarsman, is in Washington for the purpose of training for his race with Teemer, which is to take place here on the Potomac on Nov. 24. On the other hand, should I be defeated the Australian trip will probably be abandoned."

TORONTO TOPICS.

Annual Meeting of the Baptist Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—The annual meeting of the Baptist Women's Foreign Missionary Societies was commenced in the Bloor-street Baptist Church yesterday, Mrs. (Dr.) Castle presiding. The address of welcome by Mrs. Castle was responded to by Mrs. Barker of Whitby. Reports of delegates from different parts of the province regarding the work done by the missionary circles were received. They were on the whole of an encouraging nature. Greetings were received from sister societies. An interesting paper on "Our Foreign Mission Field," was read by Mrs. Barker of Whitby. The financial statement for the year showed a balance from last year of $1941; received from circles, $3687; received from bands, $932; special contributions, $1315; bank interest, $60; total receipts, $7756. The expenses for the year were $4172. The balance in the bank was $1623. The nominations for the Home Mission Board for 1888-9 were: President, Mrs. A. R. McMaster; Vice President, Mrs. H. H. Humphrey; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. Lobb; Treasurer, Mrs. A. R. Alexander. For the Foreign Board: President, Miss J. H. Castle; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. McLearin and Mrs. J. H. Yale (Brantford); Corresponding Secretary, Miss Davis, Toronto; Secretary of Bands, Miss Dadson; Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Elliott.

William Cathro bailed out Annie Pratt, whom he had caused to be arrested on a charge of stealing $300 from him, and when her name was called in the Police Court yesterday she did not appear and a warrant was issued for her re-arrest. Joseph Pratt, her brother and alleged accomplice, was remanded till Monday on bail.

An effort is being made to procure the pardon of Mary Quinn, who was sentenced to twenty-three months in the Mercer Reformatory on Feb. 11 last, by Magistrate Cahill at Hamilton. Her offence was attempted suicide, and as far as can be learned here is a sad story. It is claimed that the decision was procured by undue influence.

The charge against Richard Jarvis, the ex-constable, of committing an aggravated assault on Fred. Johnston was investigated yesterday. Mr. Boultbee deposed that he saw Johnston struggling with Jarvis, and the latter strike him. The Magistrate held that the evidence established a case of common assault, but as Jarvis ought to have known better he would fine him heavily, and imposed a fine of $10 and costs or 60 days.

The relatives of the young man Montgomery, who was found poisoned in a lane off Peter-street, and who afterwards died in the hands of the police, are investigating his movements previous to the night of his death. It is known that a few days previous to the fatal night he had on his person $150, and no trace of the money can be found. Although somewhat unsteady in his habits, his disposition forbids the idea of suicide, and foul play is suspected.

The Ontario Government has come to an agreement with the Baldwin estate respecting the site for the new Upper Canada College. Fourteen acres of land facing on St. Clair-avenue belonging to the Government was traded for 30 acres to the back of it facing on Clinton avenue. The new college will be built on an eminence, which commands a view of the country and city for miles around. The structure will be a creditable piece of architecture, and will cost about $120,000.

Detective John Murray took a run to town yesterday from Galt and Berlin, where he is hard at work on the mysterious poisoning case. Of course Mr. Murray has nothing to say to reporters at present about the progress he is making, but he is apparently working on a good "clue." Mr. Charles Lowell and Private Detective Mat Howis of Toronto appear to be taking a very deep interest in the matter, for what reason does not as yet appear very clear.

Bunced Out of $20.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—The confidence game has again been worked in Montreal. A young man, a native of a village near Ottawa, was intending to return home. He bought his ticket, and intended to return by the Canada Atlantic train. While at the Bonaventure depot he met a stranger, who asked him where he was going. He at once answered, "To Ottawa." The stranger said, "Why, I am going there," and further said his wife and daughter were residing at the Windsor, and he would have to drive them down to catch the train. He asked the company of the young man. They both drove up to the Windsor, but on getting to the door the stranger said he would go in and bring his wife and daughter out. He went in, and, coming out shortly, said they had gone to the station and taken all his effects with them. He asked the Ottawa young man for the loan of $20 to settle his bill. The young man gave the bill, when the man went into the hotel and has never been seen since.

She Proved to be a Fraud.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 26.—A young girl, about 17 years of age, claiming to be a dressmaker, called upon Mayor Midgley and Superintendent Morford for assistance last evening. She stated that she belonged to Ilderton and was anxious to get to Hamilton, that she had delivered a dress in London and received payment for the making thereof, and had just enough money to pay her fare to Hamilton. She had accordingly purchased a ticket to come to St. Thomas, but on the trip had lost her ticket and satchel. She had been taking up subscriptions and had secured $1.10. Superintendent Morford instituted enquiries and found that the girl was a fraud.

Milk Inspection.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 26.—Mr. H. O. Foster of Tiverton, dairy and milk inspector for Perth, Oxford, Middlesex, Norfolk, Elgin and Waterloo Counties, was in the city yesterday. Since Mr. Foster started out on his tour of inspection, he has found over 100 cases of adulterated milk, skimmed milk, and strippings kept back, in 36 different factories. Every one of these cases was proven to the satisfaction of the inspector by making a second test, and in over half of them the defendants admitted the charge and paid the fines, which averaged from $5 to $30 each. There are several cases yet to be tried in Woodstock and other places.

THAT POLITICAL PITFALL.

INTO WHICH MINISTER WEST SC SURPRISINGLY TUMBLED.

Secretary Bayard's Opinion—"A Petty Scheme to Break the Fall of Despairing Politicians"—Cleveland's Shrewdness.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Secretary Bayard, who returned to Washington Wednesday night, made the following statement yesterday to a representative of the Associated Press in regard to the letter of Mr. Murchison of California to the British Minister, on the subject of the pending Presidential election, and the British Minister's reply:

"Yes, I have read both letters. I have not seen the British Minister since he went to Europe last spring until he called on me this morning at the Department of State. Lord Sackville has no other or better means of knowledge of the intention of the President than any one of the 65,000,000 of the American people. His personal opinion is worth no more than that of any one of them, on the ground of knowledge, and much less on the ground of interest in the subject.

"While there must be a consensus of opinion as to the impropriety of the expression of individual opinion by anyone holding the position of foreign envoy, it is still to be hoped that we will be able to settle the issues involved in the pending canvass without the importation of foreign interference or inter-meddling in our domestic affairs.

"The American people will be prompt to resent and repel as impertinent any such attempts, but they will easily recognize the political pitfall arranged by the California letter, with its object so plainly stamped upon its face and addressed to the British Minister, into which he has so surprisingly tumbled. Such petty schemes to break the fall of despairing politicians will be held in proper estimation by popular intelligence."

The Talk in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—There is a good deal of talk over Lord Sackville's letter. The Sun continues to demand that Lord Sackville be given his passports, but the other papers speak more temperately.

Congressman Boutelle of Maine said he thought it would lead to Mr. West's ultimate recall.

Mr. Blaine expressed the opinion that the British Minister had committed an indiscreet act, which might impair his usefulness as the representative of Her Majesty in this country.

A San Francisco special to The Tribune says the publication has created excitement there and is regarded as the Burchard incident of the campaign. For the time being the letter has knocked the Chinese question out of sight. A leading Republican says: "We were sure of carrying the state by 6000 or 8000 before this letter appeared. Now I see no reason why the figures should not be increased to 10,000."

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Attorney-General Webster Continues His Interminable Sentement.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—On the re-assembling of the Parnell Commission yesterday, Attorney-General Webster resumed his address in behalf of The Times. He dilated on the relations between the Parnellites and members of the American League, contending that the league originated in America, and declared that it was a conspiracy hatched in America and effected by American money. Members of the league in America were dynamiters and advocates of murder, and they had the Parnellites as accomplices. He denounced Finerty, Redpath and Rossa as dynamiters who had plotted for the most villainous forms of outrage. He said it was absurd to say that Parnell had no relations with Patrick Ford, as a host of facts proved an intimate connection between the two.

The Attorney-General then proceeded to quote from articles and communications taken from The Irish World to prove the connection of the Parnellite party with the extreme section of the Irish party in America. He continued to dwell on the misdoings of the league in America and the Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston conventions until the court adjourned for the day.

The Attorney-General did not hit upon a single new point and his speech exceeded in dullness his efforts of the preceding days.

THE FEDERATION QUESTION

Discussed by the London Newspapers—Mon treal's Civic Loan.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The question of Imperial Federation was again the leading topic of newspaper discussion yesterday, in consequence of the speeches of Lord Rosebery and Lord Brassey at Glasgow yesterday.

The Times devotes its first editorial to it, and says there is no present danger of a repetition of the blunders which caused the American revolt, yet England ought to be prudent, and avoid giving jealousy and discontent the material on which to work. There is no assurance that the colonists have yet agreed in asking for a definite scheme of federation, or offering to bear the consequent financial burdens, but federation may make its way safely and surely through small beginnings.

Imperial co-operation and a similar desire for practical co-working animates other press criticisms.

Ottawa telegrams detailing the facts of the Manitoba dispute, have calmed the public mind. What opinion has been expressed inclines to the view that Manitoba should await the decision of the Supreme Court. Canadian Pacific shares are recovering.

Lord Lansdowne has appointed Captain Streatfeild his acting private secretary while in India.

The Montreal civic deputation quickly completed their plans. The Barings to-day issue a prospectus for the sale of $340,000 of Montreal 3 per cent. permanent debentures at a minimum price of 92½. The announced object of the issue is to meet the amount of the bonds redeemable in 1836 and 1860 to provide funds for important permanent works. A memorandum signed by Messrs. Abbott, Grenier and Black will give full details of the financial status of Montreal. There is little doubt felt regarding the success of the issue. The Barings name almost insures that.

A Trip Through Europe.

SEVENTH PAPER.

Auld Reekie.

A feeling of mingled regret and disappointment creeps over the tourist as he stands at the foot of old Canongate and takes a survey of Holyrood and its environments. Away to the southeast the ragged cliffs of Arthur's Seat and Salisbury Crag loom up, and just north of these the rather untidy Queen's Park stretches off into the distance. The grounds and buildings immediately surrounding it are also unattractive.

The Palace occupies all the sides of a large square, and encloses quite a spacious courtyard. It was founded in 1501, enlarged in 1528, and completed in 1671-9, so that it is a venerable old pile of stone masonry. The handsome front which faces the west has a central doorway surmounted by a balustrade and a small clock-lantern with an open cupola in the form of an imperial crown. On each side of the main entrance there are extensive wings three storeys high and flanked by circular towers. The other portions are plain, substantial three storey elevations.

The interior has rather an antiquated, gloomy appearance. There are the royal apartments, a picture gallery, and Queen Mary's rooms. The last are kept about as Mary left them.

In the vestibule there are some dark stains on the floor supposed to be the blood of the murdered Rissio.

The audience chamber is adorned with ancient tapestry and furnished with richly embroidered old chairs.

THE UNFORTUNATE QUEEN'S BED

seems to have been in keeping with the latter part of her life—it was a pretty hard one. The old quilts and trappings are very much faded. There are two portraits in the room, one of Henry VIII, who, like Mary herself, had quite a matrimonial notoriety, and one of Queen Elizabeth, whom she can't have loved very dearly.

The picture gallery contains the imaginary portraits of about one hundred Scottish kings. The artists must have been a "little off," for there is some pretty rum-looking royalty.

The palace has been occupied by James VII, Prince Charles Edward Louis XVIII, and Charles X of France.

The south-western wing is fitted up for the Queen, and the dignitaries of the Presbyterian Church hold receptions in it sometimes.

Were these old walls able to speak what a history they could give of the tragic scenes in the fitful lives of those royal personages who here acted out their part in the national drama.

Proceeding westward along Canongate we come to White Horse Close. Here stood a famous old hotel, which figures in Scott's "Waverley" as the resort of Prince Charles Edward's army. A great many narrow streets—sometimes called closes—run south from Canongate, and on nearly all of these there are places of historic interest, and certainly any one who has the time should take a ramble through them.

High street is a continuation of Canongate, and is entered through Netherbow Port, the EASTERN GATEWAY OF THE ANCIENT CITY.

A little way along on the north side we come to the very quaint old John Knox's Free Church, with its reddish Gothic front and large round window. Adjoining the church is a very venerable—at the same time rather comical old mansion—John Knox's house. Like the illustrious old reformer, there is no trouble finding out just where it stands. It is an antiquated, irregular three story structure, with steps or rather stairs going from the sidewalk up to the main entrance on the second flat. It projects about ten or fifteen feet further into the street than the buildings to the west, so that it is very conspicuous. Inside there are relics of John Knox and the Reformation. Lyndford Close running southward was frequented by Sir Walter Scott during his boyhood. A little further on we have Blackfriar street, where in 1520 there was a big row between the Hamiltons and Douglasses. Some two hundred were killed.

Going on up the hill we come to the old Tron Church, with its pictorial stained glass windows. In the Presbyterian church—which is the preponderating element in the ecclesiastical life of Scotland—youth gets well drilled in the substantial Biblical literature of the Shorter Catechism, and older heads are supposed to receive and inwardly learned Scottish divines are always giving on the great doctrines of Election, Foreordination, etc. In fact, if we were to judge by the preaching we heard in the other branches of the Christian Church, we would say that the other churches allow the Scottish Church to have a monopoly of these profound doctrines, which are the prerogatives of Supreme Power.

It is very amusing—but of course it is the proper thing that they should do so—to see how firmly the Scotch hold to their religious traditions. This trait is illustrated very faithfully by a witty Frenchman, who tells the following story:—"An auld Kirk Minister was upbraiding one of his members for walking through the harvest field on the Sabbath. She said, 'But did na ye ever read of our Saviour going through the corn-fields on the Sabbath day.' 'Veery true, my guid woman, but I dinna think any the mair of Him for doing it.'" And we have only to go a few yards further when we are on the scene of an historical illustration of this trait. Old St. Giles' Church is as notable for its great size and fine architectural features as for one celebrated unchurchly episode. The Dean of Edinburgh began to read from the Book of Common Prayers. This grated so harshly on Jenny Geddes' orthodox ears that she unceremoniously flung a stool at the Dean's head. The Scotch evidently believe in having their own say in praying as well as in everything else.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

Some of the hospitals are used only for sick and deformed boys and girls. The little patients sleep on small iron bedsteads. It is sad to go through the rooms and see so many pale, sickly faces. Little folks should never be heard grumbling when they have good health and are able to play and run around.

Look Out For Typhoid Fever.

The present is the season of the year in which the fatal typhoid germ is most to be dreaded. The evaporation of water from the soil occasions a concentration of the poison, and water supplies are consequently more liable to contain the typhoid poison in deadly quantities. "M. Desjardin Beaumetz, in a recent communication to the Paris Academy, gives the case of a family who took a house for the season, at a fashionable resort. They were warned not to drink the well-water, as it was supposed to be impure. They drank mineral water exclusively until the last day of their stay, when, in the hurry of packing, they neglected to send for mineral water, and concluded to try the well-water. Ten drank of it, six of whom have since died; the remaining four, who had previously had typhoid fever, were made sick but recovered. A microscopic examination of the well-water revealed the presence of the bacillus supposed to be the cause of typhoid fever."

If the family referred to above had taken pains to boil the water from the suspended well before drinking it, they might to-day be alive and well. Heat is one of the disinfectants. Suspicious water should always be boiled before drinking, as by this means the typhoid germs may be destroyed.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient"

Catarrh is not simply an inconvenience, unpleasant to the sufferer and disgusting to others—it is an advanced outpost of approaching disease of worse type. Do not neglect its warning; it brings deadly evils in its train. Before it is too late use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It reaches the seat of the ailment; and is the only thing that will. You may dose your yourself with quack medicines till it is too late—till the streamlet becomes a resistless torrent. It is the matured invention of a scientific physician. MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

We were now on what proved to be our last run. I have often been asked if this day was not one of great fear and terror on the part of those who were engaged in the race. For my own part, I cannot honestly lay claim to any greater fear than I had often felt in ordinary military service. No matter what happened, there was the assurance that we still had one resource—the power to turn around and attack the pursuing foe. From the beginning, such a conflict had been present to my mind as a matter of course. Before leaving camp, this had been reckoned a natural consequence of our position. It had been frequently talked of among the men, and not one of them seemed to regard it with any more dread than an ordinary battle. We had been careful to select large revolvers for use, and not for show, and when we found the enemy gaining upon us, or our leader's plans for their destruction failing, we only felt or said that our time to strike would soon come. We did not have the boastful feeling that we were an overmatch for a large body of southern soldiers, for we all knew how desperately they could and often did fight; but of the ordinary citizens gathered up as we presumed our pursuers were, or even of conscripts, we had no great fear. That we had not our accustomed arms was a serious disadvantage, but this could be remedied by getting into close quarters; and we trusted that our leader, who had shown such wonderful skill in management, would be able to put us within short range of the pursuing train, where we felt sure that we could quickly give a good account of it.

Probably the fact of Andrews having never been in battle, but always engaged in schemes where his own cool daring and sagacious planning counted for everything, and mere force for nothing, made him hesitate to order an attack which would throw aside all these qualities and determine the issue by simple fighting. A time was near when we would firmly have disputed our leader's command if there had been an officer of any authority among us who could have been substituted for him; but not until Andrews himself had definitely abandoned his authority.

Many times the question has been asked: "Why did you not reverse your engine, and, jumping off, let it drive back at the enemy?" What good could that have done? If their engine and our own had been destroyed, as was very probable, together with a considerable number of lives, we would only have been where we were before we captured the engine at all, except that the whole country would have been aroused, and our disguise thrown off. The second train would have been on the ground in a few minutes and the power of pursuit would have been undiminished. We had no wish to sacrifice our own engine until the last effort possible had been made. To merely destroy had no charm for us, when that destruction could neither promote our escape nor serve a military purpose.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE LAST HOPE.

We crouched down as well as we could in the tender while passing Ringgold, that the enemy might not see our number, and when beyond the town we arose and looked about us. The country was mostly wooded and rough, being much cut up by the branches of the swollen Chickamauga creek. We had no fuel, though we might have taken on a few water soaked fence rails and broken them to burn; but what would have been the use? Every combustible scrap was carefully gathered up and thrown into the engine. Worst symptom of all, a large pair of saddle bags, which we had never seen Andrews without from the time of the midnight conference, together with his cap and some other pieces of clothing that he did not need for immediate use, were flung remorselessly into the furnace. Various papers went along. These were probably documents that he feared would compromise himself or others in case of capture. Such preparations were indeed ominous. But his next command—the last he ever gave to us as a party—was more dreadful still, and for the first time that day there shot a pang of mortal terror to my heart. Not the crash of the engine down an embankment nor the coming of another train of the enemy from the north, shutting us between two fires, would have caused such a sense of despair and hopeless misery to steal over me. This was the order which, as intimated before, our party, had they been properly organized, would not have obeyed.

For our situation was still far from desperate. Aside from the capture of the pursuing train, which would now have been very difficult from the fact that we had neither fuel for rapid running, nor the obstructions on board that were necessary to place us far enough ahead for an ambuscade, there was another plan to which our leader was virtually pledged, which presented every prospect of saving our own lives, though it was now too late to accomplish our original purpose. We were some five miles beyond Ringgold, within a mile of Graysville, or nineteen miles by the longest railway course from Chattanooga. From that city westward to Bridgeport was twenty-eight miles further. But the nearest way to Bridgeport was not through Chattanooga, but further south, and by that route it was not distant more than thirty-five or forty miles. The direct course was at right angles with the numerous mountain ranges which here run almost north and south, a route over which cavalry could not be used, and which was known to more than one of our party. Two comrades had pocket compasses which would have guided us in thick woods or in cloudy weather by day or night. Now to have left our train in a body, and without delaying to seek concealment, to have struck over the streams and mountains at right angles, as rapidly as we could go, would have been our most hopeful course. Long before night of the next day we would have been safe within Mitchel's lines! Why not? How could the enemy have captured us? If they sent cavalry, these would necessarily have made long circuits and have been obliged to adhere to the lines of the road, and thus could not have come near us while clinging to the valleys and the mountain sides. Even in thick woods they could not have overtaken us. If they followed us with a strong party on foot, we fleeing for our lives, would not have deserved to escape, if we could not have held our distance for forty miles or more. If they had ridden ahead and raised the whole country for a general man hunt, they would have had only twenty-four hours or less to organize it, and no small party then could have arrested twenty armed men. In fine, this plan of escape through a mountainous and densely-wooded country did not appear to me to be more dangerous than a cavalry dash on the lines of the enemy's communications—an every day military affair. Even if Mitchel did not prove to be in the neighborhood of Bridgeport when we arrived, we would then have been in the loyal mountainous district where we would have met as many friends as foes. All that we needed in the way of provisions and guides our force would have enabled us to command, and even guns and ammunition could readily have been gathered on our way.

But all these advantages depended on our keeping together under one head. An army scattered and disorganized is lost; and our little army was no exception.

Vaccinating Grand Trunk Employes.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—In view of the small pox outbreak the Grand Trunk Railway Company are taking great precautions that their employes shall not suffer, and that the disease shall not spread through them. Especially is this the case with regard to the car cleaners who daily come in contact with cushions which are likely to be fruitful beds of the germ.

A few days ago Dr. Riordan vaccinated forty-five car cleaners on the main line and yesterday he operated upon eight of the Northern division cleaners. The men as a rule do not relish the idea and would like to be excuse, but they must either submit or lose their jobs; they have been alarmed by unfounded stories about arms becoming so swollen as to make amputation necessary.

To-day Dr. Riordan will tackle the arms of all the men employed on the passenger trains of the Midland and Northern divisions, because of the outbreak at Keswick, on the east shore of Lake Simcoe. Trains on the Midland have been forbidden to stop at Sutton, which is the station nearest to Keswick.

Piano-Agent Graham Remanded—Run Over by a Wagon—Easily Satisfied Burglars.

HAMILTON, Oct. 25.—In the false pretence case in which Frederick Prior of Toronto charged Peter M. Graham, a piano agent and music dealer who recently did business in Toronto, with having obtained a number of promissory notes by false pretences, Mr. Nesbitt, who appeared for the prosecution, asked for an adjournment at the Police Court this morning and the prisoner was remanded until to-morrow.

Hiram Haines, an old man whose home is in St. Catharines, was run over by a wagon at the corner of King and John streets this morning, his shoulder being dislocated and his head cut badly.

The St. Nicholas Hotel has been sold to Mr. Arthur S. Smith, of St. Thomas, who pays $8000 for the furniture and goodwill.

Mrs. Mary Brooking, who for more than a quarter of a century has been a regular attendant at the Hamilton market, is dead at the age of 76 years.

F. L. Cherrier's store on the Market Square was entered by burglars early this morning, and 75 cents and a box of cigars taken.

A Sportsman Seriously Injured.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—A. Baumgarten, one of the keenest sportsmen in Canada, and ex-master of the Montreal Hunt, was thrown from his horse while taking a stone wall; his horse rolled on him, inflicting serious injuries to his spine, which resulted in paralysis.

Prosper Sentenced to be Hanged.

HALIFAX, Oct. 26.—A special despatch from St. Johns, Newfoundland, says that Governor Blake, of Newfoundland, has been appointed Governor of Queensland.

My Toothache

is an exclamation heard every hour in the day. Toothache is the most common ail ment of young and old, and in the aggregate inflicts more suffering than perhaps any other single complaint. A one minute cure is what every person desires to possess. Nerviline—nerve pain cure—acts almost instantly in relieving the agony, and as a sample bottle affords a quantity sufficient for 100 applications, 10 cents hits the bill. Polson's Nerviline is the only positive remedy for toothache and all nerve pains. Sold by druggists and all dealers in medicine. 6dw43

An Open Letter.

Nov. 25th, 1886

Messrs. T. Milburn, & Co. I wish I had used B. B. B. sooner, which would have saved me years of suffering with erysipelas, from which I could get no relief until I tried B. B. B., which soon cleared away the itching, burning rash that had so long distressed me. Mrs. Edward Romkey, Eastern Passage, Halifax, N. S. 2w42d

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging, most at night, worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulcerations, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, Wholesale Agents. dw

On The Platform.

Public speakers and singers are often troubled with sore throat and hoarseness and are liable to severe bronchial attacks which might be prevented and cured by the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam—the best throat and lung remedy in use. 2w42d

The Triumphant Three.

"During three years' suffering with dyspepsia I tried almost every known remedy but kept getting worse until I tried B. B. B. I had only used it three days when I felt better; three bottles completely cured me." W. Nichols, of Kendal, Ont. 2w42d

Praiseworthy.

"Last summer I was entirely laid up with liver complaint. A friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters; I did so and four bottles cured me. I cannot praise this remedy too much." John H. Rivers, Orr Lake, Ont. 2w42d

Important to Working Men.

Artizans, mechanics and laboring men are liable to sudden accidents and injuries, as well as painful colds, and joints and lameness. To all these troubles we would recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil, the handy and reliable pain cure for outward or internal use. 2w42d

Magnificent and Complete

An exchange says of Mr. H. H. Ragan's ture on "Paris, the magnificent," which ll be given at the opera house here next
Monday evening:—The stereopticon views were much larger than those thrown from the ordinary instrument; they filled a space nearly as large as the whole front of the stage. Nearly all the views were beautifully and truthfully colored, so that nothing was lacking to make the illusion complete; to see them was almost as good as seeing the origi-nals.

The G. T. R. Double Track.

Trains are now running, says the Belleville Ontario, on the new G. T. R. double track from the city to a point near the driving park, while the main line is being repaired. The men are levelling and grading just within the corporation, and the gangs are being pushed for all they are worth in consequence of the lateness of the season and the serious delay caused by the recent rains. The ballast train is distributing gravel on the new line as far west as the track is laid. The bed of rock now being cut through will take a longer time to complete than all the previous work.

A Skinflint Council.

The members of the Whitby town council are "unwept, unhonored and unsung." The town papers won't report the proceed-ings of the council; and the Chronicle ex-plains the reason why:—"This year's taxes (27 mills on the dollar) are, we believe, the highest for years. * * * We sup-pose the town council hold their regular meetings as usual. We don't report them—that's all. We get nothing for doing so, and can find plenty of news far more readable. When the councillors want any printing done they would skin us if they could, so we don't go far out of our way to report their proceedings. The idea that a printer can work all his life for rich corporations for nothing has lost its charms for us."

Almost Asphyxiated.

The wife and family of John S. Howell, Belleville, came within an ace of being asphyxiated at an early hour Wednesday morning by coal gas. It appears that the coal stoves were started by the family, and, upon retiring, the draughts on the stove were turned off. A little child was the first to give the alarm by crying out in its sleep. Mrs. Howell rose to quiet the child, when she staggered and fell to the floor. Another child rose to get some water and had hardly done so before she fell prostrate on the carpet. The mother finally succeeded in opening some of the windows, and the neigh-bours were summoned and rendered neces-sary aid.

A Painful Accident.

A young lad named Arthur Bryan, employ-ed in one of Mr. Hazlitt's mills, yesterday had his right hand mutilated by a slab saw. The thumb and two fingers were badly torn and crushed, several bones being taken from the hand by Dr. Clarke, who dressed the wounds.

The Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company, Wilson & Morrison agents, have cheap rates and large indemnities. No one should be without an accident policy.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

Rev. M. L. Pearson goes to Napanee Monday morning next on business relat-ing to the Bay of Quinte Conference, of which he is president. On Monday a meeting of the conference special committee will be held, consisting of the president, secretary and chairmen of districts, and five ministers ap-pointed by the president, to consult with the Rev. Dr. Potts, secretary of Education, upon the College Federation scheme. On the fol-lowing Tuesday the Missionary Committee meets to dispose of about $10,000 granted by the General Mission Board to the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Orillia Suspended.

Yesterday President Dan. A. Rose, of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, visited St. Catharines and discussed with Secretary O'Loughlin the charges made by the Thistle club, of Fergus, against the Orillia club, of Orillia, and the Excelsior club, of Brampton, in connection with the intermediate cham-pionship matches. As the Fergus club had not made any charge in the formal way pro-vided by the rules, no action could legally be taken in the matter, but, to secure a thorough investigation into the matter, the president has taken advantage of the power given him and suspended both clubs on the plea that they have violated article 6, sec. 6, of the constitution, and the clubs will be summoned to appear before the Judicial Committee and Council at a meeting to be held at Hamilton, Thursday, Nov. 1.

Hon. Edward Blake.

Hon. Edward Blake is on his way to British Columbia. He will spend several days in Winnipeg on his return and probably will be the recipient of some demonstration. He says he is feeling in very good health. The rest of a year and half which he took, and which he remarked was a pretty large slice out of his time, had done him great good. Speaking of his constitution, he said he had once felt that nothing could tire him. He had known himself to work constantly and at a high pressure in intellectual work for 36 hours and then take a bath and a little breakfast and go to his office and put in a goods day's work, and he never felt tired at the time, but he could not do such a thing now. A few hours' hard work would fatigue him quite as much now as a long turn such as he had just described.

Hallowe'en.

The mention of this ancient Scottish festival reminds us of some of the frolics that are perpetrated on that night. Every license is allowed, for are not all the saints abroad, and sanction all we do? A cake baked with a ring, piece of money or thim-ble, the unfortunate one who finds the thimble will never be married; the lucky one who gets the money will be rich, and the finder of the ring will be married first. Ducking for apples is a favorite sport with children, but not with those of a larger growth. Sitting at your neighbor's door with your mouth full of wat-er and hands full of salt, to hear the name of your husband and pulling cabbage stalks to ascertain whether he will be tall or short straight or crooked, is one infallible way of finding out this important question. Burn-ing nuts, after giving each a name—one name must be your own; if they burn with a steady flame there is happiness in store for you; if they fly apart with a bang you have not se-lected the right name.

"Dot" it Down.

The Toronto Globe has the following in reference to the play of "Dot, or the Aveng-er's Oath," to be presented in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday, November 1st:—"Dot, or the Avenger's Oath," now running at the Toronto Opera House, is a powerful drama of western American life, a stage re-moved from the inevitable mining camp. The plot is a succession of thrilling situations, lightened by flashes of taking humor darted from the keen wit of Dot, saucy little sprite, or beaming through the effective dialect of a German lad known as Jake Galoot. The two unique features of the evening are the constant appearance of two fine hounds in the "nick of time" and a tre-mendous gunpowder explosion at the close of the fourth act. Mr. James Horne, who takes the leading male role, is an actor of power and promise; while Miss Florence J. Bindley makes a charming little soubrette as Dot, and does very effectively the meagre amount of pathos assigned her.

How Good Girls Economize.

Maud and Ethel, two London street girls, are great chums. One evening Maud said, "O, Ethel, I've got a compliment for you. I was walking down street this afternoon behind J. D. and R. R.—you were on the opposite side of the street—and I heard one say to the other, 'What a bloomin' pretty little foot that girl carries!'" Ethel broke out in smiles, from her fluffy bangs to the tip of her little 2½ boot, which, with pardonable pride, she thrust forward from beneath her skirts. "And what a pretty boot!" ex-claimed Maud. "Yes, and so cheap, too. I'm getting a new scalette this fall, you know, and I have to economize. So I went to gough bros. and got this lovely pair of boots, and, do you believe, I only paid half as much as I have always had to pay at other shops; and they fit just as well and fall just as comfort-ably, too. I used to think gough bros. just advertised, but these boots are real nice—mother's going down to get a pair to-morrow for herself and Bobby. gough bros. are my ticket every time, you bet, and if I wasn't engag—good gracious! there's the baby howl-ing, and mother up to her shoulders in dough, making biscuits for tea—back in a minute."

Canadian Horticulturist.

A copy of the Canadian Horticulturist has just come to hand. This is the only monthly magazine on the continent devoted wholly to the interests of Canadian Fruit Growers. It is edited by a practical fruit grower, and has no connection or interest in any nursery. Our Canadian farmers will find in it wholly unbiassed opinions regarding the merits of new and old fruits, instructions in fruit cul-ture, and the best modes of marketing the same, hints on horticulture, lawn deco-rations, etc. Every number has a beautiful colored plate as a frontispiece, and numerous illustrations. The number for May will con-tain a list of insecticides and fungicides which is most useful at this season of the year. The subscription price is $1 per an-num, which includes membership of the asso-ciation, a copy of its annual report, and a share in the annual distribution of plants, in addition to the magazine, and may begin with any month. To introduce the maga-zine, and increase its usefulness, the editor offers to send it for eight months from May, to new subscribers, for 50c. Address L. Woolverton, Sec. Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario, Grimsby, Ont.

Teacher Convention.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 25.—According to previous announcement, the teachers of the county assembled here to-day to hold a convention for the purpose of interchanging opinions on matters pertaining to their profession.

About thirty or more teachers were pre-sent at the opening, which took place in the Model School at one o'clock.

After a short address by the president, Mr. A. Hutchison, the minutes of the pre-vious meeting were read and adopted.

The treasurer's report was read and referred to an audit committee consisting of Mr. Matchett and Miss McDonald.

Messrs. Anderson and Spence and Miss Lizzie McDonald were appointed a committee on nomination to office, and Mr Kelly and Misses Mark and McDonald a committee to report on a uniform promotion examination for the county.

READING.

The first subject taken up was Reading, by Mr. J. C. Brown. He took up the first four readers and pointed out several points to be emphasized in teaching this subject.

The First Reader, he said, was got up for the purpose of giving the pupils a thorough knowledge of the alphabet, which meant a good deal more than merely teaching the names of the letters—they should know the use of the letters. The word at the margin should be thoroughly mastered by pupils be-fore proceeding to read the lesson.

In the Second Part, he would advise teachers to make an index of the lessons as none was provided in the book. The differ-ence between prose and poetry should be pointed out and the best pieces of poetry committed to memory. It is a good exercise to have pupils give the substance of lessons in their own words, and pupils will be led to take a good deal more interest if they are led to know something of the authors of the lessons. Mr. Brown also took up the re-maining three books, and in a similar manner showed how they should be taught.

ARITHMETIC.

This was the next subject on the pro-gramme and was taken up by Miss Kate Lewis, of Norwood. She showed her method of presenting short division to a class for the first time. Miss Lewis is a thorough teacher of the young, and she pleased the audience immensely by her happy manner of dealing with the subject.

COMPOSITION.

Mr. K. Mark, of Keene, then followed with composition as he teaches it in his own school. And we are sure his pupils ought to be beyond the average in this important art. The chief points brought out by the speaker were:—Commence composition first day of school life. Before words must be ideas, and children should use their own language. Statements at first should be simple, but afterwards two or more might be joined in one. To get pupils interested a short story should be read and then the pupils re-produce it in their own words. Business forms of all kinds should be taught, such as mak-ing out accounts, orders, drafts, promissory notes, &c.

The last subject was "How to make our institute more profitable," by Miss M. Mc-Donald. Were her suggestions followed, there is no doubt more good would result from these conventions.

NOTES.

The teachers of Norwood took upon them-selves the responsibility of billeting the visiting teachers, and have carried out their efforts most successfully.

The meeting this afternoon was pronounced by every one to be the most interesting ever held in the county.

A very large attendance is expected to-morrow.

The Pigeon Creek Bridge.

Residents of the Vicinity Want the Bridge Re Opened — Victoria's Action Con-demned.

The King's Wharf, Emily, correspondent of the Lindsay Post writes:—A largely attended meeting was held at the Kings Wharf postoffice on Saturday at 4 p.m., for the purpose of coming to some conclusion with regard to the Pigeon creek floating bridge which is about to be closed. A motion was put before the meeting to have certain por-tions of the townships of Emily, Verulam and Somerville annexed to the county of Peterborough, which was carried unanimous-ly. Mr. Charles Millage and Mr. Deyell were appointed delegates to meet the Peterborough county council. The matter is to be left in the hands of Mr. Stratton, M.P.P. for West Peterborough. A meeting will be held on Saturday evening next at 7 o'clock in Gil-lespee's school house, Verulam. Mr. Fairbairn, Mr. T. H. McQuade and Mr. Crabtree are cordially invited to attend. It is believed that not less than three hundred names will appear on the petition before the house at the next session. We have appealed several times to the county of Victoria with very poor results. Now, what is wrong? Does the county of Victoria believe that we will submit to their decision in the matter? If so, they are mistaken. We have paid our share to build roads and bridges away in Muskoka and other places and never squeal-ed. The Pigeon creek bridge is all in the county of Victoria and Victoria county is asked to pay only one-half the cost of keep-ing up repairs, and Peterborough will pay the other half. But Victoria county says no, we will compel you to draw your grain and produce to Lindsay and take what you get for it. Now this is exactly the way the matter stands, and we hope that the sympa-thizing people of this county will assist us in this matter, and as I have already taken up too much space in your valuable paper, I will close for the present.

To this the editor of the Post, with more loyalty than logic, adds:—"Peterborough is endeavoring to escape responsibility for the cost of boundary bridges at Kinmount and Bobcaygeon, and has treated this county in a very shabby manner. We do not think Peterborough will pay half for the mainten-ance of the Pigeon Creek bridge; they will pay half of a special grant, but that is all. A fine gravel road should be made from Lind-say to Downeyville and King's Wharf. The Lindsay market is the best this year, as several North Emily people who tried Peter-borough know to their cost."

Eye, Ear and Throat.

Dr. Ryerson will be at the Grand Central hotel, Peterborough, on Saturday, 3rd Nov. 1888. eodw

Parlor Social.

The first of a series of socials under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Charlotte street Methodist church, will take place at Mr. A. L. Davis' residence on Thursday, 8th of November, at 8 o'clock p. m. Particulars hereafter. 2d98

The A. C. A. Meet.

Commodore H. C. Rogers, Col. J. Z. Rogers and Mr. J. T. Edwards, of Lindsay, of the committee appointed to choose a site for the next A. C. A. meet, returned this morning from a visit to the Thousand Islands. They will report upon the matter at the annual meeting at Toronto, Nov. 17th.

Putting in Drill.

Beginning with this week, and until annu-al inspection day on Nov. 15th, the 57th Batt. will hold two drills per week, on Tuesday and Friday nights. The officers and men intend to make a good appearance on inspection day if steady drill will accomplish it.

Couldn't Keep Up His Record.

A Montreal horseman has been in town for a couple of days with a trotting stallion that he claimed could cover a mile in about 2:25. At the driving park yesterday the horse could not do better than a three-minute gait, so his negotiations with a local horse-fancier for the purchase of the stepper fell through.

News Nuggets.

—Some boys are summoned to appear in court to-morrow for breaking a window with stones.

—Rev. M. L. Pearson assisted at the opening ceremonies of the new Ops church last Sunday.

—Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald's camping party are expected home to-night. Their friends are anxious to know what luck they had.

At the Christian Conference at Montreal this week a Dominion Evangelical Alliance was organized with Rev. E. F. Torrance, Peterborough, one of the officers on the General Committee.

—The Soaya correspondent of the Warder writes:—Mr. L. McFadyen, the agent in this district for P. Hamilton, of Peterbor-ough, is doing a fair business in the imple-ment line. He has been fortunate in secur-ing the agency for a firm that turns out re-markably fine work, and whose machinery, particularly the binders, give the best satis-faction.

Personal.

Mr. A. A. Smith to-day received the bronze medal from the Governor General, won by him at the Collegiate Institute examinations.

Greenfield's Extradition.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, to-day received a communication from the Deputy Attorney General, stating that the negotia-tions for the extradition of Greenfield were about concluded, and as the expenses would amount to about $250, it was recommended that the town bear half the cost of the pro-ceedings. Mr. Edwards was asked to lay the matter before the council.

Widening the Channel.

The C.P.R. Company are making a good job of the cutting down of the island in the river. The water has been lowered at the locks and shut off above the Dickson dam, so that they are able to dig below the low water level. The eastern side of the island is being cut entirely away and carried over to form the embankment along the western shore. As a result the channel of the river will be widened considerably.

A Teachers' Meeting.

A largely attended meeting of the Sunday school teachers of St. Paul's Church was held at the residence of Mr. Sheriff Hall last night for the receiving of the report of the delegates to the Convention at Kingston last week, Misses Alice Dawson, Mary Sim and Bertha Brown. The report was concise and comprehensive, and received with approba-tion. The only other business done was the electing of Mr. Jas. Lowe Secretary of the School.

A SERMON BY MR. TRY-TO-BUY-THE-CHEAPEST!

TO THE HONEST FARMERS AND MECHANICS,

AND ALL LABOURING CLASSES IN THE Town and County OF PETERBOROUGH.

TEXT: "GOOD GOODS, SMALL PROFITS."

MY HEARERS,—You need not cry or weep any longer, by being afraid of being taken in by some High Priced Clothing Sharks, as the young and pushing firm of WYATT & TURNER have at last got their heels on the neck of the Wonderful Cormorants. You need not spend your money until you see what this firm is doing, and if, my friends, you cannot get as good, and I will say, better bargains there than any where else, then by no means buy one cent's worth; and if you do not buy, they will not send a boy to follow you, to see if you go into a competing house to buy; they do business on the Square, and besides, sell First Goods and No Sheddy. No Slop Work, all their goods I am told, is examined and re-examined before going out of the store. Now, my hearers, if this be true, and I believe it is, you need not be afraid of being GULLED or taken in in any way by this firm. I need not quote prices, as you know prices are all right; but when some people buy a few dollars worth of goods at a price, and then try to make the public believe that they bought them for half what they paid for them; and not only this, but they also double the quantity they bought. Now, my hearers, figures will lie if you wish to make them, but when the firm of Wyatt & Turner say they sell a suit of Men's Clothing for $1.75, you can rest assured they do, or if they sell All-Wool Shirts and Drawers for 45c., who'se business is it but their own; as long as you get a $1.25 All-Wool Cardigan Jacket for 75c., go by all means and buy it, and be made happy. By the way, I almost forgot to tell you that they have OVERCOATS from $2.50 up to $12.50. Now, in the last place, I would say briefly, my dear hearers, that

WYATT & TURNER, are the Cheapest Clothiers on Earth.

IT IS SAID JUDGE HENRY'S SUCCESSOR HAS BEEN NAMED.

But No Announcement Has Been Made—Chief Justice Hagarty and Judge Osler Mentioned—The Dominion's Traffic.

OTTAWA, Oct, 27.—There was a meeting of Council yesterday afternoon at which it is thought that the vacancy in the Supreme Court bench was filled, but no announcement was made. It is considered pretty certain that the vacancy will be filled from the Ontario bench, and the names of Chief Justice Hagarty and Judge Osler are mentioned, with the chances in favor of the former.

Hon. Mr. Mowat, Premier of Ontario, arrived here yesterday morning and had a long conference with Premier Mercier of Quebec with reference to making final arrangements for the meeting of the arbitrators who are to apportion the assets which belong to the two provinces as legatees of the old province of Canada, and also to settle up all outstanding accounts between the two provinces.

The Canada Northwest Land Co. and the Canadian Pacific Railroad will, it is understood, jointly enter the courts once more to resist the payment of school taxes upon their lands in the Northwest. The Supreme Court, in refusing to hear their appeal, practically terminates the legal fight on the old issue, but now the company, profiting by recent legislation, can carry their case to Ottawa. The statutes of 1886, chapter 37, which of course is not retroactive in its effect, possesses a clause extending the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to cases coming from the Supreme Court of the Northwest, even though the cases in question do not originate in the territorial court. Under this section therefore an appeal from a court of revision could lie to Ottawa.

To-day's Canada Gazette contains notice of calling to the Senate James Reid, in place of Hon. Hugh Nelson.

Parliament has been further prorogued pro forma, to Dec. 1.

An order-in-council has been passed approving the new rules and regulations to govern the board of civil service examiners in holding examinations.

Notice is given of application to Parliament for a charter for the Calgary, Alberta and Montana Railway, to build a railway from Calgary in a southerly direction to the international boundary at a point between the Rocky Mountains and the eastern boundary of Alberta.

An order-in-council has been passed approving the by-law of the town of Kincardine imposing certain harbor tolls.

The following notices of bank dividends are given: Niagara District Bank, 5 per cent.; Imperial Bank, semi-annual at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum; Bank Ville Marie, Merchants' Bank of Canada, Ontario Bank, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Jacques Cartier Bank, and Bank of Ottawa, 3½ per cent. for the half-year, and Traders' Bank of Canada at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

Deserted Her Child.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Detectives Phair and Ryder, acting in pursuance of information and description received from Stratford on Saturday, yesterday arrested Alice Murray, a young woman who gives her age at 21, of prepossessing appearance, charged with deserting her child, leaving her infant in a chapel at Stratford. Upon being conveyed to the station she admitted the charge, stating that she had endeavored to support the infant, but being unable to longer do so had left it as stated in the chapel. The unfortunate young woman had lived for some time in this city and was admitted to the hospital in a delicate condition under the name of Moore, when, after the birth of the child, she left the institution. She refused to disclose the name of the father.

The Napanee and Tamworth R. R.

KINGSTON, Oct. 27.—W. R. Aylesworth, Vice-President of the Napanee and Tamworth Railway Company, has notified the Mayor that after examining the country and giving the matter full consideration the company has decided to accept the proposal of a bonus of $75,000 and build the connection from Yarker to Harrowsmith, entering Kingston by way of the Kingston and Pembroke Railroad.

Sentenced for Assaulting a Teacher.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 27.—In the Third District Court Maggie Watts was sentenced to the woman's reformatory prison at Sherborne for one year for assaulting with a pistol George H. Tipp, principal of the Middle-street grammar school, in this city. The assault was made because the teacher refused to release from school the woman's brother.

A $20,000 Fire at Gravenhurst.

GRAVENHURST, Oct. 27.—At 7.30 last evening fire was discovered in Isaac Cockburn's sawmill, which was completely consumed. Loss $20,000, partly covered by insurance.

Opposed to Floquet's Scheme.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—At a meeting of the Republican Left of the Senate it was shown that a majority of the members of the Senate were opposed to Premier Floquet's proposal for the revision of the constitution. They consider the scheme to be fraught with danger to parliamentary power and at the same time to the liberty of action of the executive.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

MERCHANTS PURSUING A CONSERVATIVE POLICY.

More Confidence in Raw Wool—An Advance in Boots and Shoes—Money Easier at New York—No Gain in Iron.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Considering the near approach to a presidential election, the leading features of general trade throughout the country, as reported by wire to Bradstreet's, indicate an unusual number of favorable features. Merchants appear to be pursuing a conservative policy in all lines, though more confidence is shown in raw wool and boots and shoes than in any other. There is even some speculative buying of wool by those who look for advanced prices after election. Prices of boots and shoes have been advanced by New England manufacturers 2½ and 5c. per pair.

The exports of merchandise for nine months of the calendar year are smaller than in any previous year since 1882, but the imports are larger than in any preceding nine months since 1882. The total exports aggregate $454,832,177 and the imports $544,307,008 against $490,463,612 and $533,924,964.

The New York Stock Market is very dull, but showed a moderately strong undertone in the face of a continuance of unfavorable developments in the Boston market. Money at New York is easier, call loans 1¼c. and 2¼c. Foreign exchange is easier on a free offering on cotton and loan bills, demand sterling $4.87½ and $4.87¾.

The iron trade shows no sign of gains, notwithstanding the repeated reports in large orders for bridge and other structural material, and steel rails are 50 cents lower, or $27.50 per ton, only 90 cents above the lowest price ever quoted in the United States. British iron and steel shipments to the United States for nine months of the present year are 486,613 tons against 1,041,750 in 1887, a decrease of 53 per cent.

Calculations by Bradstreet's, based on official reports, indicate that if 50,000,000 bushels of reserve wheat are to be carried over on June 30, 1889, more than the exportable surplus on the Atlantic coast has already been sent abroad, and if we carry over but 30,000,000 bushels we have 16,204,000 bushels yet to go abroad. The Pacific coast, however, with 5,000,000 bushels for reserves, still has 26,278,000 bushels of wheat available for export until June 30 next, having already shipped 11,244,000 bushels. The exports of wheat and flour as wheat, both coasts, amount to 2,337,916 bushels this week. The exports are 510,570 bushels less than last week and 272,434 more than in the like week in 1887.

The movement of cotton goods at Boston and New York with jobbers is disappointing. The woolen mills are fairly well employed.

Prices of raw sugar receded ¼c, remaining barely steady on increased warehouse deliveries, and meltings and slow movement of both raw and refined. Dealers have also been eager to place new crop of Brazil.

Coffee prices at New York have been irregular in light speculative interest, with a net decline amounting to about 40 points.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number for the United States 223, and for Canada 32, or a total of 254, as against a total of 234 last week and 227 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week last year the figures were 216, made up of 193 in the United States and 23 in the Dominion.

Narrow Escape for the Passengers

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Several persons who were in a Clark-street car had a scare at Addison-street which they will not soon forget. The car was approaching the main track of the Chicago and Evanston road, when the outgoing theater train bore down on it. The driver attempted to get across. The horses were on the track when the engine struck them. The driver managed to apply his break in time to stop the car, and the terrified passengers rushed out. One of the horses was instantly killed, and the other was so badly hurt that it had to be shot.

Murdered by Burglars.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 27.—David Sellers and his wife, living near Mount Gilead, O., were murdered last night and their farm house was fired by the perpetrators of the crime. Their daughter and the hired man who slept upstairs were awakened about 2 o'clock this morning by smoke, before the flames had gained much headway. They escaped and finally succeeded in getting the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Sellers out. Both were dead; the man's head had been burned off and the woman's skull had been crushed and her jaw broken. Sellers was very wealthy and was in the habit of keeping money in the house. It is, therefore, supposed the murder was committed by burglars.

Murdered at a Card Party.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—The Chronicle's dispatch from Duquoin, Ill., says: "While engaged in a game of cards in Thompsonville, Ill., last night Warner Jordon shot and instantly killed John Davis. Charles Davis, a brother of the murdered man, seized a hatchet and beat and cut Jordon so that he died in a few minutes. Charles then went to Benton and surrendered to the sheriff. All three concerned are prominent in their neighborhood and are men of family. There is much excitement, which may lead to a factional war."

New Design in Ferry Boats.

NEWBURG, Oct. 27.—Shortly after noon yesterday the steamer Emiline arrived with a party of 125 distinguished railroad and steamboat officials from New York city, who had come here to witness the launching of the new ferry boat Bergen, of the Hoboken land improvement company line, at Marvels' shipyard, this city. The boat is built of steel and of entirely new design, having screw propeller fore and aft, permitting the boat to go forward or backward without being turned about.

A Political Murder.

LEBANON, IND., Oct. 27.—George Purdy was found dead near the roadside about one mile northeast of this city last evening with his body riddled with bullets. Persons who witnessed the shooting say that Purdy was balloting for Harrison, and some unknown person driving up from behind him commenced firing his revolver.

Vail Wins the Boat Race at St. John—St. Louis Defeats New York.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 27.—The three-mile boat race between Galanaugh of Philadelphia and Vail of this city was rowed on the Kennebeccasis River yesterday afternoon. The stakes were $300 a side, Vail won easily in 23 minutes. Galanaugh says in turning the buoy he met with a mishap by disjointing a knee cap.

The Pope and the Kaiser.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Government organs are talking of the expected recall of Baron von Schlozer, the Prussian Envoy to the Vatican, in consequence of the Pope's oration to the Neapolitan pilgrims. The Germania (Catholic) asserts that the papal note to the Nuncios at foreign courts will emphasize the fact that Emperor William's visit having led to occurrences that could not fail to wound the Pontiff has made the position of the Pope still more deplorable.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Victoria University and Her Degrees—The Bloody Self-Murderer.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—A deputation waited on Hon. G. W. Ross at the Educational Department yesterday afternoon to ascertain if the Ontario Government would pass such legislation as was necessary to retain for Victoria University her degree conferring power during the interim between the time when the university may go into confederation and the actual removal to Toronto. Mr. Ross promised to give Victoria all the legislation she could desire for the furtherance of federation.

John Barnard, familiarly known as Pie John, was found dead on his chamber yesterday morning. Before retiring to rest, he had filled the self-feeder in the sitting-room with coal, but forgot to close the top afterwards. His wife lay by his side unconscious but hopes are entertained of her recovery.

At a meeting of a special committee of the City Council yesterday it was resolved to issue $1,000,000 of the new debentures at 4 per cent. for 40 years and the remaining $500,000 local improvement debentures spread over short dates at 5½ per cent. It was further determined not to sell the 4 per cents, but simply to hypothecate them until the spring, when an attempt will be made to exchange them for 3½'s, it being hoped that by that time the necessary legislation would be secured.

A man named Flemming, of Brampton, came near losing his life while leaving the G. T. R. train yesterday morning at Parkdale. It was in motion and he slipped and fell between the south end of the platform and the train. The spectators fully expected to see him mangled, but when the train was stopped and the man picked up he had escaped injury.

Frederick Adolphus Clarry, a stylish-looking young man, was yesterday arrested on a charge of selling a lottery ticket, the prize in which is a $20,000 residence on the lake shore in Parkdale.

Parkdale votes on the question of whether or not it will annex to Toronto to-morrow.

Yesterday's session of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society was devoted to Home Missions. Mrs. A. R. McMaster, President, delivered an able address, reviewing the work of the past year. A sermon was then preached by Rev. D. A. McGregor, after which reports of Home Mission work were read and an address delivered by Mrs. Yule.

A mandamus was granted yesterday in Jones v. Port Arthur to quash a by-law granting a bonus of $3000 for the erection of a new pastoffice in that enterprising town, the ground taken being that there is unjust discrimination in selecting the site. The argument takes place next week.

The girl Annie Pratt, arrested on Thursday at the instance of City Contractor Cathro on a charge of stealing $500, and who secured her liberty afterwards through his efforts, when her name was called in the Police Court yesterday, failed to appear, and neither did Cathro materialize. It was then discovered that the fair Annie had been given her liberty without the proper bonds having been entered into, and there is likely to be an investigation to discover who is to blame for the oversight. Meanwhile the police are looking for Cathro and his mistress.

HIS PATIENCE EXHAUSTED.

Justice Hannen Intimates that Atty.-Gen. Webster Has Talked Enough.

LONDON, Oct. 27. The Parnell Commission again listened to Attorney-General Webster's presentation of The Times' case yesterday. The speaker continued to recite a catalog of outrages supposed to be traceable to members of the League, and then quoted from speeches of Mr. Dillon and other Parnellites to prove their support of the plan of campaign. He dealt in succession with a series of utterances made by Messrs. Wm. O'Brien, Cully, Cox, Kenny and Matthew Harris to show their sympathy with outrages, and intimated his intention to deal at length with violent orations of the League, mainly made in County Clare, during the years 1885, 1886 and 1887.

At this Presiding Justice Hannen's patience seemed to be exhausted and leaning forward he asked the Attorney-General if he did not think he had already given sufficient indication of the line of argument he intended to adopt

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for Mr. Parnell, suggested that the Attorney-General might hand him copies of the speeches he meant to quote from and thus save time.

The Attorney-General replied that he must deal with all the Irish counties he had picked out as affording the most striking proof of the character of the League's agitation. He quite understood Justice Hannen's hint, and he was desirous of adopting any practical suggestion which would enable him to shorten his remarks.

POOR NATALIE.

The High-handed Divorce Proceedings of King Milan.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—King Milan of high-handed action in having his creature, the Metropolitan Theodosius, whom he arbitrarily created a while ago, now as arbitrarily decree his divorce is the most important thing politically which has happened south of Vienna since Battenberg's forcible abdication. While continental opinion is still unheard, no hard and fast views have been adopted here, but it would surprise no one in England if the thing led to a grave disturbance in the delicately balanced Balkan situation.

A Row at a Boulangist Meeting.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—At a Boulangist meeting in the Salle Wagram last night, at which about 600 persons were present, a party of anti-Boulangists headed by Lullier, provoked a free fight. Many persons were carried out of the place with lacrated and bleeding faces. During the turmoil Lullier fired a revolver from the platform into the audience. He was immediately thrown and belabored with sticks, one of which penetrated his neck. He fired again three times, whereupon the gas was put out and a general rush made for the doors. It is not known whether any are wounded by the shots.

THE MINISTER'S BLUNDER.

SALISBURY DEPLORES SACKVILLE'S INJUDICIOUSNESS.

No Official Communication Touching the Incident Has Yet Passed Between the Two Governments.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—No official communication has as yet passed between the Cabinets of England and the United States with reference to Lord Sackville's letter on the presidential contest.

Lord Salisbury has sent to Lord Sackville several direct despatches deploring the Minister's injudiciousness.

It is expected here that the United States Government will make some demand in order to counteract possible injury to President Cleveland.

Mr. Phelps, the United States Minister here, has already had an interview with Lord Salisbury on the subject.

Neither The Post, The Times, The Chronicle, The Standard, nor The Daily News, touch the Sackville incident. Another daily paper, however, begins an editorial thus: "Her Majesty's minister at Washington has been writing a letter on American politics. The mere announcement of such an act is enough to make our old and departed diplomatists turn in their graves." After scoring the minister pretty roughly for a column, the editorial thus concludes: "As to the issue of the presidential contest, it is no longer of any great interest to the people in this country. Although General Harrison is a protectionist, President Cleveland is not a free trader, while the retaliation message and recent jobs show that in pandering to international jealousness and in the art of political corruption there is naught to choose between the two parties. An Englishman abroad may write a silly letter, but Englishmen at home care very little who enters the White House next year."

There is great disgust here at the mess into which Lord Sackville seems to have got himself. He was slated for Rome after Lord Dufferin had done a brief turn there, but this foolishness probably puts an end to his career of preferment.

A Cabinet Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—There was another Cabinet meeting yesterday at which Lord Sackville's letter and the complications resulting therefrom was the topic under discussion but it is understood that no action was taken.

At the State Department it was said that Mr. Bayard had not taken any further action and had no statement to make in addition to the one given out yesterday.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

The New York Tribune says Canada's Future Depends on the Result.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—"The Future of Canada—Reciprocity or Political Union—The Elections here to Decide" is the way The Tribune heads the contribution of two correspondents. The writers are F. W. Glen, who will be remembered in Canada, and F. T. Babson, President of the National Fishery Association. The former says that the Wilman policy, or rather, as he (Glen) believes, the Cleveland-Bayard policy, if carried out will secure Reciprocity, indefinitely defer Political Union, and leave Canada an appendage to the British Crown.

THE GENEREUX INQUEST.

Alfred Belanger Charged With Causing the Girl's Death—A Second Fire.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—The inquest on the body of the French Canadian girl, Emma Genereux, alleged to have been outraged, was concluded last evening, when the jury returned this verdict, two jurors dissenting:

"That said Emma Genereux came to her death from violence and injuries inflicted upon her body by one Alfred Belanger." Coroner Jones will commit Belanger to the Court of Queen's Bench next week.

Fire last night in the building occupied by Robert Mitchell & Co., brass founders, and others, caused the following losses: Robert Mitchell & Co., $2000; Ewing & Co., coffee and spice mills, $1000; C. Aspenwall, blacksmith, $300; a laundry, $1000 and building $2000, covered by insurance.

Daring Robbery at Brockville.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 27.—A rather daring robbery occurred yesterday, the victim being Mr. Fowler, furniture dealer. A customer went into his shop and wanted to look at a parlor suite, and for this purpose Mr. Fowler accompanied him to the show rooms on the second flat, thus leaving the shop without anyone in charge. Just as he was at the head of the stairs he heard the shop door open and looking around saw a party coming in who was in the habit of frequently coming to the shop, consequently he paid no attention to the matter. On coming down stairs again the party was gone, and shortly after Mr. Fowler noticed that his safe had been opened, and an examination revealed the fact that notes and papers to the value of about $490 had been taken. There was no money, however, in the safe at the time. The suspected party is safe on the other side of the river.

Will Make Votes for Harrison.

BUFFALO, Oct. 27.—Chauncey M. Depew, in an interview yesterday, predicted that the Republican electoral ticket would have 20,000 majority in this State. He said Lord Sackville's letter was the funniest thing he had heard of since Burchard's "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion." It would open the people's eyes to the real truth of the connection between Cleveland and England, and make good votes for Harrison and Morton. The letter substantiated the statement the Republicans had made all along, that the British Government and people were in favor of Cleveland's election.

Thorold's Gas Well.

THOROLD, Oct. 27.—The Thorold gas well is now down over 1800 feet. The drill is working through the second sand bed, which is very hard, although 30 feet in the twelve hours is made. Mr. Cameron, of Westfield, N. Y., the contractor, says the indications are the same here as in Bradford, Pa., and he feels confident of striking gas at a depth of not over 2400 feet.

Mormonism and the Bible.

Being a Series of Papers which will Appear from Time to Time, Exposing One of the Most Absurd Parodies of Christianity Ever Attempted to be Palmed Off on the Unlearned and Untaught in Biblical Study.

(Second Paper).

Those who received the new revelation. Jer., xxxiii, 23-26. The prophet here speaks of two families which the Israelites had cast off, and which the Lord had chosen, and Mr. Smith wishes us to believe that the book of Mormon can tell us who these families were. But we prefer to see what the Bible has to say about them first. The 17th and 18th verses of the above chapter tell us. We read there: "For thus saith the Lord; David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel." "Neither shall the priests, the Levites want a man before me," &c. We see here that the two families were the royal family of David and the sacerdotal family of the Levites. The book of Mormon has two families of its own. We must, therefore, choose between it and the Bible, and I think all Christians will choose the Bible.

But if we do not acknowledge the two families the book of Mormon selects, the whole subject must give way, and there would be an end of the matter. So, for the present, we shall suppose the book of Mormon to have hit upon the right families, and follow out their history. The book of Mormon makes out these families to be descendants of Ephraim. The Bible does not say so; on the contrary, it shows plainly that these two families represent David and the Levites. But, then, Ephraim has to be dragged in somehow, because certain promises were made to the tribe of Ephraim, a part of which eventually crossed over to America, according to the book of Mormon, and there received the fulfilment of these promises. So it hits upon these two families which the Israelites cast off, and, disregarding the rest of the chapter, which explains who the families were, puts them down as Ephraimites. Mr. Smith, in his paper, after quoting Hos., viii, 11, 12, referring to the great things of God's law having been written to Ephraim, asks: "Who is Ephraim?" and quoting Gen., xlviii, 5, where Jacob speaks of Ephraim and Manasseh as Joseph's sons, replies "Joseph's sons." This is quite true, one Ephraim was Joseph's son, but it is not true that the Ephraim mentioned in Hos., viii, 11, 12, is this son, which is what Mr. Smith wishes us to infer from his note on No. one. For here Ephraim is equivalent to the northern kingdom of Israel, and has no reference to the son of Joseph. To prove this I will show that the prophets of the Old Testament repeatedly referred to the *king*dom of Israel as "Ephraim." David (Ps., lxxviii, 12) wrote of the marvellous things done in the sight of "Ephraim's" fathers in the land of Egypt. But these things were not done in the sight of one tribe more than another, yet David so speaks throughout this Psalm as if these things were done especially for Ephraim, that the only explanation is that Ephraim means all Israel.

Isaiah vii., 9v., speaks of the head of Ephraim being Samaria. But Samaria was not in Ephraim, but in Manasseh. Thus Ephraim stands for more than the mere geographical extent of that tribe. He further says of Ephraim (verse 17) "the day that Ephraim departed from Judah." But Ephraim did not depart alone, but in conjunction with the ten tribes. Thus it is easy to see that while he refers to the one division as Judah, he refers to the other as Ephraim.

Jeremiah (vii., 15v.) writes: "I have cast out all your brethren, even the whole seed of Ephraim." Here again Ephraim means Israel, for the prophet is warning Judah by the misfortune which had overtaken the rest of the tribes, whom he speaks of as "the whole seed of Ephraim."

In Isaiah vii., 1v., we read of the king of Israel warring against Jerusalem in conjunction with the king of Syria, while the second verse tells us that it was Ephraim that had joined with Syria; here again Ephraim stands for Israel. Isaiah further says, referring to the restoration of Judah and Israel (xi., 13v.), "Ephraim shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim," which is a still further example of Ephraim standing for all Israel. Compare also Jeremiah iii., 18v; Ezekiel xxxvii., 16-21v.; Hosea i., 4-11v. We come now to the prophecy of Hosea, from whion Mr. Smith infers that Ephraim means a separate portion of Israel. But here also we can show that the term Ephraim means all Israel, and not a separate portion of that kingdom. In chapter vi., 4v., we have Ephraim and Judah representing the kingdom of Judah and the kingdom of Israel. In chapter v., 13v., vii., 11v., and xii., 1v., we read of Ephraim calling to Egypt and Assyria for help, which we know was the action not of one tribe but of the whole kingdom of Israel. (See II Kings xv., 19v., xvii., 3v.) Thus we see that Hosea himself in several instances refers to Israel under the name of Ephraim, following the example of other prophets. Nor is there any reason for doubting that throughout the whole of his prophecies the term Ephraim is used exclusively as an equivalent for Israel. Mr. Smith, I know, would have us think otherwise, but upon what grounds? He turns to such a passage as Hos. xi., 8v. "How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel?" and says, "how can two separate declarations delivered against people under two separate names in the one text refer to one and the same people?" Of course they do not? Ephraim cannot mean Israel." But turn to Psalm lxxviii, 21, where we read "so a fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger also came up against Israel." Here is a text with the same kind of construction as Hos. xi, 8, yet there is no doubt whatever that Jacob and Israel refer to the same people united, and not to two separate portions. (See also Ps. clxxxv. 23, and Jer. ii, 4, 5.) But Hosea himself gives us good proof as to any that Ephraim and Israel are equivalent. In chap. vii, 1, we read "When I would have healed Israel then the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered and the wickedness of Samaria." Now, according to Mr. Smith's reasoning, Ephraim does not mean Israel. But if that be so, neither can Samaria mean Israel. But Samaria, we know, was the capital of Israel (Kings xvi, 23-33.) Consequently, Samaria sinning meant Israel sinning. But Samaria was also the capital of Ephraim (Isa. vii, 9,) therefore, Samaria sinning meant also Ephraim sinning. Here then we have three names in the same context, referring to one and the same people, so that no argument can be used in support of two separate people from two or more names in the same text referring to the same thing. We thus see that as all the prophets, including Hosea himself, repeatedly referred to the northern kingdom of Israel under the title of Ephraim. Mr. Smith has not only no authority for saying that the Ephraim of Hos. viii, 12, is Joseph's son, but in so doing he is going against the whole idea of the Bible narrative. The cause of the title of Ephraim being given to the northern kingdom is known to any Bible student. Ephraim was the most powerful of all the tribes next to Judah. Within its borders were the ecclesiastical and civil capitals, Shiloh and Shechem. It was the most warlike, powerful and independent of any of the northern tribes, as we find from the book of Judges. And in tracing the national life of Israel we see the various northern tribes gradually losing their individuality, until they become merged into Ephraim. We can then readily understand how the prophets in after years prophesied against the northern kingdom both in its name of Ephraim and Israel, referring to the same context to this portion of the once united kingdom both under its actual title of Israel and its assumed title of Ephraim.

Before closing this second paper I must not forget my promise that I made in closing my first paper, viz., that I would show that Hosea viii., 12v., refers to the law of Moses. I have shown that the Ephraim of this passage stands for the whole northern kingdom of Israel. In the 11th verse of Hosea viii. we read of Ephraim, that is, Israel, making altars. Now, there was a special portion of the Mosaic law against the making of idols and idol worship (Deut. iv., 15-20v.). This the northern kingdom was the first to transgress (Hosea viii., 1-7v.; compare I. Kings xii., 26-33v.). We now understand why the prophet says (Hosea viii., 12v.), "Ephraim (i. e., Israel) has counted the things of my law as a strange thing," for they had broken the love against idol making and worshipping. This is the plain reading of Scripture, but of course Mr. Smith wishes for a "new revelation," so he picks out a few words which, without their context, seem to lend him some grounds for his theory. But we know our Bible too well to listen to "cunningly devised fables"—II. Peter i., 16v. VINDEX.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS

A Scaly, Itching Skin Disease with Sickness Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $500.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of my terrible affliction. I have . . . and . . . Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors and no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $500.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it took me but a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Anything more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

Every mother knows that at this season of the year, and during the spring months, children are peculiarly liable to Cold in the Head, which, if neglected, develops into Catarrh, this in time attacks the bronchial tubes, and the breath passing over the poisonous secretions affects the lungs, often leading to that dread disease, Consumption, and a premature grave. The lives of hundreds of children might be saved annually, and the existence of thousands rendered more endurable by a prompt application of NASAL BALM, when children contract Cold in the Head. As an almost instant relief for Cold in the Head it never fails, while the most stubborn cases of Catarrh will yield to its treatment if persisted in. It requires no nasal douche or torturing and expensive instrument for its use, but is easily applied, pleasant and always effective. It may be as safely used for a child a few weeks old as for an adult, and for infants troubled with what is known as "snuffles," it gives instant relief. As a precautionary measure every mother should keep a bottle of NASAL BALM in the house at all times. We append a few testimonials out of hundreds we have received from parents, testifying to the benefits their children have experienced from the use of NASAL BALM:

MRS. M. RAY, Cayuga, N. S., says:—I have used Nasal Balm on several occasions with the children for cold in the head, and always find it effects a rapid cure.

MR. ROBERT LAIDLAW, Editor of the London Evening Times, says:—Our babe was so choked up she could hardly breathe. In fact at one time we feared that she would choke to death. Respiration became more difficult every minute, for which we could get no relief by the usual remedies formerly used. Having a bottle of Nasal Balm in the house my wife suggested trying it and in twenty minutes from the first application the child was sleeping and breathing easily, and in twenty-four hours not a sign of the trouble remained. It is an invaluable remedy for children as well as grown people.

R. A. HARRISON, Druggist, Danville, Ont., writes:—I use your Nasal Balm in my own family, and find it by far the best remedy we can get. When baby gets cold we rub his forehead and nose well at night, and in the morning he is all right.

MRS. Wadsworth, St. Thomas, writes, I wish to say my little girl has found the greatest relief in Nasal Balm, as whenever she takes cold she has great difficulty in breathing through her nostrils. But now she flies at once to Balm and gets rapid relief. It is such a pleasant remedy and so easy to use I shall always recommend it, and think every mother should keep it in the house for use for the little ones when they take cold in the head.

MRS. KENNEDY, Clover Hill, Ont., says:—I have much pleasure in saying that your Nasal Balm has done more good for my little girl than any remedy I ever used. I believe Nasal Balm to be unequalled for Catarrh.

MR. E. G. HART, Gananoque, says:—My child was suffering severely from cold in the head, indeed to such an extent that breathing was difficult. One application of Nasal Balm gave instant relief, and in a short time made a perfect cure.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. The reputation achieved by NASAL BALM from its wonderful curative [illegible] has induced certain unscrupulous parties to place imitations on sale, closely resembling [illegible] style of our package, and which cannot be similar in sound. Beware of all preparations styled Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc.; they are fraudulent imitations. Ask for Nasal Balm, and see that you get it.

If you cannot obtain NASAL BALM from your dealer it will be sent post-paid on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1, by addressing

DARING AND SUFFERING.

The fatal command which Andrews now gave as we were huddled together in the wood box of the tender was to jump off, one by one, scatter in the woods, and each man strive to make his own way back to the Union army! We hesitated, but had no concert of action, no leader, no time for council, and the instinct of obedience was still strong upon us; but it was a fatal order, and led directly to the calamities that followed. It transformed us in a moment from a formidable body of picked soldiers, ready to fight to death, into a scattered mass of fugitive boys, bewildered and hopeless in an enemy's country.

Yet no one of us felt like censuring our leader for this order, which every one at the moment believed to be a terrible mistake. Probably he thought that each man of the party would find relief in being cast entirely on his own resources.

It must further be remembered, in explanation of this mistaken order, that Andrews had slept none the night before, that he had been nearly twenty-four hours without food, and that he had spent nearly two days and a night in the most exhausting labors, both mental and physical, that it is possible to conceive. He had seen his cherished plans, when on the brink of success, overthrown by what seemed the remorseless hand of destiny. To the many failures and sorrows of his past life had been added the crowning misfortune of this defeat. Perhaps under his calm brow he realized this with an intensity of anguish, and felt that the greatest favor he could do those he had led within sight of a horrible death, and into the presence of an enraged and triumphant foe, was to separate them at once from his own dark and shadowed destiny. If so, that was the most fearful mistake of all; and as the order was given, we could almost, as we looked southward through the driving rain and the storm clouds, behold already the dark outline of the Atlanta scaffolds!

It was pitiful! The General had served us well ever since the morning hour in fearful speed and patient waiting, in exulting raptures and in almost despair. It was hard to abandon her now. She was substantially uninjured. The engineers, Brown and Knight, had taken good care of her, and with wood and oil in abundance, there would have been no difficulty on her part in completing the run to Huntsville. She was still jogging along at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour, and could maintain that pace a little longer. The pursuers had also diminished their speed, so as to just keep us in sight, having apparently no wish to press upon what may have seemed to them like a wounded and dying lion. The command to "jump off and scatter" was repeated with the injunction to be quick about it, as the engineer wished to reverse the engine and drive it back upon the enemy. With such a reason there could be no more hesitation. It is said that some three or four had already got off at the first word of command; but the most of us had hesitated, not on account of the still rapid motion of the train, but in the idle hope that in some way this terrible parting might be averted. Now one after another clambered down on the step and swung off. I was neither among the first nor the last, and jumping unskillfully out from the step, instead of forward, whirled over and over on hands and feet for several revolutions. Rising in a dazed condition, though unhurt, with the exception of a few scratches from the briers with which the place abounded, I looked over the animated scene with the deepest interest. The men who jumped off were, according to instructions, flying in different directions, a few others were just coming off the engine in much the same way that I had done, while the engineers were attempting to carry out their scheme of reversing the engine, which could do no good now, except possibly to delay the inevitable pursuit a little, and give us a better opportunity to organize our plans. The brakes of the tender were put on still more to diminish speed, and the reversal was made. Here is a slight conflict of authority. The pursuers say that the brakes were not loosed again; but our engineers are equally positive that they were. It is not material, for the result is the same. The steam power was so low, that though the engine moved back it was with moderate velocity, and I saw the pursuers reverse also, and coming to a full stop, whistle two or three times as it approached—a seeming whistle of alarm, though there was little in the approach of our poor General to fear; and then they moved slowly before it for a short distance till the two were in contact, when the weaker stopped and the steam was shut off. The great railroad chase was over!

CHAPTER XIV.

HUNTED IN THE WOODS BY DOGS AND MEN.

Dispersed in the woods with no knowledge of the country, and no guide toward our own lines; with the alarm spreading in every direction, and the hearts of the people on fire with fierce resentment because of the desperate character of our raid, the prospect of escape for any of our number was slight indeed. The south was also better prepared for hunting down fugitives than any other people could have been where slavery was not an established institution. Tracking men over hills and mountains was no novelty; and now for scores of miles in every direction from Chattanooga roads and ferries were guarded, cavalry galloped along the roads, and the planters with their packs of negro hunting dogs explored every wood. Unfortunately, too, a ready mode of identifying any member of the band who might be captured was soon discovered. On the way south we had represented ourselves as from Fleming county, Ky. This story was still continued. The first arrests were made the very same day so close to the train that after this story had been told the men were positively turned back to the train, and then all who gave the same story were known to belong to us.

We expected to die as soon as captured, and there was a degree of exasperation which rendered the risk of instant shooting or hanging very great. But there was also a desire for further investigation and discovery which would be cut short by a sudden slaying of the victim, and this operated to bridge over the first furious moment of capture, but did not prevent the most fearful threats, and in one case—that of Parrott—a fearful beating. It also led to rigor of chaining and confinement almost unparalleled.

We can only give the very briefest account of these painful incidents, and will gladly hasten to other things.

THE GALT POISONING.

A Change in Tactics—No Evidence Against Hannah Boyd to be Given Just Now.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—The case of Hannah Boyd, the young woman arrested by Government Detective Murray on the charge of complicity in what is called the Galt poisoning mystery, will come before the magistrate in Berlin to-day, when the preliminary examination, which was adjourned for a week, is due to commence.

But the public will be surprised to learn that the expected sensational developments are not to take place—at least not at present. Hannah Boyd's case will of course be called to-day, but she will either be discharged or the case will be enlarged. This is certainly something unexpected, but the statement is founded upon the best authority.

The Crown has something in view, and for this reason the authorities do not intend to expose their hand at present. There is something important ahead, hence the sudden change of tatics. Deputy Attorney-General Johnston said yesterday: "We have the case well in hand and are going to keep working at it day after day."

GRAHAM DISCHARGED.

The False Pretence Case at Hamilton Settled by the Parties.

HAMILTON, Oct. 27.—When the case of Peter M. St. Joseph's Hospital.

By an error of information the EXAMINER's in its report of the laying of the corner tone of St. Joseph's hospital, the name of the contractor for the stone work was incorrectly given as John Hayes, it should have been Michael Hayes, who finished his contract to-day, and the completed stone work is a splendid job of stone masonry, neat, substantial and solid, a good sample of Mr. Hayes' invariably excellent work.

Preparing Against Fire.

The village of Lakefield is going in for better fire protection with a vim. The members of the council were in town yesterday and instructed Messrs. Ranney & Ludgate, architects, to prepare for the village plans of a combined town hall and fire hall in one building. The council have also opened negotiations for the purchase of a steam fire engine, hose-reel hook-and-ladder cart.

Supper will be served in the Orange hall, and dancing will be held in the old Masonic hall adjoining. Good music will be provided. 1d

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 20 George street. d

It Was the Grandson, Not the Son.

In yesterday's issue there appeared a paragraph, stating that news had been received of the death of Mr. Harry McNeil, son of Mr. Alex. McNeil, Water street, town. Later intelligence states that it was his grandson Harry, son of Mr. John R. McNeil, of Bay Cloy, Michigan who had died.

Market House.

The market was largely attended to-day and prices ruled pretty high:—Potatoes, 60c; apples, 50c. to 75c.; geese, 50c. to 60c.; chickens, 35c. to 40c.; turkeys, 60c. to 80c.; butter, 22c. to 25c.. eggs, 17c. and 18c. A large number of dressed hogs are coming in, selling at $7 and $7.50 per cwt. There was very little doing in grain to-day.

The Lock Bridge.

The joint committee of the town and county councils met this morning at the court house and accepted the new Locks bridge from the contractors, Messrs. Chas. Wynn and W. H. Law. The amount to be paid is $12,626. Mr. Law did the iron work and Mr. Wynn the masonry.

Brock Street Bridge.

The Brock street bridge was finally completed to-day. Street Inspector Pope has made an excellent job of it, and the structure will doubtless endure for many years. A suggestion is thrown out to the inspector that a crossing be laid down on Brock street from the south side, to connect with the Aylmer street sidewalk on the north. The expense would be light and the convenience great, and the job would then be complete.

Here's a Chance to Sell.

Mayor Stevenson received the following letter this morning, which speaks for itself:

ASHBURNHAM, Oct. 27.

To the Mayor of Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—If the town is not going to use the east side face of the town clock, would they sell it to me to put down at Jubilee Point? An early reply will oblige,

Yours truly,
H. CALCUTT.

P.S.—I would like to move it before navigation closes. It can be made of use at the park; as it is at present, it is of no use.

Boys in Court.

Five small boys were charged in the police court this morning with breaking a window in Mr. Henry Pace's jewelry store and striking Mr. Pace's son. It seems that one day this week the boys were annoying Mr. Pace in some way and he told his son to go out and drive them away. In doing this young Pace struck little Joe Butler, and the latter picked up a piece of bone and threw it at him, the missile crashing through the window and hitting Pace jr. The magistrate dismissed the case, as Master Pace had no business to strike young Butler. The other boys were also discharged.

Mr. Parker's Choral Class will commence on Monday evening at 8 p.m., in Young M n's Christian Association Rooms. Fee, $1.00.

The Pigeon Creek Bridge Rebellion.

The closing of the Pigeon Creek Floating Bridge has brought the inhabitants of the township of Emily, Verulam and Somerville into open rebellion. The people of these townships are justly indignant that they should be deprived of access to the excellent markets of Peterborough, but what grieves them most is the fact that they are prevented from buying their boots and shoes from gough bros., the wonderful cheap men. Thousands of pairs of choice boots and shoes for children, boys, men and women going at less than half the usual price. Bargains by the car-load. Wet Saturdays don't paralyze the business of gough bros., like it does that of other business men. The worse the weather, the more people want first class boots and shoes, and when they are so cheap as the gougns sell them, the people are bound to have them—rain or shine.

Hustlers Wanted.

This is the way the Cobourg World rallies its citizens:—Cobourg will have a chance to become a city when some of her so called wealthy men are fired into the eternity of forgetfulness. There's no snap in them. There isn't enough public spirit in them to help any one or any project. Their money bags are all tied up and locked in the safe, or deposited in the bank, and they have either forgotten the "combination" or lost the "pass book." All that many of them find time to do is to sit around some comfortable stove and growl about hard times and wonder what on earth they are going to do because their rents won't bring them more than 15 per cent. They ought to get up and hustle themselves and make business lively and do some good to the town—which they could do without losing a cent if they only would try.

Norwood Notes.

Mr. W. E. Roxburgh has commenced the erection of a large block on Colborne street, north of Minaker's furniture shop.

A portion of the new block in course of erection on Colborne street, by Mr. W. E. Roxburgh, will be occupied as soon as completed, by Mr. Fitzgibbon, of Toronto, who purposes establishing a private bank there.

Mr. Archie Robinson, of Norwood, while working in a sand pit last week narrowly escaped death by the caving in of one side of the pit. He got off with a few bad bruises.

Mr. Jacob Hardy of Norwood while shooting partridge a mile or so east of the village on Tuesday afternoon, met with a serious accident. It appears that after firing one barrel he brought the gun sharply from the shoulder to the ground and in the doing so the hammer of the other barrel struck a log, discharging it and lodging the contents in his right arm close to the shoulder. It is thought that the arm will have to be amputated.—Register.

He Won't be Needed Here.

The Toronto Mail says:—Among the passengers in the Grand Trunk train going east Thursday night was William Armstrong, alias Johnston, the strong-nerved individual who acted as hangman at the execution of Robert Neil. He was considerably under the influence of liquor, and instead of being anxious to conceal his indentity was boasting of his exploits as a Lord High Executioner. He informed his fellow occupants of the car that he was destined for Peterborough, where, as an official of the Government, he was going to hang Farley. Not satisfied with communicating this intelligence once or twice, he repeated his statement several times. The passengers became disgusted, and on their representations Armstrong was ejected from the train at East Toronto. He was immediately arrested for drunkenness. Yesterday morning he was brought before Justice Wingfield and fined $1 and costs. The fine was promptly paid by a friend.

Home from the Hunt.

Two hunting parties returned home last night, Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald's and Mr. Harry Winch's. The former brought home six deer and the latter four. Both parties have had hard luck, Mr. Winch's party not being able, from one cause or other, to get in a single day's hunt this week. Mrs. J. E. McIntyre brought down one of the deer with her rifle. The weather during the whole trip was unpropitious and in consequence a damper was thrown on the sport and the spoils were not as extensive as in former years. The members of Mr. Winch's party report bears and wolves plentiful in the locality where they were camped, but none were shot. Last night on the return home the two Peterborough parties and a Lakefield party met at Buckhorn and held a lively pow-wow. They numbered about 30 people and 50 hounds—enough to set the quiet village of Buckhorn afire with excitement. Though they met with indifferent success in the chase, the hunters were delighted with their two weeks' outing, just the same.

Sentence to be Commuted.

The Government Consider the Application of Mayor Stevenson and the Petitions of the Citizens.

By private despatch from Ottawa this afternoon it is understood in official circles that the Government have had under consideration the memorial of the town council and the petitions from Peterborough asking for the commutation of the death sentence of James Farley, and that the Governor-General will be advised to alter the sentence to imprisonment for life. It is expected that official notification will be forwarded to the local authorities here, and may be expected to arrive in Peterborough by any mail. Its receipt will, of course, forestall the intended visit of Mr. J. O'Meara to Ottawa Monday night. Mr. O'Meara has been in Cobourg several days this week on legal business, and if no official statement arrives on Monday he intends running down to the capital Monday night.

RECOMMENDED FOR MERCY.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—The petitions for executive clemency, recently presented to the Government by an influential Peterborough deputation on behalf of the young man Farley sentenced to death at the last Peterborough assizes for murdering a fellow employe in Howe's circus, have been duly considered, and his Excellency has approved of a recommendation of the Privy Council, commuting, in view of extenuating circumstances and the youth of the prisoner, the sentence to penal servitude for life.

Teachers' Convention.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 26.—A public entertainment was given in the Town Hall on Thursday evening. Long before the appointed hour for the commencement of the programme the hall was literally packed, and although the crowd was so great, the order throughout was excellent. The Rev. J. Clarke occupied the chair, and in his own happy way did much to preserve order. The entertainment consisted of choruses by a dozen of Norwood's most fascinating young men, a short but excellent essay by the Rev. J. Carmichael, and readings and solos by the Misses Scott, Lewis, Ford and Fowlds. The reading of the first three ladies mentioned was loudly applauded and for our own part we thought it was the best we ever heard from amateurs, and the singing of Miss Fowlds was deservedly well received. Indeed the whole entertainment reflected great credit on the committee, Messrs. Hutchison and Bewell and the Misses Scott and Lewis.

The meeting was called promptly to order at nine and nearly every teacher was present on time, the attendance being good.

The first subject on the programme was, "Is a uniform promotion examination desirable?" A lengthy discussion took place on this subject, in which Messrs. Hutchison, Rooney, Mark, Brown and Misses Scott and M. McDonald took the leading part. The general feeling of the teachers was that such an examination, properly conducted, would conduce much to the general advancement of educational interests of the county. At the close of the discussion, it was moved by Mr. S. S. Kelly and seconded by Mr. J. J. Rooney and carried unanimously, that uniform promotion examinations are desirable; the first examination to be held early in December; each teacher is to examine his or her own pupils' papers and conduct the examination. A tabulative form of the marks is to be sent to the Inspector along with the examination papers and special cases of failure are also to be reported to him. The Executive Committee were empowered to outline a limit of the work in each class upon which the papers are to be based, and also to arrange for minor matters in connection with the examination and report at the next Annual Convention.

This subject was followed by an essay on School Discipline by Mr. A. Hutchison. This is one of the most comprehensive papers we have ever heard on any subject at Conventions, and took up every conceivable difficulty which confronts the teacher in the way of discipline in and out of school.

GEOGRAPHY.

Mr. J. C. Brown said there were two theories in regard to the teaching of this subject. These were, first, teach local and gradually extend to the countries and continents, and second to give some some geographical ideas and proceed to the map of the world. The speaker preferred the second method. He would first make pupils thoroughly conversant with cardinal points and then take up continents in order of size and position with regard to equator and also with regard to the continents themselves. The ocean should be treated similarly. He said half the time spent teaching geography was wasted over minor matters. He believed if there were only two maps in schools—those of the World and of the Dominion of Canada—greater efficiency would be reached in geography. The pupils should be thoroughly conversant with the countries in order to read intelligently the lessons of the readers and also newspapers. After this he would take up the large islands and then proceed to teach more minutely the geography of the Dominion.

The report of Friday afternoon's proceedings will be published Monday.

College Literary Society.

The "Literary Society" of the Business College gave a very interesting and successful entertainment last evening in the lecture room of the college. The programme was as follows:

Song—Sailing Over the Ocean Wave.....Girls
Reading—A Prospective Mother-in-law.....Mr. Cook
Song—Angels are Coming for me To-night.....Miss A. Collings
Reading—Courtship Under Difficulties.....Miss Lita Gray; which was so well given that the audience demanded an encore, to which the young lady gracefully responded by reading "Patrick Dolin's Letter."
A College Song.....Boys' Glee Club
Song—The Whip-poor-will.....Girls' Glee Club

The officers elected for the coming month are:

PRESIDENT—Miss A. Collings.
VICE-PRESIDENT—Mr. Cook.
SECRETARY—Miss "Delie" Sawyer.
TREASURER—Miss Brittain.
CRITIC—Mr. Bean.
ORGANIST—Miss Gray.

The meeting was closed by singing "God Save the Queen."

Annexing a Slice of Victoria County.

By a clipping published in Friday's EXAMINER it was seen that the people of the township of Emily, Verulam and Somerville in the neighbouring county are becoming disgusted with the narrow-mindedness, stinginess and selfishness of some members of their county council respecting the Pigeon creek bridge, and are clamouring for annexation to this county. A very wise thing for them to do, and an idea in which they should be encouraged. These people naturally desire access to the markets of Peterborough, the best in the district, and our business men want the benefit of the expenditure in town of the money paid out by our local dealers for grain and produce. By all means let this annexation be brought about. Lindsay wants to force these people to do their business where it is not their interests to do it. Peterborough is their natural market and the people of Lindsay will fail in their attempt at coercion. They may refuse to keep a bridge in Victoria county in repair, because it leads to Peterborough, but they can't successfully dam the natural course of commerce, and annexation will settle the question if Victoria county does not do its duty in maintaining the Pigeon creek floating bridge.

TEXT: "GOOD GOODS, SMALL PROFITS."

MY HEARERS,—You need not cry or weep any longer, by being afraid of being taken in by some High Priced Clothing Sharks, as the young and pushing firm of WYATT & TURNER have at last got their hooks on the neck of the Wonderful Cormorants. You need not spend your money until you see what this firm is doing, and if, my friends, you cannot get as good, and I will say, better bargains there than any where else, then by no means buy one cent's worth; and if you do not buy, they will not send a boy to follow you, to see if you go into a competing house to buy; they do business on the Square, and besides, sell Fine Goods and No Sheddy. No Slop Work, all their goods I am told, is examined and re-examined before going out of the store. Now, my hearers, if this be true, and I believe it is, you need not be afraid of being GULLED or taken in in any way by this firm. I need not quote prices, as you know prices are all right; but when some people buy a few dollars worth of goods at a price, and then try to make the public believe that they bought them for half what they paid for them; and not only this, but they also double the quantity they bought. Now, my hearers, figures will lie if you wish to make them, but when the firm of Wyatt & Turner say they sell a suit of Men's Clothing for $1.75, you can rest assured they do, or if they sell All-Wool Shirts and Drawers for 45c., who'se business is it but their own; as long as you get a $1.25 All-Wool Cardigan Jacket for 75c., go by all means and buy it, and be made happy. By the way, I almost forget to tell you that they have OVERCOATS from $2.50 up to $12.50. Now, in the last place, I would say briefly, my dear hearers, that

WYATT & TURNER, are the Cheapest Clothiers on Earth.

BAYARD WANTS A CHANGE

A NEW BRITISH MINISTER DESIRED AT WASHINGTON.

To Calm Popular Excitement—The American Minister to England Confers With Lord Salisbury.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Lord Salisbury remained at Hatfield House, his country residence, on Saturday. He received several cable dispatches from Lord Sackville-West, the British Minister at Washington, admitting the facts in connection with the Murchison letter, and saying that he regretted them.

A number of dispatches from Secretary of State Bayard were forwarded to Lord Salisbury, in which the Secretary of State urged that in view of the coming national election in the United States it was imperatively necessary that there should be a change in the British representative at Washington in order to calm the popular excitement.

Mr. Phelps, the American Minister, and Mrs. Phelps visited Hatfield House Saturday afternoon and were the guests of Lord Salisbury over Sunday.

Mr. Phelps and Lord Salisbury held a long consultation in the library. Mr. Phelps enlarged upon the necessity of prompt action on the part of the British Government in order to repair the evil.

Mr. Phelps made a special point that by treating Murchison as a British subject entitled to advice, despite the fact that he stated in his letter that he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, Lord Sackville-West had disregarded and violated the understanding of September, 1871, when Mr. Fish, then Secretary of State, obtained from the English Government a recognition of the American doctrine of naturalization.

Lord Salisbury admitted that this was a most serious point of view of Lord Sackville-West's conduct.

The matter is more annoying to Lord Salisbury inasmuch as Lord Sackville-West's appointment originally was attributed to the influence of his sister, who was the second wife of the late Marquis of Salisbury, and who has since been married to the present Earl of Derby.

LORD SACKVILLE TO STEP OUT.

The Minister Will be Permitted to Retire to Attend to Private Affairs.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—It is distinctly stated upon the highest authority that Minister West, who recently became Lord Sackville, will at once apply to the Foreign Office to be relieved from his post at Washington for the purpose of attending to urgent private affairs in England. This is an easy way out of the Minister's dilemma, but nobody doubts that Lord Salisbury has suggested the remedy. The Foreign Office officials from Lord Salisbury downward are horrified at Minister West's breach of etiquette and no concealment is made of the fact.

The Premier and Minister Phelps had an interview of an hour's duration on the subject on Thursday, and resumed their conference on Friday, with the result that Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were invited to Hatfield House, where the two gentlemen will continue and, it is hoped, conclude their diagnosis of the unfortunate Minister's case.

The Daily News says: "Lord Sackville-West has done nothing of which an honest man need be ashamed. But there are blunders which are worse than crimes."

The Daily Telegraph says: "Nothing can excuse the incontinence of Lord Sackville-West's pen except his transparent good faith and candor. He cannot, however, after such betise be allowed to embroil the two nations."

The Standard says: "It would be incorrect to say that the American Government has already asked for the recall of Lord Sackville-West, but it has taken a step little short of that extreme measure. It does not follow that expulsion will be resorted to. The matter however is a delicate one. It would be best for Lord Sackville-West to resign in order to avoid further complications."

Bayard Silent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Secretary Bayard refuses either to admit or to deny that he had demanded the recall of Lord Sackville. He denied himself Saturday to most callers at the State Department. To a pointed inquiry sent into his room in writing, regarding a statement made in a Washington despatch to the effect that Minister Phelps had been requested to ask for the recall of Lord Sackville, Mr. Bayard returned the following answer: "I have no comments to make upon the despatch."

Another inquiry, worded a little differently but to the same purpose, brought out the following: "All the facts upon this case have been cabled to Minister Phelps, but no reply has yet been received from him." This leaves it an open question whether Mr. Bayard has really asked for the recall of Lord Sackville or not. It seems to be his desire to create the impression that he has. It seems equally to be his wish that Lord Sackville should not be treated too harshly.

HOW IT IS VIEWED IN LONDON.

Comments Which are Pleasing Neither to Lord Sackville or Americans.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Mr. G. W. Smalley cables to The Tribune from London: Lord Sackville's astonishing campaign letter attracts less attention here than in America, but more than will be quite pleasing to its author. Rumors are to the effect that Lord Salisbury has already sent Lord Sackville a despatch of remonstrance, if not of reprimand. Whether this be so or not, the Foreign Office is scandalized. There has been no recent date in which diplomatic etiquette has been so entirely neglected. Resignation is freely spoken of as a probable consequence of indiscretion so unaccountable. Lord Sackville's forty-three years' service ought, it is being said, to have been a guarantee against the possibility of such interference with the domestic politics of a country to the Government of which he is accredited.

Public comments on this act are even sharper than private. It serves as a text for an editorial article in the Daily Telegraph offensive enough in tone to America to have been written, as it probably was, by an ex-correspondent to the Southern Confederacy. "Lord Sackville," this writer suggests, "must have taken leave of his senses. The mere announcement of such an act is enough to make old diplomatists turn in their graves." This may not be agreeable to the British Minister at Washington, but what follows is still less pleasant reading for Americans. We are, it appears, a people preposterous in prejudices and sensibility. Our customs and manners are such during a Presidential campaign as ought to have put Lord Sackville on his guard. He knows political managers would publish their own or their enemy's most confidential love-letters, and if necessary forge them. He ought to have suspected a trap. I need hardly say, the trap theory is industriously put forward.

An Alleged Bigamist Acquitted.

PEMBROKE, Oct. 29.—At the Assizes on Saturday in the case of R. J. Jordan, charged with bigamy, as the crime is said to have been committed in 1874 and as the essential witnesses are now dead, the counsel for the Crown instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

PARNELL AND THE TIMES.

A DAY DEVOTED TO THE CASE IN THE SCOTCH COURT.

On Motion of Plaintiff the Record Closed—The Case Sent to the Procedure Roll for a Decision on Various Points.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 29.—In the Court of Sessions on Saturday the case of Mr. Parnell against The London Times was again called. Messrs. Strachan and Balfour, Mr. Parnell's counsel, moved that the closure of the record of proof be allowed.

Mr. Murray, counsel for The Times, moved that the question of jurisdiction in this case be sent for determination to the procedure roll. The prosecution had made many alterations in their complaint, they had deleted all reference to the statement that Mr. Parnell had supplied Byrne with money to enable him to escape justice, and it was no longer argued that the statement was false, untrue and malicious.

The judge thereupon said this left the record with only one question.

Mr. Murray said he wanted the question of jurisdiction to go to the procedure roll, because no relevant averment as to jurisdiction had been made. He said that where the defendant's statements were not met, the plaintiffs made a simple denial. The prosecution had taken no notice of two averments concerning English law.

Mr. Strachan replied that the only question of English law referred to the summons taken out of England. Attorney-General Webster, continued Mr. Strachan, spoke in the O'Donnell trial of the instructions which The Times had given him, but The Times had editorially adopted the Attorney-General's alleged slanders.

The court then granted the motion of plaintiff's counsel that the record be closed.

Mr. Murray said the only publication averred in the complaint was that copies of The Times had been mailed to persons in Scotland. This averment he contended was irrelevant. The prosecution, he further said, claimed a right under the registration act to certain funds, to which he was clear the act gave them no right.

The judge decided to send the case to the procedure roll, for a decision on the various points submitted.

The Times' record maintains the whole of its charges. It alleges that the action is an attempt on Mr. Parnell's part to avoid a full inquiry by the Parnell Commission, and to limit the issue of the Commission's work to the sole question of the genuineness of three letters. The defendants do not rely upon the letters for proof of their statements, which are equally true even if the letters were not signed as purported.

On the day before the summons in this case was issued the prosecution secured the issuance from the Court of Queen's Bench of a writ in an action for libel for £5000. As that action is pending other proceedings with respect to the same matter are, by English law, barred. The publication of the Attorney-General's statement in the O'Donnell action and a fair report of the proceedings were privileged by English law, therefore no action can lie. The Times' articles were a fair comment, therefore the defendants should be acquitted. The prosecution's statements are declared to be irrelevant and insufficient to support an action.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The great fact of the moment in the history of the Parnell Commission is the fact that the Attorney-General on Friday finished his five days' opening speech. The Commission forthwith adjourned to Tuesday. Sir Richard Webster is thought to have done his work well, though tediously. He was bound to traverse again oft-trodden ground, to recite the history of the Land League and the National League, and to repeat the grim story of outrage and crime which, in Mr. Gladstone's words, dogged the footsteps of the League with fatal precision. It was his duty as an advocate to endeavor to establish a connection between conspiracy in Ireland and conspiracy in America. It was his duty to allege, and it will be his duty to try to prove, that Mr. Parnell and others were accomplices in conspiracy and crime.

Sir James Hannen remarked early in the week that the Attorney-General entered upon the case as he thought fit, and was responsible if he made a mistake, and he declined to check him. But as soon as evidence is offered with reference to the proceedings of the League the Court will be called on to rule definitely whether it is or is not admissible. It will be seen, therefore, almost at once whether the Judges intend to narrow the inquiry to the acts and words of the defendants themselves, or whether they will allow the Attorney-General to prove the whole case.

OPENING OF THE SOBRANJE.

Ferdinand Accorded a Brilliant Reception—The Speech From the Throne.

SOFIA, Oct. 28.—The Sobranje was opened on Saturday by Prince Ferdinand, who was accorded a brilliant reception. An artillery salute was fired in his honor. In his address he congratulated Bulgaria upon the position she has attained and said that owing to the prevalence of peace, the content of her people, the tranquil state of the country and the justness of Bulgaria's cause, the country was daily growing strong.

The opening of the Sofia and Vakarel Railway, constructed by Bulgarian resources and Bulgarian labor, has raised Bulgaria's credit and won the sympathies of enlightened people. The gallant army was equal to the position in which it was placed and would justify the nation's confidence.

Fatal Folly.

MUSCATINE, Ia., Oct. 29.—Two ladies from Pennsylvania, who were visiting their brother, a Mr. McKinley near West Liberty were killed last night by a Burlington and Cedar Rapids passenger train. Their death was due to the stubbornness of a boy who persisted in driving them across the track when the engine was almost upon them. The lad paid the penalty of his folly by his life.

LATEST SPORTING NOTES.

'Varsity's Annual Football Match with McGill College Declared a Draw.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—The ninth annual football match between the 'Varsity team of Toronto and McGill was played in a pouring rain and a sea of mud on the McGill grounds on Saturday. Last year the match was played in Toronto and the 'Varsity won by 27 to 7. Each team had won an equal number of matches, and this match was looked forward to with much interest. When time was called the match was declared a draw, each team scoring a safety touch.

The Canadians Beaten.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The West Brownwich Albions, the English cup holders, defeated the Canadians in an evenly contested game by one to nothing. The only goal was scored near the close. The tour closes on Wednesday with a match with the London Swifts before the Prince of Wales. The team sails from Glasgow on Friday.

The Last of the Series.

Found in the Bay.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 29.—The body of Alexander Dubleau, alias Dixie, who was reported to have turned up safely at Deseronto, after having suddenly disappeared from his home in this city, was found in the bay yesterday afternoon. There are strong suspicions of foul play, as the hip-pocket in the trousers of the deceased has apparently been cut, and no money was found in the clothing of the body.

HANNAH BOYD AGAIN REMANDED.

She Pleads Not Guilty to the Charge of Poisoning Mets Cherry.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Hannah Boyd, the young woman in jail here charged with causing the death of little Meta Cherry, by what is now known as the famous poisoned chocolate case, was arraigned Saturday before ex-Mayor Spears of Galt.

The girl promptly pleaded not guilty. No evidence was taken and Miss Boyd was again remanded till next Friday. She was not represented by counsel, although there were lawyers present to act for her should the Crown give its consent.

The young woman has not changed materially since her incarceration a week ago.

The detention of Hannah Boyd has assumed a decidedly mysterious air. All the Government detective, Mr. John Murray, will say is: "The Crown does not propose to show its hand at present. We have not allowed the girl to be seen by anyone at all for reasons best known to ourselves. I suppose we understand our business."

The relations between Charles Lowell, the well-known ex-hotel-keeper of Galt, and the girl are still the subject of a great deal of comment, and Mr. Lowell continues to exhibit great interest in the girl's position. The Crown is fully cognizant of what those relations were, and it is said they attach considerable importance to them.

"Developments" and "clues" are therefore in order.

Detective John Murray returned to Toronto Saturday evening.

The girl's brother, Tom Boyd, and her brother-in-law, Rudolph Hynes, both of Hamilton, were in the court-room when she was arraigned.

The excitement in these parts over the matter continues unabated.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Parkdale Votes in Favor of Annexation to the City.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—The result of the polling in Parkdale on Saturday was a majority of 127 in favor of annexation to the city.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council on Saturday the resignation of City Treasurer Samuel B. Harman was accepted and Richard T. Coady appointed to the vacancy.

One or two freight cars of the G. T. R. jumped the track near Belleville yesterday, delaying the passenger train from the east over an hour and a half.

The Hamilton train due here at 8.10 last night, did not reach the Union Station till 9.20, because of a freight train leaving the track at Oakville.

The Empress of India, which left this port Friday night for Kingston, with a cargo of fish and whisky, was driven across the lake by the strong wind and made Charlotte on Saturday afternoon. The propeller Ocean was also forced to seek shelter at Charlotte.

The annual church parade of the Ancient Order of United Workmen took place yesterday, being the 20th anniversary of the order, which was established at Meadville, Pa., Oct. 29, 1868, with about a dozen members. The order now numbers over 215,000. Of these 16,000 are in Ontario and nearly 3000 in Toronto and suburbs.

SERIOUS RESULTS FEARED.

Attorney-General Blair of New Brunswick Severely Injured.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 29.—Attorney-General Blair met with a serious accident Saturday night. He was driving at a smart rate from his home to his office in Fredericton and in the darkness was run into by a team coming in the opposite direction. Mr. Blair was thrown from his carriage and received a bad cut on the forehead. He was accompanied. Mrs. Perkins died here in 1885, leaving in her will but $1000 to Miss Baker, and the bulk of the property to charitable institutions. Miss Baker contested the will, bringing an action of contract against the executors. A compromise was reached in the case with the above result. The contract was a verbal one, but Miss Baker produced a letter from Mrs. Perkins showing the terms of the agreement.

St. John, N. B., Notes.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 29.—Some years ago The Telegraph, of this city, was sued for libel by Brown, the lighthouse-keeper of Quaco, who claimed $10,000 damages by an article in which the loss of several lives by a shipwreck was charged to the failure of Brown to give assistance. On the first trial the jury disagreed; the second found for the defence. This late verdict has been set aside by the Supreme Court, and the case stands for a new trial.

A Blockade Runner Captured.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Haytian Minister has received a cable from his Government announcing the capture by a Haytian man-of-war of the American steamer Haytian Republic while attempting to force the blockade of the insurgent port of St. Marc with rebel troops, arms and ammunition on board. She has been brought to Port au Prince and her case referred to the Prize Court. The prisoners of war and the crew are well treated by the authorities of Port au Prince.

THEY HAVE NOT RESIGNED

NEITHER HAS GREENWAY'S GOVERNMENT BEEN DISMISSED.

But Lieut.-Gov. Schultz Did Decline to Call the House Together Without Good Reason Being Shown.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29.—Reports were current on Saturday that the Government had resigned because Lieutenant-Governor Schultz had refused to call the Legislature together as they had advised, and all sorts of sensational rumors were spread about the city. It is learned that His Honor did decline to call the House together without good reasons being assigned, but the ministry neither resigned nor have they been dismissed, as one report stated.

The injunction case was heard before Killam and the arguments were concluded, His Lordship stating he would deliver judgment to day. In case it is favorable to the province the general impression is that an immediate attempt will be made by the Government to force a crossing, which will undoubtedly be resisted by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The militia are still under orders. The Canadian Pacific have a dead engine at the Morris crossing as a precautionary measure, notwithstanding it turns out that the reported attempt at crossing there was a perfect hoax.

There has been a conflict between bands of Stoney and Blood Indians near Morley, in which two of the former were wounded and several of the Bloods shot.

ICE-BOUND WHALERS.

Thirteen Vessels Locked Up in the Arctic Sea—The Crews in Peril.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—The whaling bark J. A. Howland arrived here from Fox Island in the Arctic Ocean yesterday. She reports the following whalers in the ice with little prospects of their being able to get out: The Andrew Hicks, Wm. Dayliss, Nancor, Seabreeze, Ohio, Rosario,, Reindeer, Elbe, Mass, Hunter, J. P. West, Hidalgo, and Olean. Nearly all these vessels are from New Bedford, Mass. Help went to them but it is feared it would not reach them until they were broken up. There are between 500 and 600 men on the tied-up vessels and unless the ice breaks up before long they will not be able to survive, as their provisions cannot hold out for any length of time. The vessels are near the place where the Jeanette first experienced a tie-up and was afterwards broken up and drifted north. The value of the thirteen vessels, including the season's catch which they have on board, will aggregate $500,000.

A POLICEMAN ON THE WAR PATH.

He Whips the Mayor, Kills a Brother Officer and Wounds Three Citizens.

ELKHARDT, Ind., Oct. 29.—Police Officer Joseph Barrett Saturday afternoon shot and instantly killed a brother officer named Wm. Burton. Barrett had been on the force for several years, but Friday Mayor Goldthwaite reprimanded him for drunkenness. In a spirit of revenge, he waylaid the mayor and gave him a severe whipping. He was bound over in bonds and after the trial an attempt was made to arrest him on a new charge. This he resisted and pulling his revolver he began to empty it. The second shot pierced Burton's brain, and the succeeding three shots wounded as many bystanders. The man then took refuge in a saloon, and the citizens at once began to take steps which looked toward his lynching, but the prompt interference of the mayor and other policemen saved his life. He was at once taken to Goshen for safe keeping. One of the shots tore off the finger of a city alderman.

A WOMAN'S WILL BROKEN.

Miss Lizzie Baker Obtains a Handsome Sum in a Peculiar Case.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—A peculiar lawsuit, the first of its kind ever carried into a Massachusetts court, has ended by the filing of an agreement in the Supreme Court for judgment for Miss Lizzie C. Baker against the estate of the late Mrs. Mary G. Perkins for $31,500. In 1860 Mrs. Perkins, aged 30, who had inherited $100,000 from her husband, an Italian nobleman, became acquainted here with Miss Baker, who was fitting herself to be a school teacher. Becoming attached to the girl, Mrs. Perkins offered to leave Miss Baker her entire estate if the latter would live with her as an adopted daughter. The offer was accepted. Mrs. Perkins died here in 1885, leaving in her will but $1000 to Miss Baker, and the bulk of the property to charitable institutions. Miss Baker contested the will, bringing an action of contract against the executors. A compromise was reached in the case with the above result. The contract was a verbal one, but Miss Baker produced a letter from Mrs. Perkins showing the terms of the agreement.

ONE MAN ROBS MANY.

A Lone Robber Holds up a Stage Load of Passengers in Texas.

PENA, Tex., Oct. 29.—The Pena Rio Grande stage was robbed about twenty miles from here about 3 o'clock Saturday morning on the Randero Place. The robber was a short, thick man. Sergt. Fulmer and Wm. Wyant, of the United States army, were among the passengers, as was also Fred. W. Fruitts of New Orleans. These gentlemen were made to hold up their hands and searched. The robber got $35 from Mr. Wyant besides other valuables. The driver was compelled to get down from his seat and was robbed. All the occupants were made to take off their wearing apparel. The robber had a pistol and a Winchester rifle. He

A Trip to Texas.

The readers of the EXAMINER are aware that Mr. D. W. Dumble recently returned from a trip to Texas. Mr. Dumble is a keen observer, and little if anything worth noting escapes his notice. Therefore a representative of the EXAMINER called upon him, and he kindly supplied the information, detailed below, respecting his observations in the "Lone Star" state. Mr. Dumble tells his story in a concise, clear, conservative manner, and therefore the following record of his observations will be read with pleasure and profit. A five-hundred page volume on the subject might be read and the reader would possess no better information than contained in the following:

To reach Texas by rail I passed through Ontario, entered Michigan at Detroit, passed through Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, entered Texas at Texarkana, and, passing through the eastern part of the state, reached Corpus Christi in the Gulf of Mexico. To a Northener, there is much in the journey to interest one. My journey by the Iron Mountain route took me by a short journey, but through the worst parts of Arkansas and Texas. Arkansas appeared to be a very interesting country. It was heavily timbered, and along the line of rail there were innumerable saw mills. The farms were mostly in corn and cotton. The corn had been up since July. It stood in small stalks, and pendent ear hanging to a stalk. The ground, since its last cultivation, had become overgrown with weeds, creepers, morning glories, &c., which not only covered the ground, but climbed up and, in many cases, festooned each ear and the corn stalks. The corn was left hanging on the stalks until it was convenient to pick it. The cotton fields, in many cases, were clearances in the woods. The small timber was taken off; the large trees were girdled. The fields were oddly in shape and appearance, the rampant weeds making a mat of verdure, in which the corn and cotton stood.

A cotton crop is, in appearance, like a plantation of blackberry bushes on which were flecks and handfuls of cotton, the bloom, the pod and the cotton being on the same bushes. When the pod is ripe it bursts and the cotton fleecily hangs in handsful. It is planted in rows like our potatoes, but not quite so close. Planted in February, it is picked in succession, picklings from July to December. Negroes—women and children—all hands turn out to gather it. Picked into baskets, they are usually, when full, carried to a high boxed waggon and emptied. Sometimes heaps, like heaps of snow, are seen in the fields, but this is not frequent. The cotton is drawn to the barn, and then to the gin mill, where the seed is taken out, after which it is baled and drawn to market. It requires rich land and plenty of cultivation. Worms infest the leaf, and some kinds eat the pods. London Purple and Paris Green are dealt to them as we dose the potato bug. I went into a field to pick a stalk of the cotton plant and I was surprised to find worms an inch and a half long clinging tenaciously to every leaf. I never saw a worst stubble field in 2000 miles of travelling in Arkansas and Texas.

CORN, COTTON AND CATTLE

are the staples. Texas ranks first in the Union in cattle and cotton; second in sugar, sheep, mules and horses.

Texas is mostly a prairie country, but so far as I saw the prairie was covered with bushes and beautiful trees. The live oak is a grand shade tree. It is a low, wide-spreading, irregular tree, gnarled and much resembling a very large and ancient apple tree, but larger in the stem. It has glossy green leaves and is always in leaf. Besides the live oak there is the common oak, there called "post oak," because the limbs are chiefly used for fencing.

The country is almost entirely fenced with post and wire fences. The ranchers find this cheaper than employing cow boys. There are few permanent streams. Most large fields are supplied with ponds made with plough and scraper, or small ravines dammed so as to retain water. The soil is heavy clay for the most part and holds the water.

The cattle covered the land—not in vast herds but in innumerable small herds—the land was peppered with them, the fencing and divisions serving to keep them apart. But the choice of grasses leads the cattle to scatter and look for their own tid-bits.

Everywhere were seen the cactus and the mesquite bushes. These latter are large bushes with tops like peach trees and lower limbs thick and useful for posts. The wood is red, harder and more enduring than red cedar. Cacti grew in clumps, here covering a foot or two, there a yard square, and often a space ten or twelve feet across. They looked like great green plates, growing out of each other, and all on great strong limbs. I cut one to bring home but I dropped the thing to pull out of my fingers numbers of fine needle-like hairs that left the cactus and took root in me. I lost my interest in it, for besides the big thorns they are covered with fine hairy-like quills that leave the parent more readily than do the quills of a porcupine.

During the hard winter of 1886 when, by reason of the dry summer, there was no feed for cattle the ranchers gathered the cactus, purged it and mixing with cotton seed oil fed it to their cattle. Sometimes they held it with a fork in the fire to scorch off the prickles and then fed it to the cattle, which followed them eagerly to get the tenderness bit. But for the thorns and thorny heirs the cattle and sheep would clear the land of them. Indeed it is usual for the shepherds to be furnished with big knives with which they clear off the ends of the succulent leaves then the sheep begin and eat their way before them, getting in the dry western part of Texas, not only food but drink. The quantity of cactus in existence may be fathomed quickly reckoned itself. It is

A NATURAL TURNIP CROP.

The farms or ranches are immense—ranging from thousands to tens of thousands and sometimes a million acres. Cattle are not by good—not so large nor so well bred as the Manitoba cattle. The long horned native yet stamps his character. Herds of 1000 three-year old cattle were sold at $10,000 while I was there. The cattle interest is low at present. The sheep and Angora goats were worth from $1.25 to $1.75. Sheep are clipped twice a year.

I went through the Houston market on Saturday night. This is their big market. It is not like our markets, where low houses have cellars, where artificial ice is there—for sale of a cent a pound, and refrigerators are useless, meats to be eaten on Sunday cannot be brought later than Saturday night. The display of beef and mutton was not at all inviting. The beef was dark, lean, grass-fed stuff. Good mutton or lamb is not found in southern markets. As for butter—My! There is no better made in the South that a Northern man would eat. Those who can afford it buy Northern butter. On the coast there are good fish. Fruit is plentiful but the best of it is from California. Not that Texas does not raise oranges, pears, figs, persimmons, etc., but her season is very early and when her own fruits are over California is called upon. Sweet potatoes grow in the ground on a creeping vine like a citron vine. They take the place of the Irish potato which is not grown to much perfection.

Travelling in the country, one is impressed with the

HEARTLESS AIR OF THE HOUSES.

Unpainted boards, small and mean, a chimney built against the end of the house, frequently of sticks and clay, often of boards hardly reaching as high as the roof, and speaking of squalor within. The houses stand on posts off the ground; ragged children and long-nosed razor-backed pigs range around the door, while donkey faces peer through cracked windows on the passing public.

If white people dwell within, the house is little better—a house made of boards on lath plank, a small cook house in rear, a space between or a wide verandah covered often with limbs of trees, give a place where the sun's rays were kept off, and the breeze which generally blows make it endurable.

The hot weather is so long and continuous that all energy oozes out of white men and never seems to enter the colored brother. There is little energy—only the few boys who ride so splendidly on their very little horses, seem to have life and motion. At every station a few—and a few—and a few—half black, lounged and leaned and stared. I have read of the negro and seen the pictures which I thought were burlesques, but here now them in the original—big feet, basin sticking out, white teeth, lots of white in the eye, round, happy faces—they were made for the South and the South was made for them. My impression of the condition of the white man in the South—in the country parts—is not such as makes me think it is a desirable country to live in. It is rough, uncouth, and wholly lacking in all those things that make life pleasant.

As I saw the cosy homes of Michigan, with the good, painted barns and houses, surrounded by orchards, clean and tidy fields, good roads, churches and schools—a country that was so much like our own happy Ontario, I concluded that the land where the snow falls—was the land for me.

"Where man children are born"—

Teachers' Convention.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Mr. N. S. Ellis, M.A., of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, was introduced to the convention, and introduced the subject of teaching science, incidentally tossing his remarks on the lessons of the readers which deal with scientific subjects. Mr. Ellis, in a very simple, but interesting manner, as well as instructive, showed how children could be led to observe things which occur to them in every day life. Following out the plan mapped out by Mr. Ellis, this subject could be made one of the most interesting on the programme.

Miss Scott then gave an exhibition of her method of teaching reading to a third class, taking as her lesson, "A child's dream of a star." She had a class of small children which she taught. Miss Scott is an excellent teacher, and clearly demonstrated that teaching reading can be made very interesting to pupils of any grade.

ARITHMETIC.

Mr. Ellis showed how the reasoning faculties may be developed in the teaching of arithmetic. Mr. Ellis seems to have very clear ideas on this subject, and presented it in a very interesting style.

This ended the list of subjects. The last hour was devoted to answering questions, and, by the number of questions sent in on paper to be answered, it appears the teachers are always ready to receive information whenever chances arise. Fully a peck of papers were handed in and were read by the president. The questions were answered by the president, assisted by Messrs. Rooney, Mark and Brown.

After this it was moved by Mr. J. J. Rooney and seconded by Mr. K. Mark,—That the thanks of this Association are due and are hereby tendered the good people of Norwood, who so kindly provided the teachers with accommodation.

A vote of thanks was also tendered the executive committee for the excellent manner in which they had performed their duties.

This closed one of the most interesting conventions ever held in the county of Peterborough.

The subjects treated of were all very practical, and teachers seemed to be very much interested, as manifested by the discussions which followed each subject.

The essays of Mr. A. Hutchinson on school discipline and of Miss Maggie McDonald on teachers' institutes were thought so good that they were, on motion, asked to have them printed in the Educational Journal, so that teachers not present might have the benefit of them.

The next convention will be held in Peterborough during the coming winter. The teachers left Norwood with warm hearts towards the residents for the very hospitable manner they had been treated, and it is safe to say the next convention at Norwood will be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPY OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,126 for $10,873,777.69, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $2,207,600 60 insured under 1,540 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,909 for $14,081,377.69.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $132,331.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, as is mentioned in the report, over $1,000 for every working day in the year, and even this we believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876; four years	$ 94,611 21	$169,492 60	$1,149,743 60
1876 to 1880, four years	98,580 67	195,188 29	1,167,366 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,976 84	363,284 31	2,902,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 80	475,907 24	4,029,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,004 46	$10,873,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

THE GENERAL.

Five were captured the first day; seven, including myself, on the next day, which was Sunday. The sufferings endured even in this brief interval from hunger, labor and suspense were indescribable. Andrews and two companions were taken on Monday; six more were captured near the close of the week, having, however, gone no further than I had done the first day. This left only two of the whole party at large, who, by getting a boat and drifting down the Tennessee, got virtually within the Union lines, but then going boldly forward in the daytime were arrested by a band of Confederate guerrillas and brought back some two weeks after leaving the train. This completed the capture of the whole party, and to this terrible pass had our hopeful enterprise resolved itself! We had been told that to fall into the enemy's power was inevitable death, and we had no reason to doubt it. Nothing in our treatment was of such a nature as to inspire us with hope. We were chained and tied in barbarous fashion, and confined in the most loathsome dungeons, dark, filthy, and often underground, in Dalton, Marietta and elsewhere. Our food was of the coarest and most scanty character. We were assured everywhere that we would soon be hung—as soon as they could get us all gathered in as a proper place. Gradually the whole were assembled at Chattanooga, where our confinement culminated in unimaginable horrors. I was the first one taken there, having been captured in Lafayette, Ga., twenty-five miles away, the second day out! I will describe somewhat minutely my entrance into that terrible place, which may serve as a specimen of other prisons we endured in the south.

CHAPTER XV.

THE OLD NEGRO JAIL AT CHATTANOOGA.

The sufferings of northern prisoners in the south constitutes probably the most terrible chapter in the history of the war. Attempts to soften the fearful story have met with slight success. The lot of the prisoner of war is always deplorable, as accommodations are scanty and the hardships of camp life greatly aggravated. But the Union prisoners in the south suffered more than is usual in military prisons. The southern states were slenderly supplied with means for the care of bodies of troops numbered by thousands; the northern armies were pressing severely and tightening the blockade by sea and land with the express design of depriving them of necessaries for prosecuting the war, and in case of scarcity it was natural that northern prisoners would first suffer. But to this was added a terribly bitter feeling, which sometimes found delight in gratuitously embittering the prisoner's lot. The horrors of Andersonville cannot soon be palliated or forgotten.

But the sufferings of ordinary prisoners was far exceeded in the case of the Andrews raiders. Our leader had been trusted by the enemy and had betrayed them. We had inflicted an amount of fright altogether disproportionate to our numbers, and we were now believed to be beyond the protection of the laws of war, and almost beyond the pale of humanity. It was thought that we were selected for our desperate character and therefore would require an extraordinary amount of guarding to prevent us from escaping or doing further injury. Such considerations no doubt had weight in the minds of our captors.

But these alone are not sufficient to explain the story that follows. I have hesitated in regard to telling it at all; but there is at least one good reason for recording all that the proprieties of language will permit—a reason which also goes far to account for the full horrors experienced. Nothing better shows the spirit of the institution of slavery, and the debasing effect it produces on the master class. Those in whose power we now fell had been used to seeing men, women and children publicly sold, whipped, hunted with dogs, or shut up like wild beasts in dens. With such experiences they would not be likely to care much for the sufferings of enemies, whom they had come to regard as the friends of the enslaved race. Accordingly it is in the negro prisons that our band found their most fearful experiences.

The story of the little, old, Chattanooga prison cannot be fully told. Terrible hardships which had to be lived through in agonies of shuddering disgust, and in utterly helpless disregard of the decencies of life—a daily and unceasing combination of pain and loathing—can hardly be told by one friend to another, much less spread on the cold printed page. The reader will remember that for every painful thing related, a dozen more are behind, which dare not be named. Let it be understood that there is no exaggeration. Photographic accuracy, within the limits already indicated, is aimed at. The worst of all the prisons has long since been swept away; but its memory will never grow faint while one of its hapless victims survives. The story rests not alone on my evidence, but is established by sworn testimony published in the war records.

The captain, who was appointed my conductor, called a guard of eight men and led me for some distance through the streets of Chattanooga. Two of the Confederate soldiers linked arms with me, one on each side, two walked in front and four followed behind. I could not help telling the captain that they took better care of our men than we did of theirs; that I had once guarded a Georgian a long distance without any help, and with no handcuffs on him. He did not resent the implied reproach, only saying that they meant to make sure of me! At length we came to a little brick building, surrounded by a high board fence. It stood, as I learned long afterward, on Lookout street between Fourth and Fifth. The ground sloped rapidly upward, so that the beak of the jail was built into the hill while the front was level with the surface of the ground. The jail had five stories with two rooms in each story. It was quite high for its length and breadth. The jailer and family lived in the upper and lower rooms at the north end, and the rooms at the south were the prisons the lower being entered only from the upper, and that in turn only from the jailer's room. This prison when built was intended for the accommodation of negroes by their humane owners. Another and much larger prison, in which were confined the great majority of white offenders and afterward of war prisoners, was situated on Fourth and Market streets.

Wiser & Son's Distillery at Prescott Partially Destroyed—Other Losses.

PRESCOTT, Oct. 28.—About 2.30 yesterday morning the distillery owned by J. P. Wiser & Son was discovered to be on fire. The hose from the distillery engine was promptly at work, and was assisted by the fire department and engine of this town. Through the united efforts of both departments the fire was kept under control and confined to the distillery proper, which was destroyed, the boiler-house and engine remaining intact. No spirits were destroyed and the Government receivers adjoining the distillery were also saved. For a time the cattle barns, in which were 780 head of cattle, were in great danger but owing to the roofs being very wet by the recent rains, and the fact of the fire being stubbornly fought, these and the surrounding buildings were saved. It is understood that the loss of property is fully covered by insurance, which will not, of course, compensate the loss for stoppage of works at this season of the year, which is the most important. It is estimated it will take about sixty days to put the works in running order. Owing to the recent change in the excise regulations, causing spirits to be stored in fire proof tanks the firm will experience no inconvenience in supplying the trade. Too much praise cannot be accorded to the local fire department, which, with the appliances of the firm and the construction of the premises and fire walls throughout the building, prevented what would have been the most disastrous fire in the history of Prescott.

Struck by Lightning.

FOREST, Oct. 29.— The barns of Robert Douglas, lot 16, concession 13, Plympton, were struck by lightning Saturday and totally burned, with most of the contents. The loss is about $2500, insured in the East Lambton Mutual for $1000.

JUSTICE PATTERSON APPOINTED.

He will Fill the Vacancy on the Supreme Court Bench.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—The vacancy on the Supreme Court bench caused by the death of Mr. Justice Henry has been filled by the appointment of Hon. Christopher S. Patterson, of Toronto, one of the Justices of Appeal for Ontario. Mr. Justice Patterson has been one of Ontario's justices of appeal since June, 1874, having been appointed to the position by the Mackenzie Administration His career as a judge has been such as to earn for him the warmest encomiums from the Ontario bar, and it will be generally recognised that his promotion is well deserved. The vacancy thus created in the Court of Appeal has been filled by the appointment of Mr. James Maclennan, Q.C., of Toronto. As one of the leading members of the Ontario bar, and associated in business partnership for many years with Hon. Oliver Mowat, the experience Hon. Mr. Maclennan has gained admirably qualifies him for his new position.

IN THE DISSECTING ROOM.

Two Stolen Bodies Found in the Royal Medical College at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Oct. 29.—Recently the bodies of Caleb Smith and Miss Kenny were stolen from the cemetery at Seeley's Bay. Early Saturday morning the police visited the Royal Medical College, took the janitor by surprise and broke into the dissecting room, where they found Smith's body partly dissected.

In reply to a telegram sent by the brother of the late Miss Kenny to Seeley's Bay, stating that her body was here, but could not be recovered without assistance, it was stated that 100 men would start for this place at once.

An Unfounded Rumor.

A rumor has gone abroad in the town that the company of Jubilee Singers that are to appear here Wednesday night are not the original Fisks. This rumor is emphatically denied. They are the "genuine and original" Fisk Jubilee Singers, though no doubt the rumor has arisen from the fact that Mr. Loudon, one of the company, is not now with them on account of ill health. But his place has been taken by one equally as good. Otherwise the personnel of the troupe is unchanged. The original Fisk's appear at the opera house Wednesday evening. Don't miss it; will be one of the greatest treats in a life time.

An Honest if Deliberate Debtor.

The Cobourg Sentinel-star tells of a transaction, the like of which is rare in the commercial world. It is in the wise: Twenty-nine years ago John Quinn left Kingston and embarked in the Boot and shoe trade in Goderich. Twenty-six years ago he failed, owing Joseph Dillon, of Kingston, $500 for goods supplied. He left for the United States and his assets were divided among the creditors. Mr. Dillon had forgotten the circumstances, till the other day a lady entered his shop and handed him a draft for $500. It appears that Mr. Quinn has recently died in the States and his will ordered the old debt to be paid. The lady had been visiting the place and was entrusted with the draft.

An Adventure in the Woods.

A Night Spent Under Depressing Circumstances—Lost in the Woods.

An exciting adventure is told by one of the hunters just returned from the north. One day this week the hounds belonging to Mr. Winch's party were lost, and there could be no deer hunt. So two members of the party, men of mighty valor and undoubted courage, started off on the trail of a bear. In the eagerness of their pursuit they imprudently neglected to watch their course, and after a long, hot but unsuccessful chase they gave up and decided to start for camp again; but, shades of Jimmy! they were lost. Here was a dilemma. Night was coming on and they were many miles from camp without knowing the way to reach it. However, they started off bravely in the direction they thought to be the correct one. From three o'clock till six they tramped through the woods in gloomy silence, visions of a possible night spent in the cold, wet forest with only the wolves for companions contrasting painfully with their recollections of the warm bunks and cheerful rations of the camp. Darkness fell and put a stop to further progress. They were in for it now without a doubt unless some of their friends came to the rescue. A blazing fire was built beneath the umbrageous branches of a large tree, and here they decided to hang out for the night. They had a hope, however, that perchance their fire might be seen or their shouting heard by some of their people; but the ruddy blaze cast its reflection on the silent trees and rocks about them and lost itself in the distant darkness, while but the hollow echoes of their own voices reverberated through the forest. At seven o'clock the two belated wayfarers entered into solemn compact to give their deliverer, should one appear, $5 each, if only he would come quickly. At eight o'clock the offer was raised to $10; at nine to $25; and by the hour of midnight the munificent sum of $100 from each man was waiting for the first good Samaritan who might turn up and relieve their distress. By this time they were in despair. Hope had deserted them, and they made preparation to spend the night there with the alacrity of a man getting ready for his own funeral. The lower branches were lopped off the tree to replenish the fire, and the stumps left on to form a sort of ladder a la electric light pole. Sleep was, of course, out of the question; they would have to spend the time in lonely vigil, their only consolation the brightening influence of their own cheerful (?) conversation. A programme of action was arranged should their meditations be disturbed by the thoughtless ramblings of stray wolves. Al—(never mind the name) one of them was to shin slightly up the tree, grasp a rifle handed him by the one below, and after he also had ascended into a place of safety, they were to make a deadly and determined assault on the marauder who dared intrude. They were not, however, called upon to test their agility or the feasibility of their plan; their ruminations upon the painful uncertainties connected with bush wood's life, and their sad conjectures as to what possible fate was in store for them, filled up the weary hours of the night without interruption. Meanwhile their absence had created much alarm at camp. A search was organized in the afternoon and kept up till late at night, but no trace of the wanderers could be found. At four o'clock next morning the whole camp rose and were ready to start out on the search by daylight. After several hours one party found the canoe belonging to the missing men on the shore of the lake, and they followed up the trail, shouting and firing their rifles. About half past ten o'clock answering rifle shots were heard in the distance, and in a short time the lost ones were in the arms of their friends. But what a change a few hours had wrought. Haggard and weary with their night's vigil, faint with hunger, dirty and ragged in appearance, wet and chilled to the bone—they were a decidedly unprepossessing pair in appearance. One of the men wore a hunting cap with red lining, the coloring of which had been soaked out by the perspiration and dew and trickled down his face in tiny vermilion streams that, when dried, left him with a beautifully striped countenance like a Sioux brave on the warpath. However, great was the joy of all parties that the little adventure had terminated so fortunately, and after the two heroes had spruced up a bit and filled out their waistcoats they entertained the party with a thrilling tale of their exploits.

An Elopement.

Bobcaygeon has an elopement case. About two o'clock Wednesday morning James Slater and Louisa Chapman drove to Fenelon Falls, and the anxious lover routed up the hotel-keeper, got a marriage license filled out and notified Rev. Mr. McAmmond of the event long before daylight. The runaways were married before eight o'clock. Just a little too quick for a telegram from the angry father of the girl who wired the constable to arrest his daughter as she was under 18 years of age. It came too late, and the young couple went south on their wedding tour.

A New Resident.

A Westwood correspondent of the Norwood Register writes:—"Mr. Ryan, our esteemed townsman, with his family, are about moving to Peterborough to live. Mr. Ryan came to this part over forty years ago, when everything was a complete wilderness and has lived here ever since. He has seen the place here in all its different phases—forest, fallow, lumbering, cultivated lands, and now finds himself living in a quiet little little village beautifully situated on the banks of the Ouse and surrounded by an excellent farming country. They are a family that will be very much missed in our village, but in leaving us we tender them our best wishes for their future welfare in their new home."

Military Concert.

A grand military concert, under the auspices of the 57th Battalion, will be given in Bradburn's Opera House on November 15th. The programme, which will be entirely military in character, will consist of descriptive fantasias by the Fire Brigade band, solo and choruses, military evolutions, and military tableaux, fencing and broad-sword exercise, etc. It is expected that Clarke, the celebrated cornetist of the Citizens' band, Toronto, will be present. Arrangements are being vigorously conducted with a view of making this the best concert of the kind ever presented in Peterborough. Opera House Nov. 15th.

The "Y." at Home.

There was a very pleasant gathering last Saturday evening in the W.C.T.U. rooms, when the "Y." gave an "At Home." All present seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves and went away resolving to heed the invitation, "come again." The selections from the programme were interspersed with games and social conversation. A piano solo by Miss Wrighton in the early party of the evening was well received, and another later on by Miss Winnie Dobbin was heartily applauded. The musical feature of the evening, however, was a duet, "Alice, Where Art Thou," by Misses Pearson and Wrighton. Mr. W. J. Herbison, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., then read Will Carleton's "Who are the Laboring Men?" After refreshments a piano solo by Miss Lily Wynn closed the evening's programme.

A Bat Cut.

Henry Clark, a young man living with Mr. Geo. Elliott, jr., Smith, on Saturday forenoon, cut his foot on the inside of the instep, with an axe, the blade severing an artery. The accident happened at eleven o'clock and it was a quarter to three before he reached a doctor's office in town, and he fainted from loss of blood as he was brought into the surgery. His wound was dressed and he is doing well.

The Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company, Wilson & Morrison agents, have cheap rates and large indemnities. No one should be without an accident policy.

A New Lease of Life.

Farley is Overjoyed at the Commutation of his Death Sentence and Expresses his Gratitude to the Public.

Since the receipt of the news of the commutation of his death sentence to life imprisonment, James F. Farley has become a new man. He is in constant good humor, and greets all visitors with a warmth and laughing welcome that are the outward eballitions of his exuberant spirits. The EXAMINER reporter visited him in his cell to-day for the purpose of verifying or disproving the report that Farley was ill. It was an exceedingly lively patient who came forward to shake his hand. The report had evidently been grounded on the fact that Sunday night a physician was sent for, Farley's nervous fears leading him into the hallucination that he was feeling seriously ill and feared he was going to die. It was but a passing fancy, however, and he is well as usual to-day.

The reporter found the prisoner engaged in writing cards of thanks to the Mayor and council of Peterborough and to the citizens in general for their efforts in his behalf. He requested the publication of the following:

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 29, 1888.

To the citizens of Peterborough:

KIND FRIENDS,—I desire to tender you one and all my most sincere thanks and gratitude for your efforts in my behalf, and for your petitions to the government asking that my death sentence be commuted to imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary for life. I was a stranger in your midst and entirely unknown, a citizen of another country, and you have the heartfelt thanks of a friendless boy in a strange land for your kind efforts. Now that they have been successful, I am doubly grateful, and will always remember with the warmest feelings of gratitude the good people of Peterborough.

Wishing you all every happiness in life,
I remain, yours gratefully,
JAMES F. FARLEY

In an after chat with Farley his every word was imbued with a spirit of thankfulness and contentment. He had nothing in particular to say, except that he wanted to be remembered to all his friends in the town who had helped him during the past crisis of his life. He was of course overjoyed at the clemency shown him, which he felt was due to the sympathetic people in the town who had taken up his cause. On leaving, Farley shook the reporter's hand and laughingly said: "Good-bye; I don't suppose I'll see you again for a while."

In this connection, the following message was received by Mayor Stevenson on Saturday:—

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27, 1888.

MAYOR STEVENSON,—Please accept the heartfelt thanks of an afflicted family, and of the entire community, for the deep interest you have taken in the case of James Farley in getting a commutation of sentence to imprisonment.

LOUIS J. BURNS,
Chairman Committee.

Ashburnham Brevities.

A new crossing has been laid on Lake street, near the residence of Mr. H.C. Rogers, and not before it was badly needed. A few improvements of a like nature are required at the north end of the village. The councillor for that end will do well and gain favor (and votes, too) by pressing the matter.

One of our most respected citizens had an encounter with a canine on Saturday, resulting in a bad flesh wound and a torn pair of pantaloons. The matter is to be ventilated in the law courts and until then it will be unnecessary to give details; suffice it to say that there are about a score of these black brutes in this village, the latter days of which can't too soon come to an end.

The Golden Eye is laid up at the wharf after one of the most successful seasons in her history. The Dawn is in dock waiting repairs and the new boat is progressing steadily, although work on her has been somewhat retarded on account of want of timber, the proper kind being difficult to get.

A large number of members partook of the sacrament yesterday in the Mark street Methodist church. All the services were largely attended, which attests the success which the pastor, the Rev. A. C. Wilson is meeting.

Mr. J. J. Wright B. A., is spending a few days at his home, Mr. Stewart Wright's. He returns to Kingston on Wednesday to resume his course in theology at Queen's University. During his summer vacation he conducted a very successful mission in Toronto.

Miss Nettie Bennett returned to the Model school, Norwood, to-day. She has been ill for the past week but is convalescent again.

Police Court.

MONDAY, Oct. 29.

Saturday afternoon a 16 year old girl from the Barnardo Home was committed to gaol as a lunatic.

Another case of alleged breach of the early closing by-law was heard in the police court this morning, but the defendant was dismissed, no violation of the law being proven.

Several drunks, run in by the police Saturday afternoon and night, were dismissed, as they were all first offence men. James Fox, of Ennismore; Edward Hourigan, hailing from near Lakefield; Jos. Shearer and Edward Strain, of Ashburnham, were the delinquents.

P. M. Edmison presided in the absence of P. M. Dumble.

Greenfield's Extradition.

This morning Mr. R. E. Wood, C.C.A., received the warrant of recipias in the Greenfield case, made out to Chief Roszel. The fifteen days allowed the prisoner from the date of his formal committment by the Washington authorities will have expired in a few days, when there will be nothing to prevent the bringing of Greenfield over the border. He will be delivered to Chief Roszel, who will probably leave for Buffalo as soon as the fifteen day limit has passed. As regards the demand of the government that the town pay half the expenses of the extradition proceedings, matters appear to be a little mixed. On Friday afternoon Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, sent up his own cheque for $125 at the request of Mayor Stevenson and Councillor Davidson, he being promised that a town cheque for that amount would be handed to him next day. However, the Mayor has since notified the town clerk to issue no check for that amount. Some of the councillors, after Mr. Edwards had dispatched his check, took objection to the town paying a share of the expenses, on the ground that the government was obliged to foot the whole bill. But this does not seem to be the case. The government took up the matter at the request of the town authorities, who, having pushed the matter so far, asked the government for "assistance in furthering proceedings and bearing the expenses." The Deputy-Attorney General replied that the government would undertake it and share the expense. In sending in this claim for $125, Mr. Johnson promised that the government would pay all the expenses the town incurred in connection with the case, and as that would eat up a good part of the $125, it leaves the government with, perhaps, $200 or $300 more to pay than the town. The government took up the matter at the request of the town authorities, and the latter should be interested enough in having a man of Greenfield's character brought to justice to feel under obligation to pay the sum asked, especially as the government agreed only to share the expense, and a considerable part of this amount will be returned to the town as its actual expenses in the case.

—An Ottawa despatch says:—The Department of Justice has been notified that Greenfield, wanted at Peterborough for attempted murder, has been committed at Buffalo for extradition.

News Nuggets.

—Diphtheria is reported prevalent at Campbellford and Lindsay.

—The Bay of Quinte district fair, at Belleville, has a deficit of about $300 this year.

—Dr. Goldsmith has built a handsome covered entrance to the side door of his residence on Brock street.

—Mr. W. A. Kelsey, of Bark's Falls, Muskoka, formerly of Peterborough, printer and publisher of the Bark's Falls Arrow, has made an assignment.

—Port Hope's Dominion Day Celebration Committee held a meeting Thursday night to wind up its affairs. Why didn't they wait till next Dominion Day and resume their labor without taking the trouble to settle up at all?

—Cool Bargain appeared at the opera house Saturday night to a fair-sized audience. The entertainment was of the variety class, and not a specially deserving one. Cool has many old friends in Peterborough who turned out to welcome the old-time favorite.

Personal.

Mr. John Miller, of Toronto, was in town Sunday.

Mayor Stevenson and P.M. Dumble are in Toronto to-day.

This Evening.

The regular meeting of the Endeavor Society will be held in the School room of the Charlotte street Methodist church. This will afford you a good opportunity of becoming a member of the above Society, as the membership cards will be given out this evening. 15 cents entitles you to a membership in the Endeavor Society for the ensuing six months.

A Great Anxiety Removed.

In the early fall provisions threatened to rule high in price. Potatoes would be away up, apples on the highest limbs of the trees, and bread, as was the "proper caper" for a good article, would rise. Therefore householders were in much anxiety about winter supplies. But there minds are greatly relieved by the fact that they can now lay in their supplies on the old terms, because they effect a saving of fifty per cent. in the boots and shoes necessary for the family by buying them off gough bros., the wonderful cheap men. A $7,000 stock at half price, including foot-wear for the whole family from the infant in the dairy department to "granny" with her list slippers. Nothing better and cheaper was ever offered than the great stock of boots and shoes at gough bros., 375, george street.

Dickson's Race Notes.

Messrs. Meldrum & Davidson have had put in a new 20 horse power boiler for the purpose of heating the mill and steaming the wheat—to improve the quality of the flour and bran. This process makes a closer "clean up," as the millers say. The boiler was supplied by the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company and the piping and coils by J. E. Noble & Co. This firm has also increased the capacity of their mill from 250 to 300 barrels per day by adding new bolting and cleaning capacity. The rolls (Cochrane) have been increased by two double sets, and the mill is being remodelled to meet the requirements of the increased capacity. This mill has been running night and day for the past year—the most practical testimony possible to the superiority of their flour.

Brodie's woollen mills have been running night an day to full capacity for some time.

Mr. Wm. Forsyth has increased his staff and is turning out large numbers of his celebrated fanning mills.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 30 George Street. d

Trent Valley Canal Progress.

Preparations are being made for bouying out the navigable channel of the Trent Valley route between Lakefield and Buckhorn locks. When this is done the work on the Trent Valley Canal, so far as this section is concerned, will be finished, and the steam tug "Empire" will be tied up for the winter.

During the last few weeks Mr. R. B. Rogers, engineer of the Trent Valley works, has had men at work removing rocks from the bed of the river and otherwise improving navigation. A navigable channel 100 feet wide with at least five feet of water is now clear between Lakefield and Young's Point.—Chronicle.

TEXT: "GOOD GOODS, SMALL PROFITS."

MY HEARERS,—You need not cry or weep any longer, by being afraid of being taken in by some High Priced Clothing Sharks, as the young and pushing firm of WYATT & TURNER have at last got their hooks on the neck of the Wonderful Cormorants. You need not spend your money until you see what this firm is doing, and if, my friends, you cannot get as good, and I will say, better bargains there than any where else, then by no means buy one cent's worth; and if you do not buy, they will not send a boy to follow you, to see if you go into a competing house to buy; they do business on the Square, and besides, sell Fine Goods and No Sheddy. No Slop Work, all their goods I am told, is examined and re-examined before going out of the store. Now, my hearers, if this be true, and I believe it is, you need not be afraid of being GULLED or taken in in any way by this firm. I need not quote prices, as you know prices are all right; but when some people buy a few dollars worth of goods at a price, and then try to make the public believe that they bought them for half what they paid for them; and not only this, but they also double the quantity they bought. Now, my hearers, figures will lie if you wish to make them, but when the firm of Wyatt & Turner say they sell a suit of Men's Clothing for $4.75, you can rest assured they do, or if they sell All-Wool Shirts and Drawers for 45c., who's business is it but their own; as long as you get a $1.25 All-Wool Cardigan Jacket for 75c., go by all means and buy it, and be made happy. By the way, I almost forgot to tell you that they have OVERCOATS from $2.50 up to $12.50. Now, in the last place, I would say briefly, my dear hearers, that

WYATT & TURNER, are the Cheapest Clothiers on Earth.

MINISTERS WHO WILL ATTEND THE BANQUET TO MR. POPE.

A Life Convict's Release Petitioned for—The Legal Experts in the New Northwest Assembly.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—Sir John Macdonald left for Montreal yesterday morning on his way to Sherbrooke to attend the banquet in honor of Mr. Pope. Sir Hector Langevin, Sir John Thompson, Hon. G. E. Foster, Sir Adolphe Caron, Hon. John Carling, and Hon. John Haggart left yesterday afternoon. Hon. Messrs. Chapleau and Tupper being unwell were not able to go.

A petition has been received by the Minister of Justice asking for the release of David Provost who is serving "a life" sentence in Kingston Penitentiary for the murder of an old man named Bender. There has always been a strong impression in the minds of Provost's neighbors that he was innocent.

The new regulations for governing the excise branch of the Inland Revenue Department have been issued, by which Ottawa is raised from the fourth to the third class, the collections being over $200,000.

Judges Richardson, Rouleau and McLeod, who have been appointed under the act of last session as legal experts in the new Northwest Assembly, will receive a sessional allowance of $250 and travelling expenses.

The Marine Department has been notified by the contractor for raising the steamer Ottawa, sunk in the St. Lawrence, that it will be impossible to complete the work this season.

It is stated that the Dominion Government will make an unusually large exhibition at the Royal Agricultural Society's Jubilee Show next June.

It is understood that one of the results of the interview between Sir John and Mr. Mercier, while the latter was here last week, will probably be an early amicable settlement of the Northwest boundary line of the Province of Quebec.

DEATH OF JUDGE MONK.

The Aged Jurist Passes Away in His 76th Year—Sketch of His Life.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—Hon. Judge Monk died yesterday morning at 8.20, at the Grey Nunnery.

[Hon. Samuel Cornwallis Monk was born in Halifax, N.S., in 1813, and was consequently in the 75th year of his age. At the age of eighteen he came to Montreal and studied law. He took part in the famous rebellion of '37, and after the insurrection played a prominent part in the defence of the political prisoners, being associated with the late Judge Drummond, another very brilliant man. He afterwards entered into partnership with the late Sir John Rose, the firm being known as Rose & Monk. In 1854 he was made a Q. C., and acted as Crown Prosecutor for the district of Montreal. He was appointed a judge of the Superior Court in 1859, and was raised to the Queen's Bench in 1866, a position he held until his retirement a few months ago. Judge Monk was a man of splendid and imposing physique, great ability, and most genial manners, and filled the various positions which he occupied with singular ability.]

THE SACKVILLE INCIDENT

CLEVELAND AND BAYARD HOLD SEVERAL CONFERENCES.

A Cablegram Sent to Minister Phelps and One Received From Him, But the Contents Not Divulged.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Secretary Bayard, who had just returned to the city from his home in Delaware, had several conferences with the President yesterday concerning Lord Sackville's letter and other matters relating to affairs of state. Another message was sent to Minister Phelps yesterday and it is believed a cablegram was received from him at the Department of State during the afternoon, but nothing can be learned as to the contents of either.

Sir Charles Tupper's Name Mentioned.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—The Journal gives currency to a rumor, without stating its authority, that Sir Charles Tupper will likely succeed Lord Sackville-West as British Minister at Washington.

English Press Opinions.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on the Sackville incident, expresses the opinion that the excitement caused by the letter in America is largely simulated for political effect. It regrets that Americans are not superior to such outbursts of feeling. Except for the chance of catching the Irish vote by abusing England, it thinks that no one in America would care two straws what Lord Sackville wrote, said or thought.

The Globe holds that the most satisfactory denouement of the incident would be to send instructions to Lord Sackville to keep his opinions to himself while at Washington. American election tactics in its opinion are outside the notice of any foreign power.

The St. James Gazette maintains that Lord Sackville cannot remain at Washington. It says he should have known better than to walk into a net spread before his eyes.

WASHINGTON AND MONTANA.

Annual Reports of the Governors of the Territories.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Governor Semple of Washington Territory, in his annual report, estimates the population of the territory at 167,982, an increase of 24,000 during the year. The taxable property of the territory is $84,621,182, a gain of $65 000,000 in the last ten years and a large increase over last year. The Governor urges the admission of the territory into the Union.

Governor Leslie of Montana, in his annual report, estimates the population of the territory at 140,000, an increase of 10,000 over last year. The territory is entirely free from debt and has plenty of money in the treasury. The commercial operations of the territory during the year aggregated $40,000,000. The product of the mines, the income from the sale of wool, sheep, cattle and horses, with the receipts from the sale of surplus agricultural products amount to $47,000,000. The total assessed value of taxable property is stated at $69,600,000.

RED-NOSED MIKE.

Arrested for the Murder of Paymaster McClure and His Helper.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 30.—Michael Rozzoli, known as "Red-Nosed Mike," the Italian whom many suspected of the murder of Paymaster McClure and Flannigan, his body guard, was arrested yesterday for the second time. Two constables from Luzerne Borough have spent five days in the woods and among the Italian camps disguised as hunters and they claim to possess positive knowledge that Mike and three associates committed the murder. They followed the traces of one of Mike's accomplices nearly fifty miles through the woods. Yesterday they hastened back and had Mike before Justice Moore, who held the prisoner in $3000 bail. The action of the local officers greatly irritated the Pinkerton men, who were following up a supposed clew, and they immediately procured bail for Rozzoli and he was set free, though the excitement occasioned by the arrest is intense.

Confidence Men Fleece a Farmer.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Aaron B. Allen, a well-to-do farmer of the town of Lorraine, this county, has been swindled out of $800 by three-card monte men. The leader, claiming to be a Monroe county banker, decided to purchase Allen's farm and just as he was starting for home to get the necessary money a social stranger drove up and after the usual preliminaries the banker bet on the stranger's game and won at first, but afterwards lost $800. He asked the farmer to loan him the money promising $20 shave. Allen had only $200 with him, but they drove to Adams where he borrowed the rest on his note and the banker paid it over to the stranger who drove away. The banker took the farmer part way home, but suddenly remembered that he had to catch a train, and giving Allen his note for $820 he left him and drove to Mannsville where he joined his partner, the stranger, and the two disappeared.

De Giers' Taffy.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—M. De Giers, the Russian Foreign Minister, in his reply to the congratulations of Emperor William on his jubilee says he is happy to be, through the confidence of the Czar, the interpreter of the feeling of friendship of the Czar toward the Emperor and of the traditional hearty concord between Germany and Russia.

Sunk at Her Dock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The steamer Saginaw of the Clyde line was sunk at her dock pier 15 East River, yesterday afternoon by water pouring through her portholes while a heavy cargo of general merchandise was being stored in her hold. No one was injured and the vessel is intact and will be raised in a few days.

Denied by the Vatican.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Rome says that the Vatican authorities emphatically deny the truth of the reported interview between the Pope and a Daily Telegraph correspondent. The Vatican has sent a special note to the European courts with regard to Emperor William's visit but it does not refer to the Roman question.

Discredited.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Emin Relief Committee discredits the story of the massacre of the Stanley expedition. The members of the committee do not doubt that Stanley is the white pasha reported to be in the Bahr El Gazette province. It is believed that Stanley joined Emin at Wadelai in December, 1887. Nothing has been heard at Brussels in regard to the reported massacre.

The Charges Were False.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 30.—The Congressional Committee before whom the accusation against ex-President Gonzales has been pending since 1884 reported yesterday that there was no foundation for the charge. The Chamber of Deputies approved the report, thus ending the case. Great excitement followed the action of the Deputies.

The Irish Press Surprised.

DUBLIN, Oct. 30.—The Irish press expresses surprise at the leniency of the sentence imposed upon the men who were convicted of conspiring to defraud the Equitable Assurance Company of New York.

TORONTO TOPICS.

An American Boodler in the Toils—Central Bank Dividends.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—There is an American boodler in town, and he is in the hands of the police. His name is Louis Helm Sloakter, and until a few weeks ago he was the trusted cashier of the Chicago and Illinois Railway at Sioux City, Ia. On Oct. 13 he left that town with $400 of the company's money and came to Canada. Arriving in Toronto he registered at the Palmer House under the name of "Louis Helm." From there he removed to a house in Portland-street, where he was arrested last night by Detectives Slemin and Davis on the charge of forgery. Sloakter was bonded by the American Surety Company of New York to the extent of $7000. When the company learned of his defalcation they started two men on his track. These men were Detectives Abel S. Donegar and B. K. Sharrette of New York, who reached here on Oct. 24 and located their man. They claim to have a good case.

William Cathro, the contractor, was arrested last night by Detective Cuddy on a charge of embezzling $1000 from his partners, Joseph Kent and Joseph Rogers. He is the same individual who some few days ago had his mistress and brother arrested on a charge of stealing $500 from him.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. W. Smith, aged 88, residing in Richmond-street west, fell down a flight of stairs and received severe internal injuries. He was conveyed to the Hospital and was in a very weak state last night.

Trinity convocation was commenced last night, Rev. Dr John Carry, of Port Perry, preaching the sermon.

At the Parkdale council meeting last night the annexation bylaw was read a third time and passed.

Provincial Treasurer Ross says that Treasurer Shehyn of Quebec and he were of one mind on the interest question, and that the conference at Ottawa closed with the understanding that nothing was to be done by either province toward a settlement until the contention is allowed.

It is said that ex-Ald. James Pepler will capture the hide inspectorship, for which there are numerous applicants.

Judge Robertson yesterday ordered that the liquidators of the Central Bank pay a second dividend of 3½ per cent. on Nov. 15. The total dividends will probably reach 75 per cent.

HIS SECOND ATTEMPT SUCCEEDS.

A 19-year-old Hamiltonian's Efforts to Terminate His Existence.

HAMILTON, Oct. 30.—Frederick Hooper, a lad about 19 years old, who has quite a local reputation as a roller skater, made a deliberate attempt to poison himself some time Sunday night. Hooper's real name is McClintic, he having assumed his step-father's name. He lives with his mother and sister at 9 Macnab-street south. He had been out of work for several months, and as the sister had to support the family she told him a couple of weeks ago that he would either have to get work or leave the house. The thought of being compelled to leave home preyed upon his mind, and a week ago last Saturday he took a dose of laudanum, with the probable intention of taking his life. He denied that he intended to commit suicide, claiming that the laudanum was taken for medicinal purposes and that he had taken too large a dose.

Saturday night when he retired to bed he told his sister not to wake him on Sunday, as he wanted to sleep all day. Miss Hooper paid no attention to her brother until Sunday night, when she went to his room and found out that he was all right. Yesterday morning about 7 o'clock she again visited his apartment and found him in a stupor. Miss Hooper then suspected that her brother had taken another dose of laudanum. She succeeded in bringing him to, and with the assistance of a neighbor walked him up and down. Hooper again denied that he had taken laudanum, but the physician was convinced that he had taken some kind of poison. He was taken to the City Hospital where he died at 8 o'clock last night. An inquest will be held.

THE KAISER AT HAMBURG.

His Route Thronged With People — A Triumphal Progress.

HAMBURG, Oct. 30.—Emperor William arrived here yesterday. He wore a general's undress uniform. He was received by the Senators in a body. The people greeted the Emperor with great enthusiasm. The Emperor went by water to Alsterhut where he had lunch. He afterwards proceeded to Jungernstein and then returned to the city where he inspected the Guard of Honor and exchanged words of greeting with the officers. He afterwards drove through the city in a carriage drawn by four black horses, and Gen. von Moltke and Count Herbert Bismarck followed in a second carriage.

The route was thronged with people and the progress was a triumphal one. At intervals along the route children presented the Emperor with flowers. His Majesty bowed repeatedly in response to the acclamations of the people. The Senators conducted the Emperor from Brooks' bridge to the scene of the festivities where a stone was placed to commemorate the inclusion of Hamburg in the customs union.

Dr. Fereman tendered the thanks of the Senate, the burgomaster and the inhabitants of the city for the Emperor's presence. The Emperor then took a trowel and mallet, spread mortar over the stone, tapped the stone and said:

"For God's honor, for the good of the Fatherland, and for the welfare of Hamburg."

After Gen. von Moltke, Herr Petersen and Herr von Boetticher had made speeches the Emperor steamed through the customs canal and the upper harbor canal to the Elbe bridge and inspected the forts.

Death of a Canadian Instructress.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 30.—Miss Mossel McGann of Canada, teacher of articulation in the Mississippi Institute for the deaf and dumb, died here yesterday after a lingering illness. Miss McGann's name as a successful teacher in this branch of instruction was known in every institution in the United States and Canada.

THE INJUNCTION STANDS.

A NEW ASPECT GIVEN TO THE RAILWAY QUESTION.

No Attempt Will be Made by the Manitoba Government to Effect a Crossing of the C. P. R. at Present.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30.—The railway trouble is temporarily over, owing to the continuance by Judge Killam yesterday morning of the injunction restraining the crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and a new aspect has been given to the railway question. It was confidently expected that the injunction would be dissolved, and when the adverse decision was given those who usually assume the direction of affairs seemed to be nonplussed.

Members of the Government being approached after the decision as to what their policy would be admitted that nothing had been determined. A Cabinet meeting was held last night and it is understood that the Legislature will be called about Nov. 10 to discuss the situation.

In the meantime the Government will make no attempt to affect a crossing but will carry on the work by teaming material over the Canadian Pacific Railway track via the highway which is about 200 yards from the point of intersection. The Canadian Pacific Railway still maintain a guard at the four intended points of crossing. The Government specials were on hand yesterday morning but when the decision was given in court their services were temporarily dispensed with.

WHEAT AT PORT ARTHUR.

The Arrivals Not up to Expectations—Elevator Work Suspended.

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 30.—Wheat arrivals at the elevators here are not at all up to expectations and much behind last year, probably largely owing to the backward season. For the week ending Saturday night the receipts were 261,960 bushels, against 269,200 bushels for the corresponding week last year. The receipts of this season's crop so far have been 636,350 bushels, against 1,204,450 bushels for the same period last year. Probably on account of the comparatively light receipts instructions were received this morning from headquarters to suspend all operations on the immense annex to the elevator. It is believed that the company feel that the present elevators and the new one will be able to accommodate the season's crop without the annex. The foundation of the annex is all completed and if it is found to be needed can be continued later on. It is also reported here that the Canadian Pacific Railway will not carry frosted grain from Manitoba until all the higher grade grain is exported.

A HORRIBLE DISCOVERY.

Two Boys While Hunting Trip Over a Skull and Find a Clothed Skeleton.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 30.—A son of Mr. A. Simpson and a companion named Burch, of Beamsville, were hunting for black squirrels in Mr. Harcourt's bush, about five miles west of the village on Saturday, when young Simpson tripped, as he thought, over a stone. On turning to look at it he was horrified to find it was a bleached skull, and at the same moment young Burch discovered a clothed body sitting up by a maple tree. The trunk was without a head, and presented a most ghastly spectacle, with evident marks of being there for several years. The skull was several feet from the body. The body, arms and thighs were throughly shrunken into a parchment covering the bones, but the skull had a short pipe between the teeth, as if death came suddenly. There was nothing in the pockets to give information regarding the body.

MR. BURWELL'S RUSE.

How He Managed to Get Clear of Officers Sent to Arrest Him.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 30.—The News of this city says that soon after the burning of the big sawmill of Burwell & Co., at Spanish River, Ont., the Canadian Bank of Commerce sent two officers to arrest Burwell, claiming that he or the firm owed the bank $60,000. Mr. Burwell insisted that the officers dine with him. During the meal the housekeeper said someone wanted to see Mr. Burwell. He went to see the man, and as soon as the door closed behind him ran to the wharf, and boarding one of the firm's tugs, steamed away. When the officers learned what had happened they offered heavy rewards for his recapture, but Burwell is now in Grand Haven just the same. The News also says: "Nobody acquainted with members of the firm believes they contemplated fraud."

Live Stock Weighing Association.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—The Live Stock Weighing Association met yesterday to discuss the situation in the Southwest. The time set for the adoption of the new system of weighing live stock shipments was Oct. 25, but owing to some hitch in the arrangements the Kansas City roads did not put the rates into effect as agreed upon. The St. Louis lines declined to adopt the rates until Kansas City was ready to do so, and matters have been considerably muddled in consequence. At yesterday's meeting the Chicago roads agreed to stand by the agreement and continue the weighing system here, notwithstanding the action of the roads at other points.

Charged With Poisoning Her Children.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Anna Snook, now under three indictments for murder for poisoning her children, was brought here yesterday and lodged in jail. She has been out on $10,000 bail for over a year on two charges, but the grand jury indicted her again last week when an ounce of sulphate of copper was found in the remains of her baby that died five years ago. She will remain in jail until the trial occurs next month.

A Trip Through Europe.

EIGHTH PAPER.

Farewell to Edinburgh.

No one should leave Edinburgh without spending an hour or two on Calton Hill. The view at sunrise on a clear morning will ever remain a pleasant reminiscence of the visit to Scotia's "Queen City." The objects of most interest in the immediate vicinity are: Regent Bridge and Waterloo Place, the Princes, which is relieved from the sombre appearance such buildings generally have by quite an assemblage of towers and turrets, and the far famed High School, with its colonnaded corridors and massive wings. On the hill itself, are monuments to Stewart, Nelson and Playfair; also the new observatory. Patriotic efforts were made in 1822 and subsequent years to raise a great national monument after the pattern of the Pantheon at Athens. However, the basement, twelve columns, and a small part of the superstructure exhausted the funds, so that it is sometimes facetiously called the monument to Edinburgh's pride and poverty. The very pretty pillar to Burns' memory is across the street to the south.

Retracing our steps, we pass over the north and south bridges and take a look through the university and museum. These are imposing structures, but being closely surrounded by other buildings, do not appear to good advantage. The former has long enjoyed a world-wide reputation as

A SEAT OF LEARNING.

Its chairs are filled by distinguished professors, and its halls crowded with students. The latter is well supplied with curiosities and relics of ancient days.

Many enjoyable excursions can be made to the suburbs. A couple of miles to the south-east is Craigmiller Castle. It is a massive old ruin, embowered with trees and covered with ivy. It was the chief country seat of Queen Mary. Portobello to the east is a fashionable watering place. Musselburgh further on has its mansions and villas and Dalkeith its palace. Newbattle Abbey on the South Esk river, and Dalhousie Castle, the stately residence of a descendant or rather relative of the song celebrated "Laird o' Cockpen," Lasswalk furnished material for Scott's "Tales of my Landlord." Hawthorden has its classic castle and caves. Roslin's unfinished chapel with its exquisite 'Prentice pillar on which the apprentice far excelled the master architect. Pentland Hills and those wonderful feats of engineering, the Forth and Tay Bridges. All these are well worth seeing.

There is quite an analogy between Dublin and Edinburgh. The people in both are capable "of assuming a thinkful mood" and of giving the impression that they are actively engaged in the pursuit of knowledge. Whereas in Belfast and Glasgow, the majority of the citizens seem as though they preferred having good paying stock in cotton and steamship companies rather than mere literary polish.

There is said to be quite a difference between the Irish and Scotch in the matter of conducting courtship. The rosy cheeks, ruby lips, languid eyes and warm hearts of Irish, as of Canadian, maidens, always suggest the need of only one chair for two. On the other hand, the thoughtful faces of the Scottish maidens, added to the quiet, reserved manner, the natural result of the strict disciplinarianism of home life, make it the proper thing for lovers to sit on opposite sides of the room, and the the young fellow is supposed to get is when his sweetheart at an early hour in the evening walks across the floor, shakes hands with him modestly remarking that it is time he was going home. Being married we had no excuse for verifying either of these statements. So if any young people doubt their accuracy, we can only refer them to their parents, who if Irish or Scotch, can speak from a happy experience.

We cannot linger in the "land of the mountain and the flood," so after several "cups of kindness" with our genial Scottish friends we pack our grip-sacks, and get on board the train for fair Albion.

What associations cluster round old England. It is the land in which, in the far distant past, the seeds of our sturdy liberty were planted, and which have ever since been nurtured by her noblest statesmen, and often watered by the life-blood of her bravest sons. Here is the native air of churchmen, politicians, warriors, philosophers, scientists, historians, poets, novelists, scholars, philanthropists, mariners, in short anybody and everybody required to make up a people capable of occupying the most important places amongst the nations of the earth, and who have for nearly two thousand years filled the largest space in the world's history. And apart from all that the wisdom and power of man have done, a kind Providence has spread out a and has bestowed an inestimable amount of wealth in her forests, mines and fertile fields. Of all countries England offers the greatest variety of objects of interest. The farmer sees the soil cultivated to the highest degree of perfection, and the fields literally alive with the finest and most gracefully formed stock. The innocent looking sheep with their nice fleeces, so suggestive of comfortable clothing by day, and the luxurious warmth of downy blankets by night, the fat contented cows, brim full of that pure nutritious milk for which sanitary scientists and city people generally—especially the baby portion of them, hunger and thirst. The broad-shouldered, shapely flanked, strong limbed draught, the gracefully formed roadster, and the fleet race horse; all these form a panorama of usefulness and beauty, seldom if ever seen elsewhere. Workmen and tradesmen in every sphere see in her architecture and manufactures the highest types of perfection. Teachers find in her schools, colleges and universities the science of education ever expanding and becoming more ennobled. The erudition of her scholars, scientists and philosophers challenges the admiration of all mankind. Her devotees in law and medicine have a world-wide reputation for learning, nobility of character and

HONESTY OF PURPOSE.

Her public press ever exerts its influence "for the punishment of evil-doers and the praise of them that do well." Her tradesmen in all the varied lines of mercantile life are noted for their stability, integrity and business tact. Her banking institutions are immense, and her gold is accepted wherever the foot of man treadeth. Her clergymen are highly cultured, orthodox, zealous, and the teachings and example of many of them exert a beneficient influence co-extensive with Christendom. Her deeds of charity and philantrophy have mitigated the hard lot of countless millions. Her history furnishes material alike for the grandest themes of historians, and the sweetest lyrics and most patriotic songs of poets. Her laws display the noblest aspirations of statesmenship. The story of her victories fires the heart of the soldier. The valor of her armies and the strength and power of her navy, give a commanding position and make her borders secure. Her religion and civilization send their effulgent rays of hope and happiness o'er all the race. Her men are loyal, industrious, and kind, and her women, from the noble Queen to the humblest peasant, possess those sterling graces and virtues which are the chief adornment of womankind. To these attractions are added a salubrious climate, all that can be produced by wealth and intelligent husbandmen, and all that can be provided by an unparalleled volume of commerce. Little wonder then that this most highly favored land should contain ever swelling crowds of tourists to her shores.

J. HUTTON.

December Council Sittings.

The following amendment was made to Sec. 283 of the Municipal Act at the last session of the Legislative Assembly, by having added the following subsection thereto:

(3) The council of every town, township and incorporated village shall hold a meeting on the 15th day of December in each year, or if such day happen to be a Sunday, then on the Monday following, and shall immediately thereafter publish a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures for the portion of the year ending on the day of such meeting, together with a statement of assets and liabilities and uncollected taxes. The said statement shall be signed by the Mayor or Reeve and by the Treasurer and shall be published forthwith in one or more newspapers of the municipality (if any) and in such other newspapers circulated in the municipality as the council may direct.

(4.) Instead of publishing the said statement in any newspaper the council may cause the same to be posted up not later than the twenty-fourth day of December, in the offices of the clerk and of the treasurer, as well as at all the post offices in the municipality, and at not less than twelve other conspicuous places therein.

(5.) The clerk shall procure not less than 100 copies of the said statement and shall deliver or transmit by post to the electors who first request him to do so, one of such copies not later than the 24th day of December in each year, and shall also see that copies of the said statement are produced at the nominations.

This change is a valuable one for the electors, giving them, as it will, an opportunity of fully scrutinizing the financial management of the council for the year. As it has been in some municipalities, the exact financial expenditure has not been made public until the publication of the detailed statement in February or March, and perhaps after the people have re-elected a council which they would not probably have done had they had this information supplied previous to marking their ballots.

Literary Notes.

THE DOMINION ILLUSTRATED — continues to keep up to the high standard it adopted at its beginning last July. The current number, Oct. 27th, is full of interest, both illustrations and letter press being of a high standard. As a representative Canadian high art publication it is richly deserving of universal support.

"CHRIST BEFORE PILATE."—The Toronto Weekly News is presenting to its subscribers a most creditable etching, in fac-simile, of Munkacsy's great picture, "Christ Before Pilate," 29in. x 21in., which created such interest when exhibited in New York last year, and was purchased by Mr. Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, for $120,000. The etching is a beautiful piece of work and should be prized by all who receive it.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE—for November is typical of the season—full of ripe rich fruit. The contents are varied and excellent and the illustrations numerous and Scribnersque, that is to say exceedingly good. An interesting paper—"From Gravelotte to Sedan" is contributed by an eye witness of the event—"quorum pars magna fui"—General Phil H. Sheridan. Augustine Birrel has finely written tribute, critical and analytical, to Matthew Arnold and his writings. "Everyday Life of Railroad Men" is profusely illustrated and well adapted for popular reading. Lester Wallack's "Memories" are continued, and the serial "First Harvests" is completed. "A Random Memory" of Robert Louis Stevenson—"The Education of an Engineer" with other minor articles complete a most readable number.

Advertising That Pays.

What is Thought of the Daily Newspaper by the Largest Retail Shoe Advertiser in the United States.

"Any one who advertises (?) without using the daily newspaper is as equally sure of attention as a man who is wildly throwing kisses on a ravishingly pretty woman in the dark—he knows all about it but she don't," is the nutshell in which A. J. Richards' advertising manager of R. H. Fyfe & Co. of Detroit, puts practical advertising. Mr. Richards expressed himself as follows: "Almost every advertising 'scheme' that is not backed by a publication in the daily newspaper is absolutely worthless. A 'scheme' distributed two or three times a year, if read is forgotten like a chance acquaintance—the reading of the contents of the daily newspaper which is placed before the eyes of the same readers 365 times every year, is like a habit that by frequent practice becomes a second nature. There are hundreds of thousands of dollars wasted annually on worthless 'schemes' which, if used in legitimate newspaper advertising, would turn into fortunes.

Roman Britain.

A very curious discovery has been made at Llantwit, in Glamorganshire of remains of a large Roman villa and a military station, the area of the buildings, the foundations of which are already uncovered, being two acres. Hitherto it was not known that the Romans had a military depot so far south of the Via Julia, but more striking is the discovery on the tessilated pavement of a great hall of 41 skeletons of men and women jumbled together as they would be if they had fallen in a massacre, some being crushed under the bones of horses. From the position of the bodies it is evident that there was a slaughter of the inmates after the villa had been sacked and so broken up as to admit horsemen. The theory of archæologists is that the remains relate to one of the massacres by Irish pirates who devastated the south of Wales in the fifth century.

of good health is found in the regular movement of the bowels and perfect action of the Liver. These organs were intended by nature to remove from the system all imburities. MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

Swims, the jailer, was a peculiar character. He was old, perhaps 60, with abundant white hair, and a dry and withered face. His voice was always keyed on a whining tone, except when some great cause, such as the requests of prisoners for an extra bucket of water, aroused his ire, when it rose to a hoarse scream. Avarice was a strong trait. He seemed to think his accommodations vastly too good for negroes and "Yankees," and that when admitted to his hospitality they should be thankful and give as little trouble as possible. With such notions it is easily seen how much he could add to the sufferings of prisoners. One thing favorable was that he was fond of a dram, and when indulging became very talkative, revealing many things that we could not otherwise have learned.

We halted for a moment at the camp fire of the guard outside the gate; then Swims came out, grumbling about their being disturbed so much, and, unlocking the gate, admitted us. We crossed the yard, ascended the long outside stairway, and from an outside landing entered the bedroom. From this a door opened into the prison. The room was quite small, square, and entirely destitute of furniture of any kind except a long ladder, which lay on the floor. There were five or six old, miserable looking men in the room, whose clothes hung in tatters, and who presented a terribly starved, dirty and wretched appearance. It was a dreadful place, and I shuddered at the idea of taking up my abode in such a den. But I soon found I was not to be so highly favored, and a little more experience was sufficent to make me look almost with envy upon these old men.

Said the jailer to the captain: "Where shall I put him?"

"Below, of course," was the prompt reply.

THE SWIMS JAIL AT CHATTANOOGA.

The jailer advanced to the middle of the room, and kneeling down, took a large key from his pocket, and applying it to a hole in the floor gave it a turn and then with a great effort raised a ponderous trap door right at my feet. A rush of hot air, and a stifling stench as from the mouth of the pit, smote me in the face and I involuntarily recoiled backward; but the bayonets of the guard were behind and there was no escape. The ladder was then thrust down, and, long as it was, it no more than penetrated the great depth. The wretches whose voices I could hear confusedly murmuring below were ordered to stand from under, and I was compelled to descend into what seemed more like the infernal regions than any place on earth. It was hard to find the steps of the ladder—for the candle of the jailer gave almost no light, and I had on handcuffs; but I went down, feeling for each step, to a depth of some thirteen feet. I stepped off the ladder, treading on human beings I could not discern, and wedged in as best I might. Then the ladder was slowly drawn up, and in a moment more the trap fell with a dull and heavy sound that seemed crushing down on my heart, and every ray of light vanished. I was shut into a living tomb—buried alive!

I could feel men around me and hear their breathing in the darkness, so that I knew the den was crowded full. Though it was night and cool outside, the heat here was more than that of a tropic noon, and the perspiration soon oozed from every pore. The feted air and the stench made me for a time deadly sick, and, worst of all, there was an almost unbearable sense of suffocation. I wondered if it could be possible that they would leave human beings in such a place till death came in this horrible form—death, which could not be long delayed. I thought of the Black Hole of Calcutta, where so many Englishmen were suffocated in one terrible night by a savage East Indian; I had heard of negroes being burned alive or whipped to death in our own south; but these horrors were always, I supposed, meant as vengeance for some fiendish outrage. Yet of all the forms of death, that by slow suffocation had always appeared most dreadful, and this now seemed imminent.

As I had been brought to this place in the dark, I knew nothing of its character, and after the first moment of stupefaction, resolved to explore its size and nature. No one of my companions had yet spoken to me or I to them. Whether they were black or white, soldiers or citizens, chained like myself, or with the free use of their hands, I could not tell, and I scarcely liked to ask, lest the answer should add new misery. I jambed my way through the living throng to the wall and felt along it to learn if there was door or window. There was no door, the only entrance to the fearful place being by the trap door down which I came. Neither were there any windows, but I found two holes in the wall, opposite each other, each little more than a foot square, and filled with three rows of iron bars. The walls, as could be told at the holes, were very thick, being made of an innercase of oak logs and a brick wall outside. Even in day time, these holes gave little light, for one was close under the outside stairway already described, and the other below the level of the ground. Yet a little air could come through the thick set bars, and served to revive me—making it possible to endure life here for a short time.

When the first shock had passed and I became partially inured to the terrible oppression of the atmosphere, I tried to ascertain something of the condition of my companions. The most fearful description of this place of torment that can be given is contained in the plain cold figures—the number of the prisoners and the size and manner of their lodging. Before I entered there were fourteen white men and one negro. This evening the number was increased to nineteen and soon after to twenty-two, at which point it remained for many days. The room was just thirteen feet square, and about the same in height. These numbers are not approximations, but are meant to be accepted exactly and literally. The entire furniture of the room consisted of four buckets for water and slops! And here twenty-two men had to remain day and night, with no respite, and no power to leave the room for any purpose, for more than two weeks! It was possible, as will be seen by reference to the accompanying sketch, for all to lie down at once; but it required the nicest fitting and no small degree of crowding. There were two rows of ten persons each, occupying the space of thirteen feet, and two persons could rest between the feet of the rows. But when one turned, all in his row were obliged to turn likewise; and as all were chained in some manner, the crowding, the exclamations, and the clanking of chains in the black darkness of this dungeon presented—especially at night—as good a representation of the realms of the lost as has ever been known.

FIRE AT CHATSWORTH.

The Public School Building Completely Destroyed—Loss $5000.

CHATSWORTH, Oct. 30.—Yesterday afternoon about 3.40 the Chatsworth Public School House was discovered to be on fire. The building was totally destroyed. It was a two story brick containing four rooms, built last year at a cost of $5000. About 160 children were in the school at the time and all escaped unhurt. The cause of the fire is as yet unknown. The building was insured in the Sydenham Mutual for $3000.

A Town Nearly Wiped Out.

CARROLLTON, Mo., Oct. 30.—The little town of Hale on the Chicago, Burlington and Kansas City Railway was nearly wiped out by fire last night.

1200 Persons Homeless.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—A fire has been raging since an early hour yesterday morning at Huenfeld, near Cassel. Two hundred houses are in ashes and 1500 persons are homeless and destitute. Great distress prevails.

HANNAH BOYD RELEASED.

No Evidence to Connect Her with the Galt Poisoning Cases.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Hannah Boyd, who has been confined in the county jail during the past ten days on the charge of being implicated in the sending of the poisoned candies which caused the death of Meta Cherry at Galt, was released yesterday, there being nothing to warrant holding her longer.

The general impression prevails here that her arrest and detention were due to an expectation that she might be frightened into making statements in the nature of a confession which would clear up the dark mystery that surrounds the case.

Miss Boyd is now in charge of her friends, and left for her home in Hamilton to-day.

The officials say that before leaving the court house Hannah made a lengthy statement of all the matters within her knowledge that might have a bearing upon the case, and Detective Murray states that the information contained in this statement will prove of material assistance in the further investigation of this mysterious case. Whether the information is as valuable as is stated, or whether it is an easy way of letting themselves down, is an open question. Certain it is that nothing is expected from it at present.

Enlarging His Borders.

Since the establishment of his Private school on Brock street, Mr. E. Duff has been meeting with encouraging success. He has now large classes, is negotiating for another teacher and is enlarging his premises. Merit brings success, and it is to be hoped that the building will continue to grow too small for this school.

Teachers' Convention.

Inspector Tilley has extended an invitation to the public school teachers of Peterborough to attend the East Durham Teachers' Convention at Port Hope on Thursday and Friday. The law makes provision allowing teachers two days to attend conventions. Several of the teachers intend attending, consequently several of the rooms will be closed to admit of their going.

Thanksgiving Day Entertainment.

Citizens of Peterborough will remember with pleasure the success that attended the military concert given by the 57th Battalion last fall, and will learn with pleasure a similar entertainment is to be given on te night of Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 12th—smiliar, with this exception, that it will be superior in every way. The programme will be one of rare merit, comprising military and musical numbers that are sure to please.

Dominion Day at Port Hope.

The town council of Port Hope gave a special conditional grant of $200 to the Dominion Day celebration committee. The committee made their final report on Thursday evening last. The receipts amounted to $2,042.67. The disbursements were $1,668.33, leaving a net balance on hand of $374.35, after returning to the town the $200 granted conditionally. Very good gentlemen.

No Immediate Danger.

Lindsay is proposing to lower the dam at Lindsay, which would reduce the Scugog in volume, making it not navigable, but would reclaim a large amount of "drowned land." But sailors who use the raging Scugog need not be unnecessarily alarmed. Lindsay is not in the habit of moving so rapidly that there is any immediate danger of the said sailors having the wind taken out of their sails or having the "native element" suddenly withdrawn from their crafts.

No Cheese Sold.

At the meeting of the Cheese Board to-day the October makes of cheese in this county and Victoria, 2,070 and 495 boxes respectively, were boarded. No sales were made, the highest offer of 9¾c., by Mr. Cook, being rejected. The board adjourned for one week.

To The Penitentiary For Life.

The 11:20 C.P.R. train to-day bore out of town James F. Farley, condemned to imprisonment for life in the Kingston penitentiary. The prisoner was in the custody of Sheriff Hall and Turnkey Rae. A number of Farley's friends paid him a visit in jail this morning, and he bade them an affectionate farewell. He appeared to be quite content with the prospect, dismal enough to others, of life imprisonment before him.

Obstructing the Street.

Mr. John Craig was summoned to appear at the police court this morning to answer to a charge of having violated the town by-law against obstructing the street. It was alleged that he had put a table out on the sidewalk in front of his store for the purpose of displaying partridge. The case was adjourned by the magistrate until he got the opinion of the town council upon the by-law. The magistrate remarked that he considered some of its restrictions too severe, and said he knew if it was the intention of the council to have it strictly enforced, he would suspend the trial.

Mr. Ragan's Lecture.

Mr. H. H. Ragan's lecture on "Paris, the Magnificent," at the opera house last night came to an end all too quickly for the audience. Nearly everyone has heard Mr. Ragan during one of his several visits to Peterborough, so that comment upon the excellence of his lecture and illustrations is unnecessary. The audience was not as large as it should have been. Mr. Ragan came under the auspices of St. Luke's Church, and the management are to be commended upon their efforts to place such a high class of entertainment before the public.

Duck Shooting in the N. W.

The following extract is taken from a letter from Mr. R. Cook, of Prince Albert, to his father in town. The letter is dated 10th of Sept.:—"Ten of us went out the other evening to a gap on a creek where the ducks fly through at dusk into a big marsh to feed, and in half an hour we bagged more than two hundred and killed a great many more that we could not find. We had double barreled breech-loading shot guns, and it was load and fire as fast as we could." From letter dated 9th Oct., 1888:—Duck shooting is very good; two of us bagged fifty-four the other day, and were not out long. We had a match on Saturday, eleven guns on each side, the losing side to pay for a game supper. Our side won; I scored thirty-eight points the first hour, then my leg gave out and I was unable to shoot any longer. There were six or seven of the sports shooting all day that did not score as many as I did. Judge ——— only killed one duck.

A Fair Warning.

As the auctioneers say, going, going, going, fair warning!—but in this case it's coming, coming, coming, and the people are given fair warning that if they don't attend the inimitable concert of the world-famed jubilee singers from Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., they will miss one of the greatest treats of their lives, and forever afterwards feel like kicking themselves for it. This is the original company that devoted over $150,000 of its earnings to the building of Fisk University, that made two wonderfully successful tours abroad, the guests of kings and queens and prime ministers, and that sang by special invitation for Presidents Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Arthur. They appear at Bradburn's Opera House Wednesday evening, Oct. 31st. Tickets, 75 and 50c.; children under 15 years, 25c.

On account of delay in marking down goods and getting stock arranged, the great slaughter sale of Henry Sheppard's bankrupt stock announced to commence on Wednesday, will not take place until Saturday next, 3rd of November, when the doors will swing open to welcome the buyers who are certain to flock to this sale, the result of the great Gough's latest, largest and most extensive sweep of the season.

The Giddy Girl.

Yesterday afternoon a 15 year old girl named Maggie Hayes, of good appearance and manners, applied to Chief Roszel for aid. She said her home was in the city of Hamilton, but her parents being very poor she had got enough money together to come to Peterborough where she had heard there was plenty of work for willing hands. She had been unable to find employment, and was now penniless. Mr. A. Hall, chairman of the charity committee, gave her a railway pass back to the city and sent her on her way home. The girl's story may be true enough, but the general opinion is that she ran away from home, her young head filled with golden visions of life in the gay world, but when her funds ran out her career was suddenly stopped and she very wisely determined to return to her home, though adopting a questionable course to gain the necessary means, with the object perhaps of reaching Hamilton without her parents having any real knowledge of her doings.

A Practical Joke.

One evening last week a certain gentleman was at the G.T.R. station. On the arrival of the train from Toronto, a lady slipped off carrying a good sized valise and parcel. Mistaking the lady for the wife of a prominent merchant, living not far from the station and in the direction of his own home, and with his usual gallantry he proffered his assistance which was gladly accepted. No sooner had he the valise in hand, when he found, to his astonishment, that he had been mistaken in the lady, but not wishing to admit his mistake, started with her, and accompanied her to her home, north of Mr. Richard Hall's residence. At one time he thought he was bound for Lakefield. He returned home about 10:30 looking for sympathy, but his wife, to whom he related his sad experience, politely informed him that if he remained away from the station and split some wood he would be doing her a kindness which he frequently overlooked.

A Successful Debenture Sale.

A meeting of the Finance Committee of the town council was held at the Clerk's office this morning for the purpose of selling the $20,000 debentures floated by the town this year for the purpose of raising funds for the building of bridges and cribbing Crescent street. There were present, Mayor Stevenson, Mr. Davidson, chairman, and Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, Moore and Douglass. The debentures amounted to $20,000 at 4 per cent., spread over a period of 20 years, payable at Peterborough half yearly, and were sold to Mr. Wm. Manson, of the Bank of Commerce, at 95½ per cent. There were a large number of tenders, some of the leading monetary institutions in Canada making offers for the debentures. The sale is considered a capital one, better, perhaps, than any other town in Canada could make today. Never before has any Canadian town floated debentures at 4 per cent., and the venture on the part of the finance committee has been highly successful. The sale is considered equal to $1.13 at 5 per cent., the lowest rate at which municipal debentures are as a rule issued in Can'a. It is also ½ per cent. better than the city of Toronto sold her debentures a year ago. The finance committee are to be congratulated upon the success of the sale of town debentures.

Come now, Ladies! Can't You Sing?

To-night is the last night for this season that new members will be admitted to the Peterborough Vocal Society. All those wishing to improve their vocal powers should not miss this opportunity, as it will not occur again for another 12 months. Five to six months' solid tuition. For ladies, $1.00; gentlemen, $2.00. 1d

Jubilee Singers.

The Rev. M. L. Pearson writes that he has met the Jubilee Singers on his way to Napanee. The concerts all along the line are being largely patronized. Mr. Pearson told the singers that the Peterborough townspeople intended to fill the opera house and that they should give their best programme. They promised to give their best selections and to sing their newest and most popular choruses, quartettes, trios and solos. Caldwell, the great basso, as well as Jenny Jackson and Laura Wells, the renowned sopranos, are with the troupe. 1d

More Official Papers.

This morning Chief Roszel received more official documents re the Greenfield extradition case. One was a paper signed by Lord Sackville, British plenipotentiary at Washington, of the formal surrender of the prisoner Greenfield, a British subject, to the chief of police. The other was a demand of the Secretary of State upon the Buffalo authorities to deliver the prisoner over to Chief Roszel. By the time the chief gets all his papers together he will have a small catchelful. Extradition proceedings are tedious and expensive, and involve a vast amount of red tapeism. As soon as the chief receives notice from the Buffalo Superintendent of Police that the prisoner is waiting to be delivered over to him, he will run over and get him.

Weekly Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Endeavor Society took place last evening. There was a large number present and a number of names were added to the membership roll. The reports of the different committees were read and received. Under the head of new business, it was decided to hold a tea meeting on Thanksgiving Day, from 5 to 8 p.m., after which there will be a popular entertainment. The programme rendered was excellent, being taken part in by Miss Morrow, the Misses Brandrettte, Miss Lumsden, Miss Crosby, Messrs. Ritchie, Tebb, Crane, Wilson and Dawe. The Monday evening meetings of the Endeavor Society are growing in interest and have become very popular.

Anniversary Service.

The Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, of Orilia, will conduct the anniversary services in St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning and evening, Nov. 4th. A collection will be taken up in aid of the church debt. On Monday evening, November 5th, a soiree will be held, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Tea will be served in the school room from 6 to 7.30 o'clock, followed by a good musical programme in the church and addresses by the Rev. Dr. Grant and local ministers. Strangers will meet with a cordial welcome and spend a pleasant evening. Tickets to soiree 25 cents. 3oed

Soudanese Relics.

Mr. Sidney Blade this afternoon showed the EXAMINER some relics of the expedition of the Canadian Voyageurs up the Nile in 1884-85. These consist of a Soudanese fez, which Mr. Blade took off the head of a soldier of El Mahdi. The fez is a yellowish brown felt, conical in shape, and ornamented with bits of cloth. Mr. Blade saw the man fall, and after the battle secured his fez and rifle, which latter he presented to Mr. T. G. Hazlitt on the return of the voyageurs to Canada. He also presents the fez and a portion of the fittings (in brass) of the steamer on which Col. Stewart and party were massacred in February, 1885. After the massacre, the voyageurs and the British forces went up to avenge the murdered people, the villages on both sides of the river, at the site of the massacre, being burned. The British soldiers fired the village on one side of the river and the Canadians that portion on the other side. Sidney Blade, Wm. Hay, now a printer in the government printing office, Ottawa, and — West, of Winnipeg, were detailed to do the work, and they fired 200 mud huts on the left hand bank of the Nile.

To Farmers and Horse Owners.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, the harness maker, 137 Hunter street, has been twelve years in the business, and has worked up a trade and reputation for superior work which gives him a leading position in the trade. He has done good honest work in an artistic and workman-like manner. He has shown himself trustworthy and skillful. That is the reason why he counts so numerous a list of friends amongst the horsemen and farmers of town and country. His reputation has gone abroad, and he receives frequent orders from distant parts of the country from parties requiring specially excellent harness work. Mr. Devlin is now fully prepared for the fall trade. His shop contains a beautiful stock of sleigh robes, wolf, bear, etc., horse clothing of all kinds, and a splendid stock of harness, and, in fact, all the supplies in that line that can be demanded. He has also on hand a superb supply of trunks, valises, etc. His entire stock is complete in the lines named, and for durability and excellence of work cannot be surpassed in the Midland District. Anyone desirous of getting any of these classes of goods, of the best quality, at reasonable prices, will find it to his advantage to call on W. J. Devlin, 137 Hunter street, opposite the post office. 6d2w

Dickson's Race Street.

The attention of the council is again called to the execrable and disreputable condition of Race street. It is a genuine slough of despond, and almost impassable to the heavy traffic requiring to be done over it. Farmers by the score daily need to draw large loads of grain to the Peterborough roller mills and elevators, and the going of a few hundred yards up this street is more difficult than miles of country road, and there are daily examples of broken vehicles. This is simply disgraceful. When posing for votes and support, councillors talk glibly of encouraging manufacturers and making Peterborough a desirable market town, but by neglecting this street they give the lie to their professions. A very little expenditure of labour, material and money would discharge the duty of the council in respect to this street. Let the work of repairing it be done at once. We want to help our manufacturing millers, through whom thousands of dollars are put into circulation for the benefit of the town. We want to have farmers bring their grain here to market, but that can't be done by maintaining streets which wreck the strongest waggons and disgust the most patient farmer. Will the town authorities kindly wake up and take action? There is no time for a moment's delay; there has been too much already. Islands are freely bestowed on the C. P. R. to extend sidings. That's all right; but, at the present time, railway sidings are not half so badly needed on this street as a good passable waggon road.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

A Dry Shot.

Kidd the bootor, has been selling American rubbers for 20 cents a pair since he came to Peterborough, also iron heel plates put on for 5 cents a pair extra. dw

TEXT: "GOOD GOODS, SMALL PROFITS."

MY HEARERS,—You need not cry or weep any longer, by being afraid of being taken in by some High Priced Clothing Sharks, as the young and pushing firm of WYATT & TURNER have at last got their hooks on the neck of the Wonderful Cormorants. You need not spend your money until you see what this firm is doing, and if, my friends, you cannot get as good, and I will say, better bargains there than any where else, then by no means buy one cent's worth; and if you do not buy, they will not send a boy to follow you, to see if you go into a competing house to buy; they do business on the Square, and besides, sell Fine Goods and No Shoddy. No Slop Work, all their goods I am told, is examined and re-examined before going out of the store. Now, my hearers, if this be true, and I believe it is, you need not be afraid of being GULLED or taken in in any way by this firm. I need not quote prices, as you know prices are all right; but when some people buy a few dollars worth of goods at a price, and then try to make the public believe that they bought them for half what they paid for them; and not only this, but they also double the quantity they bought. Now, my hearers, figures will lie if you wish to make them, but when the firm of Wyatt & Turner say they sell a suit of Men's Clothing for $1.75, you can rest assured they do, or if they sell All-Wool Shirts and Drawers for 45c., who'se business is it but their own; as long as you get a $1.25 All-Wool Cardigan Jacket for 75c., go by all means and buy it, and be made happy. By the way, I almost forgot to tell you that they have OVERCOATS from $2.50 up to $12.50. Now, in the last place, I would say briefly, my dear hearers, that

WYATT & TURNER, are the Cheapest Clothiers on Earth.

NO LONGER ACCEPTABLE

CLEVELAND INFORMS SACKVILLE THAT HE MUST GO.

No Further Intercourse With Great Britain Will be Held Through the Present Minister at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—By direction of the President, the Secretary of State to-day informed Lord Sackville-West that for causes heretofore made known to Her Majesty's Government, his continuance in his present official position in the United States is no longer acceptable to this Government, and would consequently be detrimental to the relations between the two countries. The grounds of this action on the part of the United States are stated in a report of the Secretary of State to the President, dated Oct. 29, which is as follows:

"DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
"WASHINGTON, Oct. 29, 1888.

"To the President:

"The undersigned has the honor to submit to your consideration the following statement with a view to receive your direction thereon: On Sept. 4 last, a letter purporting to be written by one Charles F. Murchison, dated at Pomona, Cal., was sent from that place to the British Minister at this capital, in which the writer solicited an expression of his views in regard to certain unsettled diplomatic questions between the United States and Great Britain, stating at the same time that such an expression was sought by him for the purpose of determining his vote at the approaching Presidential election. He stated that he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, of English birth, but that he had still considered England the Mother Country, and this fact led him to seek advice from the British representative in this country. He further stated that the information he sought was not for himself alone but to enable him to give certain assurances to many other persons in the same situation as himself, for the purpose of influencing and determining their political action as citizens of the United States, of English birth, but who still regarded their original obligations of allegiance as paramount. The letter also contained gross reflections upon the conduct of this Government in respect to questions now in controversy and unsettled, between the United States and Great Britain, and both directly and indirectly imputed insincerity in such conduct.

"To this letter the British Minister at once replied from Beverly, Mass., under date of Sept. 13, last: In his reply he stated that 'any political party which openly favors the Mother Country at the present moment would lose popularity, and that the party in power is fully aware of that fact,' and that in respect to the 'questions with Canada which have been unfortunately re-opened since the rejection of the [fisheries] treaty by the Republican majority in the Senate, and by the President's message to which you allude, all allowances must therefore be made for the political situation as regards the presidential election.'

"The minister thus gave his assent and sanction to the aspersions and imputations above referred to. Thus, under his correspondent's assurance of secrecy, in which the minister concurred by marking his answer 'private,' he undertook to advise a citizen of the United States how to exercise the franchise of suffrage in an election close at hand for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States, and through him, as the letter suggests, to influence the votes of many others.

"Upon this correspondence being made public, the minister received the representatives of the public press, and in frequent interviews with them, intended for publication, added to the impugnments which he had already made of the good faith of this Government in its public action and international dealings. Although ample time and opportunity have been afforded him for the disavowal, modification or correction of his statements, to some of which his attention was called personally by the undersigned, yet no such disavowal or modification has been made by him through the channels in which his statements first found publicity.

"The question is thus presented, whether it is compatible with the dignity, security and independent sovereignty of the United States to permit the representative of a foreign Government in this country, not only to receive and answer without disapproval, and confirm by his repetition aspersions upon its political action, but also to interfere in its domestic affairs, by advising persons formerly his countrymen as to their political course as citizens of the United States.

"As between this country and Great Britain there can be no controversy as to the complete severance of ties of original allegiance by naturalization. Disputes on this point were finally put at rest by the treaty of naturalization concluded by the two countries on May 13, 1870. Therefore it will not be contended, nor was such contention ever admitted by us, that citizens of the United States of British origin are subject to any claim of the country of their original allegiance.

"The undersigned also has the honor to call attention to the provisions of Section 5335 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, by which severe penalties are visited upon the citizen of the United States who, without the authority or permission of this Government, 'commences or carries on any verbal or written correspondence or intercourse with any foreign government, or any officer or agent thereof, either with an intent to influence the action of such Government or its agents in relation to any disputes or controversies with the United States,' or with an intent 'to defeat the measures of the Government of the United States.' These penalties are made equally applicable to every citizen of the United States, not duly authorized, who 'counsels, advises, or assists in any such correspondence,' with similar unlawful intent.

"The undersigned respectfully advises that the attention of the Attorney-General of the United States be directed to these enactments, in order that an investigation may be made with a view to ascertain whether they have not been violated in the present case by the correspondent of the British Minister.

"By your direction the attention of the British Government has in a spirit of comity been called to the conduct of its minister as above described, but without result. It therefore becomes necessary for this Government to consider whether, as the guardian of its own self-respect and of the integrity of its institutions, it will permit further intercourse to be held through the present British Minister at this capital.

"It is to be observed that precedents are not wanting as to the question under consideration. It is a settled rule, essential to the maintenance of international intercourse, that a diplomatic representative must be personæ grata to the Government to which he is accredited. If by his conduct he renders himself personæ non gratæ, an announcement of the fact may be made to his Government. In the present case all the requirements of comity have been fulfilled, the facts having been duly communicated to Her Majesty's Government with an expression of the opinion of this Government in regard thereto.

"Respectfully submitted,
"T. F. BAYARD."

REVISED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Bayard's Statement Submitted to Cleveland, Who Makes a Few Verbal Changes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Cabinet meeting yesterday lasted about two hours and was attended by Secretaries Bayard and Endicott and Attorney-General Garland. Assistant Secretary Thompson of the Treasury, and Commodore Harmony, Acting Secretary of the Navy, were present during a portion of the session, discussing measures for the relief of the whalers icebound in the Arctic Ocean. The regular session, however, was devoted mainly to a consideration of the case of the British Minister, and the result is shown in the statement furnished to the press by the Secretary of State last evening. After Secretary Bayard had prepared this statement he walked over to the White House and submitted it to the President for his approval. The President perused it carefully and suggested a few verbal changes in the introduction, and when these had been made the members of the press were furnished with copies of it.

At the British Legation last evening access was denied to all newspaper men, and they were informed that Lord Sackville had nothing to say. An Associated Press reporter managed however to have a copy of the report of Secretary Bayard to the President sent to the Minister. After about half an hour Lord Sackville in person returned the copy to the waiting reporter and cordially expressed his thanks for having had an opportunity to read the report, which he said he had never seen before. He declined to express any opinion in regard to it, saying "I have nothing to say."

"Then you will say nothing about it to-night?"

"Nothing, nothing," answered Lord Sackville. "I am absolutely at quiet."

Lord Sackville's face as he said this wore a pleasant smile and he did not seem in the least disturbed at the turn affairs had taken.

Secretary Bayard when seen last night said that there was nothing that he could say in addition to what was stated in his report to the President. The Government's action, he said, constituted a complete severance of our relations with Minister West. The Secretary did not care to enter into any speculation as to what Great Britain would do in the matter, or as to when a new minister would be sent here, but Lord Sackville, he said, would no longer be recognized in any event.

Secretary Bayard declined absolutely to give out anything in regard to the spirit in which the communications of the United States were received by the British Government. The matter, he said, was the subject of letters or messages between two parties, and neither, he said, had the right to give out the contents of these communications without the consent of the other. What had taken place between the President and himself he had given to the press, but the other correspondence he did not feel at liberty to make public.

A Recall Had Not Been Demanded

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A Post reporter last night put the following question to Secretary Bayard: "Have you ever at any time formally requested or demanded of the British Government the recall of Lord Sackville?"

The Secretary replied: "No, no, positively no! All statements to that effect are absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue. We forwarded to the British Government, through our representative at the Court of St. James, all the facts in the case. The President waited what he considered a sufficient length of time before he resolved upon a definite action and finding that the British Government were apparently doing nothing in the matter he decided in view of the emergency to do what has been done to-day."

Stone on His Chieftain's Head.

POMONA, Cal., Oct. 31.—The National Democratic Committee has telegraphed Postmaster Stein and J. A. Clark of this place to offer in the name of the committee, a reward of $100 for the name of the author of the Murchison letter, and to spend another $1000 in detectives and means to apprehend the author.

Several politicians here, who say they know who the man signing himself as Murchison is, say he lives here, walks the streets every day and that neither Patrick Egan nor any non-resident whatsoever had anything to do with the matter. They claim that the letter was conceived in Pomona, written in Pomona and by a resident of four years in the place.

THE ICE-BOUND WHALERS.

A United States Cruiser to be Sent to their Relief.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Acting Secretary Thompson yesterday received a long telegram from San Francisco, signed by Senator Hearst and others, informing him of the perilous situation of the crews of about a dozen whalers supposed to have been wrecked near Herald Island in the Arctic Ocean, and asking that a revenue steamer be sent at once to their assistance. There are said to be nearly 500 men in the party and they are in no condition to withstand the rigors of an Arctic winter. The revenue steamer Bear is desired for the purpose of sending them provisions and clothing without which it is said they will perish of hunger and cold.

Acting Secretary Thompson visited the White House during the day and laid the matter before the President, saying there is no vessel now in the revenue service in a fit condition for a winter cruise to the Arctic. The steamer Bear now at San Francisco, which was suggested for the expedition, would require extensive repairs and Mr. Thompson added that there is no appropriation which can be utilized for this expense. The President said the case was a serious one and required prompt action. He then sent for Commodore Harmony, Acting Secretary of the Navy and instructed him to take immediate steps for the relief of the whalers. Commodore Harmony promised to do so and said he would endeavor to communicate with Commander Emery, commanding the U. S. S. Thetis, now cruising in the Arctic, and which is expected to arrive at San Francisco in a short time. The present plan is to fit this vessel out for a relief expedition as soon as she arrives at San Francisco and to expedite her arrival there with that end in view.

The Trouble in Hayti.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The situation of affairs in Hayti according to reports received at the Department of State has assumed so serious a phase that it has been decided to send a naval vessel to that country for the protection of American interests. It was at first decided to send the United States steamer Boston, now cruising in the West Indies, to Port au Prince but this plan was abandoned owing to the difficulty of communicating with that vessel. It was finally decided to send the Kearsarge. She will be ready to go in a few days.

King George's 25th Anniversary.

ATHENS, Oct. 31.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the assumption of the throne by King George I., was celebrated yesterday by a grand banquet at the palace at which the officers of the British, Russian and Danish vessels in the harbor were present.

Badeau's Suit Discontinued.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The case of Gen. Adam Badeau against the widow of Gen. U. S. Grant for $10,000 for alleged services on Grant's Memoirs has been discontinued on consent of both parties.

Belanger Committed for Trial.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Alfred Belanger was brought before Coroner Jones yesterday charged with the wilful murder of the girl Emma Generaux. He was committed to the Court of Queen's Bench for trial.

Mr. Pope Banqueted.

SHERBROOKE, Oct. 31.—The banquet to Hon. Mr. Pope, which took place last evening, was attended by nearly all the members of the Cabinet. The speeches of the occasion were strongly condemnatory of the Commercial Union and Annexation movements. No reference whatever was made to the Sackville difficulty, nor could Sir John be drawn out to express and opinion on the case.

On Trial for Their Lives.

PICTON, Oct. 31.—The grand jury yesterday brought in a bill for wilful murder against Peter and Wellington Loveless for the shooting of one Church at Smoke Point in this county. The trial of the prisoners is going on and will probably occupy a large part of to-day. The Crown is represented by Mr. Clute of Belleville, and B. B. Osler of Toronto is defending the prisoners.

THE KAMLOOPS DISTRICT.

GREAT ACTIVITY AMONG PROSPECTORS AND MINERS.

Valuable Deposits of Gold, Silver and Platinum—The Prince Edward Islanders May be Happy Yet.

OTTAWA, Oct 31.—Professor Dawson of the Geological Survey has returned from his summer work in the Kamloops district, where he surveyed the region from a point about fifty miles north of Kamloops to Granite Creek. He reports great activity throughout the district in prospecting and locating lands and his general impression was that many of these locations were of great value. The completion of the railway had given a great impetus to mining and near the line of the road, where the indications are that deposits of gold and silver are very rich, some placer mining is being done. In this section platinum is everywhere found with gold.

W. G. Lamphy, one of the engineers of the Marine Department, left for Glasgow yesterday to bring over the new Government steamer Stanley which is intended to take the place of the Northern Light in the winter season between Prince Edward Island and the mainland.

The Department of Justice yesterday issued a warrant for the extradition of Greenfield who is wanted at Peterboro on a charge of burglary and attempt to murder a policeman and who is now in jail at Buffalo.

The time for receiving tenders for two locks and enlarging the entrance of the Galops Canal by the Department of Railways and Canals expired yesterday. A large number of contractors are here in connection with the work. It will probably be some days before the contract is awarded.

It is not expected in the Postoffice Department that any reply will be received from the Japanese Government for two or three months with reference to the proposal made about a month ago for an exchange of money orders between Canada and Japan.

The Supreme Court has adjourned until Tuesday when the full list, on which sixty-six cases are inscribed, will be taken up. It is expected that Mr. Justice Patterson will take his seat on Tuesday.

Mr. Page, Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, returned from Cornwall last night. It is thought at the Department that the break in the canal will be repaired by Saturday. Continued wet weather has caused great delay in effecting the repairs.

The case of the Queen v. Ayer, although inscribed for hearing at the coming term of the Supreme Court, has been dropped by the Government, and will consequently not be heard.

Word has been received here that the Northwest Land Company has refused to pay municipal as well as educational taxes at Calgary. The company, on appeal, lost their suit as regards school taxes, but have won the suit to compel them to pay municipal taxes. The case will be appealed to Ottawa.

All the disaffected military corps have wheeled into line again, and will turn out on Thursday for the ceremony of the unveiling of the Guards' sharp-shooters' monument.

THE LEAGUE'S BANK BOOK.

Justice Hannen Says the Order for Their Production Will be Enforced.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—When the Parnell Commission re-assembled to-day, Attorney-General Webster asked the court to enforce its order giving The Times' counsel permission to inspect the books of the League in the keeping of the Hibernian National and Munster Banks.

Sir Walter Phillimore, counsel for the Hibernian Bank, contended that the commission had no power to compel the production of the books.

Presiding Justice Hannen said he would not discuss the question. If the banks, under color of protecting the privacy of their clients, obstructed the orders of the court, the court would be constrained to put its powers into force.

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, intimated that his clients had not the slightest objection to the production of the books.

The court then heard formal evidence proving the correctness of the shorthand notes of the speeches from which the Attorney-General quoted in his presentation of The Times case last week.

Sir Charles Russell raised a question regarding the order in which evidence shall be submitted. He said if The Times' counsel conducted their case in a higgledy-piggledy way like Attorney-General Webster's opening address, they would never get to the bottom of it.

Justice Hannen said he hoped the evidence would be brought in in orderly sequence, and the Attorney-General promised to consult the convenience of parties implicated, and that as far as possible he would appraise them of the order in which his side would submit their evidence.

A Despairing Effort.

OTTAWA, Oct 31.—The alleged threat of retaliation made by President Cleveland has caused considerable comment here. The two Cabinet Ministers who are in town decline to speak on the subject during the absence of their colleagues. Many politicians think there is a possibility of the threat being put into execution. Under the circumstances such action would be entirely unwarranted and must be regarded as a despairing effort to offset the Sackville incident.

A G. T. R. Brakeman Killed.

STRATFORD, Oct. 31.—A G. T. R. brakeman named Andrew McKeough, aged 19, was injured in the yard here Monday night. He was engaged in shunting, and while hanging on to the rear end of the van came in collision with another car standing on the track, smashing his legs and otherwise injuring him internally. Medical attendance was immediately summoned, but he died at an early hour yesterday morning.

Manitoba Wheat in Demand.

LONDON, Oct. 30. Mr. Dyke, Government agent at Liverpool, reports a great demand on the Corn Exchange to-day for a few samples of Manitoba wheat. Nine shillings and threepence to nine shillings and sixpence per cental were quoted for the best Californian.

WAR BREAKS OUT AFRESH

A SPUR BUILT UP TO THE C. P. R. TRACK AT FORT ROUGE.

The Company Gathers a Force of Men to Prevent a Crossing—Attempt to Burn the C. P. R. Bridge at Headingly.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—It looks as if the railway war had broken out afresh. The Government built a spur up to the Canadian Pacific Railway track near the point of intersection at Fort Rouge yesterday morning, and the Canadian Pacific gathered a force of men to prevent the rails being laid across their track. A quantity of material was carried over, and it is said if the Government cannot secure a crossing at this point it will, notwithstanding the inconvenience, transfer enough material to complete the track to Headingly.

An attempt was made yesterday morning to burn the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge at Headingly, it being saturated with coal oil. The bridge was only slightly damaged, but sufficiently to delay the Southwestern train. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

As stated yesterday, the Legislature will be called together on Nov. 5, when it is expected that a policy of retaliation will be adopted, all tax exemptions being abolished, and the heaviest tax the law permits will be imposed on the company's property in the province.

All was quiet at Fort Rouge last night.

Prepared for Submission.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—It is understood that Mr. Clark, solicitor of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has prepared the case for submission to the Supreme Court re the crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway by the Manitoba Government railway and forwarded it some days ago to Attorney-General Martin. The Railway Committee of the Privy Council meets on Friday, and if Attorney-General Martin agrees to the case it will be laid before the Supreme Court for opinion. As the matter is important and urgent the court may take it up immediately on reassembling on Tuesday.

HANNAH BOYD AT HOME.

She Tells a Reporter About Her Sojourn in Berlin Jail.

HAMILTON, Oct. 31.—Hannah Boyd of this city, who was arrested a week ago last Saturday in connection with the Galt poisoning case and was liberated Monday afternoon, arrived at the home of her father, No. 2 Elgin-street, Monday night. She was seen yesterday by a reporter, to whom she gave a very intelligent account of all that took place from the time of her arrest until she was liberated. Miss Boyd is a fine looking young woman, and takes a sensible view of the affair. Now that it is all over as far as she is concerned, she says she does not care so much, because she is satisfied that all who knew her at all, and the public generally, are convinced that she was not concerned in the remotest way with the terrible crime. She was in Thorold, she said, at the time of the poisoning, and did not know what was going on, as she had not had a chance to read the papers. She was so much surprised when arrested that she did not know what to do at all, and when Detective Murray refused to allow her to consult a lawyer she considered herself very harshly used.

Detective Murray told her that she did not need a lawyer, as the right thing for her to do was to tell all she knew about the poisoning. She told him at once that she knew nothing and has told him the same thing every time he has asked her about it. She not only knew nothing of the poisoning case, but could not think of any circumstances or occurrence which she could in her own mind connect with it. The Tuesday morning after her arrest her brother and brother-in-law arrived from Hamilton, but she was not allowed to talk with them. They had engaged a lawyer, but he was not allowed to see her either. Detective Murray took her into the parlor of the jail in Berlin, and in the presence of Magistrate Spiers of Galt she told him that she knew nothing about the affair and therefore could tell him nothing.

Her relatives were in the next room but she was not allowed to talk with them. Magistrate Spiers then told her that the officers wished her remanded for a week, so he remanded her. During the week she was used well in the jail, and was not treated as a prisoner. She was allowed all the books she wished to read but no newspapers. She knew she was innocent, and therefore did not worry much on her own account, but the thoughts of her aged parents in this city and the mental anguish they would be undergoing troubled her greatly. Monday morning, she said, she was again taken before Magistrate Spiers and informed that she could go, but that if wanted as a witness she would have to attend. She again said that she could give them no information and took her departure.

During all the time she was in custody she was not charged with any crime. She was not indicted or even arraigned, nor was she asked to plead or to elect upon any charge. She was simply kept in jail because a detective thought he might possibly get some information out of her upon which to work. She tried to induce Murray to state why he had arrested her and how he connected her with the crime, but could find out nothing. Murray, while supposed to be acting for the Crown, offered her advice, too, and told her that she would not need a lawyer. From this she believes that Murray himself knew at the outset that she was innocent, but wanted to use her as a tool.

Eloped with a Swindler.

KINGSTON, Oct. 31.—Last night a court was held at the Medical College and a student was tried for giving valuable information to the city police. The evidence for the prosecution was strong and he was found guilty. The defendant was not fined but the judgment of the court upon him was severe enough to make the remainder of his college life, or till he can prove his innocence, miserable.

BRIEFLETS.

Mr. John C. Sherin moved into his new residence on Regent street last week.

Mr. F. Llliscap also has occupied his new residence on Church street.

Dr. Fraser's house is receiving the finishing touches and he will soon be installed in his new home.

Mr. C. Gryll's new house on Regent street is making headway, but Charley will have to hurry up or he will have cold fingers before he is through.

R. and G. Strickland are having the new boarding house on Regent street veneered with red brick, and it will make quite an addition to that part of the village.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane's house on Concession street is almost finished inside, and will soon be ready for occupation.

The Undine and Empire are still at work on the lakes, the former taking up shanty supplies to Julian's Landing and Jack's Lake for R. & G. Strickland. The latter has a party engaged buoying the rocks and bars between Clear Lake and Burleigh.

The bridge over the river at Lakefield is badly in want of new planking, the present floor being badly worn out and is patched up with plank of all sizes and shapes—presenting anything but a tidy appearance.

R. & G. Strickland have now four large shanties in full operation. F. Brabant and S. Barrett at Jack's Lake, Giles Stone at Long Lake, and Ritchie at Hemlock Lake, all have large gangs of men under them.

Two of our lady teachers paid a visit to Norwood last week to attend the Teachers' Convention held there. As a result, quite a number of the junior pupils enjoyed a couple of extra days' holidays, for which they were not unthankful.

OFFICERS OF COURT LAKEFIELD.

At the regular meeting of Court Lakefield No. 43, C.O.F., held in the court room last Thursday evening, the following officers were elected to represent the Court for the next term of six months:

Bro. W A Eastland	C. R.
" Robert Cotton	V C.R.
" R J McWilliams	F. Sec'y
" Wesley Sherin	R. Sec'y
" R Q Beech	Treas
" Jas Jeakman	Chap
" Richard Simpson	J. W
" John Northcott	S. B
" S Hunter	J.B
" Dr. Bell	Court Physician

The Court numbers 82 members, and is in a prosperous condition.

HUNTING PARTIES.

Several of the hunting parties from this village have returned and all report fair sport. Messrs. Scringer, Sherin and Baptie returned on Saturday from Eagle Lake with six deer and other small game, but lost three of their dogs. Messrs. Cochrane and our Reeve got home after three or four days visit to the head of Stony Lake with two deer, one a buck which will dress over 250 pounds. Several other parties are preparing to leave this week and make the most of the time still left open to them.

REBAK DOWN.

The gang saws in R. & G. Strickland's large mill here broke down last Friday, and had to be sent down to Peterborough for repairs. It is expected to be in running order by Tuesday or Wednesday. In the meantime a number of the men are enjoying an enforced holiday.

CIVIC AFFAIRS.

The members of our village council are losing no time in preparing to carry out the provisions of the by-law lately passed by the ratepayers. Tenders have been asked for, through the Toronto papers, for the purchase of the debentures. Plans have been received for the town hall, and the committee will ask for tenders at once, so that should the weather prove favorable, it can be placed under construction at once. Tenders for the steam fire engine and other appliances have also been called for and several received. So it will be seen our "city fathers" have a busy time ahead of them for the next week or two.

CONCERT.

The concert given last Friday evening in the P.C.A. hall, in aid of the organ fund of St. John's church, was well attended, and the selections seemed to be appreciated by those present. Something over $40 was realized.

Ashburnham Brevities.

Residents in the north end feel somewhat proud of the proportion which the boom in building is taking. Had the lords of the south half the energy and go-aheaditiveness of those in the north, it would not be long ere Ashburnham would have grown to a flourishing town. Messrs. R. Tivey and John Carlisle are the moving spirits and deserve great praise for their pluck. When Ashburnham is proclaimed a town "John" and "Roland" will be the first candidates for the mayoralty.

Mr. R. S. Davidson has greatly improved the old Sutherland property by moving the house back and adding largely to it.

Mr. Hiram Armstrong, who has been a resident of the village for the past year, has leased the Sedgwick property, a couple of miles east of the village, for a term of years and moved out to it. He says farming is ahead of anything yet.

The case over the canine has been amicably settled, the owner of the dog agreeing to have the animal destroyed, and, if this is not carried out, Constable Craig will take the matter in hand. It is hoped this will be a lesson to some persons, and lead them to keep such brutes chained in future and not allow them to endanger the lives of pedestrians. This case has brought to light another important fact, namely, that the village by-laws are defective in not giving the magistrate any power to act in such matters. This, it is hoped, will be remedied by the village council at the earliest opportunity.

The parties who had the Ragan lecture in hand feel somewhat dispirited at the result of their enterprise. It would seem that such efforts to bring high class entertainments to town are not as highly appreciated by the public as they should be.

Mr. H. Fitzgerald is having the front of his premises very tastily fitted up. His enterprise should be an example to other citizens.

The Ontario Canoe Company has a diversity of functions. The original purpose of canoe building, while being more extensively pursued than ever, has branched out into boat building of all kinds. Several boats of considerable size, and, at least one steamer, have been built. New buildings are being constructed at the factory for the purpose of adding, as a branch manufacture, the building of coal oil engine steam yachts. The company has booked an order from England for thirty canoes. The Ontario Canoe Company are evidently alive.

The company does considerable house building, finishing at the factory the material ready for putting up. They are erecting one such house at Havelock, in addition to several set up in the village.

Mr. H. A. Mulhern will be ready this week to begin work at the remodelled Otonabee flouring mills. He has received fifteen cars of Manitoba wheat, and the farmers are busy delivering, so that he will have abundant material to start work with. The mills will now convert from ten to twelve hundred bushels of wheat into flour during the twenty-four hours.

It is understood that Commodore Calcutt withdrew his offer to purchase the east face of the town clock; he fears this clock will be as slow as the town authorities, and a new clock, as it is said, will be placed in the tower of the new Otonabee flouring mills' building.

Keene.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A number of our young men are at present out camping on Rice Lake for the purpose of duck shooting. We wish them success, as they are all jolly good fellows.

Commodore Dickson and Captain Kennedy are doing a rushing business with their small steamer.

The Roman Catholics of this place are keeping pace with the progress and are improving their church by erecting a handsome vestry in connection with it.

Bridal Railway Cars in Spain.

The directors of Spanish railways may be excellent men of business, but they are certainly not students of human nature, as is shown by the following facts. A few months ago the model of a new railroad carriage was put before them, divided into small elegant apartments each furnished with two seats and a small table to be reversed, for the special use of couples on their wedding tour. In account of the well-known fact that newly married couples are always nervously anxious not to appear what they are, the delighted directors ordered some "honeymoon carriages" and for some time past one of them has been attached to every express train, with the result that not a single couple have made use of the special accommodation. A terrible rumors is now current to the effects that if the new vehicle do not gain favor, they will before long be set apart for the special use of "defrauders wishing to travel alone."—Pall Mall Gazette.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Board of Works Investigation—A Rise in the Price of Milk and Coal.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—The Board of Works investigation advanced another stage yesterday, when Judge McDougall entered upon the duties of the enquiry. The principal witness examined was James Hardy, a former book-keeper of Contractor A. W. Godson, who testified as to alleged overcharges in the construction of the Dundas-street sewer, when 260,000 feet of lumber were charged and only 180,000 feet used.

The price of milk was raised from 6 to 7 cents a quart yesterday, and the coal section of the Board of Trade decided to advance that commodity 25 cents a ton.

Yesterday was the last day for the reception of tenders for the purchase of the 8 acres of land at the west end of the Insane Asylum grounds and 7½ acres at the east end, through which six streets are to be opened from Queen to King-streets. Hon. A. M. Ross, Provincial Treasurer, said yesterday that the tenders had not been considered at the meeting of the Council, which took place in the afternoon.

Rev. Father Shea died suddenly yesterday at Dixie, to which parish he was assigned only a few weeks ago.

Louis H. Slonaker, the cashier of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway at Sioux City, Iowa, who left that city on Oct. 12 with $9000 of the company's money, and who was arrested in a Portland-street boarding-house Monday night, was arraigned before Judge McDougall yesterday afternoon on extradition proceedings. County Crown Attorney Badgerow asked for a remand for a week to get witnesses here from Sioux City, which was granted. It is said Slonaker brought $3000 to Toronto with him, but only $13 was found on his person. He has evidently "planted" the wad out of the reach of the officers. He will be charged with forgery, an extraditable offence.

The genial Scotchmen who comprise the Caledonian Society of Toronto met in the Walker House diningroom last night and celebrated Hallowe'en by a sumptuous dinner, as is their usual custom.

Money-Mean.

"Say, Perkens, old boy, why don't we see you at the club any more? Has your mother-in-law shut down on you"? "No, Brown; the fact of the matter is, my home is so happy now that there is no inducement for me to leave it. You look incredulous, but it's a positive fact. You see, my wife used to suffer so much from functional derangements common to her sex, that her spirits and her temper were greatly affected. It was not her fault, of course, but it made home unpleasant all the same. But now, since she has begun to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, she has so been well and so happy that we are having our honey-moon all over again. c

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS

A Scaly, Itching Skin Disease with Insufferable Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $500.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my hands. In a few months more than a count. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ring worm, psoriasis, etc. I took . . . and . . . Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors and no cure. I cannot write how CUTICURA REMEDIES has cured me. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $500.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through fear of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I vaccinated twenty-eight years, and it was to be a kind of permanency to me. I thank you a thousand times. Anything more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

DARING AND SUFFERING.

My prison mates received me very kindly and answered questions freely. I had no hesitation in telling them who I was, and this at once won their confidence. They were Union men from various parts of East Tennessee. Many of them had been in prison for six or eight months, and the offenses charged varied from that of simply preferring the old government to the new, slave built Confederacy, to that of bridge burning, or of being helpers of the Union army. The latter were called spies. One of them was blind, the Confederates accusing him of only feigning blindness; but from all I could observe, I think it was real

I was greatly interested in the one negro in this miserable place. He was very friendly and anxious to be of service to us in any possible way. Some days after my arrival he was taken out and brought back again after an hour or so, seeming to be in a good deal of suffering. His story, which he gave as if it were the most ordinary thing in the world, moved me to indignation which I would gladly have expressed in some way more vigorous than words.

He was arrested and imprisoned on suspicion of being a fugitive slave. The law in such cases did not put the burden of proof on the person arresting, but on the negro. Aleck had been treated as law and custom provided. He was first carefully examined, and whipped till he made some kind of confession; then he was put in jail, and advertised in accordance with that confession. If a master appeared and proved property, he was obliged to pay all jail and whipping fees, costs of advertising and a liberal reward to the person arresting; and then, usually flogging the negro unmercifully for the trouble and expense he had caused, he could take his property. But if no answer came to the advertisement, it was taken for granted that the negro lied, and he was brought out and flogged into a new confession, after which he was remanded to jail and again advertised. Thus they continued, if no master appeared, flogging and advertising, for a year, when the poor fellow was sold at public auction, and the proceeds applied to pay the expenses of all these barbarous inflictions! No trial was allowed by which the negro might prove himself free. When once arrested, unless he happened to have some powerful white friend, his doom was sealed; and in this way, in the old slavery times, many a freed negro found his way back into bondage.

No answer having been received to the advertisement for Aleck, he had been taken out for one of his periodical whippings. He had now been in this prison for seven months, and was to remain five more, with no prospect but that of being sold into perpetual bondage. We pitied him from the bottom of our hearts, and are glad to believe that, if he lived, the triumph of the Union armies relieved him from his dreadful position. These things were not all ascertained on the same evening, though several of them were, for I did all I could to get a complete mastery of my surroundings, that I might be ready for any possibility of escape. But the chances were slight indeed. The floor and the walls were of solid oak, many inches thick; a circle of guards was all the time on duty outside; and the only egress was by means of a ladder put down in the presence of the jailer and a strong guard.

As we were talking in the darkness, we heard the tramp of many feet on the outside stairway, with the clank of chains, and listened to learn what next was coming to pass. The noise came overhead, and then the trap door opened and a stream of comparatively cool air poured down from the room above, and drew in through our narrow windows. We breathed with a sense of indescribable relief—drinking in the air as the desert traveler drinks from the mountain brook! —oh! what a luxury it would be, if that trap door could only be kept open! It might have been if our life or comfort had been valued by those in authority.

A number of men were seen above by the feeble glimmer of the jailer's candle, and the long ladder was thrust down and seized by a man below to prevent it from striking some head, and it was clear that others were being sent down. The Tennesseeans cried out: "Don't put any more down here. We're full! We'll die if any more are put down."

CHAPTER XVI.

OTHER PRISONERS BROUGHT IN.

These most reasonable remonstrances produced no effect, and were not answered. On came the new victims, clambering slowly—there were three of them —as men chained together were obliged to do when on such a road. I stationed myself at the foot of the ladder, and made to them some such safe remark as, "This is a hard place to come to!" and in a moment found my hand caught in a warm, strong grasp, and "Pittenger," "Ross," was mutually whispered. It was Andrews, Wollam and Ross. I had seen them chained in front of Leadbetter's room. Now they were here, and the sense of misfortune seemed lightened by half. To die in the company of friends was better than to die alone. I pitied them and wished them free; but it was far better to be confined together than for us to endure the same suffering in separation. A whisper more to Ross brought me the information that they had given their names and character. I told my story and the kind of a place into which we had come, while they gave me the history of their adventures since we had parted on leaving the train. There was so much to tell of the past three days' history (this was Monday evening that we did not do much more in making the acquaintance of the East Tennesseeans that night. The latter kindly allowed us to take a corner close to one of the window holes, where we could the more readily converse. Ross and Wollam agreed with me that our best course would be to claim, with all our strength, to be detailed Union soldiers, not denying what we really did—only claiming that we were not volunteers, but were ordered on this expedition with no choice, and simply obeyed orders. Andrews also approved, but said that his case was separate from ours and much worse.

An hour or two passed in such conversation, not altogether unpleasantly, and it came time to sleep. A soldier is not particular in such matters, but never had I been placed in such a situation as this. Laying down in the woods unsheltered from the pouring rain was bad enough, but this was far worse. The night before in the Lafayette jail I had abundance of room, air and blankets. The lattice cage was a palace in comparison with this loathsome "hole." We were warm enough, though we had no bedding whatever; in fact, one of the first things we did was to disrobe as far as our irons would permit. Many of the East Tennesseeans who were not fattened were entirely naked, because of the intense heat. But we adjusted ourselves in our corner as best our chains might cramp us as little as possible, and, coming to talk, were soon asleep. The others in the room were already unconscious. The one advantage of the terribly close atmosphere was that the great heat and the slow carbonic acid poisoning from the impure air rendered slumber easy, and we found little trouble in sleeping early and late. The arranging for rest required very nice adjustment, and if any one wanted to change his position he was sure to arouse all who were near him; or, if he rose up to go for a drink, he had to take along those who were chained to him, and was apt to trend on his neighbors, which gave rise to some warm altercations, with the result of still further disturbing our slumbers.

Two Burglars Convicted—The Alleged Perjury Case Dismissed.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 31.—Burns and Johnston, the two men committed for trial for the burglary at Clark & Stevens' store, came before Judge Elliott yesterday, were found guilty and sentenced to eighteen months in the Central Prison.

The hearing of the case of alleged perjury, made by a party named Allenby, against Messrs. Anderson, Moore and Houghton, members of the London West School Board, came on before the Police Magistrate at the interim session room yesterday and the defendants were honorably acquitted.

A young woman named Fanny Neil appeared before the Police Magistrate yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. For the past fourteen years she has been in the house of a prominent citizen, who took her from Miss Rye. During that time she states she received no wages, and judging from the clothes she wore in court, very little of anything else. The girl states that she went home late one night and was badly treated. Finally she was told either to go to bed or to the police station. She chose the latter in preference to a bed in the house where she had served for such a long time, and as a result she will go to the Mercer Reformatory for one year.

Three Smallpox Cases at Sarnia.

SARNIA, Oct. 31.—There are now three cases of smallpox here. One is a little girl, one an Indian and the third a baby 10 months old. The Board of Health has erected a second pest house for males and is doing everything possible to prevent a spread of the disease.

THE GREAT GRVND TRUNK.

The Annual Meeting at London—Sir Henry Tyler Talks.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—At the Grand Trunk meeting to-day Sir Henry Tyler spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. He reported favorably upon his personal inspection of the system. The past half year was disappointing owing to a paucity of business, low rates and undue competition in through traffic west-bound, yet the company during the next twelve months hope to show just an opposite state of things. He was thoroughly satisfied with the prospects of the Northern and North-western system. The Chicago and Grand Trunk traffic was very much improving. It was intended to further concentrate the work, having repairing stations only where absolutely necessary. Sir Henry described the Canadian Pacific as the Grand Trunk's aggressive competitor, and said the time had arrived when they should seriously consider the position of the two companies, so that should the Canadian Pacific prove a permanent powerful rival the Grand Trunk would be equal to the task.

Some of the speakers denounced the attitude of the Government towards the company.

There Should be a Difference.

Police Magistrate Dumble has been commended for the judicious way in which he dealt with the street obstruction case in the police court Tuesday morning. The general impression is that the by-law was never intended to be so strictly observed. There should, as he said, be a distinction between a moderate display of goods and a blockade of the sidewalk with material that should be in a storehouse.

Mr. John Walker, of Otonabee, near Villiers, seems to know the value of tilling the soil. In the fall of 1887 he prepared three-quarters of an acre of land for roots. In the spring of 1888 he planted the land, and this fall his work has been rewarded with 200 bushels of white carrots of the long variety, besides 200 heads of cabbage, some of them nearly two feet across the head. It pays in the end to prepare the land properly before planting the seed.

October Cheese.

At the meeting of the Cheese Board Tuesday, Mr. Cook, the Belleville buyer, stated that the October cheese this year was not so good as a general thing as the cheese made in August. He had sent an inspector around to the Hastings factories, and it had been found that, as a rule, the October cheese was clammy and not as well prepared to winter over as the August make. This was, he said, owing to the prevailing cold weather throughout the month. The statement was made to account for the unsatisfactory prices offered by the buyers.

Adjourned Public Auction.

The adjourned public auction of Phætons, Baggies, Wagons, Road Carts, Cutters, &c. Messrs. Porter Bros., Carriage Manufacturers of Peterborough, beg to announce that owing to the inclement weather, on Saturday, the 13th October last, the day appointed for the Grand Annual Sale of vehicles, they have given instructions to Mr. Chas. Port Hope Inland Revenue Office.

Referring to a paragraph that appeared in a recent issue of the EXAMINER, in which it was stated that Major Howden, of Millbrook, was about to be appointed Inland Revenue officer at Port Hope in place of Mr. Murphy, about to be superannuated, the Port Hope Times says:—"This will be news to nearly everybody in Port Hope, and as a matter of fact we believe it untrue. As far as we know, Mr. Murphy has not yet been superannuated, though he is likely to be in the near future. The question of who will get the position is one that does not concern the EXAMINER. We don't think that any objection would be made to Millbrook getting it, but other residents of the village have much stronger claims than Major Howden." There is no doubt whatever that Major Howden has the promise of the position. Our friend of the Times is referred to Mr. Ward, M.P., for further information—who can, no doubt, if he will, supply all the particulars of the double shuffle.

Old Baptist Church.

Mr. E. J. Haybee, an evangelist laboring in this town, delivered a most interesting and instructive address on Tuesday evening, on Revelation xxi 9, xxii. 5—"The church of Christ in her millennial glory coming out of heaven to reign with Christ over the earth." He pointed out the fact, that, as sinners, we have come short of the glory of God (Rom. iii. 23), and that as believers we now rejoice in hope of the glory of God (Rom. v. 2). But in Rev. xxi. we are seen as in possession of the glory of God. The wall, great and high, showed that the church is a separated, heavenly thing. The foundation of precious stones bearing the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb, he said, showed that the church did not begin at Eden but at Pentecost—quoting Eph. ii.: "Built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets"—and the precious stones intimated the character of that which they ministered—not intellectual, scientific or philosophical disquisitions, but Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever. There was much more of very deep interest and profit brought out by Mr Haybee which cannot be gone over here. He and Mr. Rochester will continue to hold their meetings in the old Baptist church for some time.

About half past eleven to-day the small frame cottage, owned and occupied by Mr. John Gibbs, at 250 McDonel street, took fire from a defective kitchen chimney. Most of the household goods were saved by the neighbours, who helped remove them to a place of safety. The building was pretty badly damaged, but the loss will be covered by an insurance of $500 in the Ætna. The fire brigade deserve credit for their speedy turn-out and the quick order in which the fire was extinguished.

Brookbank Gymnasium.

The Brookbank Gymnasium will be open to the public on Thursday evening, Nov. 1st, when Sergt.-Major Rundle, the manager, will deliver a short lecture on Physical Culture and explain the prospectus of the institution. As there are several gentlemen, who have already obtained their tickets for the ensuing quarter from Nov. 1st to Jan. 1st, it is desirable that all who have subscribed their names, be present on Thursday evening and obtain their tickets. It would help the Sergt.-Major very much if the classes could be formed on that evening. All ladies who are interested in their physical development and are desirous of taking lessons, will please meet in the gymnasium at 4.30 Thursday afternoon, and as there is a class of boys to be formed from say 10 to 15 years old, the manager would esteem it a favor if parents (that is those who are intending their children to be trained,) would kindly cause them to meet at the gymnasium at 5 o'clock, Thursday afternoon. 2d

A Broken Arm.

Mr. Angus McIntosh carries his arm about in a sling, the result of a fall he received while working at a house in Auburn a few days ago. He was standing on a ladder that was being held by a fellow-workman, when the latter thoughtlessly let go his hold and Mr. McIntosh tumbled to the ground, fracturing his arm near the wrist.

The Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company, Wilson & Morrison agents, have cheap rates and large indemnities. No one should be without an accident policy.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

To Farmers and Horse Owners.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, the harness maker, 137 Hunter street, has been twelve years in the business, and has worked up a trade and reputation for superior work which gives him a leading position in the trade. He has done good honest work in an artistic and workman-like manner. He has shown himself trustworthy and skillful. That is the reason why he counts so numerous a list of friends amongst the horsemen and farmers of town and country. His reputation has gone abroad, and he receives frequent orders from distant parts of the country from parties requiring specially excellent harness work. Mr. Devlin is now fully prepared for the fall trade. His shop contains a beautiful stock of sleigh robes, wolf, bear, etc., horse clothing of all kinds, and a splendid stock of harness, and, in fact, all the supplies in that line that can be demanded. He has also on hand a superb supply of trunks, valises, etc. His entire stock is complete in the lines named, and for durability and excellence of work cannot be surpassed in the Midland District. Anyone desirous of getting any of these classes of goods, of the best quality, at reasonable prices, will find it to his advantage to call on W. J. Devlin, 137 Hunter street, opposite the post office. 6d2w

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPY OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,873,777.00, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,207,600 00 insured under 1,340 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,069 for $14,081,377.00.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,331.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,000 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$160,482 00	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	38,580 67	195,186 00	1,167,398 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,976 84	363,264 31	2,892,994 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 80	475,977 24	4,029,373 68
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,756,004 48	$10,873,777 00

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

SACKVILLE STILL SILENT.

THE QUESTION OF A SUCCESSOR ONE OF PROMOTION.

Likelihood of Sir Charles Tupper's Appointment—Sir John Bourinot to Express any Opinion.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—Sir John Macdonald and several other Cabinet Ministers passed through the city yesterday on their way back from Sherbrooke to Ottawa. On being asked the question: "Is there any truth in the report that Sir Charles Tupper is likely to be appointed Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington?" Sir John replied:

"Oh, no! The question is one of promotion. In diplomatic service there are seniors waiting."

On being asked whether he thought Lord Sackville had been fairly treated by the American Government Sir John said, laughingly:

"Oh! we had better say nothing about that."

Mr. Herbert Now Acting Minister.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Now that Lord Sackville is, by the action taken by the Government of the United States Tuesday, no longer minister to this country, the First Secretary of the British Legation naturally becomes the official representative of the Government of Great Britain. Mr. Edwards, the First Secretary, is absent however and will not return for some time, so that Mr. Michael Herbert, who was recently made Second Secretary, is now Acting Minister.

At the British Legation silence is maintained. Lord Sackville refused to see anyone yesterday, and the members of the legation who were seen said that all was uncertainty as to his departure from Washington.

He Has Important Business in England.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Press Association announces that Lord Sackville comes to England immediately on leave of absence; that he has important business to attend to in connection with his succession to the Sackville estate, and that he will not return to America.

ENGLISH PRESS OPINIONS.

The Pall Mall Gazette Proposes a Parallel—The Affront Cannot be Resented.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette says: "If Secretary Bayard's rebuke of Lord Sackville fails to convince Irish voters that President Cleveland can be relied upon to check John Bull as much as any other man, we do not see what there is left for him to do short of placing Lord Sackville under arrest and escorting him to the frontier. How silly it all is! How much Americans will despise themselves for it when the election fever is over! Suppose Minister Phelps had written a private letter to some pseudo-American during the election in England, saying that although Mr. Gladstone's party seemed to be more in accord with American principles, yet Lord Salisbury could be trusted to concede all the Irish needed, does the most excited American imagine that we should have taken notice of his indiscretion?"

The St. James Gazette says: "As Lord Sackville is technically in the wrong, England cannot resent the affront which Mr. Bayard has put upon it by declaring that he cannot continue to hold communication with Lord Sackville. Englishmen can only pity American statesmen for the strange things they do in order to oblige caucuses."

The Globe says: "The uncourteous announcement might create very strained relations between the two countries. Fortunately its true character is recognized on both sides. Lord Sackville has been subjected to unmannerly treatment by both Mr. Bayard and President Cleveland. If the minister comes back it will be simply because Mr. Cleveland's ambition to be elected President a second time soars far above the requirements of international courtesy and good will."

RETALIATION TALK.

What a New York "Times" Correspondent Says "Semi-officially."

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The correspondent of The New York Times at Washington is believed to have inside opportunities for ascertaining facts of interest, so that the following despatch to his paper may be taken as semi-official: "Reports which have reached Washington from various parts of the country during the last day or two indicate that a good many persons are looking for a proclamation by President Cleveland declaring retaliation upon Canada, under the Act of last year, for her past outrages upon American fishermen. These persons need not worry for the present, at least. Should the occasion arise when such a course became necessary for the protection of the rights of American citizens, retaliation would be promptly resorted to, under the limited powers now vested in the President; but at present there is no necessity for taking such a pronounced step, and there is no foundation for the reports that a retaliation proclamation is about to be issued."

All on Account of Eliza.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 1.—This place is all torn up over an action of alimony and a judicial separation, brought by Mrs. Eliza Jane Babcock, now over 50 years of age, at the present sittings of the Court of Chancery here against her husband Daniel Babcock, of Rendersville. It is a very strange case—a romance in real life—where the love and kisses of years ago have been turned into chilly blasts of ill-temper and connubial infelicity. Her maiden name was Mrs. Eliza Jane McQuoid, sister of Hugh McQuoid, ex-reeve of Murray township. The marriage took place in Murray in 1859. Justice Robertson merely heard the pleadings for the defence and without calling any evidence for Mr. Babcock dismissed the action with costs.

Wheat Advancing but Flour Unsaleable.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 1. The Northwestern Miller says: "There was a more perceptible falling off in the flour output last week, the grind being the lightest in seven weeks. Millers say that although wheat keeps going up flour is unsaleable and that there is no other alternative for them than to stop grinding until there is a change in the relative positions of wheat and flour."

WINNIPEG AGAIN EXCITED

THREATENING ATTITUDE OF THE HOSTILE CAMPS.

Heavy Drilling Between the Opposing Forces—Provincial Police Patrolling the Square.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—Winnipeg is in another blaze of excitement over the attitude of the two hostile camps at the crossing, and the fear that a detachment from the infantry school would be ordered out to the scene to-night to preserve the peace intensified the feeling to the highest pitch.

It is learned that at 10 o'clock all was quiet at the place of trouble, but an angry feeling has arisen between the opposing ranks that might, on slight provocation on either side, precipitate a conflict.

The Government have laid rails on a spur on the Canadian Pacific Railway track on the east side and will complete a spur on the west side to-morrow.

It is impossible to learn the intention of the Government, but The Sun says to-night that it will not be surprising if a locomotive is run over the Canadian Pacific Railway track when their men are off guard. The Canadian Pacific Railway will prevent this if possible.

The provincial police are patrolling the spur, but the latest news from the seat of war is to the effect that the probabilities are there will be no conflict to-night.

A Conflict Imminent.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.—A despatch from the scene of trouble this morning announces that a conflict between the opposing forces may take place at any moment.

Both parties are strongly represented at the crossing, and a large number of provincial police are being sworn.

Captain O'Shea on the Stand—A Sensation Expected.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Parnell commission resumed its sitting yesterday morning. Attorney-General Webster called Captain O'Shea to the witness stand. Capt. O'Shea stated that at Mr. Parnell's request he conferred with Mr. Gladstone in June of 1881. The interview was accomplished without the knowledge of Mr. Parnell's colleagues. After Mr. Gladstone's speech, made in the House of Commons, May 16, 1882, Mr. Parnell spoke of the awkardness of the speech and how it annoyed Egan and others. Negotiations were discontinued until 1883 when Messrs. Parnell and Dillon were in Kilmainham jail. The proposals which the witness made to the Government in 1882 were made without the authority of Mr. Parnell. Certain members had replied to them in Parliament about the time that Mr. Parnell was released. After the latter's return from Paris he conferred with the witness at the latter's house, and at these conferences they were always alone. Captain O'Shea stated that Mr. Parnell desired to release Michael Davitt from imprisonment, but not Brennan. The Irish leader also authorized the witness to confer with the Government, and said that if the question regarding the arrears in rent was settled satisfactorily he would advise the tenants to pay their rents, and would himself denounce as outrages all resistance to law. Mr. Parnell said that he had power to carry out this guarantee. A letter to this effect written by Mr. Parnell to Mr. Forster, then Chief Secretary for Ireland, while Parnell was an inmate of Kilmainham jail, was read by Attorney-General Webster.

Seven letters were shown to witness, who declared with certainty that the signature attached to them was that of Mr. Parnell.

Sir Charles Russell here asked the court to permit him to postpone the cross-examination of the witness.

Justice Hannen said he could not perceive any good reason for postponing the cross-examination.

Sir Charles Russell thereupon decided to proceed, and Captain O'Shea in reply to his questions said that Mr. Buckle, editor of The Times, had asked Joseph Chamberlain to get him to give evidence. Mr. Chamberlain showed witness Mr. Buckle's letter in July last. Witness did not agree to give evidence, however, until he had been superseded by Mr. Parnell. Mr. Houston, the Secretary of the Irish Loyal Union, saw him take down in short hand his statement for The Times.

Mr. Houston told him that it was a state secret how The Times got the letters it had published.

He had heard through a Nationalist named Mulqueeny that the police had found a letter in the League's rooms in London in which Frank Bryne acknowledged the receipt of a cheque from Mr. Parnell, which had been sent to him to enable him to escape from the country, but the authorities had assured him that no such letter had been seized.

Sir Charles Russell: "Did you ever threaten Mr. Parnell?"

Witness: "Threaten him! How do you mean? I have been angry with him, and once I turned him out of my room in Dublin."

Sir Charles Russell: "Why did you turn him out?"

Witness: "I told him to get out as I did not want to see him again."

Sir Charles Russell: "Have you ever said you would be revenged on Mr. Parnell?"

Witness: "I never remember saying so."

Sir Charles Russell: "Have you ever said that you had a shell charged with dynamite to blow him up."

Witness: "No."

To further questions the witness replied that he saw the original of the facsimile of one of The Times' letters last week. He believed the writing was Mr. Parnell's.

Many of the memoranda which he had made were destroyed in 1883, when there was danger of a select Committee of Parliament being appointed to enquire into the Kilmainham treaty, and it was intimated to him that the utmost reticence ought to be observed on the subject.

Sir Charles Russell: "Instructed by whom?"

Witness: "By Sir William Vernon Harcourt, who said it was the opinion of another person, namely, Mr. Gladstone."

These statements caused a sensation in the court, and Justice Hannen asked that everybody abstain from manifesting his feelings during the proceedings.

Sir Charles Russell: "Was it then you destroyed the memoranda?"

Witness: "Yes. Certain memoranda, which were in another box, and which included some of Mr. Chamberlain's letters, escaped destruction. It was Mr. Gladstone's wish that I should be as reticent as possible from motives of political expediency."

He Couldn't Chew in Their Pulpit.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Rev. Mr. Simmonton, a colored clergyman from this city, preached in the house of Mr. Scott, on Grove-street in Bloomfield, Sunday night. During the sermon, one of the women arose and protested excitedly against the continuance of the sermon until the preacher took a quid of tobacco out of his mouth. Others joined in the demand. The preacher complied with their request, but he said after the service that he felt insulted, and would never come from New York again to save souls.

The Attack on Suakim.

Medical Students Fired Upon From a Doctor's House—A Girl's Suicide.

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—Twenty-six candidates entered for the final examination of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, and of this number 22 passed. In the primary examination 34 candidates entered, of which 31 were successful.

The family of Rev. Dr. Cavan, Principal of Knox College, who resides at 228 Victoria-street, were startled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning to find their servant, Mary Brooks, aged 26, in the cistern at the rear of the house. The body was promptly taken out of the cistern, but the girl was beyond aid. She was a good girl, so far as Dr. Cavan's family knew, and while they conclude that she must have committed suicide, they can assign no cause for it. She was of good spirits, and up to Tuesday night gave no indication of anything that would cause her to take her life. A brother visited her Tuesday evening and found her apparently well. That she threw herself into the cistern is regarded as conclusive, from the fact that the top which had been nailed down, had been forcibly removed. Coroner Powell did not think an inquest necessary.

There is an impression that an effort is being made to force Rev. Mr. Jeffery's resignation and that the effort will succeed.

The students of Trinity Medical College celebrated Hallowe'en by an unique demonstration in tendering an ovation to Miss Rose Coghlan, who is playing "Jocelyn" at Grand Opera House. After the play they visited a number of ladies' schools and wound up at Dr. McCully's house, were they expressed themselves unpleasantly towards the Doctor, and were answered, not by a kindly speech, but by a display of fireworks which they alleged consisted of five revolver shots and a discharge from a small cannon.

Among those who visited Jarvis-street with the students was Mr. H. H. Oldright, a son of Dr. Oldright. Mr. Oldright was in the uniform of the Queen's Own Rifles; he received a shot in the fore part of the leg, and was removed to his father's house at Carlton-street and Homewood-avenue. There were at least one or two others who received wounds.

LONDON THE LEGS.

County Constables Busy on an Old Case—General Items of Interest.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The county constables are under the impression that they have got on to a nest of thieves out near Clandeboye. Last winter a number of robberies were committed on the Grand Trunk railway in that neighborhood and since then the constables have been on the look-out, but had not succeeded in getting a trace of any of the stolen property. A few days ago, however, a clue was obtained and one of the force went out there at an early hour yesterday morning and arrested Eli Bice, brother of the heroine of the Gilmour-Bice abduction case, which created such a stir some time ago. The charge is the stealing of two chests of tea from the Grand Trunk Railway Company in January last. The accused was remanded for a day by Magistrate Noble. A number of search warrants have been issued and the constables hope to recover a lot of the stolen property.

During October there have been registered with the city clerk 50 births, 27 deaths and 24 marriages.

The Relief Committee at a meeting last night decided to recommend the city council to bear the cost of maintenance of inmates of the "Old Men's Home" to the extent of 24 cents per day.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Wardsville Suffers Heavy Loss—Fires in Other Localities.

WARDSVILLE, Nov. 1.—The large frame foundry belonging to H. Henderson was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. A spark from the chimney set fire to the roof and gained such headway before noticed that it was impossible to get anything out of the building. A fresh breeze was blowing at the time and the flames soon spread to the Marshall house, occupied by J. Wilson, which was also burned. The villagers worked heroically and managed to keep the fire from crossing the street. Loss to the Henderson firm, $11,000; no insurance. J. Wilson's loss and damage to furniture, $300. A. M. Smith, of London, owner of the hotel, loss about $1000; amount of insurance unknown.

Another Fire in Glasgow.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Higginbotham's spinning and weaving mills, at Glasgow, were burned yesterday. Loss, £30,000.

In the Eternal City.

ROME, Nov. 1.—Fire broke out yesterday in a part of the Quirinal used for the storing of furniture. The flames were extinguished before serious damage had been done. The pontifical escutcheon affixed to the palace was burned. It will be replaced with the national arms.

Half a Million Gone up in Smoke.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—The fire at Hnenfeldt has been subdued. The damage will be about $500,000.

The Deadly Fire Escape.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 1.—While testing a rope fire escape at the Monongahela House yesterday the rope broke and three boys, James McClure, aged 14 years; John Duddy, aged 15, and Daniel Nade, aged 15, were precipitated from the fifth story to the pavement, a distance of 70 feet. McClure and Duddy fell headforemost and were killed instantly. Nagle had both arms and legs broken and will probably die. The agent of the fire escape, H. C. Arlson, who hired the boys to come down the escape paying five cents each, has been arrested.

Yellow Fever Victims.

FERNANDINA, Fla., Nov. 1.—Sixteen new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. All the cases under treatment are doing well and the weather is cooler and more favorable.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 1.—The most sensational bit of news to-day is the report from Camp Mitchell of two cases of yellow fever there. There is much excitement now in that heretofore quiet camp. Twenty-nine new cases and one death reported here yesterday.

Satisfactory Results From the Polariscopic Sugar Test—Gant's Extradition to be Demanded—The Port Arthur Breakwater.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—Up to the present time lunatics from the Northwest Territories have been confined in the Manitoba Asylum at Selkirk, at the expense of the Dominion Government, but in the future they will be kept in one wing of the Stoney Mountain Penitentiary until the Dominion Government builds a lunatic asylum for the Northwest.

The Department of Justice has received a petition for the release of young Gamble of Toronto, who is confined in the Kingston Penitentiary on a life sentence for an attempt to procure an abortion on a young girl. The petition lays great stress on the distress caused Gamble's widowed mother and young sister.

Since the adoption of the polariscopic sugar test by the Customs Department three years ago the imports of raw sugar for refining purposes have been steadily increasing. The returns thus far for the present year promise to make the best showing yet. The test is giving the utmost satisfaction, as formerly by the Dutch standard or examination of color the saccharine qualities of the sugar could not be determined.

The Department of Justice will shortly make a demand for the extradition of W. J. Bent, who is wanted on the charge of attempt to murder Ed. M. Bateon of Campobello, N.B. Bent is in jail in Portland, Me.

Messrs. Kerby & Stwart have been awarded the contract for the additional 1600 feet of breakwater at Port Arthur. When this is completed the breakwater will be a mile long.

Messrs. Rossean & Mather of Montreal have got the contract for the new highway bridge over the Ottawa at Chaudiere Falls, to take the place of the old Union suspension bridge erected in 1843.

John Shields and John Carrol, contractors for the Niagara Central Railway, are here for the purpose of getting the road, which has been completed, approved by the Department of Railways and Canals, so that passenger traffic may begin over it. Freight trains are now running.

Sir Hector Langevin returns from Sherbrooke Friday. The other ministers returned last evening.

A Trip to Texas.

The following is the conclusion of the remarks of the Examiner's correspondent with Mr. D. W. Dumble in reference to his visit to Texas:

Farmers being chiefly cotton is liable to be planted—that is, to have the seed taken out and the cotton baled. These mills are all over the country. A few years ago the seed was burned; now it is of such value that it is taken as the grist, and the cotton is planted for the seed. This seed is drawn to railway stations and shipped to large oil mills. The seed is about the size of a small pea. It is covered with a coat of short cotton, which the ordinary gin mill will not take off, but the great oil mills run it through a machine which shaves it off of cotton. I was in a mill at Houston which, last year, got 1,000 bales of short staple cotton, worth $30,000, off the seed. The seed is next boiled; the hulls are used for fuel to drive the machinery. The kernel is ground, the oil extracted by powerful machinery, and the residue is oil cake. This is again ground and shipped for cattle food.

I was in a mill which, with a machine weighing 600 tons and a compressed the ordinary bales of cotton into just one-fourth of their former bulk, thus making an immense saving in shipment. This mill compressed cotton at the rate of 60 bales an hour. The compressed cotton will sink like a stone.

On every railway platform throughout Texas and Arkansas were quantities of baled cotton ready for shipping. It was amusing to see a waggon with perhaps six or seven bales of cotton, one and a half tons, drawn by four mules sometimes by four oxen. Four horses, or mules, or oxen, to a waggon is the usual thing. If horses or mules, the sight wheeler was usually bestridden by a stalwart negro while another held the reins.

NEARLY ALL THE CORN

raised was for home consumption. The climate of Texas is so mild that the horses are rarely built on colliers. They are usually on posts several feet from the ground. One end water pipes are sunk just deep enough to get them out of the way—from that hereto a main is unknown. Water cisterns of wood stand on posts, and in many places supply the drinking water. I was surprised to find the water so sweet. On the 15th of October it was as warm as in early July, and I slept under mosquito bars and found even a sheet superfluous. There is usually a refreshing breeze blowing, called there a norther wind. In that breeze it is unbearable—out of it there was to me an uncomfortable feeling. The perspirable, all unfelt, would glisten on the back of my hand; that with me always marks too much thermometer.

The long continued hot weather enervates people and leaves them

CONSTITUTIONALLY LAZY.

One is delighted with the gardens. Even in the middle of October, roses, azaleas, and other beautiful plants were in bloom, while huge, palm-leaved plants, twenty feet high, made magnificent foliage.

Oleanders bloomed in hedges and on the sides of the road, while mocking birds twittered their pretty song. North western Texas is occupied by a more sturdy lot of men, many of them from the north. There they grow wheat and oats. This part of the State is undergoing the most rapid development and their cities of Fort Worth and Dallas, each about 25,000, are growing rapidly. This State has wonderous capabilities. The soil is rich. The climate in so large a country varies and offers opportunities to suit the wants of various classes. The great want of the country is population and labor. The State is capable of producing ten times the amount of her present productions, and no doubt in the near future will undergo remarkable changes. Already the cattle interest wrests arid lands in the great ranches are being offered for sale at very reasonable prices—from $3 to $5 per acre.

Travelling day after day and night after night in continuous journey one is impressed with the

the variety of its producing capabilities and the impression is left that time only is wanted to make the United States the richest and most powerful nation on the face of the globe. I have been asked if I saw much of the revolver and bowie knife? I reserve, so—no more than in Canada. Law and order prevail, and I think life little less safe than in the north. In eastern Texas there are many negroes and Mexicans. There latter are a cross from the Spaniard and native Indian. They are a quiet, inoffensive, easy-going people, dark as Indians, but not at all like our Indians in feature; they are more like the Spaniard. The large land owners parcel out their lands for rent or on shares. These negroes and Mexicans seldom own the land. The land owner advances seed, &c.; his shop supplies goods, and at the end of the year the tenant is no richer than at the beginning. And so the poor continue poor and dependent.

THERE IS A GREAT FUTURE

for this state, for it is as large as France and not less rich in natural productions. In time the diversity, skillfulness and magnificent mode of culture will give way to child and labour, and where to-day are vast stretching of unbroken prairie, giving food to countless herds of cattle, will ere long be homes for tens of millions, whose energies will evoke from the fertile soil food and riches beyond my power to conceive.

Young's Point.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. M. Hewett left on Monday with a party for a week's hunting at Deer Bay.

Messrs. James and Geo. J. Chalmers having decided to leave Young's Point offer for sale their valuable for property conveniently situated in the village.

ADDRESS TO CONSTITUENTS.

Mr. J. K. Stetton, M.P.P., addressed his constituents in this vicinity in the school house on Tuesday evening of last week. A large number of the electors were present, the hall being crowded to the doors. After the address an adjournment was made to Mr. Kearney's hall where between fifty and sixty guests sat down to a splendid spread provided by Mr. Hewett's banner by his friends at Young's Point. After ample justice had been done to the sumptuous fare provided the usual toasts and speeches followed all of the speakers giving Mr. Stratton credit for being the most energetic member that ever represented West Peterborough. The dining hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens and mottoes, and the bill-of-fare was something scarcely to be expected in a village hotel.

The young people of the village have organized a dramatic club and intend giving an entertainment in the school house at an early date. Mr. Thomas N. Lee is leader.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Stratton, M.P., West Peterborough, the locks were thoroughly overhauled last spring, and now Mr. Walters has a gang of men cleaning out the pier below the locks which will be replaced by a new one.

Telephone Extension.

With the exception of a new line between Toronto, Hamilton and London, to be worked on the long-distance system, the Bell Telephone Company has nearly completed an unusually heavy season's work in the way of extension to the system, and the officers report having used this year, in the Ontario Department alone, over 13,000 poles, and 1,500 miles of wire, most of which is copper. The principle new lines built were from Toronto to Arthur via Orangeville; Orillia to Waubaushene, and Barrie to Midland and Penetanguishene, Owen Sound to Hanover; Wingham to Kincardine; Tweerater to London via Wingham, Clinton and Lucan, with branch to Parkhill; and in the Province of Quebec, Montreal to Three Rivers. Additional wires have also been put up between Toronto and Oshawa; Berlin and Stratford; and Listowel and Harriston; and the following new exchanges and agencies opened, viz: In Ontario: Allan Craig, Bolton, Caledon, Chesley, Coldwater, Elmvale, Elmwood, Exeter, Fenelon Falls, Grand Valley, Lucan, Lucknow, Parkhill, Phelpston, Tara, Teeswater, Tottenham and Woodbridge; and in Quebec: Bedford, Berthier, Charlemagne, Dorval, Joliette, Knowlton, L'Assomption, Louiseville, Stanbridge East, Stanhope and Valois. Connecting offices have also been opened at Centreville, Croydon, Crafton King Queen Mills, and Roblin, in Ontario.

A Handsome Issue.

The London Advertiser on Monday, 29th inst., issued a handsomely printed quarter-century number of 48 pages, containing a well-written and illustrated history of the progress of the "Forest City." It is an issue to be proud of, and the Advertiser, ever in the van in the ranks of Western Ontario journalism, is to be congratulated upon this evidence of its prosperity and popularity.

Fat as a Food.

The late Professor Hughes Bennett is quoted as saying that the great cause of the prevalence of pulmonary pythisis was the scarcity of good butter and the abundance of pastry cooks. A writer in Medical Reporter affirms that the butter supply has always been inadequate. He says: "The wise fools calling themselves reformers, who a few years ago went about lecturing upon the injurious nature of fat as a food, did a great deal of harm in exciting a prejudice against fat ham, bacon, pickled pork and other forms of wholesome fats."

The Political Pot Boils in Gotham.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A Republican procession composed chiefly of colored men met a Democratic procession at 26th street and 6th avenue last night and a riotous struggle ensued. The colored Republicans far outnumbered the members of the Jeffersonian Association of the Ninth Assembly District with whom they fought. The numerous colored inhabitants of the neighborhood who had turned out to see the immense colored procession fail to assist assisted the reserve marchers, missiles flew in all directions and hand-to-hand fights were in order. Store windows were smashed women ran into every available place for shelter and several shots were fired. The stores were all closed between 26th and 30th streets and the shop keepers with drawn revolvers protected their property as best they could.

The druggists of Mr. Stein at 646 Sixth-avenue, was at once filled with frightened women who rushed in knocking everything off the counter. With a great effort Mr. Stein, revolver in hand, at length closed his doors. Thomas Murphy, aged 23, was found stabbed in the back, an old man named Kilken was forced through a show case and was unconscious from loss of blood. He was carried off by friends. Peter McDermott, aged 45, was knocked down and badly hurt. James Ryan, aged 20, was either shot or stabbed and was found unconscious. He was taken to the New York Hospital. The police easily cleared the streets.

Barnard Sights Another Comet.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 1.—A telegram just received from the Lick observatory announces the discovery yesterday morning by Barnard of another comet, the second discovered by him in less than two months. It was in right ascension 9 hours, 43 minutes, 22 seconds; declination south 15 degrees, 11 minutes. It has a faint tail with a slow motion northeast. It is of the eleventh magnitude, being just visible through a 6 inch telescope. This discovery entitles Prof. Barnard to another Warner comet prize of $100.

Mothers who have delicate children can see them daily improve and gain in flesh and strength by giving them perfect food and medicine, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites. Dr. W. MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

We were aroused the next morning early—as it seemed to us, but really late—by the opening of the trap door, and the delicious shower of cool air that fell upon us. As we looked up we saw the white head of our old jailer framed in the opening, and heard him saying, in drawling tones, "Boys, here's your breakfast." Then he lowered, hand over hand, a bucket as the end of a rope, till it was within reach, when it was eagerly secured from below.

THE CHAINED MEN DESCENDING INTO THE DUNGEON.

There was a strong brotherly feeling among the East Tennesseeans, and not less in our party. So the division of the food—a matter of great importance—was scrupulously fair, the weak getting as much as the strong. Alesk was given as much as any of the rest. There was but a tiny fragment of corn bread and a still smaller slice of unsavory meat for each, not one-fourth as much as I could have eaten with the hearty appetite I still retained. I felt hungrier after devouring it than before. It was now nearly 9 o'clock, and we were told by the old citizens of the jail that meals were only served twice a day, and that we would get no more till the middle of the afternoon. They also encouraged us by saying that after we had been in there for a month or two, we would not feel so hungry! It was not hard to believe this; in fact, we thought that less time than that would cure our hunger forever!

There was now a feeble glimmer of light in our den, by means of which we could form a better idea of its character than on the preceding evening. But there was nothing reassuring in the survey. Our eyes had become used to the feeble twilight, which was all that ever visited us here, and we could look on each other's pallid faces. The Union men had not been able to change their garments for months; no water was ever given to them or to us for washing; and their faces were a look of hopeless misery, in the majority of cases, which was terribly pathetic. Under no circumstances did our spirits sink so low, or did we suffer so much from mere imprisonment, as did these men. The very danger we were in, the assurance that our fate, one way or the other, would probably be determined in a short time, the confidence in our own power to make a bold strike for freedom if the faintest chance was allowed, and still more the sense of comradeship, and the interest in telling our stories, and cheering each other—all these contributed to make us bear up courageously.

During the day G. D. Wilson, Dorsey, Buffum, Bensinger, Porter and Hawkins came in. They told an interesting series of adventures. After capture they were taken to Ringgold, and the same evening to Marietta, where they had been placed in a prison but little inferior in every vile element to our present abode. They were guarded by a heavy force of cadets from the military school at Marietta, and narrowly escaped a mob. They finally heard a clanking of chains, and were called out and chained by the necks in couples, and also handcuffed. Then they were taken north over the line of our fiery chase, and stopped at Dalton. While waiting here, some of the ladies came with their servants and brought them a really first class supper. This was one of the few pleasant incidents in this part of our history. Dorsey complains that he and his companions were not accustomed to eat with irons on, and that they were not very graceful. The ladies probably excused them, for two of their number drew near and talked with them, weeping freely. One lady gave Dorsey a rose, which he preserved as long as he could. There was a mob outside threatening to attack them, and seemingly the mob enraged by the presence of the ladies. But the guards withstood bravely, and they reached Cl'attanooga in safety, where they were taken to a hotel to await orders, and the landlord at his own cost gave them a good breakfast. Then they were brought to us in the Swims jail. On the way through the crowded street, with their chains, a loud voiced man called out, "Will them hounds hunt?" Had they been free he might soon have learned.

CHAPTER XVII.

DOOMED!

Others of our party joined us in bands of two or three at short intervals and told us the thrilling story of their adventures. After a little the East Tennesseeans were removed from the lower to the upper room as others of our number were brought until at last we were all below and they were all taken out, so that we had the dreadful place to ourselves. Buffum, with grim humor, would greet the new arrivals, saying in his nasal way: "Well, boys, they took you in out of the dew!"

Every one was brought in chained in some manner, but expected when put into such a dungeon that these irons would be removed. In this we were mistaken. Either from an excess of precaution or from the wish to punish us the irons were retained. Some were fastened together by neck chains and others by handcuffs. They economized in the use of the latter by making one pair serve for two men, the right hand of the one and the left of the other, being locked together. Reddick was the first to whom I was strongly attached for some time, but was afterward glad to exchange him for Buffum, who had a very small hand and was able by a little careful squeezing to draw it out altogether, leaving me with simply a pair of cuffs dangling from my left hand.

That this terrible place was swarming with vermin, not only rats and mice, but other, kinds, smaller and worse, will be understood without further statement, as well as our helplessness in guarding against them while in the dark and in chains, with not even as much water as we needed for drinking. One of the grievances of the jailer was the great amount of water we drank, or rather wished to drink, for our persuasions aboused up through the trap door could not induce him to grant to increase the allowance which he deemed right, but the officer of the guard would sometimes order him to bring us more, which he would do with great grumbling. Usually the water buckets would be empty long before the time at the giving of food when he judged it proper to replenish them.

THE TERRITORIAL ASSEMBLY.

The Opening at Regina—Dr. Wilson of Edmonton Chosen Speaker.

REGINA, Oct. 31.—The Northwest Assembly opened to-day. The rules of the old Council were adopted. Dr. Wilson of Edmonton was chosen Speaker.

The speech from the Throne was delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Royal. It announces measures for the consolidation of Northwest ordinances, the suppression of prairie fires and the collection and compilation of vital statistics, and referred at some length to his Honor's visits to the agricultural fairs. Referring to the liquor question, the speech said the members, as representatives of the people, were the only ones possessing any degree of authority to speak on the question and that any representations they might make to the Privy Council at Ottawa would doubtless receive consideration. The Governor would be happy to transmit any recommendation to the Dominion Government.

The Assembly adjourned till Friday.

THE MONTREAL LOAN.

A Satisfactory Result on the London Market—An Important Advance.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Montreal loan tenders were opened to-day with the satisfactory result that £1,033,000 was applied for, being £213,000 in excess of the issue. Nearly half tendered at the minimum price of 82½; other tenders ranged to 85¼. The minimum tenders get 46 per cent., the others get their full tender. The Canadian Gazettee remarks that this is an important advance upon anything yet done by a Canadian municipality, for 3 per cent. stock at 83 is equal to 3½ at 97, and 4 at 110. While fours have not hitherto been issued above par, Montreal now has a full register of credit in London.

Fine Fruit.

Mr. James Fowler, agent, of Smith, left at the EXAMINER office yesterday half a dozen samples of magnificent apples, superior in size and flavour to the general productions of the best orchards. The smallest of the lot measured thirteen inches in circumference, and is a fine tribute to Mr. Fowler's success as a fruit grower. He is usually a plentiful prize taker for first rate fruit but his being in the Northwest this year gave somebody else a chance.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.
(Signed) SWITCHEM I.

Trouble over a Crossing.

Some of the residents of Smith and Benson streets are strongly objecting to the condition of the railway crossing. They claim that their property is damaged by it, and that the G.T.R. Company have not complied with the regulations of the Railway Act in leaving the grade of the approaches too steep. The attention of the Street and Bridge Committee has been called to the matter, and more forcible means of expression are being adopted. Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald has already entered action, and Mr. A. Clegg has notified the company that if the causes of their complaint are not remedied he will follow suit and bring action against them.

The Boys' Night Out.

Hallow'een was celebrated very quietly last night. The police were given very little trouble. A few signs and gates took wings and disappeared mysteriously, and other harmless pleasantries were indulged in by the boys—and girls, too, for that matter. The old-time vandal customs, that often resulted in serious damage and loss, have about become extinct, on account, no doubt, of the vigilance of the police and the advanced ideas of civilization. Hallow'een, in these sadly degenerate (?) times, is no longer the night of wild hilarity and freedom from restraint for the small boy that it was in days of yore.

Nominations of Town Councillors.

At the last session of the Legislature the Municipal Act was amended as follows:—

(2) The council of any incorporated town divided into wards may by by-law provide that the nomination for councillors for the several wards shall be held at the same time and place as the nomination for Mayor, Reeve and Deputy Reeve.

(3) When no such by-law is passed the nomination of councillors shall take place as provided by sec. 109 of the Municipal Act.

Provision is also made whereby any incorporated town or village may by by-law provide that the nomination for Mayor, Reeve, Deputy-Reeve, or Reeves and councillors may be held at half-past seven o'clock in the evening, instead of at the hours and times previously laid down by law.

Sweet Singing.

A closely packed audience that comfortably filled the opera house greeted the appearance of the original Fisk Jubilee Singers Wednesday night. Of the entertainment little need be said. Their slave songs and "spirituals" have been often heard before, and most people knew just how rich a treat they might expect. But they never seem to tire of the sweet negro melodies that appeal to the heart and stir the emotions. Several numbers were encored, and the tenor solo, with chorus, by Chas. W. Payne, and the songs of the male quartette, were doubly and trebly encored. Miss Laura Wells is a pleasing soprano, with a voice of great compass, while Mr. Caldwell's bass solo won merited applause. The jubilee singers came under the auspices of the George Street Methodist Sunday school, and the financial result must have been as gratifying to the management as the entertainment was satisfactory to the people whose money they received.

A Realistic Piece.

The Theatre Royal was crowded yesterday afternoon, and people had to be turned away last evening, upon the reappearance here of Florence J. Bindley in "Dot, or the Avenger's Oath." The piece has been rearranged since its former presentation here and considerably improved. Special scenery carried by the company for the production is worthy of special mention. Miss Bindley is as bright and vivacious as ever, and in the role of "Dot" she has ample opportunities of displaying her abilities. Her musical selections on the glasses and other instruments, her dancing and her skill with the rifle bring down the house; she at once won the sympathies of the audience. The dual role of Ned Carley and Deadwood Jack finds an able interpreter in Mr. James Horne, who gave an admirable personation of the parts. Mr. Otis Turner, as Jacob Galoot, furnished the low comedian portion of the presentation, and the rest of the company gave good support. Some of the situations are very realistic, such as the duel to the death between the villain of the piece, Hank Sayers (Mr. J. McCready) and Ned Carley. There are likely to be crowded houses all week.—Montreal Gazette. "Dot" will be presented at Bradburn's opera house to-night.

At Nymen's Altar.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Ella Daly, of this town, daughter of the late Charles Daly, of Napanee, was united in marriage to Dr. Cumberland, of Port Huron, Michigan, one of the most prominent young physicians of that State. The ceremony was performed in St. Paul's Presbyterian church by the Rev. Mr. Cumberland, brotner of the groom, assisted by the Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A. The bride was assisted by Miss Birdie Daly, of Napanee, with whom was associated, as groomsman, Mr. R. S. Latimer, of Sault Ste. Marie. Social circles had been on the qui vive for the last few days, but were unable to learn the hour at which the ceremony was to take place. The wedding was strictly private, and a number of the many friends of the bride were unable to gain admittance to the church. Many however, assembled at the C.P.R. station, where the happy couple were the subjects of much congratulation, previous to their boarding the incoming express for points west. The EXAMINER extends its best wishes for a happy and prosperous future. The bride has not been a long resident of Peterborough, but during her short stay here her modest, retiring and kindly disposition has attracted to her many friends and won for her the respect of all her acquaintances and the love of her intimate friends. She is deserving of the happiness which, it is hope, her new relations will bring her and her husband.

Bellegham, the Furniture King.

The people sometimes need to be protected against themselves and against the voice of envious business opponents. The impression is sought to be created by interested parties to the effect that Bellegham has the ran and takes advantage of this fact in dealing with his customers. This is absurd on the face of it. It is true that Bellegham has the lead, but he has won it by legitimate means—he has furnished the best of furniture at fair living prices, and has done everything in his power to satisfy his customers, therefore, he has gained the lead, and to keep that lead he will pursue, in the future, the same course. He can't afford to do otherwise. Having built up a leading trade by square, honest dealing, and supplying first-class goods he will pursue the same course to keep the position he has gained. The public are asked not to be prejudiced or influenced by interested parties. Bellegham wants them to come and see his furniture and judge for themselves, and, if they are inexperienced in buying furniture, to bring a good judge with them. He would rather sell furniture to an experienced buyer any day, because he would be able to appreciate good furniture, and there would be no trouble in making a sale. Bellegham's goods will stand the closest scrutiny. The public are cordially invited to call and see for themselves the magnificent stock of all kinds of furniture at Bellegham's warerooms, 188 and 190 Hunter street. Special attention given to ordered work—first-class, thoroughly seasoned material, the best of workmen, and the finest finish.

The Flourishing "Soo."

Its Present and Future.

Mr. R. S. Lattimer, C.E., town engineer of Sault Ste. Marie, has been in town for a few days, and an EXAMINER representative got the following information from him respecting the present conditions and prospects of the "Soo." He states that the "Soo" is in a very flourishing condition and a steady, healthy and rapid growth is a characteristic of the place. Within the past eight months buildings, including hotels, business blocks and private residences, to the amount of $286,000 have been erected, and the population has increased in the same time by one thousand—from 1,700 to 2,700, and many new business enterprises are being established.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS

is in a healthy condition—there is no inflation of values, but real estate is firm with continuous transactions. This season over a thousand acres have been subdivided into town lots and placed on the market. In the laying out of the town provision is made for parks, agricultural grounds and other purposes requiring large tracts of ground. This season the large sum of $30,000 has been expended on street improvements, and the streets of the "Soo" are not surpassed except by those of large cities. This season also, there have been many prospectors for minerals at work in the vicinity of the "Soo;" numerous locations have been made, patents secured and preparations made for working. These include principally gold and silver mines, and the results of careful assays indicate that the mining interests in these metals will speedily and incidentally benefit the town. Of course it goes without saying that the water power of the Soo has possibilities unparalleled elsewhere on the continent, and its development is only a question of a year or two. On Saturday night the plans and specifications for the Sault Ste. Marie ship canal arrived from Ottawa; contractors are looking over the ground, and it is probable that work will be begun this winter. By an arrangement of the company with the government, the earth and rock removed from the ship canal, which runs parallel with the water power canal, will be utilized in building the walls of the latter. The two will, therefore, progress at the same rate and become completed about the same time. The government are making extensive repairs to their dock. There is also another dock—the international—and work will be begun at once on another large new dock. Work is now going on for the establishment of the Hyzler system of and, within a fortnight, the streets and buildings of the Soo will be lighted by electric lamps. The Soo will probably be a favorite site for paper pulp mills, the country within a radius of thirty miles being densely wooded with poplar. The hotel accommodation is excellent, there being two hotels larger than any in Peterborough—one, the International, built this summer, being the second largest hotel building in the Dominion. The Soo is prospering now, and everything points to a boom of great intensity, and the prospects for a great future are of the brightest.

ASSUME ENORMOUS PROPORTIONS

Mrs. Geo. G. Gladman and three children left this morning by G.T.R. express for Parry Harbour, their future home.

Mr. A. B. Owen, formerly of the Hazel Brae branch, but now manager of the Toronto branch of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, has, for the past week, been visiting the boys placed in the townships of Cavan and Emily. Out of about thirty-five boys in these townships sent out from the home, Mr. Owen reports that only one has not given entire satisfaction. Mr. Owen is very popular with the boys; he uses every kindness and effort to conduce to their welfare and comfort. He will spend the fall and winter visiting boys placed throughout the Dominion, and leaves for New Burnswick on Monday. The next lot of lads will arrive in March next.

Hospitals and Hospitals.

Within a few months Peterborough will be provided with two fine new hospital buildings—one more than is needed; that is, one of them might be dispensed with if the people would regard the laws of health and buy their boots and shoes of gough bros., the wonderful cheap men. Their goods are so cheap that the poorest can afford to have dry feet. Now is the time to secure bargains—an immense stock of first-rate boots and shoes going at less than half price. Nothing like the bargains at gough bros.' to be found in the country. Boots for every class in the community at rock-bottom prices at gough bros., 375 george street.

Good Business.

J. Muckleston & Co., hardware merchants, have just sold to the Gananoque Carriage Company, of Gananoque, 3,250 sets (about 70 tons) of their celebrated Beaver tire steel, and to the Montreal Transportation Company, 15 tons of oakum; to Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, $600 worth of their patent sand blast files, besides a large quantity of iron to the Dominion Carriage Company, London. Such an enterprising firm will be a great benefit to our town.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

Anniversary Service.

The Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, of Orillia, will conduct the anniversary services in St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning and evening, Nov. 4th. A collection will be taken up in aid of the church debt. Brookbank Gymnasium.

The Brookbank Gymnasium will be open to the public on Thursday evening, Nov. 1st, when Sergt.-Major Rundle, the manager, will deliver a short lecture on Physicial Culture and explain the prospectus of the institution. As there are several gentlemen, who have already obtained their tickets for the ensuing quarter from Nov. 1st to Jan. 1st, it is desirable that all who have subscribed their names, be present on Thursday evening and obtain their tickets. It would help the Sergt.-Major very much if the classes could be formed on that evening. All ladies who are interested in their physical development and are desirous of taking lessons, will please meet in the gymnasium at 4.30 Thursday afternoon, and as there is a class of boys to be formed from say 10 to 15 years old, the manager would esteem it a favor if parents (that is those who are intending their children to be trained,) would kindly cause them to meet at the gymnasium at 5 o'clock, Thursday afternoon. 2i

Make a note of the date—November 20th, 21st and 22nd. dw

A Complimentary Repetition.

History, it is said, sometimes repeats itself, and the charming little episode chronicled of the days of the good King Alfred, whose subjects were so honest that a gold chain remained hanging in a tree for many days untouched, finds repitition, in principle at least, in an incident that occurred a few days ago. An overcoat was dropped from a vehicle by someone in the middle of George street, near Antrim, and it was picked up by an honest citizen and hung on the fence for an owner to claim it. There it remained a couple of days, when it was gradually hoisted higher and higher by persons who examined it and tried to place it beyond harm's reach, till it was finally hung about half way to the top, where it was swinging to-day a prominent evidence of the honesty of our people. [N.B.—It's best not to say much about the quality or value of the cost; it might detract from the effectiveness of the paragraph.]

To Farmers and Horse Owners.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, the harness maker, 137 Hunter street, has been twelve years in the business, and has worked up a trade and reputation for superior work which gives him a leading position in the trade. He has done good honest work in an artistic and workman-like manner. He has shown himself trustworthy and skillful. That is the reason why he counts so numerous a list of friends amongst the horsemen and farmers of town and country. His reputation has gone abroad, and he receives frequent orders from distant parts of the country from parties requiring specially excellent harness work. Mr. Devlin is now fully prepared for the fall trade. His shop contains a beautiful stock of sleigh robes, wolf, bear, etc., horse clothing of all kinds, and a splendid stock of harness, and, in fact, all the supplies in that line that can be demanded. He has also on hand a superb supply of trunks, valises, etc. His entire stock is complete in the lines named, and for durability and excellence of work cannot be surpassed in the Midland District. Anyone desirous of getting any of these classes of goods, of the best quality, at reasonable prices, will find it to his advantage to call on W. J. Devlin, 137 Hunter street, opposite the post office. 6d2w

Provincial Justice.

Tuesday at the Sharbot Lake junction of the C. P. R., two convicted murderers met under rather peculiar circumstances. One of them was young Farley, who killed an Indian, and was condemned to life imprisonment, and the other was Waashkeshish, an Indian, of Fort Temagamingue, who murdered a white man, a companion guide named Thomas Paul, for which he was committed to the penitentiary for fourteen years at the Pembroke assizes. Both men also were tried before Mr. Justice Street, and each was in charge of the sheriff of their respective counties. The two parties rode down in the same K. and P. R. train, and were taken to the penitentiary almost together, but there was a marked difference in the demeanor of the two men. The Indian was sullen and morose, while Farley was in good humor and spirits. This coincidence was an interesting example of poetical justice—the white man who murdered an Indian and the Indian who murdered a white man came together and travelled the same road, to work out, side by side, the atonement for their crimes.

THE SACKVILLE EPISODE.

MR. BLAINE'S ARRAIGNMENT OF DEMOCRATIC DIPLOMACY

The London Papers Continue to Print Caustic Comments on American Politics and Politicians.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Addressing a meeting at Norwich, Conn., last evening Mr. Blaine said while speaking on the Sackville incident: "The Democratic party never has conducted the affairs of this country with Great Britain with dignity or with advantage to this country. We owe to the Democratic party and to its bad diplomacy the loss of British Columbia, and that vast province on the Pacific coast which would give us the entire coast from Behring Strait down to the Gulf of California.

"To the bad diplomacy and the surrender of the Democratic party we owe the reciprocity treaty of 1854 in which we got about one article to forty as compared with the Canadians; the reciprocity treaty which was thirty-nine degrees on one side—which was our opponents'—and one degree on our side. We owe that to them. In fact it is not in the power of the Democratic party to give a single treaty or diplomatic procedure they have made with Great Britain which redounds to the honor of this country."

Simply Told the Truth.

PORTLAND, Ind., Nov. 2.—Hon John Sherman speaking at a Republican meeting yesterday said: "How have the Democrats conducted foreign affairs? Why have they surrendered the fisheries question? They gave up everything they had (and that was not much), then when the Senate refused to assent to the treaty they proposed to retaliate—on England?—on Canada?—No! No!! On whom? On the people themselves, and all that this administration has done is that it has finally got the approval of Sir Sackville-West. The trouble was that Mr. West simply told the truth.

Britain's Only Cause of Shame.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Globe commenting on the Sackville affair says: Unhappily for America in one sense, happily in another, the character of ministerial and journalistic bluster during an election is comprehended by politicians of the saner sort better even than among the best informed persons here. This is understood as a portion of a great sham, which everybody affects to believe. Whichever party scolds England the loudest will win. Lord Salisbury preserved England's dignity by not indulging Mr. Bayard's desire to hurry over what is only a piece of election strategy.

As far as England is concerned the matter is over. Our only cause of shame is that those we call cousins are capable of such short-sighted folly. Both of the leaders chosen work upon whatever anti-English feeling exists and bid for it by competition in bluster. If Mr. Cleveland is re-elected it will be as a President whose Secretary of State sent the British Minister his passports and snapped his fingers in the face of Downing-street. It will be a perilous character he will have earned, because it will have to be maintained.

You Pays Your Money, etc.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Daily News says: "The suggestion to retaliate upon Mr. Phelps is theoretically illogical and practically foolish. It probably results as much from sheer ignorance as from any less respectable quality of the human mind." Again justifying Mr. Cleveland's course The News maintains that if he had ignored the matter and happened to be unsuccessful in the coming election, Mr. Harrison would probably have seized the first chance to intimate that Lord Sackville's room was preferable to his company.

The Daily Chronicle says: "With every desire that President Cleveland and Secretary Bayard should enjoy a monopoly of their rudeness it is impossible passively to submit to having our representative treated like a Chinese coolie or an Irish pauper. There need be no heat displayed, but if England is to remain a self-respecting nation her ministers must not be slow to resent so deep an insult to her national dignity."

The Irish Vote Paramount.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Star (T. P. O'Connor's paper) says Mr. Bayard puts it pretty strong. The Irish voter is so pressing, and the desire to satisfy him is so urgent, that President Cleveland cannot wait until Lord Salisbury takes action. The incident furnishes fresh evidence of the paramount influence of the Irish vote in Anglo-American politics.

Not so Good a Shot as Dr. McCully.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—In a tavern opposite the Law Courts yesterday afternoon Joseph Kavanagh drew a revolver and fired a shot at Planche Cox. The shot did not take effect. Kavanagh was arrested and committed to jail on a charge of attempted murder. It was reported that both Kavanagh and Cox had been cited to appear as witnesses before the Parnell Commission. A five-chambered revolver with four chambers loaded was found on Kavanagh. He stated to the police that he carried the weapon for self-defence, as he had been threatened with death for making certain disclosures.

A Letter From Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Lord Rosbery addressed a meeting at Dalkeith yesterday. In the course of his speech he read a letter from Mr. Gladstone, in which the latter said: "I conceive that the country has indicated a very general desire to retain Irish members at Westminster. We recognize that desire and we are prepared to give it effect. I hope this is clear, although I suspect some Dissidents will now begin to find the retention of Irish members highly mischievous."

THE SHARPSHOOTERS' MONUMENT AT THE CAPITAL.

Unveiled Yesterday by Lord Stanley in the Presence of a Large Number of Spectators—A Big Railway Deal.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The event of yesterday was the unveiling of the monument to the two members of the Ottawa Sharpshooters, Privates W. B. Osgood and John Rogers, who were killed at Cut Knife. The day being fine a large crowd turned out, over 5000 people being assembled in Major's Hall Park and vicinity.

The monument is placed at the entrance to the park and consists of a bronze statue of a sharpshooter in the full uniform of a guardsman, with the rifle reversed and in an attitude of repose, standing upon a square pedestal of grey Canadian granite, upon either side of which are basso-relievos of Osgood and Rogers. The figure of the sharpshooter while full of massive strength is indicative of dejection and grief. The pedestal is ten feet in height and the statue seven. The inscription reads:

ERECTED BY THE CITIZENS OF OTTAWA
To the Memory of Privates
JOHN ROGERS AND WILLIAM B. OSGOOD of the
GUARDS COMPANY OF SHARPSHOOTERS,
Who Fell in Action at Cut Knife Hill on the 2nd of May, 1885

After the formal unveiling brief addresses were delivered by His Excellency and Sir A. P. Caron.

CUSTOMS SEIZURE AT MONTREAL.

A Young Irishman Taken in by an Old Confidence Game.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—Henry Moore, a young Irishman who has been working on a farm in the vicinity of Toronto, and who arrived in Montreal Wednesday on his way to visit his friends in Ireland, has been taken in by a confidence game. He loaned a man $20 because his friend could not cash a bogus check for $650 drawn on a New York bank.

The customs officers here have made a seizure of liquors, in which it is claimed there was undervaluation of a large consignment of wines, at a club house on St. Antoine-street kept by Mr. Bertin, who is an importer. The wines are valued at between $6000 and $8000. Bertin denies any intention of irregularity in the matter and says he has been betrayed to the officers by an ex-employe for revenge.

Ambitious City News.

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—The committee of the Niagara Methodist conference which met Wednesday night to consider the case of Rev. Mr. Colling, of Simcoe, arrived at a decision, but it has been decided not to divulge it until the Simcoe board has passed on the matter. It is understood that the charges against Mr. Colling are chiefly in relation to matters of doctrine, particularly in regard to his extreme views on the doctrine of holiness.

The customs duties collected at this port during October were $52,154, a decrease of $3844 as compared with the corresponding month last year. Inland Revenue receipts, $44,545, an increase of $10,908. Exports to the United States from the consular district of Hamilton $103,243.

It is already completed to St. Catharines.

It Was Billy the Tinker.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 2.—The body found in the woods a short distance from Beamsville, has been identified as that of a man known as "Billy the Tinker," who lived in the vicinity of Smithville, and has been missing since the early part of May last. Deceased was a man of about 60 years of age, who wandered about the country, and no attention was paid to his disappearance at the time.

Deserves to be Lynched.

KINGSVILLE, Nov. 2.—Some miserable specimen of humanity a day or two ago perpetrated a horrible crime on one of Mr. J. H. Smart's horses on the Sorenson farm near here. The fiend drove the horse from the pasture into the barn and cut off its foot at the joint and left it to bleed to death. The poor brute was discovered lying dead on the barn floor the next morning.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Reward of $1000 Offered for the Conviction of the Galt Poisoners.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—The Don improvement complication is assuming serious proportions. The contractors claim that the city has refused to pay certificates for work done, that the drawback retained as security has been withdrawn and misappropriated and unless something is done at once operations will be suspended. The original water course of the Don is now stopped, and if the new channel is not opened before the spring floods the water will be dammed up at the Gerrard-street crossing and when the break comes the volume of water will sweep everything before it in its onward course to the Bay.

The Ontario Government will pay $1000 for information that will lead to the conviction of the Galt poisoner or poisoners.

During the smallpox scare of last year Thomas Preston and his wife were conveyed to the pest house by order of Medical Health Officer Cannif and Dr. Lowe, in the belief that they were suffering from the disease. After remaining there some weeks they were discharged, it becoming evident to the medical men that it was not smallpox from which they were suffering. They have now brought suits for $7000 against the city and the two doctors for assault and false imprisonment.

The Ontario Bank has issued a new circulation. The bills so far put out are only 5's and 10's, which will be followed by 20's and 50's; the 100's of the old issue will continue in use.

Louis Helm Sloneker, the Sioux City boodler who was arrested in Toronto Monday night, left for home at 4.50 yesterday afternoon in company with the American officials who came after him and Detective Siemin. Yesterday he voluntarily agreed to waive extradition proceedings and go back to Iowa to stand his trial. He gave up the $800 he had in the Dominion Bank, $30 in cash, a gold watch and a pair of trousers.

Mr. Louis Sievert, into whose face the man Graham threw vitriol a year ago last August, for which the fiend was sentenced to prison for life, underwent an operation upon his right eye on Tuesday, after having the left one removed a few weeks ago. He is doing well, and this operation, it is expected, will be the last.

Dr. McCully, who shot Harry Oldwright Wednesday night while the latter was watching the antics of the Trinity Medical students in front of the doctor's house, was arrested yesterday and brought before the Police Magistrate on a charge of shooting and wounding with intent to do great bodily harm. The accused pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily, his counsel saying that the prisoner was amply justified in doing what he had done, and that the medical students had persecuted him beyond endurance. Dr. McCully was remanded until to-day and allowed out on bail, himself in $2000 and two sureties in $1000 each.

Mr. W. A. Foster, Q. C., died at 8.30 last night at his residence in this city, the immediate cause being inflammation of the lungs. Mr. Foster was born in Toronto in 1840, called to the bar in 1861, made a Q.C. in 1883. He was one of the young men who originated the Canada First party. During the past 12 months Mr. Foster had been solicitor to the liquidators of the Central Bank, and contracted the illness from which he died while on a trip to New York in that connection.

It is considered certain in well-informed circles that Bishop O'Leary of Kingston will be appointed to the vacant Roman Catholic Archbishopric of Toronto.

Why Dr. Thompson Will Fight it Out.

BOSTON, Nov. 2. Dr. Augustus Thompson admits that he has been a fool. The Doctor is the 50-year-old father of a family against whom pretty Mrs. Myra Beals was the other day awarded a verdict of $30,000 for damages done her by letters he wrote about her. The Doctor, who helped Myra with her dramatic education, says he was too generous with her and that his most glaring faults are his generosity and sympathy.

"If we take no risks," writes the Doctor, "we do charity or good to none. Many a larger and more intellectual man than myself has been caught in the same meshes. I will tell the truth and the people of Massachusetts shall see in the future whether it has killed my manhood. I do not ask sympathy. I meant no wrong. My family does not believe that I meant to do wrong. The Beals case will be contested to the bitter end simply in self-defence."

Suicide of a Priest.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 2. The people of Dallas were shocked last night by the news that the Rev. Adrian Derente, a Catholic clergyman, had committed suicide by shooting himself with a pistol. He was a native of France, 45 years old, and was for many years at Denison. Then he was transferred to Dallas, and recently his mind showed signs of decay, and he was for a short time under restraint. He had apparently recovered, and for more than six weeks had been attending to his ministerial duties. Last evening, at the parochial residence, he placed a pistol in his mouth and blew out his brains. He was a man of strong mental powers and a finished orator. He left a large estate, which he inherited.

Cut Two Throats and Sent up for Life.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.—Harry Smart was yesterday found guilty of the murder of Meisner Green and Belle Ward, who were found floating in the river with their throats cut four months ago, and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Heating Works Burnt.

LAKE CITY, Col., Nov. 2.—All the buildings including the immense hoisting works of the Frank Hough mine, one of the most extensive in this district, were burned yesterday. The owners are residents of England.

No Postal Delivery Yet Awhile.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 2.—The Postmaster General has written Mr. C. O. Ermatinger, stating that he was sorry to say he could not see his way clear to grant the request for establishing a free postal delivery in St. Thomas.

QUIET AT THE CROSSING.

THE SITUATION IN MANITOBA PEACEFUL YESTERDAY.

The Military Still on Guard—Contractors Flaunting the American Flag—To-day May See Trouble.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—Everything was quiet at the crossing yesterday and there was no trouble last night. The military are still on guard, the Canadian Pacific Railway are watching the crossing and the Northern Pacific and Manitoba Railway force were busy all day completing the spur.

Some of the contractors' teams, in bad taste, are flaunting the American flag. It is expected that an attempt will be made to-day to take an engine over and this will be resisted by the Canadian Pacific.

A Trip Through Europe.

NINTH PAPER.

The scenery all along the four hundred miles between Edinburgh and London is of an exceedingly pleasant character. The rosy and variegated tints of the mountain foliage, the tranquil Ullen, Water and Windermere, the green banks of the rivers, the wide expanse of well cultivated land, the "stately homes," so faithfully described by Mrs. Hemans, and here and there the beautiful grounds and elegant mansion, or the ivy-covered old castle, once the abode of chivalry and beauty. Anyone who has a good supply of time and money can spend several days very pleasantly and profitably by making short visits at the different places of interest along the way.

What a jolly trip it must have been in olden times. The amusing tales that would be told, the amorous and patriotic songs sung, merry peals of laughter, the fun at the wayside inns, the winding roads, the music of the horns, the dexterity of the Jehus as they guided their horses round the sharp curves, all must have combined to make the journey one of the most PLEASANT MEMORIES OF A LIFE-TIME.

What a wonderful change—then days and days were joyously spent, and people lived just as long, and probably fared fully as well, as now, when the exigencies of business and the impetuosity of the age demand the express to whirl through in seven or eight hours. So swiftly are you wafted along that you must be content with simply glancing at places worthy of notice, and one of these pretty sights is the quaint old ivy covered Melrose Abbey.

With a whiz through the tunnels, a rush over the bridges, and past the lesser stations the train speeds on for the world's metropolis. It was evening when we reached the great St. Pancras station. To the uninitiated, the very thoughts of the interminable number of streets and the vast multitude of people, make him almost shudder at the idea of leaving the station. However, in travelling as in matrimony, you have to take your chances, so seizing our grip-sack we step into the adjoining magnificent St. Pancras Hotel, where fine roasts made readily digestible by 'alf-a-'alf, bouy up ones' flagging energies, and a good night's sleep gives the necessary stamina for beginning the big job of DOING LONDON.

On the start you must make up your mind to lop off the suburbs and whole districts much larger than ordinary towns, for the city is so large that almost the only time the outskirts are seen is when coming in or going out by train. Having thus summarily disposed of the great surplus we have the most interesting and in many respects the most wonderful city in the world to describe. One of the first objects to attract attention is the vast multitude of people. On most of the main streets, every where you look you see a dense mass of humanity, horses and vehicles of every description. The great omnibuses, with seats on top, and always crowded, form almost unbroken lines going in opposite directions. Then the trim hansoms in thousands flit hither and thither, and the stately carriages with their aristocratic occupants attended by grooms in dashing livery, glide gracefully by and the much mixed up crowds on the sidewalks good-naturedly jostle and push each other along. The feat of crossing one of the busy thoroughfares is quite an enterprise in itself. You watch for a break in the line of vehicles then to the centre of the street, where there is a kind of safety spot formed by circular rows of iron posts, when this space gets full, which is does very quickly, the policeman raises his baton, interrupts traffic for a moment, and gives imprisoned pedestrians a chance to escape.

RUSH FOR ALL YOU ARE WORTH

It is ever thus from "early dawn to dewy eve." It takes quite a time and pretty careful attention to get to understand the street parlance of the conductors of the omnibuses. The pronunciation is peculiar, and they are incessantly calling out something. Another way of travelling which is interesting, by way of change, and when that is said it is about all there is to say in its favor—the underground railways. The lamp-light, smoke and dull appearance of everything make one very anxious to get up into the fresh air again. They contrast very unfavorably with the elevated railways of New York.

An interesting and enjoyable trip can be made in one of the Thames steamers.

We arrived in London on Saturday evening. The first enquiry on Sunday morning was for SPURGEON'S TABERNACLE.

Climbing up on top of an omnibus we went down Gray's Inn Road, over Blackfriar's Bridge and round to the right until we reached the plain, substantial, large stone edifice known as the Tabernacle. The members and regular attendants, with their friends, are admitted by ticket, and the general crowd later on. As the audience generally numbers from four to six thousand, there is considerable of a jam when the doors are thrown open. It is a mixed multitude. All nationalities and almost all creeds can be found there. The interior of the building is very plain—old-fashioned seats and two galleries. The pulpit is semi-circular, and on a level with the first gallery. Some orphan children and a few old people are seated on a raised platform just in front of it. The singing is led by a precentor, who stands beside the minister. When the vast audience rise and join in the sacred songs the effect is grand beyond all description. There is a pathos about the old Psalms—most probably from their being the purest, noblest and most sacred aspirations of the heart—unequalled by any other compositions.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

Were you to go along the banks of the River Clyde near Glasgow, you would see what looks like a forest of telegraph poles. When you get nearer you will find that these poles are used for holding up great metal ribs, something in the shape of very large horseshoes. It you watch the men you can see them rivetting great steel plates—shaped like large boards—to these iron ribs. In this way the hulk or body of the ship is built up. Some of these vessels are of great size, and weigh from 8,000 to 14,000 tons. It takes from 2,000 to 4,000 tons of coal to drive them across the ocean. They can carry thousands of people and any amount of goods. They are guided by a little instrument called a compass with hands on it something like a clock. The captain tells by the way the hand or dial points which way to go.

A Secret.

of good health is found in the regular movement of the bowels and perfect action of the Liver. These organs were intended by nature to remove from the system all impurities. If you are constipated, you offer a "standing invitation" to a family of diseases and irregularities which will be surely "accepted," and you will have guests unwelcome and undermined. All these unhappy conditions may be averted by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. Powerful for the effectual regulation of the bowels and Liver establishing a healthy action of the entire wonderful organism with which we are created. b

An Important Suit.

(From the Brockville Recorder.)

Messrs. Fulford & Co., of this town, manufacturers of Nasal Balm, and other proprietary remedies, have entered an action against Lawson & Jones, a firm of printers and box makers at London, Ont., for an alleged infringement of their Nasal Balm package. The damages are placed at $10,000. A similar action has been entered against a Peterborough druggist for selling the imitation preparation.

The cause of action may be briefly stated as follows: About two years ago Messrs. Fulford & Co. began the manufacture of a proprietary remedy known as Nasal Balm, a cure for cold in the head, and all forms of catarrh. That the medicine is one of great merit is amply evidenced by its large sale, and the rapidity with which it has won for itself a place as the most reliable catarrh cure in the market. It is well known that only successful articles—those having genuine merit and a wide sale—are considered worthy of imitation, and this holds true of Nasal Balm. No sooner had its great curative properties become known and its sale firmly established than imitators sprang up, ready to reap the profit on the strength of the merit of the original articles, and from the large expenditure of money its proprietors had made in advertising. Among these imitations is one known as Nasal Cream. Messrs Fulford & Co. claim that this imitation has been placed upon the market through the London printing firm against whom action is taken, and that the firm in question supplies dealers throughout the country with a package almost an exact fac simile of the original Nasal Balm, and quite close enough to lead any who are not thoroughly acquainted with the preparation to buy it, as being the well known Nasal Balm. In supplying these imitation boxes and labels, on the latter substituting the name of Nasal Cream for Nasal Balm, the printers also give the buyer several recipes for making alleged catarrh cures, and the dealer is thus equipped for carrying on a business with a preparation which he either palms off as the original or "just as good." With Messrs. Fulford & Co. patience has ceased to be a virtue and they are now taking steps to protect themselves, and have taken action for damages as above noted and also for an injunction to restrain any imitation of their package. We understand they intend instituting proceedings against all dealers who continue to sell an imitation of their Nasal Balm.

This is a matter in which the public is also deeply interested, and those who are so unfortunate as to require a remedy for cold in the head or catarrh, should see that they are not imposed upon by those imitations.

Care of the Hair.

To promote the growth of the hair and check its falling out, sage tea is not only a time honored remedy, but an excellent one. Where it fails it is usually from want of perseverance in its use. Ammonia and borax are commonly recommended nowadays for cleansing the scalp. Ammonia is a good stimulant, and a little of it may be used in the water for washing the head; but so much will make the hair dry and brittle, injure its color and inflame the scalp. The action of borax is more mild, but it, too, should be sparingly used. Neither should the hair be washed any oftener than is absolutely necessary for purposes of cleanliness. Frequent washing removes the natural oil from the hair, rendering it harsh, brittle, and increasing the tendency to split. Yolk of egg beaten in a little water is a good cleanser for the scalp. After washing the hair rinse it clean, then wipe as dry as possible with towels, and dry it by the fire. Never attempt to comb or brush it while still damp; wait till it has dried perfectly. Neither go out of doors or to bed with damp hair if you do not wish to take cold.

VICTIMS OF THE "SPOTTER."

Four Grand Trunk Conductors Suspended What was it For?

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—Three familiar ticket punchers have disappeared from the Hamilton branch of the Grand Trunk Railway and one from the main line of the Southern Division (Suspension Bridge to Windsor). Four well known passenger conductors have been suspended and considerable excitement has been created both here and in Toronto in railway circles.

he unfortunates are "Bob" Gilkinson of Toronto, Wm. McKay and Conductor Edmonson of Hamilton, and "Tom" Blunt of the main line. When a passenger conductor is suspended now-a-days he is very lucky if he ever finds out what it is for. "Spotters" have been watching the trains on the Hamilton branch for a considerable time. These informers, it is said, are bound to make some kind of a report against some one, and they are not over particular what that report is. It is rumored that the suspended conductors were charged with carrying some of their friends on their trains dead head.

Superintendent Skiff of the Southern Division was in Toronto yesterday and remained until the evening holding some kind of an investigation which may lead to some of the men being re-instated. Rumors were in circulation last evening that the whole Grand Trunk system was purposely picketed with spotters and that no less than twenty-three conductors had been suspended within a couple of weeks on the different divisions.

A Morrisburg Man Drowned.

MORRISBURG, Nov. 2.—Mr. M. G. Munro, a wealthy citizen of Morrisburg, was missing yesterday morning, not having been home Wednesday night. His hat was found floating in a flume leading from the canal to Gibson's mills, and on further search his body was discovered near the mills, the water having drawn it against the grating. He was seen late Wednesday night, and it is not known how the accident occurred. He had quite a large sum of money on his person, which was found on the body. The coroner did not consider an inquest necessary.

A Narrow Escape.

GUELPH, Nov. 2.—Yesterday morning as one of the clerks in Harvey & Co.'s hardware store was fitting some cartridges to a gun brought in by Mr. James Person, the pin, which was not in good order, rasped the priming of a cartridge and it went off, the ball making a big hole in the front plate glass window and shattered it badly. The glass was sufficiently heavy to scatter most of the bullet, and no further damage was done. Mr. Person was standing close by at the time and the bullet whizzed past his face. The window was fully insured.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMP'Y OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,873,777.69, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,207,600.00 insured under 1,840 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,969 for $14,081,377.69.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,331.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned is the report, over $1,000 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurance.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,011 21	$169,492 69	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	28,560 87	195,188 29	1,167,386 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,978 94	363,264 31	2,962,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 89	475,977 24	4,022,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,004 48	$10,873,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

Hunger was also very pressing, and as one or two of the number had managed when searched to secrete a little money—all the rest had been taken from us—we resolved to try to buy additional food. Accordingly Swims was asked if he would buy for us. He asked the guard, and, finding no objections, said: "Yes; you can buy, if you have the money." We had a very earnest consultation as to the form in which the money would go the furthest, and finally settled on wheat bread and molasses, as the latter was very cheap. The money was handed up in the evening, and we made great calculations on having a royal breakfast next morning —all we could eat! The time came, and we were more eager than usual for the lowering of the bucket, but when it was raised there was only the starving allowance of corn bread and spoiled pork! Some one called out: "Swims, how about the wheat bread and molasses?" He leaned over and said, in his slowest and most provoking tones: "B-o-y-s, I lost that money!" Could we have reached him, I am not sure that he would not have been lost also! It is hard to imagine how angry starving men could get under the circumstances. We called to the officer of the guard, who came to the trapdoor and heard our grievance, but only laughed at us, saying that if we trusted Swims with our money we would have to take the consequences. Fortunately we had not put quite all our funds on this one venture, and the officer tried his hand with better results; but the amount purchased was too small to be of any considerable benefit.

A very erroneous impression would be given the reader if he imagined that we spent our time here in nothing but helplessly bemoaning our misery. There were times when our situation seemed overwhelming; but usually we kept our minds busy during waking hours in telling stories, in speculating on the prospects of the war, or planning escape. We had no idea that the rebellion would last much longer; the great armies of McClellan and Halleck, we thought, would soon crush their opponents, and Mitchel would be upon Chattanooga, and thus deliver us from our horrible confinement. Could we live but a little longer the chances of deliverance were good.

We also talked much of home life and friends, and thus became really acquainted for the first time. Hitherto we had known little of each other; but now this interchange of thought and history brought us close together, and caused the hours to pass very much more pleasantly. We talked of future plans when we should be released from this place. We permitted no one to get downspirited. Had we been confined in solitude, the dread and foreboding would have been more terrible. But we made a league against fear and fretting.

Every precaution was taken to preserve our health that we might be able when there came a chance for escape. No one was allowed to stand so as to obstruct the ventilation through the wall holes; the exercise possible in such a limited space was taken; and the help and good will of all was a wonderful relief; but we needed every possible support.

When all of our party were brought into the prison we carefully reviewed the situation and ascertained how much the enemy had learned in regard to us. Most had already given names and regiments, and had claimed to be American soldiers. Nothing could be gained, therefore, by denying what we had done, or our true character. The first could be proved by those who saw us on the train, by our captors, or by our own admissions; the latter, so far from wishing to deny, was our only possible defense. We therefore resolved that we would say, when examined, that we had been appointed by our officers to serve under a man whom we had never seen, but whom we supposed to be an officer from some other regiment or brigade; that the nature of our service was not clearly made known to us further than it was to destroy some line of communications in the enemy's country; that we were in citizen's clothing only that we might not alarm the citizens among whom we were to travel; that we did not see any pickets of the enemy or pass them at any point; that we were in no camp; that we supposed our expedition to be within the rules of war and ourselves entitled to protection as prisoners of war; that we had obeyed Andrews as we considered ourselves bound in duty to do; and that if we made false representations, it was only what we were led to do by fear of discovery. We were not to say anything about Campbell being only a citizen; and were to refuse under all circumstances to tell who our engineer was.

Admitting that we were under the orders of Andrews would not in the least embarrass him, for this much could be proved from what he was actually seen to do on the train, and he had already declared as much when captured. But we never revealed anything that would throw light on his employment as a spy in our service. The story which we thus planned to tell was so closely adhered to that the enemy never learned that we were volunteers and intelligent participants in the enterprise.

None of us knew just the line of defense taken by Andrews, or upon what he based the hopes he did, certainly, to some extent, entertain; but the following is the most probable:

He was known to the southerners as a blockade runner. This trade, if he could only persuade the Federals to permit it, was of great advantage to the Confederates. He might afford to do a good deal for the Federals, and the balance of advantage be still on the Confederate side. Now he claimed that he was offered by Gen. Mitchel, who greatly wanted an engine, the privilege of trading south to the extent of $5,000 per month as long as the war lasted, on the simple condition that he would seize an engine and carry it through, he (Mitchel) supplying the men for the enterprise. Andrews did disclaim to the enemy that he intended to burn any bridges, or do any harm beyond the comparatively trifling one of carrying off this engine.

The defense was but feeble, though it was possibly as good as could be made under the circumstances. But the enemy had no notion that a Federal general like Mitchel would send his men away down to the heart of Georgia for an engine, when, as experience showed, he had been able to get them by the score in Kentucky and Alabama.

No decision had been publicly rendered, when suddenly twelve of us were ordered to Knoxville, Tenn. Our parting with Andrews was sad and solemn, for we had little hope of meeting again, and our worst forebodings were realized. Before this we had been removed to Madison, Ga., under fear of an advance by Gen. Mitchel; and when we returned the great indulgence of a short daily airing in the jail yard was given. On a warm afternoon, when the remaining nine were in the yard, an unknown officer entered the gate and went quickly up to Andrews; without a word he handed him a paper contained in a large envelope, and turning away walked rapidly out of the yard. Andrews broke the seal and glanced at it, turning pale as marble. It was his death warrant! All who saw him felt that some tidings of evil had arrived, and the officer of the guard spoke very gently as he told them that it was now time to retire to their rooms. When there, Andrews gave his comrades the paper and they read the fearful intelligence. In one week—July 7—he was to be executed by hanging! This was Saturday, and on the Saturday following he was to die!

BANKER MASCETTA'S HEARING.

The Prisoner Threatened by an Excited Crowd of Swindled Italians.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Italians packed the hearing room at the second district station house when Magistrate Lelar called the case of E. Lorenzo Mascetta, the partner of Banker Castelnuovo, who absconded with the savings of many of his countrymen and is now on the high seas bound for Antwerp. Mascetta was in business with Castelnuovo since February. It was not believed that Mascetta was concerned in the robbery of the depositors, but when the flight of the senior partner was made public it spread like wildfire and stirred up wild excitement in the Italian quarter about Carpenter-street.

A dozen frenzied Italians who has suffered the loss of their savings threatened to murder Mascetta. His arrest was demanded and he was locked up on a warrant sworn out by Gaetano Del Bene di Faco. When Mascetta was brought into the hearing room before Magistrate Lelar the crowd got excited and began to swear at the prisoner in strong Italian sentences and shake their clenched fists at him, but policemen kept the mob back from Mascetta. When Faco had told, through a good-looking interpreter, how he had deposited $40 with the firm on Oct. 15 and was unable to get it back he produced a bank book with the entry marked in it on that day.

After nineteen other men had testified that they had put their savings in charge of the bankers and had been swindled, Magistrate Lelar held Mascetta in $500 bail to answer at court the charge of embezzlement. A man was ready to go his bail, but the mob was again boiling with rage and Lawyer Keely, who represented Mascetta, thought it best that his client be not released. The police drove the mob out of the station house, but the defrauded Italians and their friends stood around the station house in groups watching the entrance for over an hour.

In the afternoon Magistrate Lelar's office on Third-street, near German, was overflowing with Italians. Vincenzo Minocenzo swore that he gave over $100 to Mascetta to send to Minocenzo's father and mother in Italy and that he had appropriated the money. He said he expected to prove that the defunct bankers had embezzled nearly $2000, representing the hard-earned savings of almost forty men and women. Another warrant was issued against Mascetta on Minocenzo's charge. While Magistrate Lelar was issuing the warrant Dom Salvati, of Wilbertha, N. J., was swearing out a capias in the Prothonotary's office against Mascetta in a civil action to recover his lost money.

A Coming Rise in Coal.

The price of coal is being raised at Buffalo, Toronto, and other places, and a similar rise will soon follow here. Prices in Toronto are $6.25 and $6.50, while in Peterborough they are $6.50 and $6.75. The EXAMINER had a chat with a local dealer this morning and was informed that there is a certain prospect of a big advance in prices here. It is expected coal will soon bring $7 a ton retail.

An Accident.

This morning eight men were shifting a large steel plate at the bridge works, and in putting it down the edge fell upon Mr. Logesnick's foot, nearly severing the great toe. Only the thickness of his boot saved it from being taken clean off. Dr. Fife was summoned and dressed the wounds.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

Celebrated Lecturers.

The united trades and labor organizations of Peterborough are negotiating to bring a couple of famous lecturers to Peterborough this season. Mrs. Barry, the great woman advocate of labor, who visited Toronto last winter, will, it is expected, address a meeting in behalf of the workingmen of the town during the fall or winter, and about the end of the year it is probable that Henry George, the well known advanced political economist, will also visit Peterborough. He proposes starting on a lecture tour of Canada after the Presidential elections are over.

A Sanitary Complaint.

"Any news to day?" asked the EXAMINER of a well-known citizen this morning, and to this stereotyped salutation the gentleman opened out on a question of sanitation that he claimed was an important matter. "Now I believe in a short time we shall have much another trouble occurred Toronto as while ago when the city sewers emptied into the bay and made it a breeding place for all sorts of disease. That place down at the foot of King street is a regular pond that will in a short time be a filthy cesspool unless the sewage is emptied elsewhere. This ought to force on the question of a complete sewerage system for the town."

Anti-Scott Act Cider.

It is asserted that farmers selling cider on the market square are liable to the pains and penalties provided for infraction of the Scott Act. There is, however, no penalty for selling the best make of boots and shoes at less than half wholesale cost, as is done every hour of the day at gough bros.', the wonderful cheap men, 375 gorge street. Every new customer—and every customer needs a new one to gough's—every new customer is delightfully astonished at the magnificent bargains to be found in gough bros.' $7,000 stock of boots and shoes. The prices are genuine surprises—such as the people like. When you want tip top boots and shoes at bit-bottom prices go to gough bros.'

A Glass Factory for Port Hope.

Port Hope town council has entered into an agreement with Mr. Richard Davis, of Montreal, a practical glass manufacturer, for the establishment of a glass factory there for the making of jars, bottles, lamps, etc. The town gives him a 99 year lease of the vacant lots south of the viaduct and east of the railway tracks, with ten years' exemption from taxes, and agrees to construct thereon a frame building 60x70 feet. Mr. Davis proposes to form a co-operative association composed chiefly of glass-blowers in England, whom he would bring out here, the capital stock to be at least $50,000. The company will supply the machinery at a cost of about $27,000, and will employ 500 hands, with a weekly pay-roll of $7,000. The proposed works are expected to be in operation early in January next.

Their New Bills.

The local branch of the Ontario Bank today put into circulation their new issue of $5 and $10 bills. These will be followed by 20's and 50's; the 100's of the old issue will continue in use. Everything about these bills is of the finest description, and the main object sought in the engraving is protection against forgery, alteration or "raising." The designs of each of the bills is different, and the paper used is the best made. The new bills were engraved by the American Bank Note Company, of New York. The colors are supposed to be impossible of being photographed, and it is said the yellow ink used in engraving these bills cost $1,000 per pound. The predominating colors are green, red and yellow, harmoniously blended, while, as usual, portraits of faces are included in the design, for the reason that a face cannot be successfully copied. On the 5 is a centre vignette containing a portrait of Tecumseth, with Agriculture and the Goddess of Fortune on either side; on the 10 is an allegorical representation of Commerce, with smaller vignettes on the sides. The backs of both bills are a mass of tracery in red and green. The bills are a triumph of the engraver's art, and a very handsome issue, indeed.

Champions of the District.

That honesty is the best policy to pursue even in lacrosse matters the Riversides, of Peterborough, can now vouch for. The dishonest tactics of all the other clubs that comprised the north-eastern district in the C.L.A. series have been the means of their expulsion, and the Riversides are left champions of the district. All summer the home club contended against teams from other towns made up largely of "ringers" or professional players, but even under those circumstances had a record of 50 per cent, or a tie in games won and lost. In the final draw they were defeated by Orillia at Lindsay, but an immediate protest was entered against several of their opponents on the ground that they were professionals. Nothing was done with this by the C.L.A. committee, and Orillia played in Toronto against the other intermediate clubs, and came out ahead. Ferrus entered a protest against them, and this, with the protest of the Riversides, was the means of their suspension from the Association, leaving Peterborough champions of the district. This matter was decided at a meeting of the council of the C. L. A. at Hamilton yesterday. Mr. C. J. Phelan, secretary of the Riversides, pushed the matter and has succeeded in having an honorable and sportsmanlike course vindicated. In the Central District, Brampton was also suspended and the Young Torontos declared district champions. The charges against Ferrus were postponed till Nov. 6th, and if they are upheld, and it is found that the final tag for the intermediate championship of the province will have to be held over again, the play-off will occur on Nov. 15th. The Riversides may yet have to do battle for championship honors with the Young Torontos. The winners of this match are eligible to enter in the senior championship series next season.

The Drama.

As a usual thing sensational dramas of the blood-and-thunder type, are ruthlessly slaughtered by the class of companies that play them, with the result that beyond a waste of blank cartridges for the evident purpose of frightening nervous women and children, and a superfluity of the tall talk and braggadocio such as miners and desperadoes of the west are supposed to indulge in, there is very little of its original composition recognizable. Consequently this style of drama is in ill repute just now. But the good sized audience that witnessed the presentation of "Dot; or the Avenger's Oath," at the opera house last night were agreeably surprised at the refined nature of the entertainment they witnessed. And the company was a good one all through, every character being well taken. When such a troupe visits Peterborough it becomes a pleasure to speak a word in their behalf. There was a great deal of shooting done, the keen blades of monstrous bowie knives flashed in the lights and blood was supposed to run thick on the stage, but a redeeming feature was the quaint good-nature of Jakey and Dot. These two furnished the comedy element, and well they did it. Miss Bindley was a clever little hoydea to her friends and an implacable spit-fire to her enemies. As Jacob Galoot, the fat, lazy, overgrown Yankee, Otis Turner excelled. James Horne made a fascinating dual character as Deadwood Jack, and afterwards the twin-brother Ned Carly who avenges the farmer's death. The other characters were all good. A charming feature of the play was the introduction of the two well trained Russian wolf-hounds, and Miss Bindley's musical performance on glass goblets. Her singing and dancing, particularly the latter, also took immensely. Altogether the comedy-drama was given a pleasing rendition throughout, though many considered the prices too high. Mr. Ed. Redford as David Jenkins made a happy hit.

NEVER BETTER, never cheaper—is what Kidd can say of his goods at The Pantry.

Ashburnham Brevities.

Street Inspector Craig and a gang of men are busy laying a new sidewalk in front of the residence of Mr. J. C. Sullivan, on Robinson street.

Mr. A. Ingram, tax collector, is on his rounds again. He says people who live in luxury all the rest of the year are almost destitute when he calls.

Another dog case has come to light. It appears that a neighbor's dog, rather addicted to epicurean habits, visited a poultry yard and killed five of the best pullets, and contented himself with carrying one away. The owner has put in a bill for five dollars and the death of the dog besides.

The regular meeting of St. Luke's Young Men's Literary Guild was held last night in St. Luke's school room. The Rev. Geo. Warren occupied the chair. After routine business, Dr. Clarke read a paper on Vaccination. He went into the origin and the effects of vaccination very minutely and gave statistics showing the good results which followed this practice. The attendance was very good and the audience appreciated his remarks very highly. A vote of thanks was tendered the Doctor. The next meeting takes place on the 15th inst., the subject being impromptu speaking by the members.

Never, in the history of this village, did Hallowe'en pass off so quietly as it did this year. The boys seemed to have concentrated all their thoughts to quiet amusement at home. It is not known whether the boys enjoy this higher civilization or not, but it facilitates matters a good deal for those who have any loose gates or portables of any kind.

Principal Rooney has introduced a new feature into the play ground of the school, namely, foot-ball, and by the enthusiasm created among the boys, must afford a great source of enjoyment. There is no doubt but that physical and mental culture should go hand in hand.

An Otonabee farmer came into town on foot yesterday, and, getting into some jovial company, imbibed rather too freely. He started for home about dusk, and was found, a couple of hours afterwards, embracing a shade tree in the south end of the village. When asked what was wrong, he answered by saying that his heels had an uncontrollable desire to fly up, and to keep them in subjection he was holding on.

The villagers would like to know why there are not more electric lights placed on the streets. There should, at least, be three additional lights, one on Lake street, one opposite the Erskine estate property, and one somewhere south of St. Luke's rectory. The cost would not be much and the convenience would be great. Who will move in the matter? But election time is coming on and everyone must keep mum about expense.

Mr. Willie Scott, of the firm of Scott & Hogg, egg dealers, has moved from Stewart street to the large brick residence on Lake street, belonging to the Chamberlen estate.

Mr. Peter Glover is improving the front of his property.

It was a pleasure to see the genial face of Mr. J. J. Leady back again. He looks quite refreshed after his trip.

The machinery in the Otonabee roller mills was set in motion this morning, and was found to run in first-class order.

—Except the tuck-pointing, the exterior of the Snowden hotel is finished. A new walk has been laid in front of the hotel, and two dainty little lawns, nicely sodded, on each side of the main entrance, give the place an exceedingly tasty appearance.

—There were two small social gatherings in two residences alongside each other on Smithtown hill last night. Three young gentlemen invited to one place, noticing the other house ablaze with light, mistook it for their intended destination, and entering got as far as the dressing room before they became aware of their mistake. They beat a precipitate retreat and moved on to the next house very crestfallen.

Personal.

Mr. Jas. Saulter, of Toronto, has been in town for the past few days.

Mr. Roberts, representing Messrs. Foley & Ruse, manufacturers and inventors of match magazines and matches, is in town placing these very handy machines on the market here. The company have a magazine and match factory in Bowmanville, Ont., and Davenport, Iowa. Four hundred and seventy-five hands are employed in the Iowa factory, and one hundred at Bowmanville.

The Gymnasium.

Brockbank gymnasium on Brock street is rapidly becoming an accomplished fact. The work of renovating and remodelling the interior is progressing, and already in one of the departments horizontal and parallel bars, swinging rings and a ladder have been put up. Last night the place swarmed with boys and young men who eargerly availed themselves of the opportunity of getting some athletic exercise for nothing. The gymnasium promises to be a success judging from the enthusiasm manifested. Last night there was a large attendance at Sergt.-Major Randle's lecture on Physical Culture. About sixty persons have subscribed their names as intending members, and a few have paid up as per agreement beforehand. Mr. Randle plainly stated to those who wished to have the gymnasium established that he would require their subscription fees in advance, as quite an amount of ready capital would be required to start the concern and pay initial expenses. A great many, however, have so far neglected to pay up, and the Sergt.-Major would consider it a favor if they would do so at once. In fact, unless they do so, further progress must be stopped. Material must be purchased and men paid for their labor, and all this requires a deal of ready money. But Mr. Randle is enthusiastic and confident that the gymnasium will be a success, and after it is once firmly established there will be no further trouble.

Sleigh Robes and Horse Clothing.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, 137 Hunter street, has a splendid stock of robes and horse clothing, bought in the best markets for cash, permitting him to offer specially good bargains to the public in these lines. These robes are extra good value, the best ever offered by Mr. Devlin, and equal to anything ever brought to the town. All persons thinking of buying new robes and wanting the best at the most reasonable prices, will not do themselves justice if they do not examine Devlin's robes before doing their buying. Come and see for yourself, and also admire the splendid line of horse clothing in stock. No shoddy; all first-class goods, and sold at low prices. Be sure and make a call at 137 Hunter street, opposite the post office, when you want anything really first-class in the line of harness, horse clothing, robes, trunks or valises. 6-12w

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

HOW ITS DONE.

Wyatt & Turner are the closest crankest old fools that live by labor to offer goods for the sake of cheating poor men. Their prices beat all others in town for extravagance and expense. Don't trade with Wyatt & Turner if you want bargains. if you want to be cheated out of your reckoning go to Wyatt & Turner's, and you will regret it—As long as you live, you will go any distance rather than buy the shoddy things kept on sale of buyers. COMING CABINET CHANGES

NEXT SESSION THE LAST FOR MINISTERS CARLING AND POPE.

The Former to Go to the Senate and the Latter to Retire from Politics—Their Probable Successors.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—It is pretty generally understood here that the coming session will be the last in the House for two of the Ministers, Hon. John Carling and Hon. J. H. Pope, the former of whose will probably go to the Senate and the latter, whose health is seriously impaired, will retire from politics altogether.

Mr. Carling's successor as Minister of Agriculture will be Mr. Peter White of Renfrew, who for a number of years has been chairman of the Committee on Immigration.

Who will enter the Cabinet as Mr. Pope's successor in the representation of the English-speaking people of the Province of Quebec it is not so easy to say, as there is a three-cornered fight going on between Messrs. Coby of Stanstead, Hall of Sherbroke and Ives of Richmond and Wolfe, but from the latter being Mr. Pope's son-in-law he is likely to have the inside track.

A reply was sent by the Minister of Railways and Canals yesterday to the Montreal Corn Exchange with reference to the resolution adopted a few days ago that when the break in the Cornwall Canal is repaired grain-laden vessels be given the right of way over all other craft and that the mills be compelled to shut down until the close of navigation. It is understood that the reply states that every possible effort will be made to expedite the forwarding of all detained vessels the moment the break is repaired, but does not promise that any preference will be given to grain-laden vessels or that the mills will be required to shut down. It is known that there are vessels waiting at Montreal for deals as well as grain, and it does not appear advisable that there should be any discrimination. It is confidently expected that the break will be repaired by to-night, when the detained craft will begin to move down. Day and night gangs are on duty and leakage will be continuous until all the delayed vessels have been passed down. An officer of the department states that it is expected the canal can be cleared in about two days.

The British North American Bank Note Company's building at the corner of Wellington and Kent-streets is nearly completed, and it is expected that the transfer of the Company from Montreal to Ottawa will be made in about six weeks. The company prints all Dominion notes, postage and other stamps, etc., and one of the conditions of its last contract was that the company should do its work at the capital. The building which is being erected for it should have been occupied last May, but as it was mostly put up during last winter and the work was inferior, part of it fell in the spring and the greater portion had to be taken down and rebuilt. The company will employ about 100 hands.

Messrs. Smith & Keigley, proprietors of the steamship Campana, have written from Owen Sound to the Customs Department to demand a refund of $40, which they say the customs authorities compelled them to pay for the escape of a Chinaman in bond. They say that the Chinaman was in the custody of the Customs at the time of his escape, and that they are therefore not liable. It appears, however, that the Customs officers are not to meddle with Chinamen in bond but that the railway company must pay a forfeit if they escape. The department is making inquiries.

The Department of Agriculture is advised that the Mormon settlement in the Northwest is rapidly increasing. The immigrants are bringing in large quantities of cattle.

Sir John Thompson left for New York yesterday afternoon on a short visit.

The writ for East Northumberland has been issued. Nomination takes place on the 14th and polling on the 20th inst. Mr. David Ewing, of Warkworth, is the returning officer.

NOTICES FROM THE GAZETTE.

The Judicial Appointments—The Middleton Divorce Case.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—To-day's Canada Gazette contains the appointments of Judge Patterson and Maclennan and also of Hon. H. G. Malhiot, Q. C., to be Puisne Judge of the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec.

Gormally and Sinclair, solicitors for W. H. Middleton, publish the second report of the Divorce Committee of the Senate in the Middleton case of last season. This report is to the effect that if three months' notice is given to Mr. Middleton's solicitors and the report published for three months in The Canada Gazette the case may be taken up next year where it was left last session.

Seven notices are given by the Registrar of the Supreme Court of expropriation of land in connection with the Cape Breton Railway.

Notice is given of application for an act incorporating a company to build a railway from Victoria to Shoal Harbor, to connect there with a ferry to the mainland, and to construct a railway on the mainland to connect with the Canadian Pacific and United States railways.

Notice is given of application for letters patent to incorporate the Woodburn-Sarven Wheel Company, to manufacture wooden wheels, etc., with headquarters at St. Catharines and a capital of $3,000.

The Standard and Quebec Banks give notice of a semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent.

Supplementary letters patent have been issued to the Blair Diamond Steamship Company, reducing the capital from $500,000 to $300,000.

Attacked by a Bull.

FERGUS, Nov. 3.—James McCrone of Luther had a narrow escape from being killed by a bull. Instead of the stick commonly used, the animal was simply led by a rope attached to the ring in its nose, and when it reached the yard it made a plunge and attacked Mr. McClone. To avoid the bull's horns the man got a short hold of the rope, holding himself close to the brute's nose. In this way he was dragged and buffeted about for twenty minutes, at one time being caught on the animal's horns and hoisted into an adjoining field, the bull following and renewing the attack before his victim could rise. Mr. McCrone's cries brought assistance and the animal was secured. Several of the victim's ribs were broken.

Mere Fiction.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt writes that at the proper time he will take steps to contradict Captain O'Shea's statement in material particulars. He says some of O'Shea's statements were mere fictions.

THE CROSSING QUESTION.

BEFORE THE RAILWAY COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

The Case Presented by Solicitor Clark—Text of the Question Submitted to the Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The Railway Committee of the Privy Council met yesterday morning for the purpose of hearing counsel in the matter of the crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Pembina branch by the Portage branch of the Red River Valley Railway. Hon. J. H. Pope, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir John Thompson and Hon. John Carling were present.

Mr. G. M. Clark, solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, said that he had prepared a case for submission to the Supreme Court, which he had handed to Mr. Gormally, agent for Attorney-General Martin. Thursday he received from Attorney-General Martin a short letter with the case with modifications which he would be glad to have adopted. The case, as submitted by Attorney-General Martin, was almost entirely different from that submitted by him. The principal change in the case, as he, (Mr. Clark) submitted it, was as to whether the act of Manitoba was valid and effectual so as to confer authority to cross the southwest branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Attorney-General Martin in his case wished to question the validity of certain clauses of the Railway Act, but Mr. Clark contended against enlarging the question in that way.

Mr. Gormally said he had no power to consent to any change in the case as submitted by Attorney-General Martin. It would be for the committee to decide how far they would allow the proposals in the case submitted by Mr. Martin. He argued that the application was to cross the Manitoba and Southwestern Railway, and until they wished to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the question of whether a railway chartered by the Provincial Legislature could do so did not arise. So far no application had been made for permission to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but application had been made to cross the two branches mentioned.

After some further argument counsel retired and the committee deliberated for some time and finally decided to submit the following case to the Supreme Court:

Case under Chapter 5 of the Statutes of Manitoba passed on the thirtieth day of April, 1888.

The Railway Commissioner of that province is constructing a railway known as the Portage extension of the Red River Valley Railway from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie, both places being within the Province of Manitoba, and he has made application to the Railway Committee of the Privy Council of Canada, under Section 179 of the Railway Act of 1888 (Canada) for the approval of the place at which and the mode by which it is proposed that the said Portage extension should cross the Pembina branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway (the said branch being part of the Canadian Pacific Railway) at a point within the said province.

After hearing the parties interested and at the instance of counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the following question is submitted by the Railway Committee for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada, under the provisions of Section 199 of the Railway Act of 1888:

Is the said statute of Manitoba in view of the provisions of Chapter 109 Revised Statutes of Canada, particularly Section 121 thereof and in view of the Railway Act of 1888, particularly Sections 306 and 7, valid and effectual so as to confer authority on the Railway Commissioner in said Province of Manitoba mentioned to construct a railway as the said Portage extension of the Red River Valley Railway, crossing the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Railway Committee first approving of the method, place of crossing, and first giving directions as to the matters mentioned in sections 174, 175 and 176 of the said Act, or any of them?

It is expected that the Supreme Court will consider the case at once.

ALL QUIET AT FORT WHYTE.

The Military Still on Guard—Vigilance on Both Sides Unrelaxed.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—Telegrams from Fort Whyte say all is quiet there. The military is still on guard and the Canadian Pacific Railway is not relaxing vigilance. The Government is evidently awaiting a favorable opportunity to get a locomotive over the crossing. A mile of track has been laid west of the Canadian Pacific Railway and ties strung along for several miles.

The letter regarding maximum rates between Winnipeg and Duluth, hitherto withheld from the public, appears in yesterday's Call. It is written by President Oakes, of the Northern Pacific, to Premier Greenway, and is marked "Confidential." It says rates by the new road to Dulut shall not be higher than the Canadian Pacific Railway's to Port Arthur, and local and through rates shall be fair and reasonable. The division of rates between the several lines shall be upon the basis of a pro rata per mile of actual distance.

Hon. Edward Blake passed through to the east last night.

THE GALT NYSTERY.

A Further Adjournment of the Inquest—Examining Druggists' Books.

GALT, Nov. 3.—The coroner's inquest in the poisoning case was resumed again last night, and further adjourned until Nov. 20, there being no evidence to take. Detective Murray was present, but any new clues that he may be working upon were not made public. The mystery appears to be as far from solution as ever.

Looking for a Clue.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—Detective Murray was in the city yesterday examining all the druggists' books for registers of sales of poison about the time of the Galt murder.

Fire at Niagara.

NIAGARA, Ont., Nov. 3.—The stone house of John Muir, farmer, Niagara township, was destroyed, together with its contents, by fire Thursday night. Mr. Muir and his family barely escaped with their lives. The loss is about $2000; no insurance. The fire originated from the chimney.

Lost the Season's Crop.

JARVIS, Nov. 2.—The barns and drive house of John Edwards, fourth concession of Walpole, containing all the season's crops and also a threshing machine belonging to J. McCarthy, were consumed by fire at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Sparks from the threshing engine are said to be the cause. The loss is $2000; insurance $1000.

Fire at Homburg.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Koopman's schlachthaus at Homburg was damaged by fire yesterday to the extent of 850,000 marks. The stock was saved.

Balfour Jubilant.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Mr. Balfour addressed a Liberal-Unionist conference at Wolverhampton yesterday. He was jubilant over the Conservative victories in the municipal elections and said they proved that Unionism was progressing. The Unionists were defeating the Obadstonians even in strong holds of that party like Leeds. He said the policy of the Government was winning all along the line. Crime in Ireland, Mr. Balfour said, had been reduced almost to the level of 1851. He thought the outcry over evictions was absurd. Over 10,000 persons were evicted in New York yearly without comment.

THE WEST LETTER.

A California Paper Publishes What It Claims are the Real Facts.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 3.—The Times of this city, the paper that first printed the Lord Salisbury letter to the Pomona enquirer, publishes what the editor claims are the real facts connected with the Murchison-West correspondence. Says The Times: "Information has been gathered directly from the few persons who are on the inside and possessed of all the facts in the case. The idea of writing the letter to Minister West originated with Murchison himself in the latter part of August or early in September. He is a reputable citizen of Pomona, in this county, and is of English parentage. The conception of the letter was his thought. He consulted a confidential friend in its preparation. He said at the outset and before sending the letter that the object was not to perpetrate a joke or gratify curiosity, but to get Minister West's opinion on the topics embraced in the letter.

"Murchison's letter was dated Sept. 4 and West's answer Sept. 13. The Minister's letter was received at Pomona Sept. 20, and kept by the receiver till Oct. 19, a full month, when it was brought to Los Angeles by W. A. Bell, the City Attorney of Pomona, and laid before W. P. Fitzgerald, a member of the State Republican Committee; Henry G. Gage, delegate-at-large at the Chicago convention; Harrison Gray Otis, the editor of The Los Angeles Times, and one other local candidate. They saw the importance of the West letter in a political point of view, and it was unanimously determined by the persons present to make the letter public without delay, which was done. The date of the first publication here was Oct. 21."

UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

Mr. Herbert Appointed Charge d'Affaires at Washington.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Hon. Michael Henry Herbert has been appointed British Charge d'Affaires at Washington. Lord Sackville will come to England immediately on leave of absence. It is understood that the Government will allow his case to rest until after the presidential election.

Imported for the Ex-Minister.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The Treasury Department has authorized the free entry of a silver service, valuable clocks and other household articles recently imported at Baltimore for Lord Sackville, the ex-British Minister. This is in accordance with the privileges accorded the resident ministers of all foreign countries. These articles arrived several days ago on a steamer from England, and on being notified of their arrival the British Minister made application through the Secretary of State for their entry free of duty. This application was received at the Treasury Department on Tuesday last, the very day on which the President informed Lord Sackville of the severance of their official relations. A letter was sent to the Collector of Customs at Baltimore yesterday, authorizing the free entry of the goods.

NEWS OF STANLEY.

His Expedition Met by Arab Traders in November Last Year.

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 3.—Couriers from Labora bring direct news from the Stanley expedition, a portion of which was met at the end of November, 1887, by Arabs trading between Lakes Victoria Nyanza and Naige and Tabora. These Arabs met Stanley's rear guard at a point west of Albert Nyanza and south-east of Sanga, just as the expedition was preparing to cross swamps caused by the inclination of the streams that abound in that country. The Arabs did not see Stanley. The detachment seen consisted of 50 men. They stated that Stanley was two days ahead. The expedition had suffered greatly on the march through a thick forest, where it was impossible to advance more than 1½ miles daily. They has suffered in the marshes where many had disappeared or died. Forty were drowned in crossing a great river flowing from east to west. One white man had died. Stanley was obliged to fight some tribes that refused to supply him with provisions.

The expedition had often halted in the expectation of receiving reinforcements from the Congo. The rear guard at the time met had only been on the march five days after a halt of three weeks due to the illness of Stanley and a great part of the escort who had been attacked with fever.

The Arabs estimated the total strength of the expedition after all losses at 250 men. The health of Stanley was then good. The rear guard, which consisted of natives of Zanzibar, stated that Stanley had decided that he would no longer advance in a northeasterly direction but would strike toward the north hoping to avoid the swamps. After getting a certain distance north he intended to take an oblique line to the eastward and go straight to Wadelai where it was thought he would arrive, 50 days later, about the middle of January, 1889. The Arabs were of the opinion that the expedition was still strong enough to reach Wadelai.

It will be remembered that on Aug. 1 information was received from Zanzibar that two messengers had arrived there who had left the interior about the beginning of April and who reported that Stanley had not arrived at Wadelai up to that time. The messengers stated that in the month of March Emin Pasha did receive some vague and indecisive news of the explorer which had filtered through from tribe to tribe but that the reports were very conflicting. Some declared that Stanley, after losing a number of men and a large portion of his supplies, was hemmed in by hostile tribes between the Matooka country and the Albert Nyanza, while other rumors were to the effect that he had been attacked by the tribes in the Matongora-Mins district, and after several conflicts had diverted his course in an unknown direction.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

TRADE INTERRUPTED BY THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

A Revival of Business Anticipated After Nov. 6—Funds Easier—Collections Improved—Lumber and Cotton Lower.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The excitement and distractions common to the week preceding election day have served to interrupt the distribution of staple articles at many points, the only reported exception of note being at Boston. Word is received, however, from almost all points that merchants, irrespective of party, look confidently to a revival immediately following Nov. 6, and a continuance of an active general trade throughout the season.

The Louisiana rice crop is estimated at 625,000 bags of rough. The sugar yield in that state is said to be disappointing, but in other general trade throughout the lower Mississippi Valley is more brisk since the crop began to move.

The advance in the price of boots and shoes urged by New England manufacturers has not been realized.

Collections northwest have improved and greater ease is announced in the Central Western and the Southern States. Funds are growing easier at all centers, and even those at which the heaviest drafts were made from the great agricultural regions now get a returning current of more ready funds than are in demand at the moment. Stock speculation at New York is stagnant, prices declined at first on bearish manipulation, but recovered strength later on. Money at New York is in slack demand, call loans 2½ to 3 per cent. Foreign exchange is dull and slightly stronger, demand, sterling $4.87½ to $4.87¾.

Our report of stocks of wheat out of farmers' hands east of the Rocky Mountains, covering nearly 1000 points of accumulation, shows 44,518,000 bushels, and on the Pacific coast 5,736,000 bushels, an increase for the country within a month (stimulated by higher prices) of 7,685,000 bushels. The total thus reported is about 9,000,000 bushels less than was held a year ago. Wheat flour stocks aggregate 1,761,000 barrels, an increase of 75 per cent. since Oct. 1. Exports of wheat declining heavily on the Pacific coast, the total shipped as wheat is only 582,800 bushels, as against 1,072,000 bushels last week. Including flour as wheat the total shipped is 1,342,814 bushels of wheat, against 1,827,346 bushels last week. The Atlantic coast ports shipped only 46,000 bushels of wheat, but about 186,000 barrels of flour. July 1 to date the total wheat and flour exports aggregate 46,940,000 bushels, against 57,008,000 bushels in a like portion of 1887.

The favorable weather has stimulated dry goods some, notably at Boston. There has been a fair inquiry for cotton goods at first hands, prices of wool remain very firm and there is a moderate activity at leading eastern towns. Eastern mills are taking fair quantities for consumption, stocks are not heavy and the impression is widespread that prices are likely to hold firm with a probability of an advance during the summer.

Free offerings of raw sugars, new crop Brazil and Demerara and European beet root product at terms ½ and ⅛ more favorable to purchasers, result in an increased movement. Refined sugars are off 1-16 and ⅛ on moderate inquiry and more urgent offerings. Coffee has not been active and prices are ⅛ lower on fair invoices. Brazil port stocks and arrivals are increasing.

There has been a somewhat increased business in iron, but prices are not changed. Twelve new southern furnaces will compete for northern and western trade during the winter. Negotiations for steel rails have been checked by the absence of cash offers.

Another Big Railway Deal.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3.—The weekly circular of John A. Hambelton & Co., bankers, of this city, says to-day: There are some mysterious whisperings going the rounds regarding a possible deal between the Baltimore and Ohio and Richmond and West Point Terminal Company. The rumors have taken no definite shape nor have they been traced to a responsible source, nevertheless it is intimated that a deal is on foot between the B. & O. and Terminal, and it has even been suggested that the B. & O. might fall into the hands and under the control of the Terminal Company.

A Youthful Boodler.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—Yesterday on balancing bank accounts, the Bodman tobacco warehouse found a forged check for $5000 in each of three banks. The checks in each case were endorsed by Charles Tinkler, collector for the warehouse, who received the money. Tinkler was only 19 years old and left the warehouse about the last of September to get higher wages as assistant to a bookmaker at the races. His employers think he was the dupe of experienced criminals. The boy is missing.

Carried off After Sixty Years' Repose.

NEWMARKET, Nov. 3.—There has reposed for upwards of sixty years in the upper department of the postoffice here an old, time-honored copper still, which had been used in the early days of the country for making whisky when huge distilleries were unknown, and when drugged liquors were not thought of. Thursday a couple of Inland Revenue officers hoarried it off in the name of the Queen.

Fatal Railway Accident.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 3.—Near Hopewell, Pa., to-day several miners when riding on a hand car on the Sandy Run branch of the Huntington and Broad Top Mountain Railway were thrown from the car by a train. Sam. Hastings was killed, Martin Maher had his skull crushed and seven others were seriously injured.

Too Much Apple and Whipstocks.

HAGERSVILLE, Nov. 3.—A cow belonging to R. C. Tye of this place got an apple stuck in its throat. Mr. Tye thought that he could push it down with a whipstock, but the cow did not like to be treated in such a way, and gave a jerk and broke off about a foot in her throat. The animal had to be killed.

OTONABEE FLOUR MILLS.

Repaired, Remodelled, and Completely Equipped.

Results of the Work of the Past Three Months—The Renewed Mills now in Running Order—Unexcelled in the District—A Credit to the Proprietors and Managers.

The EXAMINER on Friday afternoon made a tour of inspection of the renewed Otonabee flour mills in Ashburnham, in company with Mr. Jas. A. McGill, head miller for Mr. Mulhern, manager, who pointed out the repairs and improvements that had been made. The mill is an old established one, and has of late years been possessed by the Dickson estate. This summer Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, the Manager, decided to overhaul and completely remodel the old premises and build extensive additions, calculated to make the mill one unexcelled in the district. Since early in June the work has been going on and so complete has the transformation been that the old building is scarcely recognizable. An idea of the extent of the repairs made can be gained from the intimation that fully or over $20,000 has been expended on it. The renewed mills stand to day one of the largest and best equipped in the district, with a capacity for 250 bbls. of flour a day—a monument to the enterprise and go-ahead-itiveness of Mr. Hazlitt, the Manager of the Dickson company, and of Mr. Mulhern, the business-like lessee, under whose hands the mills have flourished for the past three years.

OF THE OLD BUILDING

only the walls and roof (and this re-shingled) remain. The floors were taken out, new joists and timber put in, new machinery of the latest patterns supplied, and a large and massive elevator erected on the east side. The old building was 40x60, and four stories in height, and the new elevator building is 32x60 in dimensions and 85 feet in height. The two buildings adjoin each other, and both are supplied with cupolas. The stonework of the mill proper has been tuck-pointed outside, and the whole buildings given a new appearance. The first two stories of the elevator are built of stone, for which Mr. Jas. Bogue was the contractor, while the upper part is made of planks, placed flat one upon another, compact and durable for time to come. In front the driveway has been levelled and widened, and it is the intention to cut down the embankment that projects beyond the front of the mill, on the east side, and straighten the street. The bank will be cribbed and made strong enough to bear up the cars that will be run into the elevator, close to the edge.

INSIDE THE BUILDING

is completely refitted. In the basement, which has been made three feet deeper, are located the new water wheels, two 42-inch "New American" wheels made by Kennedy & Sons, Owen Sound. It might be added that the water power has been greatly increased by repairs to the dam and flume. Down here are the boots of 21 stands of elevators that reach from top to bottom of the building. There is also a dustroom for receiving the dust from the cleaning machinery, a new cockle separator, made by the Smith M. P. Company of Stratford, and a Hercules scourer, made by a Petrolea firm.

On the ground floor is a train of Cochrane rolls, 16 pairs or 8 double sets, with a grinding capacity of 250 barrels a day. This Cochrane roller system is the latest and best device known to millers, and very little power is required to drive it, one belt being sufficient. There are, besides, on this floor a wheat separator, a smutter and a brush machine.

The second floor contains four scalpers built by Runtsman Bros.; four new centrifugal reels and three purifiers made by Geo. T. Smith, of Stratford, who supplied a great deal of the machinery; three power packers and two hand packers; and three stock-hoppers for dirty and clean wheat.

The third floor is supplied with two centrifugal reels, four round elevating reels built by Runtsman Bros., two new Smith's purifiers and one old "Consolidated" that had been in use before, but was re-fitted and made good as new; a shorts duster of Smith's make and an "Excelsior" bran duster; four "Cyclone" dust collectors manufactured by Ingles & Hunter, Toronto. There are also five bins connected with the packers below for holding flour as it comes from the dressers.

On the fourth floor are six more round elevating reels, and the Jonathan Mills' "Universal" power dresser made in Cleveland, Ohio. There also are the heads of the elevators, and continuations of two of the flour bins in the flat below.

The shafting and gearing are complete in every particular. An immense upright shaft from the water wheel supplies motion to the gearing on each flat.

THE ELEVATOR BUILDING,

which has for its presiding genius Mr. T. Brady, the genial and intelligent grain buyer for the mill, has a capacity for 30,000 bushels of wheat. Ten large bins will supply the space for wheat, while two more will be devoted to feed, each having a capacity of 20 tons. As in all well-appointed elevators, a series of buckets convey the wheat to a revolving spout at the top by chain gearing, and from there it is run by chutes into the large bins, out of which the wheat passes into the weigh hopper by means of conveyors running under the bins, and again it goes into the elevator for grinding or shipping as the case may be. The old water-wheel, in use before, will supply the motive power for the elevator. On the ground floor is a hopper scale two platform scales; and a three high roller chop mill. The floor above will be used for storing flour. Here are situated two stands of elevators; one to feed the chopper and the other to carry the ground chop to a bin waiting to receive it. There are three other bins besides for holding chop, for retailing to customers. Under these bins there is a feed-packer.

The railway siding that runs close to the buildings is now being repaired and made ready for traffic. Nine cars of wheat are already in waiting to have their contents dumped into the capacious receptacles in the elevator. A new piece of machinery, called a car-puller, for moving the cars about on the siding without the services of a locomotive, will be built as soon as the siding is finished. A carrier for loading cars, and a power scoop-shovel for unloading, will also be put into the elevator, which will then be completely equipped and ready for business. From the second floor store-room a chute descends to the driveway outside, by which the flour can be easily loaded into waggons.

A commodious office is situated on the ground floor near the door, where all business matters will be transacted.

There are, besides, other items of new machinery and improvements to be added that will greatly increase the equipment of the mill.

FULLY EQUIPPED.

Another admirable feature of the mills might be mentioned. Under the floor of the elevator is a pump for fire purposes, supplied with hose, so that the mill employees are always in a position to fight fire, should one occur.

Altogether the Otonabee flour mills are completely equipped throughout. Mr. T. G. Hazlitt superintended the work, and his able foreman, Mr. Wm. Martin, overlooked the carpentering; Messrs. Runtsman Bros. had the contract for putting in the machinery, Mr. William Johnston was the efficient millwright in charge of the alterations. With its increased facilities, the mill will no doubt prosper more than ever. Mr. H. A. Mulhern is an enterprising and intelligent man, who is bound to make it succeed, and in his efforts he is actively assisted by his faithful and competent head miller, Mr. Jas. A. McGill. The EXAMINER hopes that the mills may continue to thrive and bring increased wealth and influence to its owners and manager.

Important Public Conference.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

SIR,—Knowing that there are limits to the omnipresence of the ubiquitous reporter, I forward you a memo. of an important mass meeting last night. The meeting was held in a vacant lot on Water street, and was attended by all the tagless dogs in the town—the best end of our canine population. Tagged dogs, as brazen examples of slavish and craven compliance with the requirements of town by-laws, were rigorously excluded. The following resolution was passed unanimously, amidst howling demonstrations of approval:

"Resolved that this mass meeting of the free, independent and untagged dogs of the town of Peterborough, hereby expresses its cordial approbation of the course of brilliant apathy and dignified disregard of their duty and of the requirements of the town by-law requiring the members of the dog-fraternity to bear brass badges of subserviency, shown by the town council, and also express our unmitigated contempt of the idiotic verdancy of poor, but honest owners of dogs, who are mean-spirited enough to pay taxes on the dogs they own, while we, the property of rich but prudent owners, better able to pay, are allowed to sport in untagged freedom."

After the appointment of efficient committees:—to worry farmers' sheep in the vicinity of the town, to kill chickens; to steal saddles of mutton from back premises; the meeting resolved itself into a committee of the whole to howl through the night and keep weary labourers and mechanics from sleeping too soundly. The meeting adjourned to the call of the chairman—a dog owned by a citizen with an assessment rating of $23,300.

Yours truly,
CAVE CANEM.

Honey-Moon.

"Say, Perkins, old boy, why don't we see you at the club any more? Has your mother-in-law shut down on you"? "No, Brown; the fact of the matter is, my home is so happy now that there is no inducement for me to leave it. You look incredulous, but it's a positive fact. You see, my wife used to suffer so much from functional derangements common to her sex, that her spirits and her temper were greatly affected. It was not her fault, of course, but it made home unpleasant all the same. But now, since she has begun to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, she has so been well and so happy that we are having our honey-moon all over again. c

BABY'S SKIN AND SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by Cuticura Remedies.

Our eldest child, now six years of age, when an infant six months old was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physician, who attempted to cure it; but it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid rash, ugly, painful, blotched, and malicious. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we were advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The effect was simply marvellous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion, your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.

Clear Skin. Pure Blood.

No mother who loves her children, who takes pride in their beauty, purity, and health, and is bestowing upon them a child's greatest inheritance—a skin without a blemish, and a body nourished by pure blood—should fail to make trial of the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

I have seen the CUTICURA REMEDIES used for a rash or sore by a visitor in my house, and can testify that the cure was speedy and permanent. I have also used them myself, for eruptions of the skin on my little child, with an satisfactory result in every respect. The skin was broken out and began to assume ugly proportions. I have also heard my neighbors speak of CUTICURA REMEDIES in the highest terms.

CHAPTER XVIII.

AN ESCAPE.

No time was lost in useless regrets. All of our comrades resolved to carry out the plan of escape which was their leader's only chance of life—probably their own also. Andrews was separated from them the same evening and put down into "the hole." There was a knife in the party and they at once began work. On Saturday night they cut into the plank overhead, as this could be the more easily concealed. It was fearfully difficult. One man stood on the shoulders of two others who leaned against the walls, for there was no other means of reaching the ceiling, and carved at the heavy oak plank till weary, when another relay of three would take their place. The cutting was not very noisy, but a little shuffling about, talking, and especially singing, effectually drowned it. A piece was thus worked out during the night large enough to admit the passage of a man's body and the work suspended till the morning and afternoon visits of the jailer had been passed.

After they had returned from their daily airing on Sunday they went to work with new vigor. Now they did not need to conceal the evidences of their work, for before the jailer came again on Monday morning they meant to be free. They knew that dangers were ahead, but the thought of liberty, and their leader's life, was enough to inspire them. They worked hard and sang long that Sunday evening. Swims afterward said that he ought to have known that something was the matter by their singing so mournfully. They hoped to finish all that was to be done by midnight; but they had miscalculated their task.

They had to cut the lock out of the trap door in order to bring Andrews up from below; then to pick their way through the end brick wall above the ceiling, slowly and carefully, so as not to alarm the guard outside. Their garments had to be twisted into ropes to lift Andrews from below and the last of themselves up to the ceiling, as well as to make a longer rope for the perilous descent from the gabled end of the jail to the ground outside.

When all was done day was just beginning to break faintly in the east. No time was to be lost. In half an hour it would be so light as to render their escape impossible. They were all in the loft and Andrews was given the first chance. Of course all fetters had been removed. The rope was passed out, and Andrews crawled through, and in a moment was swinging outside; but in getting out he happened to push off a loose brick, which fell to the ground and gave the alarm. The nearest guard raised his musket and fired at the man hanging on the rope, but missed his aim. Andrews had his boots in his hand, but in the excitement let them fall and could not stop to pick them up. He afterwards sorely needed them. But in his stocking feet he flung himself over the fence and through the guard line, repeatedly fired at but unhurt. John Wollam followed, and while he was in the air he was fired at by other guards, but succeeded in getting out of the yard unhurt. Those who had failed to get out crawled down and got on their irons again, and it was a great mystery how the two men alone had been able to effect their escape.

Andrews and Wollam separated as soon as they left the prison. The former ran a short distance beyond the skirts of the town, after having taken precautions to throw the dogs off his track, and finding it too light to travel further in safety, climbed into a tree with dense foliage, which stood in plain view of the railroad. All day long he watched the running of the trains so close that he could have tossed a pebble on them, and once heard a party in pursuit talking about his mysterious disappearance. The search was patient and complete, but they did not think of looking over their heads!

He descended at nightfall and swam the deep and rapid river, feeling that his best course was to get into the loyal mountainous country, through which he would only need to journey a short distance to reach the Union lines. His prospect now would have been good but for the loss of boots and hat in the first rush, and the additional loss of his coat in swimming the river. His course was in the main down the river, but he could not make rapid progress. The sharp stones in the darkness soon cut away his stockings and left the bleeding feet unprotected. He bound them up with portions of his garments as well as he could, and continued on his desperate and painful way. But he was a little too long in finding a hiding place, and was observed in the morning twilight just as he was crossing an open field beyond, in which he intended to take shelter, as he had done the day before. Instantly the alarm was given and pursuit made by men and dogs. With boots and other clothing he might have escaped, for he could probably have made such use of the stream as to elude them. As it was he put forth every effort. Dashing through the woods he regained the river bank much lower down than he had crossed the night before. Believing that he was now unobserved, he swam a narrow channel to a small island, and carefully concealed himself among some driftwood at its upper end.

But the hunters were determined to leave no spot unsearched. A party with bloodhounds now crossed over from the mainland and explored the whole island. He was soon found, but broke away from them and ran around the lower end of the island, wading in the shallow water to throw the hounds off the track; then he plunged into a dense thicket with which the island was covered, and again ascended a tree. For a long time he found secure concealment here, his foes being frequently under the very tree. They finally concluded that he must have got back over the strip of water to the mainland, and slowly returned to seek him there. Two little boys who had only followed for curiosity were all that lingered behind.

One of the boys happened to look up, and said to the other that he saw a great bunch on a tree. The second looked to see what it was—shifted his position—looked again and exclaimed that it was a man! They cried out in alarm, and thus announced their discovery to their friends on shore. The latter instantly returned, and Andrews, seeing himself discovered—the story is almost too pitiful to be told—dropped from the tree, ran to the lower end of the island, seized a small, dead log, and with a limb for a paddle pushed into the stream, hoping to reach the opposite shore before he could be overtaken. So far as the island pursuers were concerned he might have succeeded; but there was another party with a skiff lower down the stream, who shoved out to meet him. The helpless man could do no more, and was taken.

The struggle had been one of almost hopeless agony. He had eaten nothing since Sunday afternoon, and it was now 3 o'clock on Tuesday. His back was blistered by exposure, unprotected, to the sun, and his feet were covered with bleeding gashes. He said that he felt so wretched and miserable that the thought of certain death, to which he then resigned himself, had no further terror.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Attorney-General Mowat Resumes Practice —Dr. McCully's Case Enlarged.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—A paper expressing sympathy with Rev. T. W. Jeffery and requesting him not to tender his resignation is being very numerously signed by members of his church and congregation.

Attorney-General Mowat has resumed practice and entered the firm of which Mr Justice Maclennan was lately a member.

James H. Spence, the carrier who is accused of stealing money-letters, was in the Police Court yesterday for examination. The young man was sent to the Criminal Court for trial.

Dr. McCully appeared in the Police Court again yesterday morning to answer to the charge of shooting Harry H. Oldwright with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The case was not proceeded with but was enlarged for a week, the same bail being renewed.

Tilley White was arrested yesterday charged with stealing $30 in cash, a pair of diamond earrings, two gold bracelets, and other articles of jewelry from her fellow boarders at 116 Peter-street. She confessed her guilt and surrendered the plunder.

BOUNCED CONDUCTORS.

Other Heads Fall Into the Basket—The Revised List.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—The topic in railway circles yesterday was the suspension of the batch of Grand Trunk conductors. Other heads besides those mentioned yesterday have fallen into the basket, for what reason, the men say, they know not. The revised list of decapitated is as follows; Messrs. McKay, Edmonson and Gilkinson, from the Toronto branch; David Blunt and John Main, from the main line of the Southern Division; Conductor Flavell, running from Woodstock to Port Dover, and Conductors Hoskins and Clarke running from Toronto to Stratford.

Superintendent Stiff told a reporter yesterday that none of them would be reinstated. It is said that the Brotherhood of Conductors, a very powerful body, propose to take the case up and ask the company to explain why the men have been discharged, as they consider it unjust that employes who have spent the best years of their lives in the employ of the road should be summarily shaken in this way without a charge or hearing. Many of the suspended conductors have been on the road for years, and, like Cæsar's wife, were above suspicion until the recent extensive operations of the "spotters."

The Montreal End of the Story.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—With reference to the report in yesterday's papers that a number of the conductors on the Grand Trunk Railway have received "red tickets" Assistant General Manager Wainwright said yesterday: The story is as usual highly sensational and colored. There is a portion of truth in it. Five or six conductors have been removed because the superintendent did not need their services

Imitation

Is sometimes called a sincere form of flattery. This may account for the number of imitations of the original and only positive corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Mothers who have delicate children can see them daily improve and gain in flesh and strength by giving them perfect food and medicine, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites. Dr. W. Praiseworthy.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

A Dollar Saved, a Dollar Gained.

By advertisement in another column, it will be seen that the Bank of Toronto, Mr. J. H. Roper, Manager, has opened a Savings Bank Department in connection with the regular banking business. Small amounts are accepted and practically compound interest allowed—that is, the interest increment will be added to the principal twice a year—in May and November. The security is also of the best, the capital of the Bank being $2,000,000 and the rest $1,350,000. Here is an excellent opportunity for the thrifty to put by small or large amounts on undoubted security and draw good interest, thereby effecting a double saving.

The adjourned public auction of Phætons, Buggies, Wagons, Road Carts, Cutters, &c. Messrs. Stapleton, to sell by Public Auction, at their Show Rooms, corner Charlotte and Aylmer streets, near the Midland Railway station, the remainder of their first-class vehicles, on Saturday, 10th of Nov. Sale to commence at half-past one o'clock p.m. They will also include in this sale a lot of first-class New Cutters, and some second-hand Rigs. Now is the time to buy and save money by coming to this sale. Terms.—Six months' credit will be given by furnishing approved paper, a discount of 8 per cent. per annum allowed off for cash. Chas. These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. Buying a Railway.

A waggish citizen "stuffed" an EXAMINER newsfinder last night by telling him that Mr. Peter Hamilton, of the Agricultural Works, had bought a railway. The scribe, knowing that Mr. Hamilton was enterprising enough to purchase a railway if he could turn it to good account, decided to investigate. On inquiry he learned that Mr. Hamilton had purchased the rolling stock of a railway—that is to say, that he had bought five loads of car wheels, once the rolling stock of the Peterborough and Cobourg Railway, to be converted into ploughs, etc. They were weighed—60 tons—on the market square scales by Mr. Doherty, who thought his scales were strong enough to weigh a railway after their experience in weighing some of the tub butter brought to market.

Matched Races.

A matched race took place on the Driving Park Friday afternoon, between Mr. Alex. Elliott's "Lady B." and Mr. Ed. Brown's bestnut pacer. There were only a few spectators. The race resulted in a win for "Lady B," she taking two out of three heats.

Immediately after, there was a matched race between Mr. John Armstrong's "Calamity Jane" and Mr. Wm. Leahy's "Puzzler." "Calamity Jane" won the first heat and "Puzzler" the remaining two, thus winning the race. It is only fair to state that, in the last heat, "Puzzler" won by default of the mare—"Calamity Jane" taking a header for home. The judges for both events were Alex. Donnelly, Martin Connors and Robert Smith.

The Light of the World.

An invention has just been launched out upon the sea of public favor that completely revolutionizes the match lighting process of the world. This is the Match Magazine and Matches invented and manufactured by Messrs. Foley & Rose, Bowmanville. It is a small cylinder-shaped affair much like an indelible pencil holder, that can be carried in the vest pocket, can be lit in any weather and without removing gloves. It is the greatest convenience for smokers ever invented. The Magazine carries and ignites its own prepared pellets, which burn long and steadily, and give an instantaneous light by the simple pressure of the finger. The price is very low for such an admirable convenience. Mr. J. W. Butcher, of the Ten Cent Store, is sole agent for Peterborough and county.

Business College Literary Society.

The Business College Literary Society held its weekly entertainment Friday night. Before the programme was begun Miss Belle Griffith was elected president of the society and Mr. Ventress vice-president. The programme showed that the students were cultivating musical and literary tastes as successfully as they mastered the problems of a business life, and included songs by the glee clubs of both boys and girls, a recitation by Miss L. Britton, solo by Miss McIlmoyle, "Love's Sacrifice" by Mr. Meller, a reading by Mr. Parker and a speech from the critic, Mr. Bean. Mr. Cook, retiring vice-president, made a farewell address, which was followed by a few remarks from the new president, after which the proceedings were closed.

Sleigh Robes and Horse Clothing.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, 137 Hunter street, has a splendid stock of robes and horse clothing, bought in the best markets for cash, permitting him to offer specially good bargains to the public in these lines. These robes are extra good value, the best ever offered by Mr. Devlin, and equal to anything ever brought to the town. All persons thinking of buying new robes and wanting the best at the most reasonable prices, will not do themselves justice if they do not examine Devlin's robes before doing their buying. Come and see for yourself, and also admire the splendid line of horse clothing in stock. No shoddy; all first-class goods, and sold at low prices. Be sure and make a call at 137 Hunter street, opposite the post office, when you want anything really first-class in the line of harness, horse clothing, robes, trunks or valises. 6d2w

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

An Egyptian Princess' Slippers.

One of the recent archæological "finds" in Egypt was a pair of slippers evidently belonging to an Egyptian princess, and, though some three thousand years old, the slippers, which were of leather, were in good condition—a telling tribute to the durability of leather. There must have been, in the reign of Rameses III., a firm doing business under the style of gough bros., for no boots but those of a firm like theirs would be found to last 3,000 years. This is the style of stock comprised in gough bros.' present $7 000 lot of boots and shoes; as lasting as a pyramid and, in the way of bargains, of equal size. There's corn—that is, boots—in Egypt yet, and no one so poor that he can't afford to buy a prime pair of boots or shoes. Cheap is no word for the prices, gough bros. are selling splendid boots and shoes at—less than half wholesale cost. Therefore—

There was an old man from Asphodel.
So decrepit he hardly could toddle;
But he stepped the road off,
Like a cricket to gouths'—
For cheap boots and shoes they're his model.

Warden Walsh was in town to-day.

A $20,000 Palace Coach.

The McGibbony Family—their Splendid Palace Car.

(From the Guiana (Ill.) Gazette, Nov. 12).

As an evidence of a successful career, and judicious management financially as well as professionally, the McGibbony Family, which recently visited Galena, affords a most remarkable example. For fifteen years they have been before the public, and during all that time have been facile princeps in their profession, and at no time during their brilliant history have any of their imitators sufficiently approached their high standard of merit as to warrant their being considered even as competitors. The family is remarkable, both for its size and the genius displayed in each of the sixteen members. And with their genius as a basis, through constant practice and study, they have continually improved in every respect and have reached a height of professional worth and reputation that leaves them the sole occupants of a field which has always demanded skill and accomplishments of the highest degree. Had Longfellow ever attended one of the performances of this remarkable family, one could easily understand how he would have been inspired to write those choice lines:

"And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day,
Shall fold up their tents like Arabs,
And silently steal away."

Nothing succeeds like success, and the McGibbony family have most assuredly succeeded beyond their fondest anticipations.

The "McGibbony Family" Palace Car is the largest as well as the finest and best equipped palace car in the country, being seventy-four feet in length, exceeding the length of the regular passenger coaches by over thirty feet, making it twice as long as an ordinary car. As a consequence it rides easier and and furnishes ample room for a thousand and one conveniences. In the front is located the kitchen, with range, water heaters, lockers and all appurtenances most desired in the culinary department. Next to the kitchen, reached by a hall which extends to the drawing room beyond, is the pantry, which while necessarily not large, has been placed with a view solely for convenience.

The manner in which the builders could arrange so many shelves, drawers and nooks for storage purposes, in such a small space is a mystery. Above the pantry are located the water tanks from which the car is supplied with running water. Back of the pantry is the drawing room in which is a superb piano, manufactured to their especial order, together with easy chairs and other articles of luxury and convenience. Immediately adjoining, in their order, are the library, sitting room and bath rooms.

Commodious silver, china and linen closets, and ladies' and gentlemens toilet rooms are conveniently disposed throughout, while adjoining the library a neat burglar and fire-proof safe is placed so as to be entirely hidden from view. In addition to these conveniences, there are sixteen berths and two state rooms. This splendid travelling carriage is provided throughout with electric call bells, and five servants in attendance quickly supply every want. At night by means of electric lamps, the car is made as light as day, and as it is heated by steam the temperature is the same at all times. Under the car are ten lockers, in which can be transported enough provisions for a month's supply, a ton of anthracite coal, half a ton of ice, and whatever other articles they may desire. The ensemble of the outside is such as to attract the admiration of every beholder. As a specimen of the perfection to which railroad car building has reached, it will take equal rank with, if it does not excel, the finest of the private cars of the great railroad magnates. This family will appear in the opera house here, 16th and 17th Nov.

The Gymnasium Concert.

The Collegiate Institute Pupils Hold Another Concert—A Gratifying Success.

The gymnasium of the Collegiate Institute was crowded to overflowing Friday night, when the pupils of Sergt.-Major Rundle's drill and calisthenic classes gave a concert. The proceeds of the entertainment netted a handsome sum. The walls of the room were hung with numerous richly-colored Union Jacks, that gave the place a gala appearance. The entertainment was a pleasing success, and reflects much credit upon the Sergt.-Major and his pupils. Mr. J. H. Long, Principal of the Institute, is also deserving of praise for his deep practical interest taken in the promotion of the physical, as well as intellectual culture of the Institute pupils. Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., occupied the chair, and explained the objects of the entertainment, being in addition to the entertainment provided, to raise funds to pay off the balance of indebtedness ($150) incurred for the uniforms of the "Daughters of the Regiment." He also emphasized the importance of physical culture as an indispensable adjunct of mental culture, and introduced the several numbers of the programme as follows:—

Selection	Peterborough Amateur Orchestra
Piano Solo	Miss Noble
Chorus	By Twenty Pupils
Violin and Piano Duet	Charles McKee and A. Duff
Reading	Sergt.-Major Rundle
Vocal Trio	Misses Hall, Merrick and Burnham
Piano Solo	Miss Edith Robinson
Chorus	By the Pupils
Selection	Orchestra
Drill, manual exercises, etc.	Daughters of the Regiment
Piano Solo	Miss Carey

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

The drill by the Daughters of the Regiment was, of course the chief feature of the programme. A space was cleared at the lower end of the room that gave limited accommodation for the various movements. The company was in uniform, and commanded by the following officers:—Capt., Miss Burnham; 1st Lieut., Miss Mary Fife; 2nd Lieut., Miss Violet Dover; markers, Misses Hall and Merrick. After company drill there was manual exercise, then bayonet drill by the fourth form, a single-stick bout between Misses Dover and McKee and marching in column and fancy marching by the company. Then the cadet company of boys were put through their facings by the Sergt.-Major. Each of the performances was applauded deservedly, for they were all well done.

The selections by the amateur orchestra were excellently rendered and highly appreciated by the audience. The juniors who contributed to the programme also covered themselves with glory, and Sergt.-Major Rundle's Shakespearian reading from "The Merchant of Venice," proved him possessed of good elocutionary ability. Altogether the entertainment was a gratifying success. Before the proceedings were brought to a close the chairman was tendered a vote of thanks for the happy manner in which he had presided.

"Hush."

This is the title of a picture so true to nature that you instinctively approach it on tip toe, and hold up the hand to enjoin silence. This famous picture attacts large crowds wherever exhibited, and may be seen now in one of Mr. A. Clegg's windows. Mr. Clegg carries a large assortment of pictures, chiefly engravings, in the selection of which all are ready to admit that he displays good taste. As proof of this and also of the reasonableness of his prices, he has recently been favored with orders for choice pictures from gentlemen in both Toronto and Montreal. d

Death's Busy Hand.

In the usual place there will be found recorded the death of Mr. Walter Roper, brother of Mr. Roper, of the Bank of Toronto. Mr. Roper's numerous friends will deeply sympathize with him in his bereavement.

The death, also announced elsewhere, of Mr. Newbald, father of the late H. B. Newbald, well known in Peterborough, and whose sad death was so deeply regretted, is a most melancholy sequel to the death of the son. On Oct. 14th the father made a visit to the grave of his son. He became chilled, and death ensued on the fourth day after.

A Fastidious Burglar.

Friday night the young people comprising the family of Mr. H. B. Merrick, who with Mrs. Merrick is at present in Manitoba, attended an evening party and did not return to their home on Brock street west till a late hour. This forenoon it was discovered that the house had been burglarized in their absence. A drawer of the sideboard, which held a quantity of silverware, such as knives and forks, spoons, etc., had been taken out into the back yard and carefully sorted over by the fastidious thief, who took only what he wanted and left the remainder in the drawer. The remains of the burglar's haul were found this forenoon, and gave the family their first intimation of the robbery. It is not known just how much booty the burglar secured.

Bishop Walsh, of London, Bishop Dowling, of Peterborough, and Bishop Cleary, of Kingston, held a conference at the Palace in Toronto Friday. The business discussed was of a purely private nature. It is believed that the choice of a successor to the late Archbishop Lynch was the chief point which took up the attention of their Lordships.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

A TRANS-ATLANTIC WINK

EXCHANGED BETWEEN LORD SALISBURY AND MR. CLEVELAND.

Was There Collusion in the Settlement of the Sackville Business?—The Retaliation Suggestion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Mr. G. W. Smalley cables The Tribune from London: The collusion between Mr. Cleveland and Lord Salisbury in the settlement of the Sackville business is confirmed by all the evidence thus far accessible. It is certain that diplomatic opinion is very different from the opinion of the English press, which storms away in real or assumed ignorance of the diplomatic precedents and principles governing this case. Nor do I think feeling in private is much roused. The London papers reflect not much more than their own image and superstition. The strongest thing I have heard said is that the American Government acted too hastily and with needless rudeness to Lord Sackville; but the English do not appear to consider themselves insulted, or even affronted. They read their own papers with amusement and some amazement.

What occurred here is believed to be this: Mr. Phelps received instructions from Washington to lay the facts before Lord Salisbury and request or suggest Lord Sackville's recall. As Mr. Phelps happened to be staying at Hatfield House from Saturday to Monday, the whole matter was no doubt freely talked over between them. It is even conceivable that the American Minister laid before his host the electioneering necessities which impelled Mr. Cleveland to act. If Lord Salisbury replied that he only knew the President of the United States, and not a candidate for the Presidency, the answer would be a natural one: he must deal with the difficulty that had arisen purely as a diplomatic difficulty. His proposal is thought to have been that Lord Sackville should come to England on leave of absence. He admitted that something must be done; that Lord Sackville's error must be atoned for.

It was, I think, at one moment agreed that the matter should be settled on this basis. But when Mr. Phelps received further instructions from Washington, Lord Salisbury said in substance: "Very good. If you like to send Lord Sackville home, do so. We shall not complain. We think it needless, but there will be no rupture. There will be angry articles in the press, but those you must put up with." This account is believed here to be correct, not in words of course, but in substance, by those who have means of information. If correct, it is obvious Mr. Cleveland did nothing till he was assured England would not resent his action. Lord Salisbury and Mr. Cleveland, indeed, in the presence of all this outside turmoil, appear to be gazing at each other like two Roman augurs. They keep on a grave face for the public, which gives place when they are unobserved to a gentle grin. Mr. Cleveland has Lord Salisbury's best wishes as a candidate. They understand each other. "We have our Irish troubles," says Lord Salisbury, "you have yours. If you can get your Irish vote, don't mind us." And a wink is duly exchanged across the Atlantic.

The Standard's suggestion to retaliate for the dismissal of Lord Sackville by dismissing Mr. Phelps is received with ridicule by such papers as think it worth noticing.

The Gladstonian organ finds fault with Lord Salisbury for not having recalled Lord Sackville at once, is quite unable to believe Mr. Cleveland means to offend England, and scouts the notion of sending Mr. Phelps home. Its new defence of the President is just what Mr. Cleveland's American friends offer. Yet I hear that some of Mr. Cleveland's supporters in America still pretend he is not the English candidate.

The incident is treated lucidly enough by The Saturday Review. As soon as the Republicans began to make use of the Minister's letter, the Democratic Irish vote began to look doubtful. Hereupon, as a presidential election was coming off it became necessary to do something energetic. Mr. Cleveland showed he knew very well of how little importance Lord Sackville's unwisdom was to what course the United States ought to take. But a small knot of voters insist that he shall snort, stamp, and behave after the fashion of My Lord Peter's bulls, and he has to do it.

The Spectator takes a similar view. It thinks the incident painful, as revealing the subservience of American politicians to the Irish vote, but it belongs to municipal, not international, history.

A Candidate's Opinion.

NELSONVILLE, Nov. 5.—Judge Thurman, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, closed the campaign here Saturday night. Speaking of the Sackville incident he said: "All I can say about the West letter is, that if I had a boy and he was such a fool as to be entrapped as West was by such a letter as was sent him, I would disown him. Whether Mr. West is knave or fool, I do not know, but this I do know that he is one or the other too much so to represent the British Government at the city of Washington, and Grover Cleveland has told him so and gave him his walking papers."

These Two Were Not Trapped.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Amongst the persons to whom decoy letters were sent by the parties who engineered the Sackville-West affair were Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and Senator Clemow. The letters came from Michigan, and the writer wished to know the wishes of the Canadian Government in regard to the Presidential election. They were promptly consigned to the waste-paper basket.

The Birmingham Elections.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The municipal elections of Thursday are considered to show no marked gain, on the whole, for either party. The most interesting contest of all was in Birmingham, where sixteen wards elected councillors. Nine of these were contested, the Unionists being left in undisputed possession of the other seven. They held, also, their other four seats which were attacked, and themselves attacked and carried two out of four Gladstonian seats, and carried the ninth also, formerly independent. The result is the Unionists have fourteen out of sixteen. This being the state of things, Mr. Gladstone's visit comes none too soon if he hopes to convert Birmingham to his own faith.

TORONTO TOPICS.

An Alleged Gambling House Raided—Two Thieves Captured—Bail Demanded.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Inspectors Archabold and Stephen and Sergeant Detective Reburn headed a posse that effected a forcible entrance to "Phip" Spohn's alleged gambling house at 112½ King-street west last before midnight on Saturday. "Phip" and a couple of friends were at the foot of the stairs when the officers arrived. Sergeant Reburn told him what was wanted, and requested that he open the door. Spohn refused, but intimated that the officers would find everything all right up-stairs. Reburn at once ascended, but the door was closed and barred, and no amount of pounding could elicit a response. Then a sledge-hammer was brought into requisition, and a couple of blows quickly opened the way in. The only occupant of the place was in a bed in a small room. He was told to dress and come along, being arrested on a charge of being an inmate of a gambling house. He gave his name as E. W. Crane ("Major"). A search of the premises resulted in the discovery of portions of a faro lay-out and a couple of tables. A charge of running a common gambling house will be preferred against Spohn.

On Saturday night at 9.15, as a woman named Mrs. Falconer, was stepping on a south-bound car on Yonge-street, she was knocked down by a car going north, the wheels of which passed over her thigh. She had a seven months old child in her arms, which miraculously escaped injury. Mrs. Falconer was removed to the Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the injured limb. She is doing well and may recover.

Mr. H. S. Smith and Mr. Alexander Boyd captured two thieves at 386 Sherbourne-street last night just as they were getting away with a lot of booty. They gave their names as John Lee, no home, and Patrick Martin, 168 Parliament-street. Martin was recognized as a convicted thief the moment he entered the station house, and Detective Caddy, who arrived shortly after the arrest, identified Lee as Patrick McEvoy, who had just concluded a three-years term in the Kingston Penitentiary for burglary.

The funeral of Mr. W. A. Foster, Q. C., which took place Saturday afternoon from his late residence, 22 St. Joseph-street, to the Necropolis, was largely attended, among those who assembled to pay a last tribute to the deceased being many of the judges, leading members of the bar and other professions and prominent business men.

The great talk among Toronto military men at present is the coming sham fight at High Park on Thanksgiving Day.

In the Board of Works investigation Contractor Godson's ex-bookkeeper, James Hardy, continued his evidence, which contained nothing beyond what has already been published.

INCOMPATIBILITY.

Resignation of a Hamilton Rector—How He Offended Prominent Members.

HAMILTON, Nov. 5.—Rev. Mr. Mockridge, rector of Christ Church Cathedral, has tendered his resignation, to take effect in three or four months from Nov. 1. Dr. Mockridge gives as the reason that the management are trying to make a fashionable uptown church of a church situated in the poorer part of the city, and by the means of high pew rents they keep the masses out of the edifice. As stated in my sermons, I am against the principle of money qualifications for the privileges of a church, and I am determined in future to labor in a free church during the rest of my life."

Chairman Roach of the Committee of Management and one of the churchwardens says it is the opinion of the committee and the wardens that the resignation will be accepted. A vestry meeting to consider the matter will be held about Nov. 22. Mr. Roach said further: "Dr. Mockridge took up prohibition, and his sermons on that offended several prominent members of the congregation. He went on about these establishments where they make the abominable stuff—whisky and ale, and wanted the time to come when they would be swept off the face of the earth. That offended several prominent members. Then he had been discourteous in his language from the pulpit on other questions, and the harmony of the church has been seriously affected."

Two Little Girls Drowned at Galt.

GALT, Nov. 5.—At noon Saturday the three children of S. F. B. Reid, dentist, two girls and a boy, aged 11, 6 and 5 years respectively, were amusing themselves on the banks of the Grand River, and it is supposed that one of them fell into the river, which at that particular place is deep, and that the others in trying to make a rescue also fell in. The little boy, the youngest of the children, was seen clinging to the rocks. He was saved, but the two girls were drowned.

Shooting Affray in a Court Room.

FRESNO, Cal., Nov. 5.—During the progress of a slander suit in the court here on Saturday, trouble arose between Robert Seconce and a man named Hardwick over the testimony given by the former, and Hardwick shot and fatally wounded Seconce. The latter's brother in return shot Hardwick. Both wounded men died yesterday.

THE ST. CLAIR FLATS.

A Canadian Engineer at Work Taking Observations.

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—A Canadian civil engineer is at work at the St. Clair Flats. He has been employed for a week running lines and taking observations. Several of his white signal flags are flying on the south pier, and the range is continued up the first straight stretch of the river channel beyond the Star Island House. The Canadian engineer began his base line from established points in the old Ship Channel, near the two lighthouses that stand in the lake north of the St. Clair Flats Fishing and Shooting Club's buildings. He boards at Arthur's place as being less public than the Star Island House, and makes full use of every bright hour. Capt. Mott, United States custodian of the canal, noting the engineer's work, invited him to make use of the official map which is kept at the lighthouse, saying it might save him trouble and labor. The Canadian engineer, who has not revealed his name but is supposed to be the same man who made a survey in 1869 and reported that a part of the canal was in the jurisdiction of Canada, thanked Capt. Mott for his courtesy and intimated that he would depend entirely on his own resources for data.

DARING TRAIN ROBBERS.

Between $40,000 and $50,000 Taken From an Express Messenger.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—The United States express messenger on the train of the Northeastern Railway, which arrived here Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, was robbed at 5 a. m. between Lacey and Derby stations, 50 miles from this city. The express officials decline to state the amount of the robbery, but it is understood to be between $40,000 and $50,000. The robber entered the express car, surprised baggage-master Henry McElroy and Charles Lowry with a cocked revolver and threw sacks over their heads. After securing the contents of the safe the robbers pulled the bell rope.

The Record Coal Take in Sight.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 5.—Another terrible shooting affray occurred in this city Saturday night. Henry Barlow and George Llewelyn, two citizens of Pittston, were returning in a carriage from Pleasant Valley when their horse was stopped in a lonely spot in the woods by two hunters who carried rifles. The hunters said they wanted to ride. The men in the carriage whipped up their horse and drove away. They had gone but a short distance when the hunters fired upon the fast disappearing carriage fatally wounding Barlow and seriously injuring his companion. The horse ran away and was not stopped until Pittston was reached. The men were taken from the carriage unconscious. There is great excitement over the affair and lynch law is threatened.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 5.—During the month of October 700 steamers, 244 sail vessels and 48 rafts and unregistered craft passed through the St. Mary's Falls ship canal; a total of 992. The number of lockages was 524; total registered tonnage, 741,660; total freight tonnage, 885,658; number of passengers, 1206. Excess of registered tonnage over corresponding month last year, 71,654 tons; excess of freight tonnage over corresponding month last year, 90,801 tons.

BONHAM, Tex., Nov. 5.—On Saturday H. C. Bryans, who resides a few miles south of town, was stabbed and killed by his son, Neely Bryans, aged 17. The son had been living away from home for two years, and had a dispute with his father about his actions which ended in a quarrel. The murderer has not been arrested.

A Petition Against Best's Extradition.

EASTPORT, Me., Nov. 5.—A petition of the Grand Army of the Republic and citizens was forwarded Saturday to Secretary Bayard, asking his personal attention in the extradition case of Best, who shot Batson at Campobello, N. B., recently. The petition says that on account of the feeling existing on the Canadian border, no naturalized citizen, if given up, could have a fair trial.

Election Excitement in North Carolina.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 5.—The greatest political excitement ever known prevails in this section. Personal encounters between whites and blacks are numerous and no one can predict the outcome. The militia may have to be called out if the present state of lawlessness is carried much farther.

DUNDAS, Nov. 5.—A serious fire occurred here at 2 o'clock yesterday morning which resulted in the complete destruction of a large skating and curling rink and a double dwelling house besides considerable damage done to other buildings. The fire was undoubtedly the work of incendiaries as it originated in the brick ice rink owned by R. S. Wilson and which has not been used since last winter. The wall of the rink fell outwards and two young men who were assisting were slightly hurt but not seriously injured. The ice house and stables of the Albion Hotel were consumed and the house of Mrs. G. M. Pirie on Foundry-street was partially burnt. Mr. Wilson's loss on rink is over $3000; no insurance, the policy having been allowed to lapse recently. Loss to Mr. Perrie $2000, no insurance known. THE KIRK'S ANNIVERSARY

Anniversary Services at St. Andrew's Church.

Sermons by Rev. Dr. R. H. Grant, of Orillia — Church Decorations and Music.

Three years ago the new St. Andrew's church was dedicated to the service and glory of God, and the third anniversay of an event so important and dear to the congregation was celebrated by special sermons on Sunday, to be followed by an entertainment this evening. Under the able pastorate of Rev. A. Bell St. Andrew's church has flourished as a green bay tree and prospered amazingly well.

The altar on Sunday was decorated with a profusion of beautiful house-plants in full bloom, while the choir railing was draped with a green trailing plant.

The choir of St. Andrew's, since the advent of Prof. Carter, has improved wonderfully, as proven by the singing on Sunday. The anthems were choice and appropriate, and rendered with an expression and precision that denoted diligent practice and careful training. There about twenty-five voices in the choir. In the morning anthem the solo part was well taken by Miss Heubach.

The large congregation was delighted with the sermons. Rev. Dr. Grant gives a practical and pungent address full of information and very impressive. He chose for his text at the morning service the first chapter of Revelations, parts of the fifth and sixth verses.

Unto Him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood,
And hath made us kings and priests unto God and His father.

Some of the best things the world has ever read were written in dungeons, as instance the works of Samuel Rutherford and John Bunyan. Paul was a prisoner in Rome when he penned these noble words:—"I have fought the good fight, I have kept the faith." John had been banished to the island of Patmos when he wrote the words of the text, but, though he was they could not banish from him his God. Here he was given a mission by the Lord to write epistles for the seven churches, and in beginning them occurred the words of the text. The work for which John here ascribes glory and dominion to Christ, or rather the threefold work, was that he washed us from our sins in his own blood, he made us kings unto God and priests unto God. Then the reason why he performed that work—the only reason was because he loved us.

"He washed us from our sins" is a general term used very frequently in the Scriptures, and implies two things—the deliverance from the guilt of sin and a deliverance from the power or pollution of sin; the former implied pardon and the latter sanctification. Man must be pardoned as well as sanctified before he can go to heaven. Pardon was a glorious medium between God and man. Not long ago the citizens of Peterborough applied to have the sentence of an unfortunate man, who lay in gaol condemned to death, commuted to imprisonment. In one instance which the rev. Doctor remembered, a man condemned to die did not know of his pardon till the morning appointed for the execution. What agony of mind that poor man must have suffered before his pardon came. Not so with the pardon of God. Man was not kept in terrible suspense but was granted an immediate pardon, full and royal. Some considered this a rather dangerous doctrine. Sinners pardoned, might say: "Oh, we have a pardon full and free and we can go away and sin as much as we please." But, how much sin would "please" a Christian? The very fact that a man was pardoned should keep him from sinning; the power of the pardon is the strongest possible hold to keep him straight. Then there was a clause of the passage showing how the pardon was secured —by his own blood. That should never be forgotten. He gave up His own life for man. Never, never forget, said the reverend gentleman, while your heart is warm with life and while reason is on its throne, never forget that He washed us from our sins

IN HIS OWN BLOOD.

There was a peculiar idea abroad in the world that people would go to heaven just as they are. That was a mistake; whom God justifies He sanctifies; whom He pardons He purifies. Man in heaven would be a new creature, pure and undefiled. This meaning was included in the expression, "washed us in His own blood."

Then "He has made us kings and priests unto God." His grace in its entire development gives man a kingliness of character. At the trial of Paul, Felix, the governor, is in the position of king, and Paul is the prisoner. But mark the difference—Felix, poor, trembling, weak creature, and Paul, noble, commanding, and full of kingly power. As another illustration, the reverend speaker related an anecdote of the Covenanters. A poor man, with the faith of God in his heart, was shot down by the dragoons before his wife's eyes, and when one of the soldiers brutally asked her what she thought of her husband now, the woman replied: "I always thought much of him, but more now than ever." Was not that an example of the royalty of God's grace? There could be no mean Christians. As well speak of thieving or lying Christians. The grace of God gave one a beautiful, royal character. The reverend speaker urged the people to despise everything that was low, and mean, and small, for they should remember that He died for them. There was, he believed, more harm done to the Christian cause by mean, small spirits than by actual sin. A great gulf divided the Christian from the sinner; the former was separated from the world. Often two persons from the same home, members of the same family, journey from each other and lead widely different lives—their lives terminate as far apart as two rivers that have their rise within a few yards of each other in the middle of our continent, but empty their waters one in the calm Pacific, and the other in the stormy Atlantic. One's rest is peace; the other's eternal misery. Some men were apt to complain of their circumstances in life, and boast that if they were only in such and such a position they would do wonderful things; but the best way they could prove that they were capable of taking a higher position was for them to be conspicuous and useful in the place they did occupy. They should remember that He made them kings and priests unto God because He loved mankind. That was perhaps all that could be said about Him. He loved us when we were lost and just because we were lost. The praying mother thinks constantly of her prodigal boy and prays for him; we all think more of anyone that is lost than of those we have. And, the reverend speaker concluded, on this anniversary day we should all think of the God who loved us when we were lost and loved us all the more because we were lost.

Evening Services.

In the evening the large edifice was filled to repletion, large numbers from other churches attending.

At the conclusion of the service, Miss Lily Jackson sang as a solo "The Lord's Prayer," set to music by Mr. Carter for the occasion. It was an musical treat. Her rendition was much admired, and reflects great credit on herself and Mr. Carter, with whom she is now studying. She has a sweet, full voice, that gives promise of great possibilities in the future. Miss Jackson also sings to-night at the mitre.

The subject of Rev. Dr. Grant's discourse was the test of Job's faith and his steadfastness under all the trials through which he was put. The text was Job's exclamation of faith:—"Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him." There were several such tests as this mentioned in the Bible, for the obvious purpose of illustrating the many evidences of weak faith contained in the good book. This was the trial and triumph of Job. Faith was easily spoken of or preached about, but to fully comprehend the nature of Job's faith the circumstances surrounding his life must be considered. He was a rich and influential man in the east, an Oriental Vanderbilt, with a wife and family of ten children. But all his possessions were wrested from him by cupidity, his servants murdered, his children killed by accident, he is himself stricken down with leprosy and finally his own wife turns against him and bids him curse God and die. Blow after blow rains down upon him. Does his faith waver in this supreme moment? No, he is steadfast to the last, and cries out in triumph, "Though he slay me yet will I trust him." Job was entitled to the first place among the faithful of God's people. Is it possible, some may ask, to have faith such as Job's in these days? Certainly; why not? And the reverend gentleman said he would go further and say, the people of today should have stronger faith than Job, because they have the Bible and all the evidences of God's goodness that he had not. Such a faith was not only attainable but extremely desirable. There were times in every man's life when nothing could sustain him but a strong and immovable faith like Job's—a faith strong not only under favorable circumstances but in adverse times and dark days. That was the time to test faith. Have faith in God and faith in your church, he said, and yours will be the reward.

Ashburnham Brevities.

The municipal council meets on Monday evening.

Messrs Scott & Hogg have a horse power and chopper at work chopping straw to be used in packing eggs.

A gang of men has just completed the laying of a branch track to the Otonabee roller mills.

Constable Craig has found owners for all the impounded cattle and horses. Some of the horses had come over ten miles.

Some of the villagers are complaining loudly of the price of hay. If present prices rule through the winter (and the prospects are for it to go up), some say they will be obliged to dispense with the luxury of a horse.

Miss Edith Burnham, daughter of Mr. John Burnham, captained a regiment of young ladies at the entertainment given in connection with the Collegiate Institute on Friday night.

Messrs. Calcutt, Strickland and Burnham arrived home from their hunt at the back lakes on Saturday. They report game somewhat scarce although they bagged a considerable quantity. But anything that escapes the two Harries, when once eyed by them, has got to be a hustler, and John is never far behind.

Mr. Wm. Collins, grocer, has purchased that commodious frame dwelling and belongings, on Lake street, lately occupied by Mr. R. Tivey and formerly used as a Methodist parsonage, for the sum of $2,000. One year ago this property could have been purchased for $1,800 or less. There are first class chances for speculation in real estate in this village and a few are taking advantage of it.

A rather practical joke happened one of Peterborough's young men on Sunday night last. Becoming slightly acquainted with a rather estimable young lady in this village, he attended church with the intention of escorting her home. However, missing the object of his ambition as she passed out, he followed in search of her, and, approaching a lady, asked if she was Miss So and-so, the lady promptly answering in the affirmative. The couple chatted along to her home, he, all the way, trying to confess his devoted attachment. Arrived at the gate, the young man wished further to prolong the conversation, but the supposed young lady said she would have to go in and attend to her child, which, at the moment, set up a furious howl. It is quite unnecessary to give in detail what occurred. The young man has not reported in Ashburnham since.

What is to be done with the site of the old market house? is a question which is being asked by nearly every person, and everyone has the same answer—"don't know." It was a very wise act on the part of the council to remove this building, and it is to be sincerely hoped they will go farther in the matter of removing eyesores. The old drill shed is no longer needed for military purposes, and it is by no means ornamental. The government authorities, if asked, could raise no objection to having this building removed, and it should be asked for at once, as the chances are very favorable to its remaining for a good long time after the request is presented, judging from other matters the government deal with. This building, in case of fire, would be very inconvenient, and would endanger all the buildings in its vicinity. Besides, the property belongs to this corporation, and there are men who would be glad to purchase it and build it up, and, by improving the looks of the village, add directly to the revenue. As it now stands, the property is doing no one any good. The council meets to-night and they will act wisely by energetically taking this matter up and try what can be done. Unless the property is going to be utilised by the council they should dispose of it.

DARING AND SUFFERING.

Wollam's attempt to escape was for a time more fortunate and skillful than that of Andrews. He broke through the guards and ran the gauntlet of hasty shots without injury. Soon he reached the river bank and not wishing to attempt the passage in the growing light, hit upon the happy expedient of making the enemy believe that he was across. To this end he threw off his coat and vest, dropping them on the river bank and then waded a little way in the water to throw the hounds off the scent; then quietly slipping back, hid himself in a dense thicket of canes and rushes. He soon heard the hounds and men who were pursuing on the bank above and all about him. He could hear the words they uttered, they were so close. At length they found the clothing and concluded that he had taken to the river. They crossed over and searched with their hounds along the water's edge on the other side for the place he had come out. As might be expected the dogs failed to find the exit, and after due consultation they concluded that he was drowned, which being a satisfactory termination, they returned.

ESCAPE OF ANDREWS AND WOLLAM.

But Wollam was not drowned. He spent the day in much anxiety and suspense, and when night came he cautiously left his hiding place and worked his way along the river on the very front of Chattanooga, till he came across a canoe which he borrowed for the occasion—without seeing the owner—and rowed down stream all night. This was a swift mode of progression. As soon as he saw a sign of dawn he sought a retired place, sunk the canoe, and hid in the woods till night allowed him to proceed. This he did daily for a week. Twice he was saved if he had but known it. Gen. Mitchel had constructed an extemporized gunboat with which to patrol the river, and twice Wollam passed within hail of it. But he had heard nothing of any such Union craft being on the river, and imagined it to be some Confederate boat, perhaps searching for him. In the dark it was not easy to see any indications of its character. So the poor boy crept cautiously by in the shadow of the shore without being discovered.

But at last he made the mistake that Wood and Wilson had made long before. He imagined that he was safe, and went boldly forward in the daytime. One more night's journey by boat, or half that time put in on foot directly northward, would have carried him safely beyond the border. But as he was going forward, congratulating himself on having succeeded so well, a band of Confederate cavalry, who were making a raid into Mitchel's territory, saw him, and, procuring a boat with several pair of oars, came out to meet him. Wollam saw his danger, and there was a hot chase, but the advantage was all on their side. He was retaken, and as usual tried to deceive them as to his character; but a Ident. Edwards, who had been with the party who captured him the first time, identified him, and he was reunited with his comrades in Atlanta.

When Andrews was brought back to Chattanooga a scene of much apparent barbarity followed. His escape had excited great rage and produced most terrible consequences at Knoxville, which will be narrated hereafter. But they were now determined to give him no further opportunity of snatching their cherished vengeance from their hands. He was put down in the hole with the other prisoners, and all access to the yard was denied. Of course no other visitors could see them. The guard was stimulated to renewed diligence. But as chains and handcuffs had proved ineffectual, something more secure was devised. From the shop of William Lewis, a colored blacksmith, a man was brought over and taken down into the dungeon, who riveted a pair of heavy iron fetters around his ankles. Dorsey and Wilson, who were present, describe the scene as ominous and terrible—the dimness of the dungeon, the poor, death sentenced man, half reclining with his feet across the blacksmith's anvil, the blows of the heavy hammer as the work of riveting went on. A strong chain, only eighteen inches long, united the two heavy fetters, so that only half a step could be taken at once. The feet were thus fastened in the same manner as hands are by handcuffs, and the latter were also replaced. When all these arrangements were completed he was once more left to himself.

CHAPTER XIX.

LAST DAYS.

Andrews had now but four days more of dungeon life between himself and eternity. Escape was impossible unless there should be a rapid advance of the Federal forces—a possibility which did some very near being made a fact. We omitted before to call to the great business of preparing to die. Most unexpectedly a letter written at this time and in some way carried through the lines has come to hand, and throws great light upon his character and thoughts at this period. He managed in some unknown manner to get writing material and wrote two or three letters. One, no doubt, was written to his betrothed in Flemingsburg, but never received. Another was written to his mother in Missouri. The contents of the latter can only be given as they are remembered after an interval of many years by one who read the letter. He told his mother that he was to die, and that all he regretted was that he had been able to do so little for his country; that many other sons had left their bones bleaching on southern battle fields; that he had tried to do his duty, and was now seeking the pardon and favor of God. There were many other half remembered expressions similar to those which are given in the letter below.

(To be Continued.)

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Hungarian Immigration to the Northwest—The Militia Clothing Contracts.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—An effort is being made by the Dominion Government to have the case between the Dominion and the British Columbia Governments with respect to the ownership of mineral lands in that province, which is now before the Imperial Privy Council, postponed until after the close of the Parnell investigation, as Attorney-General Webster has been retained to represent the Dominion Government. The British Columbia Government objects to postponement.

Mr. Julius Vasse, a Hungarian gentleman, is in the city for the purpose of conferring with the Department of Agriculture concerning the immigration of Hungarians to the Canadian Northwest. Mr. Vasse proposes to issue illustrated pamphlets in the Hungarian language to be distributed among the peasants of Hungary.

The Militia Department will not award any contracts for clothing this year. The existing contracts are for a period of three years.

THE BANDIT FRUGOSO KILLED.

Last of the Cuban Highwaymen Who Stole Rich Planters for Ransoms.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Spanish Consul-General in this city received a cablegram yesterday from Havana to the effect that the famous bandit, Victor Frugoso, has been killed and some of his companions wounded by the civil guard of Cuba.

Of this man Frugoso the Consul has no knowledge save that he is a member of the band of highwaymen about whom there was so much talk last winter by timid Americans who hesitated to go to Havana for a season lest their families might have to take all the pennies out of their little tin savings banks to get the men out of pawn.

The representatives of the Consul says that these bandits never take women or children to hold for ransom, but that occasionally they do take rich men, planters and merchants, and keep them in custody until properly bailed out of the unpleasant swamps where they are confined.

Although Providence has been kind to the Cuban bandit in the natural situation of Havana, and although there are plenty of fastnesses about the city, the place of attack is mainly in the suburbs, where very few strangers go. The band has been shot down and killed off until the romance has somewhat left them, and what little is left smacks more of the life of an every-day highway robber than of a picturesque mediæval bandit.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. Nothing has created wonder in the minds of those who have usually tried other remedies since its action seems magical. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

Stop That Cough.

Many people neglect what they call a simple cold, which, if not checked in time, may lead to lung trouble. Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, will not only stop the cough but heal the lungs. Endorsed by thousand of Physicians. Palatable as milk. Try it. Sold by all druggists at 50c. and $1 00. 4w45eow

Praiseworthy.

"Last summer I was entirely laid up with liver complaint. A friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters; I did so and four bottles cured me. I cannot praise this remedy too much." John H. Rivers, Orr Lake, Ont. 2w42d

Important to Working Men.

Scholarships Good.

Mr. Sawyer wishes us to state that all scholarships issued by him since July 1885, will be duly honored on presentation. When disposing of the College he had a clause inserted in the indenture providing for this. 1d

The Ball of the Season.

The ball to be held in Bradburn's Opera House Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 14th, under the auspices of the united trades and labor unions of Peterborough, promises to be the event of the season. Arrangements are now complete, and the management intend having every thing in grand style. d

A Valuable Horse Dead.

Mr. Joseph Redmond's fine brood mare which took first prize at the Provincial Exhibition at Kingston, died on Saturday in Peterborough, in the yard of Snowden's Hotel, where she had been brought for treatment. The cause of death was inflammation of the bowels, caused by over-feeding. Mr. Redmond valued the mare at $500.

An Important Meeting.

The Peterborough branch of the Irish National League has issued the following circular:

PETERBOROUGH, November, 1888.

As a friend of Ireland and Ireland's cause, you are particularly requested to attend a meeting in the library of Murray street school, on Friday evening, Nov. 9th, 1888, at eight o'clock, when matters of importance affecting Ireland's interests will be discussed.

THOS. DOLAN, President P.B.I.N.L.
J. D. McILMOYLE, Secretary.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

A Successful Hunt.

Mr. James K. Stabler, of Smith, and Mr. Larry Steele, of Lakefield, have returned from a fortnight's forest foraging for deer, with a big bag of game. They killed in that time eight deer, the full legal quota allowed to two hunters by the amended game law. They had only one trained dog and two pups. One of the deer scaled the great weight of 250 pounds. This is the most successful hunt of the season, and some town Nimrods might learn a wrinkle or two from Messrs. Stabler and Steele.

An Anonymous Complaint.

Like newspaper men, Chief Rossel declines to take any notice of anonymous communications, but if the writer of the following letter, received by the Chief on Saturday will come forward with his name, some action may follow:

PETERBOROUGH, Nov. 3.

CHIEF ROSSEL,—I don't think it right to make most of one man and fish of another. You shove one man for selling liquor and let others go scot-free. There is as much liquor sold in ——'s boarding house on —— street (down near ——) as in any common house in town, and I think he ought to pay for it as well as anyone else.

Legal Intelligence.

The following case was disposed of in the Toronto law courts last Friday:—

LEARY v. GORDON—Motion on behalf of the Sheriff of Northumberland and Durham for an interpleader order to try the right of one James Gordon, son of the defendant to the goods seized under execution. W. H. Blake for the sheriff and claimant. Edmison (Peterboro'), for execution creditors, opposed the order, as an interpleader issue had all been directed to try the right of another claimant, which issue had been disposed of, and that the sheriff is not entitled to make a second application on behalf of another party, and cited Clarke v. Fiverell, 3 P. R. 83, and Cobbe on Interpleader, passim. Judgment reserved.

New Grocery Business.

The shop, next west of Mackleston's hardware store, on Hunter street, is being fitted up as a grocery store, to be occupied by Mr. John Braden, who will open out about the middle of the month with a full line of groceries.

Their Cry was Heard.

The complaint of the residents on Benson and Smith streets anent the railway crossing has been considered by the Street and Bridge Committee, and the town clerk has been instructed to notify the G.T.R. company to have the crossing at once repaired in compliance with the railway act.

Triplets.

At the risk of offending the father who is the proud possessor of ten olive branches, the record must be made that for cheap boots and shoes gough bros. beat the world. Boots for men, women, boys and children, a choice and extensive stock bought at a snap; bargains going off at less than half wholesale prices. Don't go anywhere else if you want to get the very biggest value for your money, than to gough bros.', 375 george street.

An Interesting Anniversary.

Thirty years ago to-day (Nov. 5th, 1858) Mr. Thomas Kelly started in the dry goods business in Peterborough. These thirty years are a record of square, honest dealing and keeping faith with the public. To these principles, put into practice, Mr. Kelly owes the fact that he is one of our solid dry goods men to-day. The EXAMINER cordially congratulates Mr. Kelly on his silver wedding anniversary in the dry goods business. It hopes to record his golden wedding in the same line, unless, in the meantime, he "makes his pile" and retires to his otium cum dignitate in his suburban villa.

Still Growing.

The business of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company is in a continuous state of growth, making repeated additions to their building accommodation necessary. Like those to a fruitful family tree, the additions come regularly every year and a half or two years. At present Mr. Rutherford has under contract an extension westward on Murray street, built of red brick, 34x166, two stories in height. It is intended for a machine shop and construction room, and there are 100 windows in it. It is enclosed and will soon be ready for occupation.

Laying the Rails.

The first rails of the Dickson switch line were laid to-day, and by night they will be laid from the junction with the main line to the edge of the water at Sherbrooke street. This week the trestle work at the lower end will be begun. Work on the island embankment continues steadily. The switch line does not run through the bridge works premises, the fence having been moved in and the track laid between it and the water. This makes Water street at this point wider, and the removal of the high bank of earth at Sherbrooke street that formerly blocked traffic has left an open thoroughfare right through to Dalhousie street.

Serious Accident

On Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock, William Weir, a painter, living on Weller street, while working at the addition to the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company's buildings on Murray street west, fell through the uncovered joists, from the second to the first story, the fall breaking or at least cracking the thigh bone at the joint. The injured man was removed in the carriage of the contractor for the building, Mr. A. Rutherford, to his residence and Dr. King attended to his injuries.

The Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company, Wilson & Morrison agents, have cheap rates and large indemnities. No one should be without an accident policy.

Central Exhibition.

A meeting of the directors of the Central Exhibition was held in the council chamber Saturday afternoon, at which there were present Mr. Wm. Rutherford, President, and Messrs. Vance, Baptie, Fair, Mounsey, McClelland and Fitzgerald and Mr. William Collins, the Secretary. A statement of the financial standing of the Association was placed before the meeting, showing a probable surplus over expenses of $150. The cash expenditure, excluding all donations, was $2,350. This showing is ahead of last year, when they fell behind about $300. This deficit, though, like the debt of $1400 carried over, was caused by the erection of new buildings. This year only minor improvements were made, with the result that a surplus of $150 will be left on hand. There are yet a few outstanding accounts to pay and about an equal amount of bills to collect. The main business done was with regard to the paying of special prizes to articles recommended by the judges. It was decided, however, that no awards be made in the recommended classes, excepting a prize of $4 to Mr. Robt. Walton for Jersey heifer (recommended). The meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the President.

Business College Change.

On the 17th of October Mr. D. J. B. Sawyer disposed of his interest in the Peterborough Business College to his partner, Mr. G. S. Bean, B.A., B. Sc., who continues the college work on the same plan as formerly. Mr. Sawyer intends going to Boston, to take a course at the Boston School of Expression or school of oratory. He will, while pursuing his studies, fill the position of private secretary to Dr. Carry, president of the school. At the same time Mr. Sawyer will take a three years' course in law. For the present Mr. Sawyer's family will remain in town, and he himself will, at the conclusion of his studies, return to town—he still retains his material and other interests in Peterborough. Mr. Sawyer, during the three years he has been in Peterborough, has shown himself to be a gentlemen of good abilities and with a large share of enterprise and energy, and his many friends wish him every success in his new departure. He has established the business college on a firm basis, and doubtless it will continue to flourish under Mr. Bean's able management.

Major Howden Gets There Just the Same.

In the issue of the 23rd October, the EXAMINER stated:—

"AFTER THE SPOILS.—The Inland Revenue Officer at Port Hope has been superannuated and through the influence of Mr. Gillett, of Cobourg, Mr. Blake, his partner, was given charge of the office with a quiet understanding that he was to be appointed to the position. However, the Conservatives of East Durham were not going to have an outsider placed in the position, and he has been deposed and Mayor Howden, of Millbrook, appointed thereto. The Mayor's friends congratulate him upon succeeding to the office. Millbrook Conservatives are determined that if they can't have a representative from their village they will at least share the spoils with the Port Hopers."

The Port Hope Times in reply to the above said:—

"This will be news to nearly everybody in Port Hope, and as a matter of fact we believe it untrue. As far as we know, Mr. Murphy has not yet been superannuated, though he is likely to be in the near future. The question of who will get the position, is one that does not concern the EXAMINER. We don't think that any objection would be made to Millbrook getting it, but other residents of the village have much stronger claims than Major Howden."

The EXAMINER then said:—

"There is no doubt whatever that Major Howden has the promise of the position. Our friend of the Times is referred to Mr. Ward, M. P. for further information—who can, no doubt, if he will, supply all the particulars of the double shuffle."

Now the Port Hope Times of Friday last says:—

"To set matters at rest, we may state that though Major Howden has not yet been gazetted as Inspector of Inland Revenue of Port Hope, the appointment has been made, and he will enter upon his duties as soon as officially notified."

Further comment is unnecessary, Major Howden "gets there just the same."

Church Chimes

Rev. Dr. Potts, General Secretary of Education of the Methodist church, and Rev. Dr. Williams, one of the general superintendents, will preach educational sermons in both the Charlotte and George street churches next Sunday.

There was no service in St. Paul's Church Sunday evening, the congregation attending the anniversary services of St. Andrew's.

His Lordship Bishop Dowling was in Fenelon Falls Sunday.

His Lordship Bishop Dowling will deliver a lecture in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday evening, 18th inst., on "The church and the Bible." The proceeds will be devoted to the poor funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Word has been received from Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, rector of St. Luke's. He remained a few days in Detroit on his way, and wrote from there. He said he was feeling much better, although the weather was unfavorable. He goes from there to Denver, where he will be the guest of Dr. Edmund Rogers, brother of Mr. H. C. Rogers, postmaster.

The stewards of the Mark Street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, and the pastor held an introductory examination on Saturday for young men who propose entering the ministry. One candidate presented himself for examination and succeeded in passing.

At the Charlotte street Methodist church in the evening, Rev. Mr. Shorey took for the text of his address, part of the 6th verse of the 64th chapter of the prophet Isaiah—"And we all do fade as a leaf." While travelling north on a mission tour the speaker had noted and admired the great beauty of the forest leaves, brilliant with the hectic flush of fall, the beautiful premonitions of decay and death. He pointed out the brief history of a leaf, its opening in spring, its summer life of usefulness, its humid breath giving out moisture to the dry atmosphere and its emerald lungs absorbing and transmitting the foul gases—its decay in autumn, its fall to the ground where it kept up its train of usefulness by fertilising the soil and thus even in death giving aid and sustenance to other leaves of after years with the same beneficent career. This was applied to the race of man, and his bearers were urged to inquire if, in their passage through this world, they had made the world brighter and better to their fellowmen. Did other men feel the burdens of the world brighter and the path of duty easier and straighter because of their influence, and when they passed away would their lives have been such that, as the leaf even, in in the decay and mouldering of the tomb, the influence of their lives and their memories would re-act for good upon the human race? The lesson of the leaves taught the vanity of human self-esteem. As the leaf budded, expanded, fluttered through its summer existence, faded, fell, decayed and was mingled with its mother earth and was forgotten, another leaf taking its place and fulfilling the cycle of life, so did man rise, flourish, fall, die and moulder forgotten in the ground, while others were ready to take his place and fulfil the functions of manhood better, perhaps, than he had done in his life. The address was closed with the hope that men would so live that "others coming after them might find it easier to follow the truth more vigorously."

Personal.

Mr. John Garvey, of London, is in town.

Mr. Geo. Edmison is attending the Cobourg assizes this week.

Mr. W. J. Huffman, of Fort William, N. W.T., is in town attending his brother during his illness

Mr. Richard Elmhirst, of the township of Anstruther, has been appointed a bailiff of the fifth division court of the county of Peterborough.

The Warder says:—Dr. R. F. Morrow, dentist, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with his parents and sisters in Lindsay. There are few young Manvers boys who have been more successful than has Dr. Morrow. He is rightly remembered by his old acquaintances from his native township, who, when troubled with an obstreperous molar, ever seek relief, comfort and restoration at Dr. Morrow's office.

The Post says:—Mr. A. Nevin, of Haliburton, the well-known surveyor, was in town Wednesday on his way home from a survey north of Lake Temiscamingue. He has outlined several townships on the Blanche river. There are now 23 townships outlined, 16 of which have been sub-divided. Nearly all good clay soil and fine farming country. There are fine settlements across the lake in Quebec province raising wheat and other grains. Steamers run twenty-five miles up the Blanche river.

News Nuggets.

—To-day is the anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot.

—Chief Rossel went to Buffalo this morning to bring over Greenfield, the burglar. He will probably return with the prisoner to-morrow night —Inspector Pope is having George and the principal adjoining streets cleaned up ready for winter. A large amount of superfluous mud is being taken off.

—Mr. Thos. Parrington corralled a live butterfly on the street to-day. This is pretty late in the season for butterflies.

—A lady at the police station to-day entered a complaint against some boys for playing her a filthy trick Hallowe'en. They will have to answer for their conduct to the police magistrate.

—The lines are already laid down to make Peterborough, Lindsay, Orillia and Owen Sound cities in the not distant future.—Orillia News Letter. Peterborough first, of course.

—The match trotting race to have taken place at the driving park to-morrow has been postponed. It will be held the latter end of this week or early next week. The entries are Pettitt's pacer, E. Brown's "Maud B." (pacer) and A. Elliott's "Lady B."

—Considerable interest is being aroused in town over the Presidential election in the United States to-morrow. It is said that there is a large amount of money up on the result, and Cleveland seems to be the favorite.

—Mr. Tom McIlroy, jr., manager of the Toronto Rubber Co., was in town to-day, and went out to Lakefield to negotiate with the village council for the sale of hose. Mr. McIlroy's company makes the excellent Eureka hose that has given such good satisfaction to Peterborough.

—The Port Hope town council have written the councillors of the townships of Hope and Hamilton, and also Messrs. Gillet and Ward, M.P.'s, asking them to meet with the council at an early date to devise a scheme to abolish tolls on the Rice Lake gravel road. The resolution was carried, but the chances are the millenium will arrive before the committee gets together.

—Brockville, and Leeds & Grenville county, in which the town is situated, are at legal loggerheads over the division of Scott Act fines. The town police magistrate paid over to the county $750 of fines money; when the town paid its share of the cost of administration of justice to the county, this $750 was deducted. The county is now suing to recover the full amount.

Actions to Quash Proceedings.

The Department of Justice at Ottawa has been served with a notice by Mr. E. B. Edwards, solicitor, Peterborough, to quash the proceedings in the case of John Wasson, of Dummer, who was convicted of sending to Warsaw cheese factory adulterated milk in contravention of the Act passed by the Provincial Legislature recently. Mr. Edwards contends that the Act is ultra vires and that, under the British North America Act, the instituting of criminal proceedings in such a case should rest with the Dominion Government.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

The Intercommunication of Women.

An eminent German hygienist has declared that the nervousness of women is generally owing to two defects—anæmia, caused by the silly notion that a hearty appetite is unfeminine, and fresh air starvation, accompanied by a lack of exercise. To their fondness for fresh air, their open windows at night, and their constant exercise, he attributes the greater beauty of the English women. "The beauty of the German woman," he says, "lies in their face, with its changing and amiable expression. The beauty of the English lies in the whole body and in their health.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade, and we do not expect to have any more like them. READY-MADE CLOTHING.

Our ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly, it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

DRESS-MAKING.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

FLANNELS and UNDERWEAR

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Starlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

MR. JUSTICE PATTERSON TO BE SWORN IN TO-DAY.

The Canadians Commissioned in the Regular Army to Report on Nov. 26—The Reported Indian Fight Discredited.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Mr. Justice Patterson has arrived in the city and was to have been sworn in yesterday morning by Chief Justice Ritchie but his commission not having been received the ceremony was postponed until to-day at 11, when the Supreme Court meet for delivery of judgments and will afterwards take up the October list. It is probable however, that after Mr. Justice Patterson is sworn in the next business will be an application to fix a day for the hearing of the appeal in the Manitoba railway case.

The Militia Department has been informed that the seven commissions in the regular army annually granted to Canadians have been awarded and that these gentlemen are to report at the School of Military Engineering: R. E. Prost, Ottawa; T. Joly de Lotbiniere, Quebec; W. B. Leslie, Kingston; C. B. Farewell, Sherbrook; R. P. Bremner, Halifax, N. S.; P. C. Girouard, Dorval, P. Q.; T. Adams, Kingston.

Mr. Robert Sedgewick, Deputy Minister of Justice, left for New York yesterday, en route for England, to appear before the Privy Council in the appeal about the ownership of minerals in the railway belt in British Columbia.

The Comptroller of the Northwest Mounted Police has been informed that there is no truth in the reported fight a few days ago between the Blood and Stoney Indians south of Calgary. There was no encounter whatever, and it is doubtful whether there are any Bloods in that neighborhood. One Indian was accidentally shot by his own party and this probably gave rise to the story.

It is rumored that Lord Sackville-West will shortly arrive in Ottawa and be the guest of His Excellency the Governor-General at Rideau Hall for a few days.

The Public Works Department has let the contract for the Riding Hall, at Regina to Maj. John Stewart of Ottawa, and for the Postoffice at Goderich to Tambling & Co. of London.

Captain John Murray of St. Catharines is said to be the successful tenderer for the work of deepening the Galops Canal.

Sir Hector Langevin leaves for Montreal this afternoon to take part in the annual trip of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners on Wednesday. He will go on to Quebec for a few days.

There was a meeting of Council yesterday but Sir John being in Kingston on account of the illness of his sister, only routine business was transacted.

Digging for a Treasure.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—There is a peculiar kind of excitement existing in the fourth range of the township of Hull just now. A farmer there named Charley Pink owns a farm. A week or so ago a brother of his named John returned from the States. While there he consulted a clairvoyant who told him that in his brother Charley's farm were buried three crockfuls of gold and named a cellar of an old house knocked down where the treasure lay hidden. One crock has been found, so the story goes, and the search still continues.

Drowned in a Well.

CORNWALL, Nov. 6.—A lad named Leduc, aged 7 years, was drowned in a well on his father's property here last evening. The young lad was sent out in search of his father. The evening was very dark, and it is supposed he did not observe the well and fell into it.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—St. Lawrence Market yesterday morning was quiet. The supply and the demand were small and there was no change in prices.

On the hay market trade was flat. The receipts were small and the few loads of hay offered were picked up at $23 and $24. Straw sold at $15.

On the street market 200 bushels of wheat sold at $1.21 for fall, 97 and 98c. for goose, $1.20 and $1.21 for spring; 3000 bushels of barley at 67 to 75c. and 300 of oats at 41 and 42c.

On the Call Board $14 was bid for bran, Toronto freight, and one car was sold at that rate.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Probably on account of the overshadowing importance of election the attendance at the Utica Board of Trade yesterday was small. The exports have been growing less and less, and last week only about 6000 boxes were shipped abroad. Canada seems to be very largely supplying the English market. The home trade has taken about all the September cheese and has stocked up to such an extent that there is at present no active demand from any quarter. Yesterday's prices declined ¼c. Transactions were: 34 lots, 2449 boxes, 9¾c; 12 lots, 879 boxes, 9¾c; 15 lots, 1215 boxes, 10c; 4 lots, 390 boxes, 10¼c; 6 lots, 360 boxes, 10¼c; 17 lots, 1348 boxes, on commission. Tota transactions one year ago 12,064 boxes, ruling price 10¼c.

Less attention was paid to the cheese question than to the election on the Little Falls market yesterday. Sales were light and prices off one-sixth cent from last week. The principal demand has been from the home trade and exporters have made very light purchases. Colored cheese has preference and no sales of white stock were made at more than 9¾c. Following are the transactions: 40 lots at 9¾c, 26 lots at 10c, and 12 lots commission; total 4985 boxes. Farm dairies—Sales amount to 415 boxes and were at 9¾c to 10¼c, bulk 10¼c. Butter—Fifty-five packages of farm dairy butter sold at 22c to 23c.

REVOLUTIONARY POLACKS

REGRET THE FAILURE OF THE PLOT AGAINST THE CZAR.

King's Councillor Jackson—The Sackville Incident—A Revolt to Secure Backed for by the Porte.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A despatch to The Daily News from Nice in regard to the Wurtemburg scandal says that King's Councillor Jackson, whose appointment at a modest salary was sanctioned by the King; that Jackson is surrounded with none of the luxury displayed by the others and that he had nothing to do with their introduction.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says Gen. Gourko has sent a telegram to the Minister of the Interior announcing that he has discovered the existence of a revolutionary society in Poland with numerous branches. Many members have been arrested, including a number of students, a magistrate and several Government officials, all of whom are in prison at Warsaw. The society has issued a manifesto regretting the failure of the recent attempt on the life of the Czar at Kutais and threatening a repetition of the attempt.

Florence Toole, daughter of John L. Toole the comedian, died to-day. She was the last of his children and her death has completely prostrated the veteran actor.

With reference to the Sackville incident, The Standard says: The real grievance is not the letter written by Lord Sackville but His verbal explanation of it. It will, however, surprise the people of England to be told when Lord Salisbury asked for an accurate statement of what Lord Sackville really said the American Minister was unable to finish the desired information and immediately after and before Lord Salisbury was enabled to act, Lord Sackville received his papers.

GLADSTONE AT BIRMINGHAM.

The Fisheries Question and the Sackville Incident Discussed.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 6.—Mr. Gladstone arrived here yesterday. The city was en fete in his honor. Mr. Gladstone will remain in Birmingham most of the week and will make several speeches. He was driven to the Town Hall in a carriage drawn by four horses. A great crowd awaited him and numerous deputations presented him with addresses. Mr. Gladstone, in a speech, said the addresses fully recognized the fact that the Irish question was really the English, Scotch and Welsh question, and that until the question was settled the country could know neither solid peace nor effectual progress.

He said that all efforts to solve the fisheries question with the United States had been egregious failures. The Liberals did not wish to increase the difficulty of settling the matter in dispute, but they were desirous by a judicious choice of persons and the suggestions of measures that the question should be settled in a manner tending to draw both countries into closer relations.

The Sackville incident, he said, was extremely unfortunate. It had resulted in the infliction of a serious slight and disparagement upon England. He hoped the matter was susceptible of satisfactory explanation. The incident ought to serve to moderate a little the spirit of vaunting and bragging which is in vogue among the Tories.

The Cut in Provision Rates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The Chicago Freight Committee of the Central Traffic Association met yesterday to consider what steps should be taken by the Chicago lines in view of the five cent cut in the provision rates from Kansas City to the seaboard by the lines leading eastward from East St. Louis. It was proposed that all lines put the reduced rates into effect at the junction points south of Chicago, but this proposition was voted down. It was finally decided to refer the matter to Chairman Blanchard or his authorized representative with a request to confer with the East St. Louis lines and induce them if possible to restore the provision rate. An adjourned meeting will be held to-morrow to hear the result of the conference.

Purely Imaginative.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 6.—Captain Healy of the steam revenue cutter Bear was a visitor by invitation at the Board of Trade rooms yesterday. He made an address on the Arctic Ocean, its winds, currents, ice packs and scanty means of living open to wrecked crews who might escape to the shore. He said that when the alarming reports were circulated to the effect that thirteen whalers had been locked in the ice in September he gave them no credence whatever and that the statements with respect to expeditions being fitted at the Fox Islands and at San Francisco for their relief were purely imaginative.

Election Excitement in Gotham.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Such turbulent crowds gathered in front of the Republican and Democratic State headquarters last night about 9 o'clock, shouting wildly for Cleveland and Harrison and berating each other that officers were ordered out, and the street was cleared to prevent a riot.

Already the police have ready for use more than 500 warrants for persons who have illegally registered. The men will be arrested if they attempt to vote.

Attempted Murder in a Courtroom.

For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 245, made up of 225 in the United States and 20 in the Dominion.

ONTARIO'S HARVEST.

The Report of Mr. Rose's 870 Correspondents on the Year's Operations.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Mr. A. Rose, Secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, has just issued a review of the harvesting operations of the year, together with the yields of all field crops. The review is based upon the reports of 870 correspondents. Fall wheat was so thinned out by the dry and cold weather of early spring that the yield has hardly reached a good average in any part of the Province, but the ripening season was so favorable that the grain matured well in respect of quality. It is plump and hard, and generally exceeds the standard weight. The spring crops were superior both in yield and quality throughout the southwestern part of the province, and to some extent also in the extreme eastern part; but throughout the counties on Georgian Bay and as far east as Brockville on the St. Lawrence the drouth of June and July had an almost disastrous effect. Spring wheat suffered least, but oats, barley and peas were greatly stunted in their growth. The following table gives the produce of the several grain crops, computed from averages of yield on the threshing floor:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Fall Wheat:
1888	888,287	13,870,787	16.7
1887	897,743	14,441,941	16.1
Spring Wheat:
1888	367,899	6,153,549	17.6
1887	484,821	5,633,117	11.6
Barley:
1888	895,479	23,326,599	26.1
1887	767,366	17,151,530	22.3
Oats:
1888	1,819,926	64,104,991	35.6
1887	1,662,463	60,843,191	36.6
Rye:
1888	84,087	1,290,302	15.4
1887	66,262	891,857	13.1
Peas:
1888	686,693	14,289,863	20.8
1887	736,740	12,173,333	16.5

Corn and beans have proved excellent crops this season, but late planted fields were affected to a limited extent by the rain and frost. Sorghum and buckwheat have suffered greatly from drouth, followed by heavy rains. Acreage and yield:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Corn (in the ear):
1888	223,971	17,438,789	78.5
1887	163,966	8,404,786	51.3
Buckwheat:
1888	87,866	1,873,263	21.3
1887	66,163	1,025,353	15.5
Beans:
1888	23,720	324,826	13.6
1887	20,276	274,975	13.6

The latter part of the growing season turned out most favorable for field roots, and as a consequence the reports are of a more cheerful character than was expected from August returns. Potatoes are a magnificent crop. Area and yield:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Potatoes:
1888	153,915	22,373,677	145.7
1887	140,293	10,672,090	76.1
Mangel-wurzels:
1888	21,459	10,090,839	467.0
1887	17,934	8,695,761	317.8
Carrots:
1888	11,224	2,898,584	258.3
1887	9,110	2,105,680	231.1
Turnips:
1888	113,188	65,164,183	101.7
1887	105,327	31,413,436	298.2

The experience of clover this year has been almost identical with that of 1887. The majority of returns describe the crop as a complete failure.

The reports emphasize the statements made in the August report regarding fruit and fruit trees. A large yield of apples is the rule, but the fruit is uneven in size and quality. In some sections the apples are described as clean and free from worms, but from many points complaints come of small size, wormy fruit and heavy windfalls. The peach was poor in yield and quality, and the "yellows" appeared in places. Grapes, however was an immense yield, and the later small fruits were nearly an average.

Fall pasture was not in good condition, although much better than was expected when the last bulletin was issued.

The drouth has had a marked effect upon the dairying industry. There was a falling off in the milk supply to so great an extent that in several localities cheese factories were temporarily closed. The low price for cheese early in the season was also discouraging to patrons of factories, but during the last month a more hopeful feeling prevailed. Butter was in good demand all summer, and the good prices compensated to a large degree for the scarcity of milk and cream, resulting from poor pastures. The popularity of creameries and cheese factories has never been more severely tested than during the present season.

In almost all cases correspondents report the supply of labor as adequate, their being a scarcity only during harvest, and while securing roots and fruit. The complaints of too high a rate of wages and of unskilfulness of laborers are becoming fewer each year.

THE CROSSING EMBROGLIO

NO LONGER ABSORBING ATTENTION IN MANITOBA.

The Criminal Libel Suits Coming to the Front Again—The Manitoba Central Solicitor Contributes an Affidavit.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 6.—The railway war having become a veritable chestnut, the facts connected with the criminal libel suits are occupying public attention. An affidavit of J. S. McArthur, formerly of Winnipeg, solicitor of the Manitoba Central Railway, was published yesterday. He says in brief that he arranged on behalf of the railway with Premier Greenway to secure amendments to the charter which had been disallowed and to the railway aid acts and the company was to furnish $1,000 for Greenway's election, he fearing opposition, and $10,000 for the general election fund if there should be dissolution.

He enters minutely into details and states that the Manitoba Central were working with the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba road, and not with the Northern Pacific as was all along supposed.

Premier Greenway denies the allegations in the affidavit, and says he has documentary evidence to disprove them. The Government will take prompt action, he says, to vindicate itself.

All was quiet at Port Whyte last night.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1888.

St. Andrew's Soiree.

The Ladies of the Church Provide a Splendid Supper, Which is Followed By a Meeting in the Church.

The continuation of the anniversary services of St. Andrew's church Monday night was as successful as the Sunday services. In the school-room the members of the Ladies' Aid had spread an excellent repast to which a great many people paid their respects from six to eight o'clock. The tables were crowded, and the ladies of St. Andrew's did full justice to their well known reputation in the culinary line.

About eight o'clock the meeting began in the church. Rev. A. Bell, pastor, acted as chairman, and had associated with him the ministers of most of the other Protestant churches in town. The choir was also present and assisted in the opening services. The audience present was not very large.

Rev. Mr. Bell in his opening remarks pointed out that this was the eleventh anniversary of the establishment of St. Andrew's church, and during the eleven years of his pastorate he had been pleased to see the church prosper so well. He also referred to the magnificent gift of a friend and member of the church, which had been the means of entirely wiping off the indebtedness hanging over them. The generous spirit that prompted the gift and the Christian endeavor to help the cause of Christ implied therein, would be appreciated and gratefully acknowledged by the people of St. Andrew's in particular and all friends of Christianity in general. He spoke in warm terms of the liberality of the donor. She had been the instrument in God's hands of doing a noble act. And from this the speaker drew the lesson that while fully recognizing the generosity of the giver, they should first regard the act and afterwards the instrument. Because there was now no debt on the church the members should not sit down and say, we have nothing more to do. This generous act should incite them to still greater efforts in Christ's cause.

An anthem by the choir, "God is the Refuge of His People," followed the chairman's address.

Rev. S. J. Shorey, pastor of the Charlotte street church, was the next speaker. He expressed the pleasure he felt at being present on this occasion and among such good people, and the pleasure was enhanced by the fact that this was about the first time he had ever been in a church entirely free from debt. He fully co-incided with the fear expressed by the chairman that church people were too prone to regard the completeness and beauties of the instrumentalities rather than the great end that should spur all church work. There was too much attention paid by people in these days to the effort to make themselves comfortable and easy in life, instead of working for the glory of the Master that they might earn the reward laid up for the righteous.

Mrs. VanEvery followed with a sacred solo.

Rev. P. C. Parker, of the Murray Street Baptist Church, after saying "ditto" in a happy way to Rev. Mr. Shorey's remarks anent the auspiciousness of the occasion, said he had already met many of the good people of St. Andrew's, and hoped during his stay in town to meet many more. He congratulated them upon their freedom from debt, and felt sure that the noble example set them by the donor of the liberal gift to St. Andrew's would lead people in other churches to see more clearly their duty. He regarded the gift as a worthy exposition of the lines spoken by David, "Filling the hands with service to the Lord." In conclusion he urged the congregation to work even more earnestly for the cause in which they had enlisted, and hoped he would have the privilege, at another time, of again addressing them under such favorable circumstances.

A vocal solo by Miss Heabeck was next rendered to the organ accompaniment of Miss Loch.

Rev. E. F. Torrance said that Sunday and Monday had made up a great occasion, one that, he believed, was unequalled before by any congregation in Canada, when a debt of $12,000 was swept away at a stroke and $3,000, besides, given to another church. He was afraid if the news got abroad of these munificent gifts, the result of the anniversary services, Rev. Dr. Grant would have to resign his position and go about the country preaching anniversary sermons. (Laughter.)

Little Lilly Jackson then sang "Thy Kingdom Come" in sweet voice, and was liberally applauded.

Rev. Mr. Grant was then called upon for an address. He had, he said, several good reasons for feeling proud on this occasion. He was, in the first place, the son of a Highlander, then he had been born in Canada, and felt proud of being present at the meeting, and prouder still of the fact that he had been born in Peterborough—for he could imagine no better place for a man to first see the light of day in. He jocularly disclaimed all right to the title of "Doctor" that had fastened to him in Peterborough. He emphasized the remark of a previous speaker that the people of St. Andrew's should not now rest upon their oars, but continue to work for the Master. The speaker then began a brief address upon "Christian Work: its motive, its manner and its measure." Among an orthodox people he would begin each subject in an orthodox way, by quoting a passage of Scripture by way of exemplification. Beginning with the motive of christian endeavor, he repeated the exclamation of the Apostle Paul: "The love of Christ constraineth us." There were many motives for christian effort, viz., the congregational, denominational and patriotic, all engendering love and faith in one's own particular church or country; but though these were good enough in their places, the great overruling motive that should guide all people should be: "The love of God constraineth us." With regard to the manner of Christian work he quoted the Lord's advice to His disciples: "Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves." This passage, it was pointed out, advocated wise and skilful management in church affairs. Particularly in the way of converting sinners, much delicacy and discreetness should be exercised. The speaker related a couple of illustrative anecdotes showing the necessity of tact and wisdom in church as well as business matters. Then touching the measure of Christian faith the speaker repeated the Lord's eulogium upon the poor woman: "She has done what she can." That should be the motive of every church member; the measure of every person's work should be the measure of their ability and power. In conclusion he expressed thanks for the kindness he had met on his visit to Peterborough, and wished St. Andrew's God speed and continued prosperity in the the future.

Prof. Carter here gave an admirable organ solo.

Rev. M. L. Pearson, the last speaker, though not not the least as the chairman remarked, on rising expressed on behalf of another congregation their congratulations on the success attending the anniversary services of St. Andrew's. When he had heard the news he felt that he would like the talked-of union of the churches to come about right away for financial reasons, though doctrinal difficulties might not perhaps be overcome. Referring to Christian endeavor, he regarded the denominational motive mentioned by the previous speaker as an important one. All Christendom, for instance, was indebted to the pious stand made by the early Presbyterians in behalf of their faith; and he hoped the people of to-day would be influenced by the noble [illegible] by the friend of St. Andrew's. He felt as if he would like to play upon the harp of 12,000 strings, and so present the pattern of liberality as to stimulate the generosity of some persons he knew. In conclusion, he hoped the people would all do what they could, and by Christian endeavor show that they were trying to repay the great debt they owed the Master.

The Chairman brought the proceedings to a close by thanking the ladies for their share of the entertainment, and to the reverend gentlemen who had been present with them that evening.

After the choir had sung the National Anthem the meeting dispersed, the choir going into the school room to enjoy a supper among themselves.

An Open Letter.

The Residents of the Eastern Portion of Victoria County Appeal to the People of Peterborough

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 1st, 1888.

To the Citizens and Merchants of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—Are you aware that the floating bridge at Pigeon Creek is closed for want of some temporary repairs? We have been trading with your town for nineteen years past. All our grain and produce has been drawn over the floating bridge to your market and we buy all our requirements in your town; and now when hundreds of bushels of all kinds of grain are ready for your market, we are shut off by the county of Peterborough, which claims that the county of Victoria has a right to pay their share of keeping up repairs, etc.—a claim which they are perfectly justified in asking. But the farmers in this county who trade with you are not in fault. We have appealed several times to our county council and will appeal again. I was appointed at a meeting in No. 5 Verulam school house on Saturday evening to get up a petition and present it to our county council. But that council does not meet until December; I therefore take the liberty of asking you to appeal at once to the Mayor and council of your town to have the obstruction removed off the bridge immediately, so that we can continue our business transactions with you. I am, gentlemen, your humble servant.

JAMES O. LEARY,
Postmaster of King's Wharf, Emily.

Norwood.

Mr. Wm. C. Harrison is building a large addition to his sash and door factory. The plant of the Stacey pump factory, which Mr. Harrison recently purchased, will be placed in the new addition.

The directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, on Thursday of last week, passed a resolution of condolence to their secretary, Mr. W. E. Roxburgh, upon the death of his daughter Edythe E. A similar resolution was passed at the last regular meeting of Norwood Lodge of Oddfellows.

Mr. Thos. Rahal, while working on Queen street the other day, received a severe wound from an adze. The adze is a peculiar cutting tool, and if used carelessly is sure to injure the operator. A cut several inches in length extends across the ankle of Mr. Rahal's right leg.

Mr. Robt. Metcalfe has the foundation for another brick block on his property on Colborne street completed. In the spring he will extend this block south, one hundred feet, to the junction of Wellington and Colborne streets. The block which he erected last year is all occupied and pays a good rate of interest on the capital invested.—Register.

With groans and sighs, and dimie eyes,
He seeks the couch and down he lies;
Nausea and faintness in him rise,
Brow-racking pains assail him,

His stomach settles into peace,
Within his head the throbbing cease—
Ayer's Pellets never fail him!

Nor will they fail anyone in such a dire predicament. To the dyspeptic, the bilious, and the constipated, they are alike "a friend in need and a friend indeed." b

The following communication addressed to a trusted friend in Flemingsburg, Ky., and which from some references to property in contains has been called "the will of Andrews," needs a word of explanation. The gift bestowed upon Miss Layton was of trifling value, though most patriotic—a mere empty trunk. But the full significance of this was no doubt given, with probably more substantial bequests, in one or other of the missing letters. This letter, which reached Flemingsburg, Ky., in August, two months after it was written, being mailed at Louisville, is recorded in the Flemingsburg book of wills, while the original is most carefully preserved. Andrews had directed his friend to draw out his money in the Flemingsburg bank—some $3,000, with gold premium and interest—in case he never returned, giving him a check for that purpose, and to lend it on good security, paying the interest as a perpetual bequest to the town poor. The friend was faithful to his trust, and though the money was afterwards squandered in a pitiful way and gave rise to vexatious law suits yet this secured the careful preservation of the letter.

In all probability Andrews wrote first to his betrothed, giving those and remembrances and bequests which would not be repeated in a letter to another, and followed with this more general and business like communication. The original is terribly misspelled, far beyond the ordinary misspelling of ignorant persons. This is probably intentional, as a few lines at the first have no errors.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 5, 1863.

D. S. McGavic, Esq., Flemingsburg, Ky.:

DEAR SIR—You will be doubtless surprised to hear from me from this place, and still more surprised to hear that I am to be executed on the 7th inst. for attempting to capture and run a train of cars from the Western and Atlantic railroad to Huntsville for the use of Gen. Mitchel. I had a party of twenty-one detailed men from the Second, Twenty-first and Thirty-third Ohio regiments with me. We succeeded in getting possession of the train and traveled with it some eighty or eighty-five miles, when, on account of an extra train being on the road, we were compelled to abandon the train, the party scattering and trying to make our way back on foot. The whole party, however, were captured. I was taken on the 14th of April. I am satisfied I could very easily have got away had they not put a pack of dogs on my trail. It was impossible to elude them. I was tried by court martial and received my sentence on the last day of May, just one week from the time set for my execution. On Monday morning, June 8, I made an escape. I succeeded in getting out of the prison and run by the guard, they shooting at me but not hitting me. The whole country was immediately swarmed with soldiers. I succeeded in eluding them till on Tuesday, about 2 o'clock, when I was recaptured and will be executed on Saturday. The sentence seems a hard one for the crime proven, but I suppose the court that tried me thought otherwise. I have now calmly submitted to my fate, and have been earnestly engaged in preparing to meet my God in peace. And I have found that peace of mind and tranquility of soul that even surprises myself. I never supposed it possible that a man could feel so complete a change under similar circumstances. How I would like to have one hour's chat with you; but this I shall never have in this world, but hope and pray that we may meet in heaven, where the troubles and trials of this life never enter. What the fate of the balance of the party will be I am unable to say, but I hope they will not share the fate of their leader. If they return, some two or three of them will call on you and the rest of the friends, and I hope you will receive them kindly. They are noble fellows, and will give you a whole history of the affair. Please acquaint my friends with my fate. I will try to write to some two or three more before my execution. Tell J. B. Jackson, should there be any little claims that I neglected to settle, to pay them, and keep the horse. I don't think there are any, but there may be. In regard to other matters, do exactly as I instructed before I left. I wrote several letters, but never received any. Please read this letter to Mrs. Eckles, and tell her that I have thought of her kindness many times, and that I hope we may meet in heaven, where we shall enjoy the presence of the Lord forever. Give my kindest regards to Mr. Eckles also. According to the course of nature, it will not be long till we shall meet in that happy country. Blessed thought! Remember me also to the young ladies of Flemingsburg, especially to Miss Kate Wallingford and Miss Nannie Baxter. Hoping we may meet in that better country, I bid you a long and last farewell.

J. J. ANDREWS.

The following was added on the same sheet:

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 5, 1863.

D. S. McGavic, Esq., J. B. Jackson, Mrs. Sarah Eckles, Flemingsburg, Fleming county, Ky.:

You will find one trunk and one black valise; the valise has my name in red letters on the end, the other had my name on a paper pasted on the end; these are at the City hotel at Nashville, in care of the old porter on the third floor. These, with contents, I present to you. Mr. Hawkins, you will find at the Louisville hotel a large lady's trunk, no mark on it, and is entirely empty. Please take it to Mr. Lindsey's, near Mill Creek church, on the Maysville and Flemingsburg turnpike, and request him to present it to Miss Elizabeth Layton for me, and oblige,

J. J. ANDREWS.

(This was proved and recorded as a will at Flemingsburg on the 3d and 19th of January, 1863. The money referred to in the clause, "do exactly as instructed before I left," was duly drawn from bank and loaned for the benefit of the poor.)

After writing these letters Andrews had but two days to live. He watched for opportunities to send them by faithful hand through to the Federal lines. It was in vain to ask permission of the Confederate authorities, as they had apparently tried to keep everything relating to us from the Federal forces.

The erection of the scaffold began at Chattanooga, but on the next day the movements of the Federals had become so threatening as to produce quite a panic at Knoxville, suspending the court martial there, and leading to the removal of everything which could be spared further south. On the 6th of June, the day before that fixed for the execution, Gen. E. Kirby Smith wrote no less than thirteen dispatches from Knoxville in different directions, the general purport of which was that the enemy was advancing with overwhelming forces, and that Chattanooga would fall and East Tennessee have to be abandoned, and giving directions for lines of retreat and for removing the stores. Of course, to arrange for an execution on the 7th, in the face of an advancing enemy, might have led to a very sudden pardon; and, accordingly, Andrews and his companions were ordered to Atlanta once more on the early morning train. There was again the excited crowds, an invariable accompaniment of our frequent transits over this road; but, in addition, the fact that Andrews was to die was published, and he was reminded frequently with references to his approaching doom. These he bore with his usual calm, and patience.

An instance in connection with these persecutions is especially pathetic. A Mr. Whiteman came on the cars, and, advancing to where Andrews was, accosted him. Perrott, who gives the account, was sitting on the seat behind, and could not help hearing all the conversation.

The merchant said, "What can you do, Mr. Andrews, about that $16,000 I let you have for the purchase of quinine and other things?"

Andrews replied, "Mr. Whiteman, this is no time to talk about money. If you had done as I wished you to do in Chattanooga, you would have had all that back, and twice as much more." (Perrott understood Andrews to refer to some proposition that Andrews had made to Mr. Whiteman on his trial, and the failure to accept which was the greatest disappointment that Andrews had then experienced.)

Whiteman continued, "Is that all you have to say, Mr. Andrews?"

"Yes, sir, that is all," responded the doomed man. With a gesture of deep disappointment, Whiteman turned on his heel and walked rapidly away.

SUDDEN DEATH AT HAMILTON.

A Drill Instructor Charged With Assault—Terrible Mistake of a Druggist.

HAMILTON, Nov. 6.—Thomas Renwick, a well-known insurance man, awakened his wife about 4 o'clock yesterday morning by his struggles and exclamations. Mrs. Renwick immediately alarmed the household, but by the time her father reached the bedside Mr. Renwick was dead. The physicians attribute his death to apoplexy.

Sergt.-Major Athawes, drill instructor of the Thirteenth Battalion and the school boys, appeared at the Police Court yesterday to answer the charge of assault laid against him by Walter B. Champ, who attends the Queen Victoria school. In his evidence young Champ said that they were marking time and the instructor ordered "right turn." He turned but stepped marking time, and Mr. Athawes struck him on the leg with a short cane he carried. The boy told him not to do it again, and with that the drill instructor struck him on the thigh. Young Champ called him a coward and received another blow. Then he ran away and fell backwards. In trying to save himself he sprained his wrist. Sergt.-Major Athawes testified that he had occasion to speak to Champ about getting out of the line, and he struck him with the cane to make him more attentive. He struck him again because he spoke insolently. The Magistrate reserved his decision until Saturday.

It was learned yesterday that the death in Los Angeles of Robert Balfour, second son of Peter Balfour, chief assessor, and brother of the architect of the new City Hall, was the result of an accident. Mr. Balfour went to a drug store in Los Angeles on Saturday for some wine of pepsin, as a remedy for dyspepsia. He was given carbolic acid by mistake, and, on swallowing it, was immediately seized with violent pain. Three doctors were quickly on hand, but they could not save him.

R. O. Mackay of this city has been notified that he has fallen heir to an estate in Scotland valued at £10,000 by the death of his grand uncle, a Mr. Urquhart.

Katie Sharp, the little girl who was bitten so severely by a dog on Friday, is recovering.

Conductors Lavelle and Myers of Windsor have been transferred to the passenger run on the Grand Trunk Railway between Hamilton and Toronto, taking the places of the discharged conductors.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. Nerviline has created wonder in the minds of those who have usually tried other remedies, since its action seems magical. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

Among The Indians.

"While my husband was trading in furs he came across an Indian who was taken to his lodge to die. He had inward pains and pains in all his limbs. He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. Beaw, Cook's Mills, Serpent River, Ont. 2w45d.

The Modus Operandi.

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and the Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in Chronic Complaints. 2w45d

A Quarter Of A Century.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Weather.

Strong winds and moderate gales from the south and west, generally cloudy with rain, turning cooler by evening.

The Coming Event.

Devotees of the Terpsichorean art will look forward anxiously to the grand ball on Thanksgiving Eve, in the opera house, under the auspices of the united trades and labor unions of Peterborough. It will be a grand affair.

A Pulpit Pun.

Rev. R. N. Grant, in speaking at St. Andrew's church, Monday night, was guilty of a terrible pun. He was telling a story of a lady who visited a hospital and gave one of the patients a tract on the evils of dancing. The sufferer could not repress a smile, (he supposed it must have been a sickly smile because the man was in a hospital), for that very day his two feet had been amputated.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

Poisoned by Head-cheese.

Last Saturday forenoon the family of Mr. John Cronin, Elm street, was stricken down by a sudden illness that bore all the symptoms of poisoning. Six of the family of eight were affected, Mr. Cronin the worst of all, his case at first being considered rather serious. Under proper care, however, they are all recovering. Dr. Brennan was the attending physician. Their illness was evidently caused by some irritant poison, and the family suspect it was contained in some head cheese they ate the day before. None of the meat was left over, so their suspicions cannot be verified by analysis.

A Broken Arm.

Little nine-year-old Johnnie Flugg's first essay to become an acrobat has not been successful. Yesterday noon he, with some companions, was exercising on an acting bar in the yard at the central school. He fell to the ground, dislocating his elbow and fracturing the arm above the wrist. The arm was set right by Dr. Kincaid. This should be a warning to other boys to do their practising in the gymnasium. Had the bar been in the gymnasium, where it should be, his fall would have been softened by the mattress that always accompanies it, and no injury would have followed.

To-day's Presidental Shuffle.

To-day sixty million people are boiling with excitement in the United States and the fever has reached Peterborough's betting circles. There is a large amount of money wagered here on the result. Some one will have to lose, but nobody can possibly lose who buys his boots and shoes at gough bros.', the wonderful cheap men, at 378 George street. Every person spending a dollar on boots and shoes at gough's gets two dollars worth of goods. A seven thousand dollar stock, bought at a great bargain enables this live firm to sell the best of boots and shoes at less than half the regular price. When you want boots and shoes go straight to gough bros.', you will get big bargains and twice the worth of your money.

Endeavor Society.

At the regular meeting of the Endeavor Society of the Charlotte street church Monday night there was a good attendance. President A. Tebb occupied the chair. Arrangements were made for a thanksgiving dinner and concert on a large scale in the church on the evening of Nov. 15th. Then followed a literary programme, beginning with a reading by Master Claxton; then a reading by Mr. Rowse. Mr. Thos. Barrie, editor of the Casket, read a reply to the question: Is it permissable under any circumstances to prevaricate? maintaining that under certain conditions judicious prevarication was allowable; also a reply to the question: What is love? covering the ground pretty fully.

The Battalion Concert.

The 57th Battalion concert and entertainment on Thanksgiving night, Nov. 15th, promises to be the best of the kind ever presented in Peterborough. The programme is a strong one, and two of its prominent features is the exciting tug-of-war contest between two teams of five athletic men representing the right and left halves of the battalion. Prof. McGuire, of Toronto, late solo clarionet of the Citizens' band, and one of the best solo clarionet performers on the continent, will be present and contribute two solo selections. The most active efforts are being made to provide the very best military concert ever presented in the district. Keep it in mind. Tickets, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. Plan of hall at A. L. Davis & Co.'s.

Discovered a Mine.

Yesterday Messrs. Griffin and Haggart, in the course of their travels in Harvey township, found a rich vein of mica, a sample of which they brought to town with them. The sample has been exhibited to many of their friends in town, and it is greatly admired.

A Trifle of Accident.

Last evening Mr. Thomas Harper, employed in the bridge works, had two fingers badly crushed in an emory wheel. He will be laid up a couple of weeks. Dr. Clarke dressed the damaged digits.

Yesterday Master Percy Reddige was out shooting, when his gun exploded and his face and hands were rather severely scorched and cut by the powder. The injuries are not serious, fortunately.

An Anniversary Celebration.

Last night the local Orangemen celebrated the anniversary of the discovery of the Gunpowder Plot by a grand ball and supper at the rooms of L.O.L. No. 80, corner Simcoe and George streets. Dancing was held in the old Masonic Hall, at present unoccupied, adjoining the Orange lodge room, and the supper tables were spread in the latter by Mr. Thos. Hooper, caterer. Sherwood's orchestra supplied music for the 45 couples who were present. It was an entirely enjoyable occasion and its success reflects credit upon the gentleman who managed the affair.

October Cheese Sold.

At the cheese board to-day there was not as much cheese boarded as a week ago, some of the factories having sold off the board. The total offer was 1,755 boxes. Liverpool quotations were 51s. The buyers present were Messrs. Wrighton, Cook, Bower, Claxton and Fitzgerald. The bidding was very slow. Mr. Cook led off with 9¼c for the board, on which Mr. Claxton advanced to 9 9-16c., and Mr. Cook made a further raise to 9⅝c. None of the factories accepted. Mr. Cook then asked the factorymen what they would take, and Mr. Drummond, representing Keene, answered, "ten and a quarter." "You'll never get it," replied Mr. Cook; "I'll tell you what I will do, I'll give 10c. even for the board." Beaufort and Shearer sold at this figure, but all the others held out for a bigger price, and the board adjourned for a week.

LATER.—Since adjournment the balance of the cheese offered has been sold off the board at 10 1/16c.

George Street Y. P. A.

The first regular meeting of the Young People's Association in connection with the George Street Methodist Church was held last evening. Despite counter attractions and the inclemency of the weather, a goodly number listened to a first class programme. Vice-President Wesley occupied the chair with dignity and grace; well might he be the imitation of him whom to-day the people of the United States shall elect to preside over the nation. The first rendition was an instrumental solo by Miss Owens, richly deserving the applause which it received. Next upon the programme was a touching vocal solo by Miss Allen, followed by a well-rendered reading by Miss Ames. Nothing was more deserving of praise than a recitation by Miss Sanders. An intermission of five minutes was then the order of the evening. The orchestra of the Y. M. C. A. opened the second part, and was vociferously applauded, necessitating the giving of an encore later on in the evening. Miss Pearson was the next performer. She sang very sweetly and gave evidence of culture. Mr. Gallagher then gave a humorous reading, exhibiting the rare gift of complete command over both the pathetic and the gay. Miss Wrighton, who has on many occasions delighted Peterborough audiences, closed the programme with an instrumental solo. A business meeting was then held, at which it was decided to hold the next entertainment on the 19th inst.

Another International "Muss."

Dr. Coughlin, of Hastings, has been guilty of an act which in the present state of strained relations between Canada and the United States may result in an open rupture and end in "letting slip the dogs of war." Reader, hold your breath—a day or two ago Dr. Coughlin shot at and winged the great American eagle on a farm near Hastings. It is supposed the eagle was reconnoitering with a view of fixing his talons in East Northumberland as being that portion of the Dominion most like the United States, and using this riding as a point d'appui, for bodily carrying the Dominion over to the United States, to take part in the presidential election to-day. But the vigilant doctor was on the qui vive, his trusty rifle winged the bird of freedom; Canada is saved, and now the presidential contest will be robbed of all its flapdoodle; there will be no eagle to spread itself and scream and "whoop 'er up" generally. The bird shot by Dr. Coughlin is a splendid specimen of the American eagle, measuring 7 feet 2 inches from tip to tip of his wings. The eagle was placed in a packing case and shipped to Peterborough, where it is now on view in the shop of Minore's Biscuit Works, Simcoe street. The fowl is in a very bad temper. On any person approaching its box, it keeps its eagle eye "skinned" and is ready for an onslaught at once; he shows every indication of wanting Sir Lionel Sackville West for his breakfast. From the demeanor of the democratic fowl there is not much hope of the speedy resumption of amicable relations with our neighbors across the line.

The Great McGibbsey Family.

The Daily Globe of Oct. 9th, 1888, says:—The McGibbsey family, an organization—if a family may be called an organization—celebrated all over the United States for its wonderful talent in the musical line, gave its first performance in Toronto, in Canada in fact, last evening, at the hall of the Y.M.C.A., on Yonge street. The large hall was packed to the doors with an audience that gave abundant evidence of being highly delighted at the admirable, though novel, entertainment provided for them. The McGibsey family comprises sixteen souls, all of whom have spent their lives in the atmosphere of music. The family makes a happy picture on the stage, the father wearing the air of a man of talent, the mother being bright and handsome, with a sweet winsome soprano voice, and every member down to little Leo looking and evidently feeling as happy and contented as possible. The programme was a choice one of vocal and instrumental numbers given with earnest spirit and taking effect. Mr. Hugh's violin solo work was masterly done, Miss Allie is a graceful lady and delightful reader, Miss Viola and Mrs. Hugh are charming corcetists, Master Dookie a skilful clarionetist (only twelve years old), and Masters Jamie and Leo in the kindergarten work with the little ones made all merry. They came to Toronto in their own beautiful palace car." Opera House, Peterborough, Nov 16th and 17th. 1d

Generous Gifts.

The Generosity of a Member of St. Andrew's Church Wipes out the Debt on the Building—Worthy Example to Other Wealthy Citizens.

At the soiree in connection with the anniversary services of St. Andrew's last night, it was first publicly announced that a member of the congregation had on Sunday placed a cheque for $12,000 on the contribution plate, thus wiping out the debt on the church building. Rev. Mr. Bell in making the announcement said he would be glad to say much more on the subject and give fuller expression to the gratitude and thankfulness of the congregation, but he did not desire to be unduly effusive. It is understood, however, that the donor is Mrs. Nicholls, and though she personally dislikes parade of her doings in this respect, yet her liberality should be made known so that others of our wealthy citizens may imitate her example. Her benefactions are not at all confined to the $12,000 donated to St. Andrew's on Sunday, but on the previous Saturday she gave St. Paul's Presbyterian church $3,000 to be applied to church purposes, a generosity highly appreciated by the people of St. Paul's, and on previous occasions she has donated $6,000 besides, to the building fund of St. Andrew's. These gifts taken in connection with the present of a hospital building and an endowment of $15,000, show how the possession and well directed use of wealth may be made a benefit both to the possessor and the highest interests of humanity.

Mr. C. E. L. Porteous, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Lindsay for the last ten years, removed yesterday to take a similar position at Kingston Prior to his departure he was presented with a handsome service of plate.

An Ode of Honor,

Lines suggested upon seeing an elegant gold headed cane presented by the electors of North Smith to Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., for his valuable services in the Local Legislature:

Sir, our North Smith electors still remain both staunch and true
Not alone unto their party—they feel justly proud of you,
Through your parliamentary duties, they your actions strictly scanned,
Both in voting and in speaking you most nobly took your stand;
For fulfilment of your pledges, every act of yours they traced;
Soon they were convinced their confidence in you was not misplaced.
Now, to you they show their gratitude, hoping you will not disdain
To accept this tribute of respect—in this gold headed cane.

They did vote and use their influence to send you to parliament;
They relied on your integrity, and to-day they don't repent.
To be faithful to your pledges, you each barrier did surmount;
Not ashamed to meet your friends again to render your account.
The rights and privileges, they claim, they entrusted to your care;
On each supply you boldly fought and gained your equal share.
They own your worth, they sound your praise—not empty words nor vain—
In honor they present you with—this nice gold headed cane.

It is not the value of that cane, as you raise it to your view,
'Tis the source from whence it emanates, reveals its worth to you.
It has language though it speaks not, it has meaning in its parts—
Gold is shining, cane is lasting, it reflects the donors' hearts.
Sir, to you it must give pleasure, and supreme delight afford.
Thus to know your acts are pleasing, and your name so much adored;
Very few young politicians ever did such honors gain—
Like you, return to parliament, with your bright gold headed cane.

They did not give that cane to you to raise, to hold, your right,
They gave it as a gift of love, to make your step more light.
They knew that you had talents bright, and tongue that moves at will—
Make that your weapon of defence, and let your cane lie still.
That cane will help you onward, up the slippery path to fame,
It will urge you on to honor, shed fresh lustre o'er your name;
And when your term expires, if you election seek again,
Your North Smith friends will rally round you and your shining cane.

WILLIAM TELFORD,
Smith.

The village schools are overcrowded and the Board is considering means to relieve the pressure.

The sheet iron bottom for the lock furnished by Mr. Law, the well known bridge builder, of Peterborough, has been riveted together, and lowered to its place. It has now to be bolted down by the diver, and it is hoped that it will be a success in stopping the leak.

An effort is being made to have a dry dock built in connection with the new dam. A most suitable site is available and an opportunity of obtaining a work so necessary to this section of the Trent Valley Canal should not be lost.

The works on the new dam are making good headway, and a thorough job is being made. The old dam is being corked as tight as it can possibly be made and the water below will be drawn of to its lowest level. The force consists of seventy men, and gives an agreeable appearance of life and stir.—Independent.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

Stanley's Last Chat.

Col. Colborne, formerly attached to Hicks Pasha's staff, gives an interesting account of an interview he had with Mr. Stanley an hour before he left Sheppard's hotel at Cairo to commence his long journey. In the course of conversation Stanley said: "Do you know that the Nile itself could be turned off with comparative ease? The Victoria Nyanza is on a plateau like an inverted basin. It could be made to trickle over at any point. The present king of Uganda is fond of his liquor; waking up any morning after drinking too much 'mwenge' (plantain wine) over night, he might have what is called 'a head on him' and feel in a very bad temper. He might then take it into his head to turn off the Nile; he might do this by ordering a thousand or so natives to turn out and continue to drop stones across the Ripon Falls at the top till they were blocked. To do this would be quite possible. I calculate this could be done by the number of men I mention in nine months for the falls are very narrow. True, the effect of this could be counteracted in a year or so by reservoirs and dykes; but meanwhile the population of Egypt would be starved. His father, King Mtesa, once actually contemplated doing this, not with a view of creating mischief, but because he wanted to water some particular tract of land, and for this purpose to make the lake dribble over it."

Again lighting the stump of his cigar, he now conversed about his probable route and the time he would most likely take to reach Emin. His faithful attendant at last entered and began to strap up the portmanteau and bag, a sign that the time for departure was at hand. "Tell them," said Stanley, as I wished him every success and we shook hands, "tell them at home that my mission is purely pacific." I forgot to mention that he especially told me that perhaps the world might not hear anything of him for months. 'Let people remember that if I go by the route I now intend I shall have to traverse a tract of country utterly unknown"—he pointed it out to me on his map—"and it must not be supposed that I am lost because I am unable to communicate with the outer world"—the same words that Hicks Pasha used when he started on his second and ill-starred campaign.—London Times.

—A curious case has just been decided upon appeal in a Scottish court. A young woman brought an action of breach of promise against a young man who admitted having been engaged to her. His defence was that she objected to his smoking and finally said, "Choose between your cigar and me." He made the choice in favor of the weed, and when she sued him the judge held that by offering the alternate she was responsible for the swain's desertion, and the superior court sustained the decision.

Fraserville.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. H. A. Strike has forwarded his resignation to the trustees of Fraserville school, to take effect at the close of the present term.

Mr. Robert Stewart has purchased the right for the township of North Monaghan, which enables him to sell or build the best patent fence line ever issued in Ontario, known as Rosser's improved fence; it recommends itself for simplicity, cheapness and durability.

Anniversary sermons in connection with Fraserville Methodist church will be held (D.V.) on the first Sabbath in December—services morning and evening. Rev. T. Manning, B.A., of Orillia, has been invited to conduct the Sabbath services. Addresses will be delivered on the following Monday evening by two or three of the leading ministers of the Methodist church. A Christmas Tree in connection with the Methodist church here will be held on Monday evening, December 24th. We hope to present, as was last year, an ex cellent programme.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade, and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of Caps, and can now offer

Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25, and $1.50,

AND

Black and Grey Persian Lamb, at $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00.

READY-MADE CLOTHING.

Our ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly, it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

DRESS-MAKING.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

FLANNELS and UNDERWEAR

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Scorchers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

This is the house Uncle Sam built.

This is the man who will live in the house Uncle Sam built.

PRESIDENT HARRISON.

The Republican Candidate Elected — A Close Contest.

The returns of yesterday's election in the United States received up to the hour of going to press leave the result involved in considerable uncertainty, with a strong probability, however, of Harrison's election.

There is nothing to indicate that any of the states counted upon as "sure" for either party have furnished any surprises.

The South is solidly Democratic and the North, with the exception of Connecticut, Indiana, New Jersey and New York, is certainly Republican.

Of the four states which have been classed as doubtful, New Jersey has probably given the Cleveland electors a plurality. The Democrats claim 8000 plurality. Since the organization of the Republican party New Jersey has always been Democratic in a Presidential election except in 1872, when Gen. Grant received a majority of 14,570 over Horace Greeley.

Connecticut has also gone Democratic by about 450 majority.

The returns from Indiana are meagre, indicating Republican gains, and the state is claimed by both parties. The New York Herald says there is every indication that the state has gone Democratic.

As so often before New York determines the result. Returns from New York and Kings Counties complete and from half the balance of the state indicate that Harrison has carried the day by about 12,000 majority and is elected President.

The very latest returns ensure a Republican plurality in New York and render certain the election of Harrison and Morton.

If the results are as indicated above the ballot of the Electoral College will be cast as follows:

	Total Number of Votes	401

A UNIQUE FEATURE.

The Vote in Cleveland's Home—How it Looks at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 6.—A unique feature of the contest which closed this evening was the vote of this city and county. This, Erie County, is reckoned as safe for 3000 Republican majority. It gave Harrison for President about 2000, but Hill, the Democratic candidate for Governor, carries it by 5000, receiving the solid saloon vote.

It would seem that Harrison has carried New York State by 12,000 and is elected President. Returns from New York and Kings Counties complete and from half of the balance of the State are to this effect and there is nothing in the returns as they come to hand to indicate that places yet to report will alter the estimate given herein.

Connecticut is very close and is claimed by both sides with the possibility that it will take the official vote to decide.

Indiana sends meagre returns but these indicate that Harrison has secured the State by a small plurality.

New Jersey is Democratic.

The Western and Northwestern States, including Michigan have on the face of light returns received remained true to their Republican allegiance.

There is some doubt as to Virginia and West Virginia, but the Democrats claim both states.

THE MAJORITIES.

Latest Returns from the Various States—The Solid South.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 6.—Returns have been received from different points in all the districts and show a solid Democratic delegation to Congress. Cleveland's majority will be as large as in 1884, when it was 32,457.

North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N.C., Nov. 6—The vote in this state was by far the largest ever polled. The returns so far show that the Democrats are making gains.

South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, S.C., Nov. 6.—No disturbance at the polls and nothing to indicate a decrease in be Democratic majority of 1884, when Cleveland's majority was 48,031.

Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6.—Indications are that Cleveland's majority in his State is about 25,000. The solid Democratic congressional delegation is elected.

Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Nov. 6—Harrison's plurality is 4000.

New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N.H., Nov. 6 Harrison has carried New Hampshire. Goodell (Rep.) has been elected Governor. The Republicans have carried both congressional districts and have secured control of the legislature.

Maine.

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 6.—Blaine has sent the following telegram to Gen. Harrison: Returns thus far received indicate that Maine has given you a majority of 23,000. It will be more rather than less.

New Jersey.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 6.—The Hudson County Democrats made almost a clean sweep. Their Presidential electors will have fully 6000 majority, thus assuring the State for Cleveland.

Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—Returns are coming in slowly. On the basis of gains shown by the returns from 30 precincts the Republicans will have a plurality of about 2500 in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Thirty precincts in Indiana show not Republican gains of 378. At this rate the plurality for the Republican ticket will be over 25,000. Republicans at the committee rooms now claim the state by 12,000.

Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 6.—Fifty-one towns out of a total of 1200 in Wisconsin show a net Republican gain of 344.

California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Returns coming in slowly. Much scratching, nothing can be given at present.

Florida.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Herald Bulletin says Florida is probably Democratic by 1500.

Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—Chairman Cooper of the Republican State Committee claims the state for Harrison by about 80,000 majority. This would be a Republican gain of 9000.

New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—1023 election districts outside of New York and Kings counties give Harrison a plurality of 47,093, in the same districts Blaine's plurality was 36,749.

Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Complete returns from Connecticut, except one town gives the following result: Harrison 74,467, Cleveland 74,815. It is estimated that Cleveland's majority will be 400 in the State.

Delaware.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 6.—No definite returns can be had from the State to-night. It has gone Democratic by a reduced majority.

Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 7.—The congressional delegation will be unchanged. The State gives about the usual Democratic majority on the national ticket.

Michigan.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—Estimates from Democratic sources agree with those of the Republican national and state tickets, but differ on the result in the congressional districts. It is conceded that Harrison has carried the state by about 12,000, and that Luce (Rep.) will have some 3000 less for Governor.

Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 7.—The Republican State Central Committee claim the State for Harrison by 25,000.

Colorado.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 7.—The Republicans claim the election of the National and State tickets by 8000.

West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 7.—The chairmen of both the State Committees claim the State. This city is not to be counted before 11 a.m. to-day. The result in the State will probably not be known before Thursday.

In the Cities.

Cleveland's plurality in New York City is 56,000.

Boston gives Cleveland a plurality of 8847.

Cleveland carries Chicago by from 5000 to 6000. In 1884 Blaine carried the city by 3890.

Brooklyn gives Cleveland 11,541 plurality.

Buffalo gives a Republican majority of 1569, a gain of 456 over 1884.

The Next President.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—The city is wild with enthusiasm over the reports from New York. Gen. Harrison is receiving the returns in his library surrounded only by his family, Gen. Miller, his law partner, and a few intimate friends. He is being deluged with despatches congratulating him on his prospects but will not make them public to-night.

Congress Republican.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Tribune bulletin says the next House of Representatives will be Republican by 20 to 25 majority.

Gotham's New Mayor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The New York City Press Association says Grant's (Tammany Democrat) election is assured by from 20,000 to 25,000.

From Chairman Quay.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—The following has just been received by General Harrison: We have New York.

(Signed) M. S. QUAY.

Election Notes.

Of the five great morning papers of the City of New York four of them were strong advocates of the re-election of Cleveland. Only one of them, The Tribune, favored the election of Harrison. The World, The Herald, The Times and The Sun were all Cleveland papers.

There seems to be good reason for believing that a deal was made between the local managers in the City of New York to this effect, namely, that if the Democratic managers could induce their followers to vote for Harrison certain other Republican managers would bring their followers over to Hill for governor of the State of New York. Practically this was what was called "knifing" Cleveland, and it seems to have been practised very largely throughout the State.

The election of Grant as Mayor of New York is a triumph for Tammany Hall and gives that institution the large patronage of the city.

William D. Hoard, the Butter candidate for Governor of Wisconsin, is elected by a large majority.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

Democratic Supremacy Sacrificed to Personal Ambition.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Herald this morning says: "At the hour of going to press with our first edition the probabilities indicate the election of General Harrison. This opinion is based upon despatches received from all the states in the Union and which may be divided as follows:

"Cleveland—Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia—168.

"Harrison—Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Vermont, and Wisconsin—207.

"Doubtful—California, Nevada, Indiana—31.

"Conceding the votes of Connecticut and New Jersey to Mr. Cleveland and regarding Indiana, California and Nevada as doubtful, Gen. Harrison has a majority in the electoral college.

"The figures show the election of David B. Hill as governor and of Hugh J. Grant as mayor. Mr. Hill has made a strong canvass.

"The nomination of Mr. Hewitt had the effect which his supporters principally intended, namely: the defeat of Mr. Cleveland by the division of the Democratic forces in New York.

"The political lesson of the election is that the national supremacy of the Democratic party has been sacrificed to the ambition of David B. Hill and A. S. Hewitt, and the fact which Democrats throughout the country should lay to heart is that in this game of politics their possession of the imperial patronage of New York City is of far more importance than the government of the Union."

Won't Give Up.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Times says: "At 1 o'clock a.m. the election returns received by The Times from the interior of the State show diminishing gains for Harrison, and it is by no means certain that the full returns will not altogether destroy the plurality that the early returns indicate for him, and give the State to Cleveland."

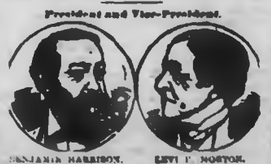
The World says: As this edition of The World goes to press (2 a. m.) the indications are that Harrison has carried the State of New York by a small plurality—3000 to 5000.

Somebody Was Educated.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Sun this morning says: "When a party deliberately buries out of sight the principles on which it was founded and of which it has been for a century the protection and trustee; when it runs some of its best men to the rear, and surrenders the management of its affairs to a syndicate of crooked intellects, theorist-enthusiasts, with just enough shrewdness to half disguise their ultimate purpose; when it abandons politics in the same sense and makes itself an engine for the propagation of a theory, in short when it goes in for an educational canvass somebody is bound to be educated.

"That is what happened yesterday. The great mass of the Democracy, sound to the core, loyal as ever to the essential and eternal truths of its creed, hopeful even in defeat and courageous and unshaken this dismal November morning, is the victim of the educational campaign. It has been educated with a vengeance and as a treatment on cost. It has learned its lesson and is not likely to forget the same.

President and Vice-President.



BENJAMIN HARRISON.

Benjamin Harrison of Indiana was born in 1833—fifty-five years ago. A lawyer by profession. Served in the war and came out of it a general. He was married in 1851 and has two children, a boy and a girl. United States Senator for Indiana. He is a Presbyterian and a Protectionist.

LEVI P. MORTON.

Levi P. Morton of New York was born in Vermont in 1824—sixty-four years ago. His father was a minister, he was brought up in a store; became a successful Boston merchant, then a banker in New York and London. Has been Minister to France and Congressman. A Protectionist.

BACKVILLE'S RECALL.

His Recall Was Not Based on the Murchison Letter.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The papers in the Sackville case were made public this evening. The first is a letter from Lord Salisbury to Lord Sackville, dated Oct. 27. It is as follows:

"Mr. Phelps, who is staying at my house, informs me that Mr. Bayard's request for your recall is not based upon the letter to Murchison, but upon a newspaper interview. I replied that I was glad it was not true that the request was due to the writing of the letter, which was made public only by a betrayal of confidence, and it was hardly practicable to lay down the principle that a diplomatic representative should be prohibited from expressing even privately any opinion upon events passing in the country to which he is accredited. The language of an interview is different. You must be taken as having intended it for publication. Before admitting the need for a recall I was bound, in justice to you, to know exactly what the alleged objectionable language was. I therefore asked Mr. Phelps for a copy of the interview in order to ascertain from you whether you had been accurately reported, and I told him I would then bring the matter before my colleagues. Mr. Phelps replied that he had not received the text of the interview, but would take steps to procure it. It was consequently understood that until the copy was received there should be no answer to the request for your recall."

On Oct. 26 Lord Sackville sent the following communication to Lord Salisbury:

"The letter was a political Republican plot. I have mailed an explanation. The plot was due to the approaching election. If my recall is demanded, I beg to express deep regret at what has occurred."

On Oct. 30, Lord Sackville cabled that he had received a passport.

On Oct. 31 Phelps informed Lord Salisbury that the United States Government had given Lord Sackville a passport, and added that President Cleveland hoped that another minister would be sent to Washington. On the same day Lord Sackville sent the following despatch to Lord Salisbury:

"I beg to repudiate Mr. Bayard's statement of the reasons for my dismissal as an unjust attack on my integrity."

JUDGE PATTERSON SWORN IN.

The Hearing of the Manitoba Crossing Case Fixed for Nov. 21.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—The Supreme Court did not meet until after 1 o'clock to-day when Judge Patterson was sworn in by Chief Justice Ritchie and took his seat on the bench.

Mr. Germully, on behalf of Attorney-General Martin, applied for fixing a date for hearing the case submitted by the Railway Committee of the Privy Council on the crossing question, and after a short discussion Wednesday, Nov. 21, was fixed.

The Joliette election case was then taken up and the argument was not concluded when the court rose.

Mr. Cassels, Registrar of the Supreme Court, recently dismissed a motion to quash the appeal in the Manitoba case of Shields v. Leacock, involving the settlement of the affairs of the Northwest Lumber Co. Yesterday Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q.C., renewed the application on behalf of the respondents before Judge Fournier in chambers. Judgment was reserved.

Judge Wurtele will be transferred from Aylmer to Montreal on Nov. 20.

A Peculiar Death.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—A report received here from Lachine states that a well known Canadian lady named F. Caisse has just died under peculiar circumstances. A few weeks ago she took ill and the services of a leading physician were secured. She grew worse and died. A number of reports began to be circulated throughout the locality that the lady had died through the ignorance of the doctors, who, it was alleged, had not properly treated her. As Mrs. Caisse was about to become an heiress to a large fortune, it is feared that something had been done, as the report says, to shorten her days. An inquest will be held and the whole matter thoroughly sifted.

The Marriage Declared Off.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—About 14 years ago a glassblower named Gardner came to Montreal and obtained employment in the American glass works in the East End. He became acquainted with a young lady who resides on Gain-street. From mere acquaintance the parties fell in love and marriage was resolved on. On the morning of the intended wedding the prospective bride was informed that Gardner had a wife and several children in England. The marriage has been declared off.

A Narrow Escape.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 6.—Mary, the 7-year-old daughter of Wm. May, miller, of St. Thomas, had a narrow escape Saturday morning from instant death. While near the elevator her dress was caught by the end of the shaft of the pulley and she was dragged towards the pulley and whirled round and round, her head striking violently against the floor several times. She was rescued before life was extinct, and it is thought she will recover.

An Action for $20,000 Damages.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—An action for damages of $20,000 has been taken by Hon. James Armstrong of Sorel against the Hochelaga Cotton Company. The action is based on Judge Armstrong's arrest on a charge of criminal libel in connection with the remarks made by him during the session of the Labor Commission here.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

GOSSIP ABOUT GREAT MEN AND CREATER MEN.

The Appointment of a successor to Lord Sackville Likely to be Indefinitely Postponed—A Story of Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—I think it is fair betting that there is not a man in the Queen's dominions who, during the last twenty years, has spent so many nights in railway travel as has her majesty's eldest son. During his Indian tour all the prince's railway journeys were made by night. Lord as his recent record. On one night he travels by rail from Roumania to Vienna, the following night he spends in the train on his way to the shooting grounds, he sleeps all day, comes back the same night to Vienna without a break, quits Vienna by night on a journey to Paris, and travels by night from Paris to London. The night between Friday and Saturday of that week he spent traveling from London to Balmoral; the night between Monday and Tuesday of last week he spent on the return journey to town, and his royal highness is never fitter than after a night of railway travel. He seems to rise from his railway couch adequately refreshed—certainly, in excellent form for either pleasure or business. There are few who will not envy the royal traveler his ironclad nerves. The Prince went to Sandringham on Friday afternoon to join the Princess and the three princesses, who, after witnessing Baldwin's descent at Alexandria palace last Tuesday, returned to their country residence. His Royal Highness will now live at Sandringham, with little intermission, till about the end of February, though he will spend a few days at Marlborough House next month and also pay a visit to Windsor just before Christmas. On Friday evening the Prince and Princess will give their annual ball to the country people of Norfolk in celebration of His Royal Highness' birthday. A large and distinguished house party will be entertained till Monday, when the Prince goes on a visit to Derby.

The United States Government, having thought proper to send Lord Sackville a "safe conduct," to use Secretary Bayard's expression, the representation of Great Britain at Washington passes abruptly from a diplomatist of 40 years' experience to a junior secretary with the commission of charge d'affaires. Mr. Herbert, who now holds that position, is a brother of Lord Pembroke and of Lady de Grey. He is only in his 31st year. The first secretary of the British legation in Washington, Mr. Edwards, Lord Kensington's brother, is in England, and was not expected to return to America. But, possibly under the altered condition of affairs, he now will take over the duties of charge d'affaires from Mr. Herbert, as the appointment of a successor to Lord Sackville is likely to be indefinitely postponed.

Miss Phipps, Miss Cavendish, Miss Drummond and Miss Moore have no intention whatever of renouncing the fortune left them by the late Lord Sackville. The uncertainty which prevails as to the precise terms of the bequest has caused a number of other ladies, not equally lucky, to receive premature congratulations from their friends. Is is Lady Derby, Lord Sackville's sister, who has entered a caveat against the will. Her solicitors are sanguine of success.

Lord Tennyson, who is still in Surrey, has been sick for some months, and was so seriously ill at the beginning of last week that grave apprehensions were felt by his family for the moment. The most urgent symptoms have passed away, but he is still very prostrate and weak. The attack he suffered from, after developing symptoms of rheumatic gout, suddenly assumed those of rheumatic fever. His weakness and age still causes his family great uneasiness.

Notwithstanding the favorable bulletins of the Speaker which have appeared since his return from Switzerland, I have reason to believe that his health is still in a very unsatisfactory state. It is in the highest degree improbable that he will be able to occupy the chair next year. Sir Matthew White Ridley will most likely succeed Mr. Peel, and be the first Conservative Speaker since 1835.

A curiously characteristic story of Gladstone is told as having occurred during the summer. Gladstone had occasion to some into contact with Frederick Harrison, who had just published his study of Oliver Cromwell. A good deal of conversation took place on the book, and Gladstone asked Harrison if he really considered Cromwell a very great man. Harrison answered warmly in the affirmative, giving his reasons, and in return asked Gladstone what was his estimate of the lord protector—what position he would assign him in the political hierarchy. Gladstone is said to have replied: "Well, somewhere after Lord Althorp."

A correspondent writes to ask me who invents the reports circulated with no much gusto, at intervals, that Lord Randolph Churchill is in a very bad state of health and means to retire from public life. The story last appeared in what is supposed to be a friendly quarter at Birmingham. Lord Randolph was never in better health in his life than at this moment.

Nobody can have been surprised at the result of the prosecution at the Old Bailey of Vizetelly, the publisher of certain notorious translations of some of the worst and most offensive of Zola's novels. In neither the legal principles or the questions of fact involved in the case was there any room for doubt or hesitation. Nothing can be clearer than that the publication of what is technically termed an obscure libel—

OUR COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Education.

The Collegiate Institute Matter Again Discussed—Plans to be Made out for Improving the Institute—Other Matters Disposed of.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education Tuesday evening there were present:—Mr. Stevenson, chairman, and Messrs. Dumble, Deane, Stratton, McWilliams, A. Rutherford, T. Rutherford, Weir, Hughes, English, Burnham and O'Meara.

Mr. Rutherford enquired of the secretary if he had notified the town clerk that the board had decided to hold the nomination and election of school trustees at the same time as those for members of the town council.

The secretary replied that the motion introduced to that effect at a late meeting had not been passed but had been left merely as a notice of motion.

MR. WRIGHTON WISHES TO RESIGN.

Mr. Wrighton tendered his resignation as chairman of the Property Committee, which position he had occupied for several years. He thanked the other members of the board for their kind and courteous treatment and wished to be relieved of the position.

With regard to this Mr. Dumble moved, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the board express its high appreciation of the services of Mr. Wrighton in the past, and request him to continue in the position till the end of the term.—Carried.

A HIGH SCHOOL GRANT.

The following communication was read—To the Secretary:—

DEAR SIR,—With reference to your letter of the 4th inst., and previous correspondence, the Minister has certified for payment by the Treasury Department the sum of $509.47 being the amount of the High School grant exclusive of the amount that may become payable in virtue of Collegiate Institute standing. The Collegiate Institute special grant remains in abeyance pending the vote for the amount mentioned in your letter of 30th July as about to be demanded from the town council, and the sum thus temporarily withheld will be paid as soon as it is clear that the local aid required to effect the essential improvements already mentioned has been provided.

Your obedient servant,
ALEX. MARLING,
Secretary.

The communication was received for the present.

OTHER COMMUNICATIONS.

A circular was read from the Secretary of the Association calling attention to the advisability of the Board appointing delegates to the meeting of the Provincial Association of High and Public School Board trustees, to be held at Toronto Nov. 13th. The communication was received and dealt with later on.

A communication was read from Inspector W. E. Tilley, thanking the Board for his appointment to the position, and stating that he had spent four days in the schools mainly for the purpose of getting acquainted with the teaching staff and school accommodation, and would not for the present make any full report of his observations, but reserve it till after his regular inspection. The communication was received.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The following reports of attendance at the schools and statements of fees for October were received:

	Aver. Att.	No. on Roll.
Central School	671	723
Collegiate Institute	113	127
West Ward School	134	169
South Ward School	204	269

The following fees were reported received for the month:—Collegiate Institute, $127; public schools, $5.50.

The following accounts were referred to the Finance Committee:

W. Wallbrook, teaching 3½ days $3 75
J. J. Turner, ropes, mattress, etc. 34 43

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Mr. DUMBLE, in bringing up the Collegiate Institute matter, said the question was an important one and would have to be disposed of at once. He moved, seconded by Mr. Stratton, that an estimate and plans for the adaptation of the Collegiate Institute building to the requirements of the government be procured and submitted to this Board for consideration; that Messrs. Wrighton, T. Rutherford, English and the mover be a committee to procure such plans and estimates.

He said, in support of the motion, that the repairs that would have to be made would not perhaps be so very expensive after all, and would in any case be a saving on the proposition to erect a new building. The principal defect was the poor ventilation, the bad lighting and narrowness of the halls, and he believed by the displacement of the public school rooms and other alterations to adapt the building to its requirements, it could be made answer every purpose.

Mr. DUMBLE added that, as far as he was concerned, he was in favor of a new building—one that would make our Institute pupils feel they were attending college, and where grown-up young ladies and gentlemen would, in the pursuit of their studies, not be bothered with the noise of 600 public school children. This was what should be done, but some did not agree with his views, and the alterations were the best thing that now could be gone on with.

An informal discussion followed upon who would have to bear the expense of altering the common school building for high school purposes, in which Messrs. O'Meara, Burnham, T. Rutherford, Hughes and Dumble took part. To a question by Mr. O'Meara, Mr. Dumble stated that Separate school supporters would have only to bear the extra burden, in the shape of increased rental, to be paid by the Collegiate Institute to the public school fund. He also said, in reply to others, that the building was common school property, and that high school supporters would only have to pay for the increased rent if the alterations were made.

Mr. HUGHES said that if the Board was satisfied, that if the improvements made would be finally acceptable, the Board would feel like going on with better heart. With all the improvements that had been made the inspectors continued to find fault.

Mr. STEVENSON said that one inspector at his visit said one thing and another inspector something else with reference to the buildings.

Mr. T. RUTHERFORD inquired if, in the event of the board failing to make the alterations to secure the Institute grant, we should still get the High School grant.

Mr. STEVENSON—Yes, as a High School.

Mr. DUMBLE—It does not necessarily follow, unless the High School requirements were complied with.

Mr. STEVENSON said that three years ago the inspector reported the building not to be unsatisfactory.

Mr. STRATTON—Have you that report?

Mr. STEVENSON—Yes, there is such report.

Mr. STRATTON—There was no such report.

Mr. STRATTON continuing said that yesterday he had taken the trouble to examine the reports that had been sent the board from the Department for the past three years, and he found that Inspector Hodgson reported in 1885 that the Institute did not in all respects comply with the requirements of the law. That was as far back as 1885. Inspector South in 1886 reported that the accommodation was much improved, but still below the standard of institutes. The board would remember that, after Dr. Tassie was appointed principal, the Institute was removed to the public school building below, and in the interval between the reports of Inspectors Hodgson and South the Institute was removed to the former rooms.

Mr. STEVENSON—It was the inspector that suggested the change.

Mr. STRATTON, continuing, said that that was not the case, as Dr. Tassie made the change principally on his own responsibility, and even without the knowledge of some members of the board. Then, in 1887, Inspector South reported that the accommodation was still below the standard. Intimation was then made to the board (on Feb. 20th, 1888) that unless the defects spoken of were remedied by Sept. 1st, 1888, the status of the Institute, as such, could not be continued beyond that date. Here was fair warning given to the board, which evening was practically disregarded by the board. On July 20th, 1888, the board were requested by the Department to state their intentions, as Inspector Hodgson had reported again in June that the deficiencies still existed, and that in the meantime, the high school grant only should be paid. Then on July 20th the board had replied that they had made a requisition on the town council for the necessary funds and that the gymnasium was already under way, but that the other improvements could not well be begun till next midsummer. The Inspector in August reported his opinion that until the grant was actually made by the town council, the special government grant to the Institute should be withheld. On Sept. 26th the board was again communicated with, and their intentions again asked in reference to the Institute, in the shape of a circular letter. The board replied on Oct. 4th reporting an expenditure of $675 for gymnasium and that they intended to proceed as soon as possible to comply with the other requirements. On Oct. 7th the board received the High School grant and the notice read to-night, giving the board notice that, as the requirements of the law had not been complied with, the Collegiate Institute special grant, was withheld pending the granting of the money by the town council. It had been stated that the Minister of Education in the discharge of his duty had been tyrannical and that he was trying to force a $30,000 expenditure on the Board. There was nothing to warrant such a statement. In the discharge of his duties as Minister of the Crown he cannot misappropriate the funds placed at his disposal. The law of the Province says that Collegiate Institutes and High Schools must have certain equipments, in order to claim the prescribed grants, and our grant has only been withheld conditional upon the voting of the funds by the town council. Any fair-minded man about the board must admit that the government had dealt in the most lenient manner possible, with this board and no matter what may be said to the contrary, their was no real ground for complaint. The board had had repeated warning and they had only themselves to blame for being too slow to act. All other Collegiate Institutes had complied, and why should not Peterborough. The expenditure required was not very great and not nearly so great as attempts were being made to show.

Mr. STEVENSON said what he objected to was this last inspector making out a new requirement that the former inspectors had never mentioned. For instance, there was the matter of widening the halls—an entirely new thing.

Mr. STRATTON replied that Inspector Hodgson, in his last report, had simply corroborated the statements of the former inspector, Mr. South, who had visited the Institute with members of the board and pointed out the defects that should be remedied.

Mr. STEVENSON—He never mentioned about widening the halls.

Mr. STRATTON—I beg your pardon. I was there myself and distinctly remember hearing him recommend the widening of the hall, and point out that the lighting was bad.

MOTIONS.

Mr. Deane moved, seconded by Mr. Dumble,—That Messrs. Stevenson, Dumble, Stratton and Wrighton be appointed delegates to the Provincial Association of Trustees at Toronto Nov. 13th; and that the secretary notify the Association of the appointment.—Carried.

Mr. Deane moved, seconded by Mr. Stratton,—That the secretary be instructed to ask the several architects to supply plans for the North Ward public school building, with the understanding that the plans selected, if any, be paid for; the building not to cost more than $8,000.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. A. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Stratton,—That this Board require the election for the school trustees of this town for the year 1889 to be held on the same day and in the same manner as municipal councillors are elected; and that all things be done and held for the purpose of effectuating the intent of this motion.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

Make a Memo. of the Date.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 20th, 21st and 22nd, Mr. P. H. Morris, a skilled optician and representative of the celebrated spectacle firm of B. Be sure to remember the date and the importance of having skilled assistance in selecting glasses. dtf

BABY'S SKIN AND SCALP
Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by Cuticura Remedies.

Our eldest child, now six yrs. of age, when an infant six months old was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physician, who obtained, to quote Mr.; but it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little sufferer's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid mass of sores, loathsome, hideous, and unutterable. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we were advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The effect was simply marvellous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little sufferer's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.

Clear Skin, Pure Blood.

No mother, who loves her children, who takes pride in their beauty, purity, and health, and in bestowing upon them a child's greatest inheritance—a skin without a blemish, and a body nourished by pure blood,—should fail to make trial of the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

I have seen the CUTICURA REMEDIES used for milk crust by a visitor in my house, and can testify that the cure was speedy and permanent. I have also used them myself, for eruptions of the skin on my little child, with satisfactory results in every respect. The skin was broken out and began to assume ugly proportions. I have also heard my neighbors speak of CUTICURA REMEDIES in the highest terms.

SUN
LIFE ASSURANCE COMPY OF CANADA.
HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,673,777.69, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,207,600.00 insured under 1,840 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,969 for $14,081,377.69.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of, $133,231.42 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,600 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$199,422 60	$1,146,743 09
1876 to 1880, four years	33,580 67	195,198 29	1,467,899 14
1880 to 1884, four years	130,976 94	383,324 31	3,962,924 80
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 99	475,977 24	4,095,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,064 48	$10,673,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

The death procession reached Atlanta a little after noon, and the prisoners were conducted by their guard to a room used as barracks, two squares from the depot. Here they were kept under close guard awaiting the completion of the arrangements for the military murder. The foot chains had not been removed from Andrews, and as he walked up into his room with the short, halting step that they required, the clanking was horrible. Not very much was said in these few sad moments. Andrews did speak in his quiet way of the better life, and his wish to meet all his comrades in heaven. His words could not fail of making a deep impression, though hope of vengeance for the coming deed would have been sweeter to the poor boys than almost any kind of a prospect beyond the grave. But soon a body of strange soldiers came up to the building. Their commander entered and asked Andrews in a very respectful tone if he was ready now. The latter answered in the affirmative, and then bade "Goodby" to the comrades who had passed through so many dangers with him.

The procession moved out Peachtree street, the most fashionable and beautiful street of Atlanta, and continued for about two miles from the depot. On the way, the provost marshal asked Rev. W. J. Scott, a Methodist clergyman, to accompany them and act as chaplain. He almost refused, but Andrews spoke in his winning, courteous manner, saying, "I would be glad to have you go, sir." Such an appeal Scott could not resist, and attended him to the last, writing many years after his recollection of the affair. A great crowd, in addition to the strong guard, went along, but there appeared to have been no unseemly taunts or clamor. To Mr. Scott Andrews gave substantially the same account of the enterprise that has already been given, colored a little by the fact that he did not wish even in death to say one word that might in any way injure those comrades who had been so true to him.

No element of pathos in the terrible scene was lacking. A few scores of yards from the road, in a little valley, a scaffold was erected. There were thin woods around, and night was coming on. A rope circle fenced off the spectators to a respectful distance. Mr. Scott spoke the words that he judged fitting; Rev. Mr. Conyers led in prayer; Rev. Mr. Connor administered some religious counsel to the patient prisoner, who probably thought that all the sins of which he repented were less than the sin of rebellion of which they were guilty. No coffin was provided, but a few hundred feet away the grave was already open. The signal was given, and the not uncommon bungling of an execution added new horrors. The cotton rope stretched so that the shackled feet reached the ground. "From motives of humanity" the ground was shoveled away, and the soul liberated.

The pathos of this death is indescribable. The drop falls and the mere physical agony is soon over. The body, weakened by the last terrible struggle for life—made not so much for self as for the loving heart in far away Flemingsburg—cannot long resist. Then the corpse is taken down; the horror bound spectators still linger. The poor remains of a man of superb beauty and princely endowments are carried to the shallow grave on a little hill crest, and there, near a large stone, "which may mark the grave, if any friend ever wants to know where it is," as a spectator charitably said, he is laid to rest. There is no shroud. The only grave clothes are the tattered garments left from the last sad race for life. Can the reader conceive anything more pitiful than the view presented just before the damp earth is thrown on the cold, upturned face? The busy brain, from which came daring enterprises and cool action, is quiet forever. The limbs that toiled so far for patriotism, fame, perhaps for vengeance, and at last for life, labor no more. The heart so true to country and comrades, so faithful under forms of falsehood, is stilled. The utmost depths of adversity have been sounded, and the enemy can touch him no more. Even the welded shackels, which seem to bind in the grave, have lost their power. It is well that man has one refuge from every earthly misfortune; and as evening gathered its shadows over the little heap of freshly turned earth in the wood—a spot long unrecognized—was he not better off than the comrades from whom he had just parted, or those more distant, whose fate was trembling in the balance at Knoxville?

Some days or weeks after the completion of this mournful tragedy a man came to the old depot at Stevenson, Ala., which was then used as a storehouse by the Federals. He seemed to be a stranger, and went cautiously to Sergt. William Hunter Myers, of Company K, Thirty-third Ohio, and asked to speak with him alone. Myers at once assented and took him into the room. The man looked to see that no one was near the door or windows, and then said: "I have papers in my possession which would cost me my life if the Confederates should discover them on me. I want to get clear of them." Myers took the papers and glanced over them, finding the letter of Andrews to his mother and his "will," already quoted. He was perfectly familiar with our expedition, belonging to the same company as Parrott. This made it easy for him to recognise the great interest of the papers, for up to this time only scattered and partial information had been brought through the lines. On inquiry the man said he was a fireman on the Georgia State railroad, and that he had been employed for several years in that capacity. His native place, however, was Hagerstown, Md., and he had stood the ways of the rebels as long as he could, and was now anxious to get home. Myers wanted to know how he came in possession of the papers, but he declared that he dared not tell. Finding that he had nothing more to say, he was sent under guard to Huntsville, from which place it was easy for him to reach his old home; and the papers also, after considerable detention, arrived at their destination.

The account of the escape and recapture of Andrews was published in The Cincinnati Commercial, about the 10th of June, and reached the sister of Miss Layton, with whom that lady then made her home. As she was already in deep distress because of Andrews' long delay without any message, they did not dare to tell her the perilous situation in which her lover was placed. But near the end of June the full account of his execution was copied in the same paper from The Southern Confederacy of June 4, 1863. As the end of all her hopes had come (see them a week before the intended wedding day) her brothers and sister judged it best not to keep her longer in suspense, and the paper was handed to her. Her eyes rested on the following paragraphs:

Yesterday evening's train brought from Chattanooga to this place to be executed, Andrews, the leader of the engine thieves, under sentence of death, convicted by court martial of being a spy. He was carried out Peachtree street road, accompanied by three clergymen, and escorted by a guard. A considerable crowd followed to witness the execution.

He was a native of Hancock county, Va., born in 1829, brought up by pious Presbyterian parents, who now reside in southwestern Missouri. A good portion of his life had been spent in Flemingsburg, Ky. He had no family, but was engaged to be married during the present month.

She did not shriek or cry out, but read it through to the end, and went silently to her room, from which she did not emerge for hours; and when she did rejoin the family her face was drawn and pale, and the light had gone out of her eyes. From this time forward she took little interest in anything until the letter to Mr. McGavic, printed above, arrived. Many months after, the empty trunk, so pathetic an emblem of her blasted hopes and the great tragedy that had fallen on her life, was recovered. In the absence of any explanation, for the letter to her was never received, it seemed like a cruel mockery! Not long after she died, thus rejoining the man she had loved so faithfully through such hopeless sorrow. No brave man perishes that some tender woman's heart is not crushed!

A Modest, Sensitive Woman

often shrinks from consulting a physician about functional derangement, and prefers to suffer in silence. This may be a mistaken feeling, but it is one which is largely prevalent. To all such women we would say that one of the most skillful physicians of the day, who has had a vast experience in curing diseases peculiar to women, has prepared a remedy which is of incalculable aid to them. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is the only remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold by druggists under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money refunded. See guarantee printed on bottle wrapper.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. Nerviline has created wonder in the minds of those who have usually tried other remedies, since its action seems magical. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

Among The Indians.

"While my husband was trading in furs he came across an Indian who was taken to his lodge to die. He had inward pains and pains in all his limbs. He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. Besaw, Cook's Mills, Serpent River, Ont. 2w45d.

The Modus Operandi.

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and the Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in Chronic Complaints. 2w45d

A Rare Combination.

There is no other remedy or combination of medicines that meets so many requirements, as does Burdock Blood Bitters in its wide range of power over such Chronic diseases as Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Complaint, Scrofula and all humors of the blood. 2w45d

A Quarter Of A Century.

For more than twenty-five years has Hagyard's Yellow Oil been sold by druggists, and it has never yet failed to give satisfaction as a household remedy for pain, lameness and soreness of the flesh, for external and internal in all painful complaints. 1cw45d

Cured By B. B. B. When All Else Failed

Mr. Samuel Allan, of Lisle, Ont., states that he tried all the doctors in the locality while suffering for years with Liver and Kidney trouble; nothing benefitted him until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, four bottles of which cured him. 2w45d

Valuable To Know.

Consumption may be more easily prevented than cured. The irritating and harassing cough may be greatly relieved by the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam that cures coughs, colds, bronchitis and all pulmonary troubles. 2w45d

The Minister and the Navvy.

Yesterday afternoon a minister passing along the street, came across two men, one of whom was loudly declaring, "I have it in for him—I'll knock the tar out of him!" The minister, as became his sacred calling, counselled the scriptural method—"My good man, you should return good for evil—'heap coals of fire on your enemy's head.'" "That I will, boss; you bet, I'll heap coals of fire on his head and burn his d——d brains out!" That's the revenge gough bros. take on the high price dealers—they make it so hot for them that they literally roast them. Double price dealers are all doubled up by the half price philanthropists, and the people reap the benefit. That's why the people throng to gough bros.—to get their celebrated cheap boots and shoes. The man that buys his boots at the goughs' commits counterfeiting—he raises a $1 bill to a $2 bill, that is, he buys as much goods with $1 as he could buy at other shop with $2.

At the town hall at Bobcaygeon on Monday, 3rd December, at 7.30 p.m.

The cheesemakers and patrons should endeavor to be present at the meeting held in their respective districts, as Prof. Robertson is one of the best informed men in the province on the subject of dairying and can give his hearers a great deal of valuable information.

FERGUSON'S FELONIES.

The Career of a Notorious Crook.

Ferguson, Alias Greenfield, Lives a Life of Crime—An Account of His Many Doings in Peterborough — He will Probably now Receive His Deserts.

The C.P.R. train to night brings over to town the notorious crook, Fred Greenfield, (or Ferguson, as he is known here) in the custody of Chief Russel, who brings him over from Buffalo. The people of Peterborough are particularly interested in this criminal, as he spent his boyhood here and afterwards made the town his headquarters for his criminal operations, his latest adventure with P.C. Stewart at the time of the burglary of Gough Bros.' store being the means of cutting short his career, for the present at least.

Ferguson was born in the neighborhood of Cobourg and came to Peterborough to live with his mother while a very young lad. His propensity for crime had an early development. Some have said he was a born rogue, and his life, so far, appears to bear out the statement. The following particulars of his early life were furnished the EXAMINER by Mr. James G. Macdonald, town clerk, who, as clerk of the police court, is well informed as to Ferguson's record, and has watched the lad grow from an ordinary pick-pocket or sneak thief into an ACCOMPLISHED AND DARING BURGLAR.

While the boy was still very young he worked in Hazlitt's mill, and the first misdemeanor reported of him was the theft of $1.50 from "Paddy" Kane, keeper of the boarding house. The lad acknowledged the theft and was let off with a warning, without being arrested. He was soon after arrested for stealing some old iron, and for this served a month in gaol. He was next accused of stealing a watch from a sectionman on the Midland Railway named Noyes, and he and another young chap were sent up for trial on this charge. While in gaol he made a confidant of Alex. Ritchie (who is at the present time confined in the gaol awaiting trial on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy from Reeve Mansfield, of Galway). Ritchie wormed a confession out of Ferguson that implicated him in the burglary of Mills Bro.'s fur store, which had taken place in 1884. Ferguson told where the stolen furs were concealed, and Ritchie turning informer the furs were recovered in an old barn west of the town. Ferguson was discharged by the judge in the watch-stealing case, but he was immediately arrested in connection with the Mills' burglary and the robbery of McKee & Davidson's hardware store that occurred about the same time, and of which he was given credit for being the perpetrator. However, the latter charge was abandoned and only the former one pushed. Ritchie was the principal witness and made a clean breast of all the information he had got out of Ferguson, with the result that the latter, then 17 years of age, was convicted and sentenced to

THREE YEARS IN THE PENITENTIARY.

He served his time and turned up again this spring in Peterborough. An attempt was made to blow open the safe in the Dickson mills offices; H. LeBrun's clothing store was burglarized, and the priests' house entered and the inmates fired upon by the desperate thieves. All these happened in quick succession, and Ferguson was by general consent given credit for having a hand in them all. The details of all these burglaries are fresh in the memories of the citizens of Peterborough.

Meanwhile, after the attempt upon the Dickson Company's safe, the three men implicated, it will be remembered, stole Mr. J. Howden's horse and escaped from town. Word of the attempted burglary was sent to the Toronto police, and shortly after one of the Toronto detectives learned that the parties who were suspected of the crime were in the city. George Belmont, Greenfield and another were found at the Model lodging house and arrested, but as the Peterborough people were unable to identify them they were allowed to go free.

OTHER INTERESTING CHAPTERS

of Ferguson's life were published in the Empire on Tuesday. In Toronto he was known as Greenfield. The Empire says:—

"One Sunday morning in March, information was received at police headquarters that a bonded car had been broken into at Whitby, and that the theives, after being discovered, had stolen a team of horses in order to facilitate their escape. They drove northward until they reached the Canadian Pacific railway tracks, where they abandoned the horses. At Agincourt they stole a hand-car, got aboard and started eastward. A telephone message was received at the North Toronto police station from Agincourt that the thieves were on the way. The police walked out to the second bridge, where they met the gang of toughs, whom they captured after a sharp tussle, in which a revolver was used. Two of them were recognized as the men who had been arrested for although Greenfield sought to hide his identity by giving the fictitious name of James Brown. Besides Greenfield and Belmont, there was James Spencer, an ex-convict who had served several terms in the penitentiary. The prisoners were convicted for stealing the hand-car. Spencer was sent back to the Kingston penitentiary for three years more, while Greenfield and Belmont, who were at that time but slightly known to the police, escaped with six months each in the Central Prison. On March 14 Greenfield, Belmont and Spencer were taken to Whitby; where they were tried for breaking into the bonded car and convicted, Spencer was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in penitentiary and Greenfield and Belmont to four years and six months, the terms to begin at the expiration of those then being served, thus making each man's PUNISHMENT FIVE YEARS.

On May 2 Greenfield escaped from the Central prison and made his way to Peterborough where two days later he robbed a store (H. LeBrun's) of $500 worth of goods which he took to Buffalo. Then this audacious crook for whom the police were hunting in vain, returned to Canada, committed a burglary in Barrie and carried the spoils to Buffalo. He was caught in the act of disposing of the stolen goods and arrested, but as the Barrie people didn't consider it worth their while to prosecute him for taking the booty into the United States, he was liberated after serving 20 days in the workhouse for vagrancy.''

Then Greenfield returned to Peterborough and made the attempt upon but his burglarious intentions were foiled by P. C. Stewart, who had a lively encounter with the desperado. Readers of the EXAMINER will remember the intense excitement caused by the affair, the great efforts that were put forth to capture the scoundrel, and his escape from the country. Descriptions of the man wanted were sent in all directions, and word came that he had been arrested in Buffalo. He was identified and finally extradited, and once more makes an appearance in Peterborough, though in a new role.

GOUGH BROS.' STORE,

Personal.

As will be seen by announcement elsewhere, Dr. Sinclair of Toronto, an old practitioner and specialist, will be at Peterborough next week. The Doctor comes highly recommended.

Charity Entertainment in the Murray Street Separate School—A Grand Success.

On Tuesday evening a concert and supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Sewing Society of St. Peter's (at which Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan is president), and under the patronage of the clergy, was given in the rooms of the Murray street Separate School. The liberal patronage of the public thronged the rooms to crowding, over five hundred having passed in at the doors. The concert was given in the library, which was quite inadequate to containing the audience, while the supper rooms were very liberally patronized. An excellent programme was prepared by Miss Hurley and well carried out. The following copy of it will give a good idea of the excellence of this branch of the evening's entertainment

During the evening the Fire Brigade Band rendered several excellent selections in the supper rooms. The above programme in its rendition reflected great credit on its promoter, Miss Hurley, and the individual performers, several of them, under the circumstances, specially winning the gratitude of the ladies concerned in the entertainment. The accompaniments were contributed by Miss Hurley, Miss Ealand, Mr. Carter and Miss Jessie McCabe. The repast provided by the ladies was doubly excellent, giving the public the choice of either a "meat" or "oyster" supper with abundant accessories, and super-excellent tea and coffee. The ladies are particularly grateful to the members of the Fire Brigade Band, who rendered their much appreciated services gratuitously and cheerfully. The object of the entertainment was to provide funds to purchase a sewing machine for the Society and material to be converted into clothing for the poor—a work of charity that will relieve much suffering during the coming severe winter. It is pleasant to know that the object was handsomely gained. Over fifty dollars were taken at the door and the supper room receipts were sufficient to swell this sum to about $90.

Northwest Notes.

Mr James Fowler, agent, of Emily, has returned from a trip to the Northwest and furnishes the EXAMINER with some notes of his trip. He went up on Sept. 25th and spent a fortnight in Manitoba. He reached Winnipeg the third day after setting out. He found Port Arthur a brisk, bright stirring place, but the country between that and Rat Portage was rough and rocky and entirely unfit for agricultural purposes. Winnipeg is a large, busy bustling city, constantly growing. From Winnipeg Mr. Fowler went west 100 miles to Carberry, which is a small though rapidly growing village. It is situated in the midst of a thriving agricultural country, which stretches for miles and miles on every side. From the roof of the stables of Mr. Robert Ford, Mr. Fowler counted, within the range of his vision, 250 stacks of grain, each representing hundreds of bushels. A field glass would have brought hundreds of stacks more into view. The people were found busy drawing and stacking their grain—all the grain is stacked; the stables are used only for horses. As a general thing two large stacks are placed in the middle of a field, with room between for a threshing machine, which is almost invariably driven by steam power. The machines are generally from fourteen to sixteen horse power, and the machine is fed from two sides at once—from each stack. There are two band-cutters, and one man shoves in the straw at a lively rate. Of course the yield of wheat varies, some is as high as thirty bushels to the acre, and, of course, there are cases where the frost greatly reduces the yield. Where Mr. Fowler travelled he found half of the wheat good; of the other half, quarter was frozen so as to lessen its quality, and the other quarter was worthless. The best wheat was found growing on the high land; the lower ground afforded the frost fuller play. South-east of Carberry there is quite a colony of Emily people, in a good farming section. There Mr. Fowler encountered Joseph, John and Matthew Harkness, Thomas and David Carr, Jas. Balfour, Henry English and Mr. Goggins and two or three others. All appeared to be doing well, were apparently happy, and had good farms, good crops, comfortable homes and good buildings—for the country. North of Carberry there is another Emily colony—John Ford and four sons, Wm. Bailey, W. Switzer and Charles and Michael Lowes. All had good crops. All are contented and say they would not change to Emily again. They had no complaints of frost to make—in fact, Mr. Fowler says, one hears more talk of frost outside the country than in it.

The six-year-old town of Brandon is a brisk, stirring town characteristic of the country. The price of wheat on Oct. 6th was $1.10 and $1.12. Mr. Fowler drove across the county to the farm of Mr. Geo. Hilliard, jr., son of Mr. Geo. Hilliard, ex-M. P., town. He has had bad luck with farming this year. He has a hundred of acres of wheat that is no good, and the rest of his crop will, perhaps, yield him, as the farmers put it, "his bread and seed," and in this vicinity there was a large area of frozen wheat. Last year Mr. Hilliard rent down to his father 6,000 bushels. This year he has, as stated above, only his seed and bread. During Mr. Fowler's subsequent stay in Carberry he visited the agricultural exhibition. Here he found the horses especially better than expected. They were heavy draught animals, larger than is usually seen at township shows here. Mr. Fowler gives a very guarded opinion about the country; he thinks it has fine agricultural possibilities, but he would advise no one to go and settle in it without first going to see for himself. He says, however, that for a young man with limited capital it presents a fine opportunity for establishing himself on a farm of his own. Any person who is comfortably situated in Ontario is advised to stay where he is happy.

Ashburnham Brevities.

The many friends of Mr. Rollie Wood, third son of Mr. John Wood, will be pleased to hear that he has secured a good position in Los Angeles, California, and that his health is much improved.

The embankment at the east of the Otonabee roller mills is being levelled, to admit of a more easy entrance to that side.

The council has taken a move in the right direction in endeavoring to secure more electric lights for the village, and it is to be hoped that their proposition may be favorably considered by the company.

What might have proved a serious affray occurred on Saturday night between an inoffensive Salvation lass and an inoffensive old gentleman, both of this village. Acting upon principle (the principle of love is meant), she threw her arm round the old gentleman's neck and embraced him rather lovingly. He responded by striking back with wilful intent to hurt. A war of words ensued, but it is unnecessary to state that the Salvationist came out a long way ahead.

HARRISON ELECTED SURE!

Summary of the Latest Intelligence.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, 2.30 p.m.—The despatches are very conflicting, the latest received contradicting the last, so that it is impossible to to form an accurate opinion as to the result. The burden of evidence, however, is in favor of Harrison, Republican, being elected.

THE LATEST.—At 3.50 we wired the Globe for latest news and received the following reply, which is, doubtless, authentic:

Harrison has carried New York by 9,000 to 10,000 plurality and Indiana by about 5,000 plurality and is certainly elected. Cleveland carried Connecticut by about 4,000 plurality and New Jersey is also Democratic. Next House of Representatives will be Republican.

Police Court.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 7th.

An assault case was disposed of at the police court this morning, Wm. Feard being the plaintiff and Walter Squier the defendant. The assault it was alleged had been committed on Albert street Saturday night. The defendant's cow was in the plaintiff's garden, and the latter was driving it to pound when the animal's owner appeared on the scene and a "scrap" ensued. The case was adjourned till to-morrow to bring up a necessary witness, Mr. John Green for plaintiff; Mr. R. M. Dennistoun for defendant.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dull, dark days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember James Best's stand, 39 George street. d

The Mail says:—Dr. Daniel Clark, Superintendent of the Provincial Asylum for the Insane, received official notification yesterday morning of the order-in-council appointing him professor of psychology and mental diseases in the medical faculty of the University of Toronto. There is no other University in Canada which has a chair for this subject, and the genial doctor has the honor, therefore, of holding the first appointment of the kind made in the Dominion. The announcement of his appointment will give general satisfaction, his high qualifications for the position being indisputable, while his success as a lecturer to the senior classes in Toronto University school proves his fitness as a teacher of medical science.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

READY-MADE CLOTHING.

Our ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly, it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

DRESS-MAKING.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy cots in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

FLANNELS and UNDERWEAR

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Snaps. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

HARRISON AHEAD IN NEW YORK BY OVER 11,000.

And Cleveland in Boston—Indiana Probably Republican—California Claimed by the Democrats.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The unofficial vote of all counties in the State as far as returned shows pluralities for Cleveland of 73,000, and for Harrison of 80,147, giving Harrison a plurality in the State of 11,191.

South Dakota Indicates.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Full returns have been received from 27 counties out of 92 in Indiana, which show a net Republican gain of 2265. The News says: "The Republican committee claims to have returns from 30 counties showing that Harrison would carry 5000 plurality. Governor Gray claims that the State is democratic by 5000."

Probably Republican.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—The Indianapolis Journal has returns from 80 counties showing gains for Harrison of 7000, which would give 3500 majority for the national Republican ticket.

He Changed His Mind.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Mr. Sheerin, Secretary of the Democratic Committee, when asked last evening for an expression regarding the result in Indiana said: "We have heard from fifty-four counties officially and taking the figures claimed by the Republicans for the rest our returns give the State to Cleveland by from 1500 to 2000. I think we have carried it for State officers and have gained three and possibly four congressmen, and we have a good working majority in both branches of the Legislature."

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Secretary Sheerin of the Democratic National Committee said last night that it looked now as if Harrison had carried the state but it would require the official returns to decide.

Democrats Claim California.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The following telegram was received at Democratic headquarters late last night:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 7.

Hon. C. S. Brice: We have carried this State for Cleveland and Thurman by a safe majority. W. D. ENGLISH.

Cleveland Captures Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Nov. 8.—Complete returns give Cleveland 74,940, Harrison 74,514, Fisk 1181; Cleveland's plurality 385.

Ohio Safe For Harrison.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—All the counties (unofficial) except six show a plurality for Harrison of 20,331. The six counties not reported gave Foraker (Rep.) for Governor in 1887 a plurality of 436.

Chairman Quay's Claim.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Senator Quay, chairman of the National Republican Committee, authorizes the following: The Republicans on Tuesday carried by increased majorities all the states that were carried by Blaine in 1884, and in addition have New York by a plurality of 13,000 and Indiana by a plurality of from 4000 to 6000. West Virginia is in doubt. Gen. Harrison's election is secured.

The Next House Republican

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Secretary McPherson of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee says the Republicans will have about 12 majority in the next House of Representatives.

Conservative About Congratulations.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—General Harrison is receiving hundreds of congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the country. He is very conservative about congratulations, however, and wants to feel sure he is out of the woods before he answers any of them. There were a great many callers at the house yesterday.

Charged With Intimidation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Assemblyman Charles Smith was held in $2000 bail yesterday on the charge of intimidating voters Tuesday.

An Election Riot.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 8.—A riot occurred in Portsmouth between whites and blacks last night. Four hundred negroes marched down High-street, the principal thoroughfare in the city, singing "Hang Grover Cleveland on a Sour Apple Tree." At the corner of Dinwiddie-street a large party of white men were congregated and a white boy and a negro had a scuffle. The negroes came to the rescue of their comrade and were charged upon by the whites. Hardly had the fight commenced before shots were fired by the negroes. Then the wildest confusion prevailed and after about forty shots had been fired the negroes retreated.

The whites then discovered that three of their men had been wounded, two probably fatally. Immediately after the riot and after the negroes had retreated the whites began arming themselves. Everybody is now armed. Mayor Baird has called out guards and 100 special policemen have been sworn in. Intense excitement prevails and the negroes are reported forming outside the city.

VIGILANT REPUBLICANS.

A Statement to the Public From the National Committee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The Republican National Committee makes the following statement to the public:

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS,

In view of the claim being promulgated by the Democratic National Committee that they have carried the State of New York for Cleveland and that they are sending telegrams to their local committees all over the state to that effect, the Republican National Committee have sent out to the chairman of each Republican County Committee of the State the following telegram:

"Although full returns from every county in the State show New York safely for Harrison by upwards of 15,000 plurality, the Democrats are telegraphing to their county chairmen, claiming the State and urging them to pay attention to the returns. See to it that the returns are thoroughly guarded until officially canvassed. Prevent frauds at all hazards. In case of necessity employ counsel. Notify us of any tampering with returns. Communicate with your committee at once if necessary by special messenger."

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

Promised by the Parnellites in the Case Before the Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—It is stated that Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, will call a witness to swear that he forged The Times letters and will show by enlarged photographs on a magic lantern that in tracing beneath the signature the pen was repeatedly stopped in the course of writing.

Ambassador to Italy.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—M. Marine has been appointed Ambassador to Italy.

No Vessel Armed.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 8.—On the arrival here of the steamer Catalonia from Boston a passenger named Moriarty was arrested. A revolver and a quantity of ammunition were found concealed in his trunk. He was taken before a magistrate and remanded for further examination.

THAT LITTLE ACCOUNT.

FOR THE EXPENSE OF THE MILITIA IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg Will be Asked to Settle—Subscriptions Collected for the Sharpshooters' Monument Unexpended Fun.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—In view of the statement made by Mayor Jones of Winnipeg that he would refuse to pay the expense of the militia called out in connection with the railway trouble, it has been ascertained from the Militia Department that a demand will be made on the Corporation of Winnipeg in the usual way for payment. General Middleton said that he thought the Mayor of Winnipeg would not be able to escape payment of the cost, although it might possibly lead to a great deal of litigation. "The militia regulations," said the General, "specify that troops may be called out on a requisition signed by three justices of the peace, including the warden, mayor or other head of the municipality or county in which any riot, disturbance or emergency occurs. The magistrate can act without the mayor, it is not obligatory for him to consent to troops being called out. Under the circumstances I do not see how Winnipeg can avoid the payment of these expenses."

Hon. John Robson, Provincial Secretary of Manitoba, arrived here yesterday for the purpose of discussing with the Dominion Government the questions pending between the Provincial and Dominion Governments. Amongst these is the payment of the expenses, some $10,000 or $12,000, incurred in the recent Skeena River expedition. The Provincial Government contends that as the Indians amongst whom the trouble arose are wards of the Federal Government and the complaints were against the Dominion and not the Provincial Government, the expense should be borne by the former.

In the Supreme Court yesterday argument in the Joliette election case was concluded and judgment reserved.

The case of Chanley v. the Queen was then taken up and was not finished when court arose.

The time for receiving tenders for building the lock for the proposed Sault Ste. Marie Canal closed yesterday. A large number of contractors are here, and it is understood that many tenders have been received. The time for dredging the approaches and entrances to the lock has been extended to Dec. 6.

Quite a sensation has been caused by the statement that all the money collected for the Sharpshooters' monument has not been accounted for. One man is said to have subscribed in something like $150, and the names of the parties who paid this money to him do not appear in the published list of subscribers. The assistant secretary of the fund states that the names of a number of gentlemen who claim that they subscribed are not on the official list.

There is a row in the Ottawa Ladies' College between Principal H. W. Scott and the five lady teachers. Some days ago Mr. Scott informed the teachers that in future they must march in to meals behind the pupils and march out in the same manner. In other words they were to leave the table before him and not remain to talk over the business of the day, as they were wont to do. This order the teachers refused to obey. Tuesday when they went to dinner they found the table laid only for the principal and the pupils; no plates, etc., were laid for the teachers, and although they sat out the meal the principal never spoke to them nor did the servants offer them anything. At supper the teachers did not appear but sent out and bought their own supper. Mr. Scott left on a canvassing tour yesterday morning and will not return for a couple of months, and the ladies meanwhile remain in possession. They are highly indignant at the conduct of the principal and threaten to resign in a body unless he is dismissed. The matter will be brought to the attention of the board at once.

Sir John and Lady Macdonald returned from Kingston yesterday morning. Sir John's sister being somewhat better. She is still, however, in a critical condition.

RELIEF FELT IN ENGLAND.

Demand for a Minister to Washington Who is Posted on Canadian Affairs.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—There seems to be a general feeling of relief here that the Presidential election is over and hope is expressed on all hands that the people of the United States will speedily regain their habitual soberness of mind and co-operate in an early settlement of outstanding disputes.

Regarding the Sackville incident a noteworthy demand is arising here for a new Minister to Washington, who shall have a closer personal knowledge bearing on the grave matters affecting Canadian interests than an ordinary diplomatist would possess.

The Pacific Cable Company are making efforts to explain the survey route to the Admiralty, and it is suggested that the question be raised in Parliament.

The tone of the Stock Exchange has been fairly good during the past week. Dominion issues have further improved, Quebec going 1½ up, the dealers, according to the Canadian Gazette, feeling that those against forcible conversion are stronger than the promoters. Canadian Pacifics have more than regained the fall caused by the Manitoba trouble. Grand Trunks have also improved.

The Manitoba Mortgage Company, at a meeting called for Nov. 13, will consider reconstitution.

A Scotch broker has petitioned the Court of Sessions for winding up the Scottish Canadian Asbestos Company, on the ground that the concern is unsuccessful.

A Chatham Girl Missing.

CHATHAM, Nov. 8.—Zoe, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. Valade, tailor, of North Chatham, has been missing since Friday last. Before her departure she purchased a quantity of wearing apparel, etc., which she had charged to her father. Her parents are at a loss to account for her leaving, as she had always been a good steady girl, of correct habits, and seemingly quite contented.

Three Toughs Taken Care Of.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 8.—Three toughs who boarded a train at Tilsonburg on the Michigan Central Railway acted in a disorderly manner and were warned by Conductor Foxal that if they did not desist they would be fired off. This enraged them and they drew revolvers and threatened to shoot the conductor. They were handed over to the police here.

COLLISION AT KINGSTON.

The Kingston and Pembroke Mixed Train Runs into a Grand Trunk Freight.

KINGSTON, Nov. 8.—A collision occurred yesterday on a siding running into the city between a Kingston and Pembroke Railway mixed train and a Grand Trunk freight. The Kingston and Pembroke baggage car was broken by the tender of the Grand Trunk locomotive. The brakemen jumped in various directions to escape being killed. The passengers in the Kingston and Pembroke coach were thrown against each other and two ladies fainted. The coach was injured. The Grand Trunk train was not badly damaged. The tender was broken and a part of a flat car destroyed.

Fire at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, Nov. 8.—Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in a frame house on the corner of Colborne and Princess-streets, which was partially burned on July 1 last. The flames were soon extinguished but the building is nearly a total wreck.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Telegram Flavored by Skin Gamblers—"Phip" Spoke to Hot Water.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Liquidators Howland, Gooderham and Lye of the Central Bank yesterday presented the name of William Ralph Meredith, Q.C., of London to Master Hodgins for confirmation as the successor of the late Mr. Foster as their solicitor. The Master at once confirmed the selection, and complimented the liquidators on their choice. Mr. Meredith was in town yesterday and left in the evening for London.

W. H. Payne, a stranger from Chicago, presented himself at Police Headquarters yesterday and swore out warrants against Ted Fawcett, Henry alias "Slim" Wynne, and Powley on a charge of having swindled him out of $130 in a skin game of poker. Wynne was the only one of the party arrested up to a late hour last night. Detectives Davis and Slemin effecting his capture. Although Payne is from the rapid city of Chicago, the home of brace faro games, keno sharps and crooked poker players, he fell, as he claims, an easy victim to a put-up job by which he was fleeced out of $130. He was steered by Fawcett to No. 21 Mercer-street, and there despoiled of his cash by various methods known to the professional card player.

A general information was sworn out against "Phip" Spohn by Staff-Inspector Archabald yesterday. He and his friend, "Major" E. W. Crane, were charged in the Police Court with keeping a gaming house at No. 15½ King-street west. "Phip" wanted to compromise matters by offering, through his lawyer, Ald. Galbraith, to close up his game if the police would let him go. He would not ask for the return of the tools which the police had seized. County Crown Attorney Badgerow would not consent to any such arrangement, and "Phip" and the "Major" were booked for a hearing next Monday, their own bail being accepted for their appearance.

The dismissed G. T. R. conductors are awaiting a reply from the company's headquarters at Montreal, to their demand for information as to the cause of their being cut off the roll. They have placed the matter before the Brotherhood of Conductors, which will also take action.

At the residence of the bride's mother, in Queen's Park, yesterday afternoon there took place a charming wedding which made man and wife of Mr. Augustine Foy, barrister-at-law, and Miss Constance, youngest daughter of the late Lieut.-Col. F. W. Cumberland, and sister of Mr. Barlow Cumberland. Rev. Father Laurent, assisted by Rev Father Brennan, officiated.

The Jaffary case crops up in some way nearly every day. The latest addition to the voluminous literature of the subject is the publication this morning of Treasurer Gage's denial of Rev. Mr. Jeffery's charges touching an alleged failure to account for a portion of the building fund. The treasurer is backed up by the auditors and trustees.

IT NEARLY COST TWO LIVES.

Still the Notorious Rawson Divorce Case May be Compromised.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—It is announced that the notorious Rawson divorce case, which has had so many strange and startling phases during the two years it has been in the courts, is almost at an end. It is understood among the lawyers that a compromise has been made between the banker and his wife, and Judge Jamieson, before whom some of the issues of this extraordinary suit have been tried, is the reported mediator. The terms of settlement are these: Mr. Rawson agrees to give his wife $40,000, and her divorce suit on the ground of desertion will be allowed to go by default. All other civil suits—which are legion—will be dropped. Mr. Rawson retracts his charges against his wife's character, and the criminal prosecution against her for shooting Col. Whitney will be discontinued.

The history of the troubles of the Rawsons would fill a book. Stephen W. Rawson is one of the wealthiest men in Chicago, and is about 64 years old. Four years ago he married Miss America L. Lee, a remarkably handsome woman, more than twenty years his junior. She had been twice divorced, was once a Treasury clerk at Washington, and before that something of a watering-place belle. Mr. Rawson lived with his bride in a magnificent marble-front residence on the West Side, but in a few months it was common talk that the couple did not get on well together, and in the fall of 1886 Mr. Rawson began suit for divorce on the ground of unfaithfulness. The only witness he had was a sleeping-car porter, and this man afterward confessed that he had sworn falsely and the case was thrown out of court. Since then Mr. Rawson has filed amended bills, his wife has filed cross bills, there have been rejoinders and sur-rejoinders, affidavits, depositions, and traverses, until the accumulation is far beyond any precedent in even a Chicago divorce case. Both parties to the suit have had detectives watching each other, and whenever a detective saw a chance for an affidavit one was immediately added to the pile.

Mrs. Rawson had a son, Ralph Lee, and he was the cause of a good deal of the trouble between the banker and his wife. On Sunday, Oct. 15 of last year, young Lee crept up behind Mr. Rawson as he was leaving church and shot him in the back. The wound was supposed to be fatal, but Mr. Rawson got well and young Lee was sent to prison for a year. His mother was indicted for complicity, but the trial was postponed several times and finally the case dropped. June 1 Mrs. Rawson's lawyers went before Judge Jamieson to urge a speedy hearing of the suit. Col. A. R. Whitney was arguing against them when Mrs Rawson dashed into the room and shot him twice. His wounds were also supposed to be mortal, but he is alive, though very feeble. Mrs. Rawson was indicted, but has not yet been tried. Last week she filed a new bill of divorce for desertion.

Sudden Death of an Ontario Man.

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 8.—Mr. D. Cameron, of Lucknow, Ont., employed by the contractor for the Cape Tormentine breakwater, was killed suddenly by the tipping of the rigging of a derrick. He fell a distance of 30 feet and died a few hours afterwards.

THE PREMIER'S OPINION

ON THE RESULT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Is a Matter Trembling Which Sir John Declines to Take the Public Into His Confidence.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—The Republican victory in the presidential election has caused no excitement here, the general opinion appearing to be that it makes no difference to Canada, as now that the election is over it will be as easy, or easier, to negotiate with the Republicans as it would have been with the Democrats, had they won. An attempt to interview Sir John was made yesterday afternoon, but he was too cautious to express any opinion on the result. The following is the interview as published in The Journal:

"What do you think of the result?"

"I have no opinion to offer on that point," replies Sir John, with a smile.

"There is an impression that the Dominion Government favored the return of Cleveland."

"Not at all, not at all. We were quite colorless on that point as well." Sir John said this with emphasis, and he looked as though he meant what he said.

"What secured Cleveland's defeat?"

"I cannot tell the causes which won the election for Harrison."

"And the international difficulties?"

"President Cleveland remains in power until March next. What course he will adopt I cannot say. I have no reason to believe the Republicans are hostile to Canada. They favor a protective tariff not unlike our own. There is no great urgency in settling the fishery question. The fishing season is over for this year and operations will not be resumed until next year."

"Are you hopeful of a settlement of the difficulty?"

"You know I never allow myself to be interviewed," was the response. "The treaty negotiated last year is dead. It was rejected by the United States Senate, not by the Canadians. Of course if negotiations were resumed a new treaty could be framed on the same terms. At any rate the negotiations will have to be commenced anew. The Washington treaty of 1872 was negotiated by a Republican president with a Republican majority in the Senate. Is it not reasonable to suppose that the Republicans will manifest in 1889 the same spirit which actuated them in 1871?"

Hon. Mr. Foster was rather more free in his expression of opinion. He is reported as having said: "So far as the election goes I have no decided sympathy with either party. It is impossible to forecast what line the Republicans will adopt in their relations with Canada, fiscal and fishery, as it was impossible to learn from the contradictory course of the Democrats during last year what its policy would have been for another administration had it been successful. The different lines put forth seem to have been mere to influence the presidential election than indicative of a settled policy which should rule after the election was over. I have no reason to think that the administration of Harrison will be anything else than friendly towards Canada, and that opinion is backed by Harrison's letter of acceptance in which he took reasonable ground."

Mr. Foster in conclusion said he thought the United States should take the initiative in negotiating a new fishery treaty.

THIS HUSBAND WAS CRUELLY ABUSED

He Got a Divorce Because His Wife Talked Too Much and Hit Too Hard.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—In 1884 Maxwell M. Fisher, 59 years old, a millionaire of Detroit, and Frances A. Garrison, 55 years old, were married. They went on a wedding tour to California. A month later, while in Santa Barbara, he alleges that his wife yelled at him so long and so loud one night that half the people in the Arlington Hotel awoke and listened. They traveled around California for about two months, and at almost every hotel where they stopped Mr. Fisher alleges that his wife repeated the occurrence. On May 1 this curious honeymoon terminated and they settled down in this city. Then their difficulties began in earnest.

Mr. Fisher charges that his wife circulated scandalous stories about him and an innocent young woman living

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A special meeting of the council was held on Friday evening. The Reeve in the chair, all the councillors present.

The street and sidewalk committee presented their report, which was on motion adopted.

A communication from the school board requesting the use of the council chamber after the 1st of January for a ward school, was received and referred to the Finance Committee to confer with the school board.

A vote of thanks was passed to Geo. McIlmogle for his services as constable, and a by-law re-appointing him was passed through its several stages.

The plans for the new council building were the subject of considerable discussion and after a few changes were left in the hands of the building committee. The council then adjourned.

A SAD DISAPPOINTMENT.

A young bachelor farmer residing a couple of miles from the village, who is noted for his hospitality, in looking over his large stock of apples thought what a good plan it would be to have some of them converted into cider to regale his lady friends when they visited his housekeeper. Six bags were loaded up and a boy dispatched to the mill at Young's Point to exchange for the ambrosial fluid. The load was delivered, the exchange made, and the boy treated to a drink by the genial proprietor of the mill, and started for home. On the road his thoughts reverted to the drink he had received and he concluded to sample the contents of the large milk cans; it tasted even better than what he had received, and he continued the sampling process all the way to Lakefield, where he arrived filled up and very happy, not caring if school kept or not. He could take care of himself, so could the horse, and the milk can also. Near the skating rink the horse left the road, and the can took a flying visit to the ditch, and, when picked up, contained hardly enough to show what it had once contained. Now Harry will have to dispense his hospitality in the solid form until he can make a trip to the Point himself.

LOST IN LAKEFIELD.

One evening last week, about 10 p.m., Mr. D'Arcy Strickland had occasion to go out on the verandah of the homestead, when he was startled to hear continued cries for help coming from the direction of the lake. Thinking some one had upset he secured his hat and hastened to the boathouse and, taking a canoe, paddled up into the lake. A short distance above Hoage's point, guided by the cries, he found a resident of the village some 30 yards in the marsh, up to his neck in the water, holding on to a stump, and almost perished with the cold. After getting him into the canoe, he learned that his passenger had been out looking for partridge in the narrow strip of woods between Messrs. Preston's and Cartwright's and the lake. He had remained till dark, when he got bewildered and had been blundering about the marsh, until found by Mr. Strickland, over three hours, all the time not over 300 yards from the main road. He was pretty well used up between fright and cold, and would once have gone under had not he been heard, by chance, and assistance rendered. Our sporting friend had better stick to the bake-pans as the army, and leave partridge shooting to those more experienced in the woods.

HALLOWE'EN.

The youth of the village, as well as some who have passed the period when youthful follies are allowed to be over, made themselves lively in the village on Wednesday night. The Queen and Bridge-sts presented a somewhat remarkable spectacle the following morning. Everything portable round the village had been moved and was used in the display. It was amusing to watch the actions of the different owners as they arrived on the scene. Some stood and laughed as if they enjoyed the practice, while others gave vent to blasphemous long and deep as they removed their property. It was more than before the last of the obstructions had been cleared away and the street presented its every day aspect.

GONE HOME.

Mr. F. Dinsmeadle, a former resident of this village, passed up to Stony Lake last week, where he will superintend the construction of a new dam and slide for Messrs. R. & O. Strickland at a point known as the High Falls. The slide is over 150 yards in length, with a fall of some 26 feet in that distance. The old one was destroyed by bush fires last summer, and will entail a large expense to replace.

TO THE WOODS.

A party composed of Major Leigh, Toronto; Jos. Dinsmeadle, ex Reeve of Cavendish; Reeve Cammack, Dr. Bell, W. D. Strickland and D'Arcy Strickland, Lakefield, left by the steamer Undine this (Wednesday) morning for Jack's Creek, hence by team to Jack's Lake, to spend the balance of the open season in quest of venison. Mr. R. C. Strickland will join the party in a day or two.

MORE LIGHT.

The Street and Sidewalk Committee have had the remaining street lamps placed in position, and they are highly appreciated by our citizens, the ladies in particular, who are loud in their praises of the Committee. So that, with such approval and support, they will be able to go to the polls next January with the safe and certain expectation of a glorious re-election.

Men Talked About.

The youngest millionaire in Chicago is Cyrus H. McCormick, who is only 29 and is at the head of the extensive reaper manufactory founded by his father. He is unmarried and has a fortune of $4,000,000.

It is related of Prince Bismark that while inspecting the harvest work on his fields not long since two of the reaping women, following an old custom, seized him and bound him with bands made of straw. The Chancellor submitted with good grace and extricated himself by paying a liberal ransom. He rode away in his carriage with the straw bands still fastened round his arms.

Inventor Thomas A. Edison is a hearty eater. Perhaps he has perfected some device which prevents dyspepsia. At all events, this is what he ate for dinner a few days ago: A plate of soup, some cut cabbage, a plate of roast beef, some baked chicken, an ear of corn, stewed tomatoes, two boiled potatoes, two slices of bread and butter, a piece of huckleberry pie, a plate of ice cream.

The late E. P. Roe used to do his writing in a little workshop at the top of his home. It is a long, narrow, unscarpeted room under the slanting roof. It is well ventilated and filled with lazy lounges and chairs, while common book shelves, a large writing desk and a cabinet of Hudson River birds are the only other furniture in the room. Mr. Roe's hobby was collecting birds and studying their songs.

Winter Protection For Grape-vines.

The best way to protect grape-vines is to lay them on the ground, and cover them with a few inches of soil. It is not easy to do this when the vines become very large, though, even then, they may be carefully bent over enough for the smaller branches to reach the ground, so as to be covered with dirt. It is the smaller branches that are most liable to winter-kill. In the case of larger vines that cannot be laid flat, a straw band should be wound around the exposed part of the stem. Grape-vines ought never to be exposed to to cold winds. The shelter of a board fence or building of some kind, is very helpful to them. Calm cold is not nearly so injurious as bleak winds.

Tea-meeting.

A tea-meeting will be held in connection with the Baptist Sabbath school at Selwyn, in the Selwyn Temple, on Tuesday, the 13th November inst. Tea will be served from 3 to 6 o'clock. After tea a good programme will be given by the children, including singing and recitations, and music by the choir. Addresses will also be delivered by the Rev. Messrs. Parker, Huff, Ferguson and Bennett. During the evening an autograph quilt will be disposed of. Proceeds in aid of the organ fund. Admission, 25 cents; children of the school free; other children, under 12, half price. Rev. E. E. Roberts will occupy the chair. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the Sabbath school to be present.

The Mail says:—Hon. Oliver Mowat has announced that he will resume the practice of the law, becoming again head of the firm of which Jas. Maclennan, Q.C., recently appointed to the Appeal Court, was formerly the leading partner. Mr. Mowat will argue the cases for which Mr. Maclennan was retained before the courts, and in other respects will take an active interest in the work of his firm.

Don't hawk, hawk, blow, spit and disgust everybody with your offensive breath, but use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and end it. a

The Choicest of Apples.

Messrs. Elliott & Tierney have purchased from Mr. G. W. Hatton the entire crop of "Walkerfield" orchard, including Snows, Spitzenburghs, H. Pippins, Northern Spies, Beauties of the West, etc. All choice fruit carefully hand picked. Parties wishing to lay in a winter supply will find it to their advantage to make an early call at Elliott & Tierney's. Quality unsurpassed; prices reasonable. dtf

The Modus Operandi.

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and the Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in Chronic Complaints. 2w45d

A Sumptuous Present.

Woodstock, Ont., October 26.—Mr. E Tupping, of Woodstock, received through the post-office this morning, a box containing four chocolates. Mr. Tupping is at a loss to account for the present. He does not know whether to look upon it as a joke or otherwise.

A Rare Combination.

There is no other remedy or combination of medicines that meets so many requirements, as does Burdock Blood Bitters in its wide range of power over such Chronic diseases as Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Complaint, Scrofula and all humors of the blood. 2w45d

Stop That Cough.

Endorsed by thousand of Physicians. Palatable as milk. Try it. Sold by all druggists at 50c. and $1.00. 4w46ow

COURT MARTIAL.

Why twelve only of our number were carried to Knoxville, where a Confederate court martial had convened, I have never learned. It may have been thought that this number was large enough for vengeance, or more probably it was intended when they were disposed of to bring the others also. Gen. E. Kirby Smith commanded the department, and all the proceedings were under his authority. What seemed to us very remarkable was that a single one of our number at a time was brought before the court, and all the proceedings in his case were gone through with before another was brought out. Thus each trial was just the copy of the one that went before, and, short as they were, must soon have become very monotonous to the members of the court. We employed two eminent Union men of Knoxville as counsel—Judge O. P. Temple and Judge Baxter—but they were not allowed to hear the plea of the judge advocate, the prosecutor against us. Neither had we that privilege, and cannot therefore give the points that were most relied on for our conviction. In fact, members of the court visited us and said that we would be acquitted of the charge against us, which was that of lurking about Confederate camps at Chattanooga, Dalton and Marietta as spies, and only held as prisoners of war. This inspired in us a strange and, as the issue proved, an unwarranted degree of hopefulness. Our own acknowledgment of what we did, which we linked with the statement that we had been detailed from our commands without our consent and with no knowledge of the nature of the expedition on which we were sent, and the evidence of some of those who had seen us on the train or aided in our capture, constituted the evidence in the case. But we have reason to think the whole result was predetermined, although our attorneys were confident that we could not be convicted of being spies. The fact that we were not placed in irons here for the first time during the nearly two months of our imprisonment tended to increase our hope.

But another element of far greater importance than the mere machinery of the trials entered now into the determination of our destiny. The trial of one of our men—there was no apparent order in the selection—was finished each day. The next day another was taken. I have never doubted that the enemy's intention was to go through the whole list in the same way, and we were not at all solicitous as to who should come first or last. But that did prove to be of tremendous importance; for a vigorous advance of the Federal armies upon both Knoxville and Chattanooga caused Gen. Smith to give up East Tennessee for lost, and to dissolve the court and send us all in hot haste to Atlanta, Ga. Seven had then been tried. A delay of five days in this advance would have finished the whole twelve—including the writer—at the rate they were proceeding. But the whole twelve were sent away together, having seen or heard nothing to shew a difference in the position of the five and the seven, and arriving in Atlanta just a week after the execution of Andrews. We had heard of that terrible event in Knoxville; but, while our sorrow was deep and poignant, our hopefulness either for the seven who had been tried or the five whose trial had been interrupted was not diminished, for Confederates had always been saying to us that his case was much more aggravated than ours.

In Atlanta we were placed in the upper room of a large brick building, surrounded by guards. The remainder of the party who were with Andrews were placed in another room of the same building, which was the city jail. Two great events of the most opposite character, upon which turned the fate of our band, are associated closely with this jail. They will now be narrated.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A DAY OF BLOOD.

The 18th of June was a bright summer day. Our party in the jail were making merry with games and songs, utterly unsuspicious of immediate injury. But one of our number, looking out of the window, saw a squadron of cavalry approaching and called attention to it. There was nothing unusual about this, for we often noticed bands of troops on the streets; but they now halted at our gate and surrounded our prison. This was unusual and startling.

The doors down stairs opened. We heard the shuffle of feet in the hall and the clink of officers' sabers as they ascended the stairway. We held our breath in painful attention, while they paused at our door, unlocked and threw it open, and then one of the number, stepping before the others, read the names of the seven tried at Knoxville. They were ordered to respond and stand in a line before him, which they did. Robinson was sick with fever, but a guard assisted him to rise, and he stood with the rest. Then they were all told to follow over into the opposite room, while the Tennesseeans there were brought in return to us.

With throbbing hearts we asked one another the meaning of these strange proceedings. Some supposed our comrades were about to receive their acquittal; others, still more sanguine, that they would be paroled, preparatory to an exchange. But we had no confidence in these suggestions even while we made them. It would not have been necessary to surround the prison for such purposes; and the faces of the officers who had entered our room were solemn and stern.

I was sick, too, having suffered a good deal recently with malarial fever, but rose to my feet oppressed with unutterable fear—the most deadly I ever remember feeling. A half witted fellow who had been put in with the Tennesseeans came to me and wanted to play a game of cards! I had been fond of the game, but never played it after this day! Now I struck the greasy pack from his hand and bade him leave me.

From over the way we heard the sound of voices, muffled and indistinct because of the two iron doors between; then the opening and shutting of doors, the passage of several persons up and down the stairway, and last the sound as of solemn reading.

A little while after—I cannot judge of the length of time spent in such fearful agony—the ministers in the other room think it must have been more than an hour—the door opened and our comrades came back, one by one, but the demeanor of them was fearful. My own friend, George D. Wilcox, was leading, his step firm, his form erect, but his hands firmly tied, and his face pale as death. "What is it?" some one asked in a whisper, for his appearance silenced every one.

"We are to be executed immediately," was the appalling reply, given in a low tone, but with thrilling distinctness. The others followed him into the room, all tied ready for the scaffold. The officers were standing in the door, and barely granted them the privilege of taking us once more by the hand before death. Then came the farewells, hopeless in this world. It was a moment that seemed an age of measureless, heart breaking sorrow.

What had occurred in the other room while we were separated? The narrative of the ministers will make that plain.

(To be Continued.)

DRUNK AND PLAYING COWBOY.

Six Rotterdam Sailors Have Fun Over and Rattle an Old Man.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Six men, headed by a fellow whose hair fell upon his shoulders after the fashion of a cowboy, carried consternation into Flushing and Cottage Point, L.I. They were all mounted upon motley-some horses and were considerably under the influence of liquor. It was not the first time they had visited the town. They are attaches of a riding academy in the neighborhood of Graham avenue and Shillman-street, Brooklyn. They rode abreast at full speed, regardless of the terrified pedestrians, who fled into doorways to avoid being run over. At Cottage Point they visited several saloons, and metaphorically painted the town red, whooping and shouting like Indians.

Opposite Shuck's saloon they drew up six abreast, still howling, and their leader gave the command, "Let her go." They gave rein, dashed off at full gallop, just as Jos. Kreger, a market gardener, 50 years old, was crossing from his house to the opposite side of the road. In an instant he was under the hoofs of the horses. The men saw what they had done, but paid no attention to their victim. At a mad gallop they passed through Flushing and made their escape.

When Kreger was picked up he was dead. Three ribs on the left side were crushed in, and death resulted from the pressure on the heart. Two of the reckless party were recognized. They are said to be John McCormick and a man named Meyer. Warrants have been issued.

MANITOBA'S LEGISLATURE.

Probable Contents of the Governor's Speech—The War Ended.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8. The second session of the seventh Legislature opens this afternoon, and will be attended with the usual pomp and parade. In the Speech from the Throne his Honor will likely assign the crisis in the railway matters as the reason for the calling of the House together. It will be suggested that if the present uncertain state of affairs continues between the Provincial and Federal Governments in regard to the railway question an appeal will be made to the Queen in Council to have our rights under the British North America Act clearly defined. It is unlikely that any mention will be made of retaliation. It is possible that the Government will ask to be clothed with power to assist needy municipalities. This undoubtedly means in the matter of furnishing seed grain to those who lost all their crop. Mention will likely be made of the intention of the Government to amend and consolidate several important Acts.

Altogether it is expected that the session will be a most important one and it will probably last about two weeks, when an adjournment will be made until January.

The trouble at the crossing is apparently at an end and the Infantry School was withdrawn yesterday. It is apparent that there is nothing to be done until the decision of the Supreme Court has been rendered.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. Nerviline has created wonder in the minds of those who have usually tried other remedies, since its action seems magical. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

Among The Indians.

"While my husband was trading in furs he came across an Indian who was taken to his lodge to die. He had inward pains and pains in all his limbs. He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. Beaw, Cook's Mills, Serpent River, Ont. 2w45d.

Who is President?

The public of Peterborough is greatly interested in the solution of the presidential election question in the United States. But they don't puzzle themselves with the question of who is the presiding, ruling, reigning boot and shoe dealers. They know it is gough bros., the wonderful cheap men, who have the largest and best stock of boots and shoes and at the lowest prices, to be found in the Midland district. Republics may rise or fall, kingdoms wax or wane, still goughs go on forever, giving the most monumental bargains in boots and shoes to high and low, rich and poor. Don't miss their shop, 375 george street, when you want boots and shoes as good as the wheat and as cheap as the dirt it grows in.

The Stanley Hunt Club.

The Stanley Hunt Club was organized Tuesday evening. It is practically a branch of the Gun Club, though distinctly separate, and was organized for the purpose of shooting at live game. Two hunting parties will be chosen from the members of the club and a day will be spent in the woods shooting at all game in season, and in the evening each side will tote up its points scored and the losers will have to pay a forfeit. This, it is believed, will create more interest in the sport than the regular weekly shoot of the Gun Club at clay pigeons sprung from a trap. The officers are:

PRESIDENT—R. Tivey.
1st VICE-PRESIDENT—H. Calcutt.
2nd VICE-PRESIDENT—Dr. Kincaid.
3rd VICE-PRESIDENT—W. H. Clarke.
SECRETARY—W. H. Rackham.
ASS'T SECRETARY—A. Moffat.
TREASURER—Joseph Millar.

The first hunt will be held Thursday next, Thanksgiving Day, when two parties, numbering about 16 each, will leave town and spend the day in pursuit of game. A meeting of the club is called for to-morrow (Friday) evening at the C.P.R. hotel, which all interested are invited to attend.

TO-NIGHT go to Mrs. A. L. Davis' Social

Police Court.

Greenfield, the Burglar, in Court—Remanded till Tuesday.

THURSDAY, Nov. 8.

Mr. Ferguson, alias Greenfield, gentleman of leisure and regularly qualified burglar arrived in town from Buffalo on the 11.30 C. P.R. train last night, in close company with his friend, the Chief of Police. The two were very intimate indeed, and so fearf that they might be separated and lose each other that they each wore one of a pair of shining steel bracelets connected by a small but stout chain. At the station here they were met by a number of townspeople, who didn't exactly have a brass band and chariot with them. They deferred their formal reception till the next morning, and contented themselves with escorting the new arrival, who was to be the guest of the town, to his chambers in Castle Nesbitt.

This morning Mr. Dumble, P. M., held a levee at the police court, in which Mr. Ferguson figured prominently. No invitations had been issued, but the fact that the celebrated visitor would be present was noised abroad, and a couple of hundred people crowded into the small room to join in the reception. Again Chief Rossel appeared in the role of "a friend that sticketh closer than a brother," but public interest was mainly centered on his companion. The prisoner had a clean shaven face, and is very youthful in appearance, and does not at all wear the hardened and desperate appearance one might expect to see in the hero of a score or more midnight adventures. He is, however, just the same Ferguson remembered by many residents of the town, and they were rejoiced to "see" him once more in their midst.

The morning's proceedings were brief. Mr. R. E. Wood, C. C. A., represented the crown, and Mr. E. B. Stone (in the absence of his partner, Mr. C. W. Sawers, who is prisoner's counsel) appeared to help Mr. Ferguson pay his respects to the Court. The magistrate enquired if he preferred to have his trial summarily before him (Mr. Dumble) or before a jury, and Ferguson (or Greenfield as the information reads) elected the latter. Then an adjournment was made till next Tuesday, when another preliminary examination will be held prior to the final one before judge and jury.

As the prisoner was taken back to his residence on the hill he was the target for hundreds of eager eyes, whose owners lined the sidewalk anxious to get a glimpse of him. He must have felt highly elated over the furore created by his re-appearance in the town where he spent his early life. He was given a copy of yesterday's EXAMINER containing his autobiography to read in the quietude of his chambers and ruminate upon the hardness of luck that had fallen to his lot.

THE ASSAULT CASE.

Ford vs. Squier, the case of assault adjourned from yesterday, was disposed of by the charge being dismissed without costs.

Hastings.

Clippings from the Star.

The masonry of the railway bridge is approaching completion, the workmen being engaged on the last pier. It is a magnificent structure and looks as if it will last as long as the Egyptian Pyramids.

A Keen Corespondent writes:—There are lots of hunters but very few ducks. Jas, Mason and party, returned after ten days hunt, with about 20 ducks. Mr. K. J. Hartley and party, of Peterborough are out now, but we have not received any reports so far.

From the Westwood Corespondence:—Mr. Michael Ryan and family depart in the near furture to take up their residence in the town of Peterborough. We wish them every success in their new home and hartily recommend them to their new neighbors, as citizens whom it will be a pleasure to know.

On Tuesday of last week Mr. Dennis Ryan shot at and wounded a large bird, which when finally captured proved to be a Golden Eagle of an unusually large size. Dr. Coughlin purchased the bird, which is still alive, and will send it to a taxidermist to be duly prepared. Apart from its rarity it is magnificent specimen.

Early in October Miss Susannah Steel daughter of Mr. Robert Steel of Hastings, was married to Mr. Robert Book, of Detroit. On Oct. 24th, after a married life of two weeks, she died of typhoid fever in Detroit.

East Peterborough.

Clippings From the Norwood Register.

The Victoria University and Norwood H. S. Football Clubs will play a match at Norwood next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Messrs. Finlay & Son, Norwood, last week, shipped 10,000 hubs to Waterloo, N.Y., and 30,000 to St. Catharines, Ont. This industry is a "humming" one, without doubt.

On Wednesday night of last week, Mr. James Patterson's barn, on the 8th concession of Dummer, was totally destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Mr. Jacob Hardy, of Dummer, mentioned in a recent issue as having been severely wounded by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting partridge, succombed to his injuries on Thursday morning last. The immediate cause of his death was tetanus.

On Tuesday last, Mr. Rantzman, of Goderich, who has the contract of overhauling the flooring mills of Mr. Thomas Beck, at Norwood, and putting in a full roller system, commenced work. He expects to have the work completed, and the mills in thorough working order by the middle of December.

Squire Drain, a prominent member of the Baptist Congregation at Norwood has made a very liberal offer to that body. He offers to pay the entire balance of the debt due on the new church, provided he is guaranteed a fair rate of interest on the amount as long as he lives. This liberal offer will altogether likely be accepted by the church authorities.

On the 1st inst., Mr. Stewart Wood, while felling trees in Gilmour's shanty near Oak Lake, township of Belmont, met with an accident which has since proved fatal. It is the old story—the tree fell in an opposite direction to that in which he had intended, and crushed him to the earth while endeavoring to escape. A day or two later he succumbed to his injuries. Deceased was only in his 20th year. His parents reside near Havelock.

The anniversary services of the Norwood Baptist Church, held on Sunday and Monday last, were highly successful.

—The first snow fall of snow-shovel significance covered this morning. Last year the first snow fell on Nov. 12th.

—There will not be any meeting of the town council to-night, as Mayor Stevenson informed the EXAMINER yesterday there would be. It has been postponed.

To the Boys for Nothing.

If a pair of boy's boot cost $1.25 (King's make) and were 12 months, how much ought the shoddy man to get for a pair of shoddy boots that wears out in 17 days? The first boys who brings me the above question correctly worked out by himself, and can wear No. 2 boots (or smaller) will receive a pair of King's boots for nothing.
dw R. J. KIDD, No. 376 George street.

Almost an Accident.

Mr. J. H. Glass, foreman of the G. T. R. freight sheds, met with a narrow escape this forenoon. A case of bacon weighing 600 lbs was being transferred from Flavelle's express wagon to the high platform, and just as the large box was balanced on edge on the platform the horse sprang away and threw Mr. Glass, who was in the waggon, down in the mud directly underneath the falling box. He managed to throw himself to one side as it fell. The box broke in pieces as it fell and scattered its contents. It was a lucky escape from perhaps instant death.

Around the Town Clerk's Office.

The town clerk to-day received a communication from Mr. J. G. Macklin, Chief Engineer of the Midland Railway, stating that the company would comply with all requirements at their crossing on Smith and Benson streets at an early date.

Messrs. Hall & Hayes, solicitors for Mr. John Carnegie, have notified the corporation that they must cease taking gravel from the bridge works property or action will be entered against the town.

The Military Concert.

Nobody should forget the military concert to be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday evening, Nov. 15th. It will be a rare and genuine treat. The gallant members of the battalion and of the band are on duty day and night perfecting the programme, which will be one of unusual merit and variety. It will comprise unusually interesting features — military exercises, martial tableaus, stirring songs, descriptive fantasias by the band, a keen tug-of-war, and, with all, two clarionet solos by that brilliant clarionettist, Prof. McGuire, of the Citizens' band, Toronto. Encourage your defenders, and, at the same time, enjoy yourself immensely by attending their concert on Thursday night, Nov. 15th. Admission only 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. Plan of hall at A. L. Davis & Co's.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy, and the boy, through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument, decides—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. VOX POPULI VOX DEI.

NOT THE LEAST DOUBT ABOUT HARRISON'S ELECTION.

A Clear Majority of 11 in the Electoral College—West Virginia the Only Doubtful State.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The election returns to-day serve only to accentuate the Republican victory. New York, Indiana and California are as certainly Republican as New Jersey and Connecticut are Democratic. There remains one doubtful state—West Virginia—and the latest returns, showing considerable Republican gains, indicate that the state has swung away from the "solid south."

According to the latest returns the roll of states in the Electoral College stands:

Total Electoral Vote	401
Necessary to a Choice	201
Harrison and Morton	233
Cleveland and Thurman	167
Doubtful (West Virginia)	6

In 1884 the vote of the Electoral College was:

Cleveland and Hendricks	219
Blaine and Logan	182

New York (37) and Indiana (15) are the Republican gains assured, with West Virginia (6) still doubtful.

The Tariff Issue.

ALBANY, Nov. 9.—Governor Hill in a speech last night said that Democrats must face the issue of tariff reform so courageously and unselfishly raised by President Cleveland, and that issue must be the party's platform in the main until its triumph has been accomplished.

Depew Will Not Be in the Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—In an interview Chauncey M. Depew states that Cleveland's chance was good for a walk-over until he sent his message to Congress, and until it was embodied in the Mills Bill. That action placed the Democrats on the defensive and lost them the election. Mr. Depew says the tariff must be revised; but the protective principle must be preserved. Mr. Depew said he would not accept a seat in Harrison's Cabinet, if offered.

A Weathercock Policy Unprofitable.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Globe says: President Cleveland has not gained anything by fussing with the fisheries question nor by brusque, rude treatment of Lord Sackville. It is satisfactory to find that even in America a weathercock policy is not always profitable. Their defeat is a heavy blow to the Democrats. It may help to compensate Mr. Blaine for his previous failure, as he will probably become Secretary of State. Mr. Blaine may not be able to revive the remarkable foreign policy which helped to create distrust and secure his defeat, but his alliance or understanding with the Irish element may not tend to soften his conduct in international affairs.

Friends in Both Camps.

DUBLIN, Nov. 9.—United Ireland expresses indifference at the result of the Presidential election in the United States, as it says it has friends in "both camps." Harrison, the paper thinks, owes his election to the Sackville affair, as the Irish voters suspected President Cleveland of being friendly with Lord Salisbury. "While it is flattering to the Irish to be able to turn the scale in such a contest, the fact is regrettable, as it is also humiliating and menacing to America. The Irish vote exists as a separate and menacing factor to American politics, because the fact that Ireland is without Home Rule rankles as a spear head in the relations between the English speaking races. It would be cheaper for America to establish Home Rule in Ireland, even at the cost of a war with Great Britain. We need not comment upon the value to England of a settlement of the Irish question."

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Shower of Bullets—Policeman Welsh's Peril—Chevalier MacDonell.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Policeman John Welsh was walking his beat last night when he was deliberately fired at by one of two men walking on the opposite side of the street. The first shot was immediately followed by a second, the man doing the popping walking into the road to take better aim. About this moment Welsh thought it time to defend himself, and drawing his revolver fired at his assailant, with the object, however of only frightening him. Nothing daunted the man fired a third shot, but none of the three shots took effect. Welsh, realizing that his life was in danger, then began firing in earnest. Then his assailant started to run towards Queen-street, Welsh continuing to fire with the object of winging him. He succeeded in bringing him down by a shot in the leg. When taken to the station the man gave his name as John Kennedy from Rochester.

The World this morning says that a conspiracy has been organized to defeat the College Federation scheme in connection with Victoria.

The Mayor yesterday had an interview with the Attorney-General with reference to the $800,000 that is required to complete the Don improvements, now at a standstill owing to the appropriation having run out. Mr. Mowat said his government would in all probability authorize the City Treasurer to at once borrow the necessary sum without waiting for the people to vote on the by-law on Nov. 19. This means that the Government will pass the necessary legislation when the House meets and the work can go ahead at once.

Mr. Henry Gedeon, Inspector of Inland Revenue for the district of Toronto, received a telegram from Hon. John Costigan last evening stating that ex-Ald. James Pepler had been appointed Inspector of Hides for Toronto.

There was a private meeting of the council of the Imperial Federation League of Canada at the Queen's Hotel yesterday. A committee was appointed with instructions to take steps towards the holding in Canada of a conference of colonial representatives. Steps were taken with regard to the establishment of more branch leagues throughout the Dominion and for the facilitating of the circulation of the league organ, Imperial Federation.

W. J. MacDonell, the aged Vice Consul of France, who is best known in Toronto by his connection with many public charities, has been honored with the distinction of being created a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

Fell Down the Hold.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—About 8.30 o'clock last night a man named James O'Hagan whilst walking on the deck of the Dominion line steamer Quebec fell into the hold a depth of fifteen feet on to a lot of deals. In falling he turned a somersault and alighted on his feet and fell. When picked up he was insensible. The ambulance of the General Hospital was telephoned for and the injured man conveyed to that institution. On the doctors examining the man it was found that he had sprained both his ankles and was suffering from internal injuries. On enquiry at a late hour he reported to be doing as well as could be expected.

Safe in a Dwelling House Blown Open.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—The residence of Mrs. M. P. Kidder, of Milton, has been robbed by burglars. The safe was blown open and its contents, consisting of silverware, jewelry, valuable coins and medals, were stolen. It is claimed the loss will amount to $3,000.

MANITOBA'S LEGISLATURE

PREMIER GREENWAY DENIES THE NEWSPAPER CHARGES.

A Resolution for a Royal Commission to Investigate the Subject Adopted—The Speech From the Throne.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—The Legislature met yesterday afternoon. The speech from the throne intimates that the reason for calling the House together is to consider the propriety of petitioning the Queen and to have the position of the Province in its relation to the Dominion clearly determined.

Premier Greenway entered upon an explanative reply to the charges of boodling brought by The Call and Free Press, and denounced them as falsehoods, quoting from letters from Solicitor Macarthur of the Manitoba Central to his brother-in-law to show how little foundation there was in them.

After recess Mr. Greenway moved a resolution for a Royal Commission to investigate the charges, which was adopted and the house adjourned.

The session will probably last ten days.

The Manitoba Central deny any connection with the boodling charges.

STRANGE SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Mrs. Stokes of Philadelphia Shot by Fred Raimes a Cuban.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 9.—A mysterious shooting affair, which will in all likelihood cause the death of Mrs. Rettie Stokes, residing at No. 331 Greenwich-street, occurred last night. Quite early in the evening three shots were heard in the house, and an officer upon investigation found that a Cuban named Fred Raimes had shot Mrs. Stokes three times, two of the bullets taking effect in her face and the third one in one of her lungs. The officer arrested Raimes, but only succeeded in doing so after the prisoner had fired a shot and had been clubbed into insensibility. Both Mrs. Stokes and Raimes were taken to a hospital, where the former is dying and the latter either feigning or is actually unconscious. Not the slightest clue as to the motive for the crime can be learned, the woman being unable by reason of the wounds in her face to talk, and the prisoner being silent. Mrs. Stokes has a 7-year-old child and lived with her husband in the house she received her wounds. Her husband, who returned to the house shortly after the affair, can throw no light upon it.

ANGERED AND ASTONISHED.

Queensland Doesn't Like the Appointment of Governor Blake.

BRISBANE, Nov. 9.—The Premier has sent a cable despatch to the Queensland agent in England saying that the appointment of Governor Blake of Newfoundland, to the Governorship of Queensland has excited general anger and wonder. Ex-Premier Griffiths agrees with the Premier in condemning the appointment.

Last month the Government here urged the English Government privately to submit the name of the proposed new Governor before the appointment was made, but Lord Knutsford replied that it was impossible to allow the Colonial Ministers to share in the responsibility for the nomination.

ACTION FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

The Bride was Ready, But the Bridegroom Failed to Appear.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 9.—Miss Susie B. Leach, the daughter of Samuel Leach of Campbell, 24 years of age, an attractive young lady, has brought suit claiming $10,000 damages against Henry H. Litchfield of Boston and Plymouth for breach of promise of marriage. Mr. Litchfield is 40 years of age, is in the real estate business in Boston, and has considerable property. Miss Leach and Mr. Litchfield met in the spring of 1887 at Plymouth, and in the fall the wedding was fixed for December. Miss Leach gave up her situation and prepared her trousseau, but Litchfield failed to appear.

CANADIAN LADY KILLED.

A Railway Disaster on the Hudson River Railway—Collision at a Railway Station.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., Nov. 9.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the Rochester express on the Hudson River Railway was stopping at the Fishkill depot a freight train from the south dashed into the rear of the passenger train. The engineer and fireman of the freight train jumped before the collision. Mrs. Edward S. Shivel of St. John, N.B., jumped from the rear car and fell, alighting on her head, fracturing her skull and died in an hour. A lady member of the "Hearts of Oak" company and a child which she carried in her arms were knocked down and injured.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Four School Girls Entrapped by a Philadelphia Villain.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Redmond Steelnecke, of Hancock and Cumberland streets has been held in $1,500 bail, charged with serious crime. The prisoner keeps a candy store in a cellar at the above place, which is opposite a public school. He is accused of assaulting four little girls whose ages range from 9 to 13 years, who are pupils at the school.

Murder of a Brickmason.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 9.—Charles Walker, a brickmason, was killed yesterday, and the murder is charged to Hugh man Burns, also a brickmason. In the morning the men quarrelled and a fight occurred, in which Burns got the best of it. In the afternoon Walker went down to the brickyard, followed by Burns, and a few hours later Walker was dead body was [illegible] City, Pa.

A Persistent Reporter.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 9. John A. Brown, reporter of The Democrat and Chronicle, called at the residence of Mathias Kondolf, 170 Oak-street, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning for the purpose of obtaining information about the proceedings of the Park Commissioners' meeting of the day before. Mr. Kondolf refused to give this information and the reporter left. The latter returned and again rang Mr. Kondolf's bell. This provoked the commissioner and he caused the arrest of Mr. Brown on the charge of disturbing the peace. The latter was taken to police headquarters, where he was paroled until 9 o'clock. In the police court the reporter was arraigned and his case was adjourned for Nov. 13.

Nearly Blew Up the Beanies.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 9.—While Dentist Potter of Chicopee entered his office last evening a vulcanizer that had been at work all the night before exploded with a terrific report that was heard several blocks distant. A portion of the wall and a window of the house was blown out, numerous holes were made in the ceiling and a quantity of valuable dental work was destroyed. No one was injured, though the doctor a moment sooner would have been standing over the instrument and would probably have lost his life.

Benefort.

From Our Own Correspondent.

On Saturday, 20th ult., Mr. A. Elmhirst lost one of his valuable young horses. The beast was a three-year-old, well bred, and in good condition. A veterinary surgeon was called, but a severe attack of colic took it in about 48 hours.

The cold snap of the 20th ult. was the signal for harvesting the greater part of the roots and apples. Both are above the average in bulk and quality, but as the season has been extremely fine, they might have been taken in nearly a month later.

Mr. G. B. Sproule, of Peterborough, it is understood, has secured the use of the Sunday school hall for the purpose of holding services for mutual benefit religiously. This by no means indicates that the people of Benefort are the most needy, but the good people would scorn to prevent any good man from doing good.

On Saturday, 27th ult., the steamer Beaver, Capt. T. Harris, made her last trip to town for the season. She is a handsome and commodious little craft, swift and strong, and has done more excursions than any other vessel on the waters in the same time. It is quite likely they will be well done when navigation opens again, as there will be at least two new competing boats.

The literary society is making rapid moves for re-organization. The meeting for that purpose was held Thursday evening, resulting in election of officers and business preliminary to a fair opening. Anticipations are good as to the success of entertainments during the long evening season. Non members who would attend expressly for the purpose of giving and receiving information, are anxious inquirers and will shortly become active members.

Springville.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLOSED.—The Presbyterian Sunday school was closed last Sunday for the season. Under the superintendence of the Rev. Mr. Bennett and an efficient staff of teachers the school has prospered well this season. There was a prize competed for; the examination was on the first thirty-five questions of the Shorter Catechism. The pupil who obtained the prize was Master Alfred Stockwell, who answered every question, the superintendent remarking that he never heard so many questions answered so accurately before.

The present fine weather is a boon to the farmers, giving them ample time to finish up their season's work.

Fall wheat is looking well especially that sown early; some later fields are rather backward owing to the cold weather in October.

Mr. John J. Johnston is refitting his dwelling. Messrs. McDonald & Sheehey have the contract for veneering and are executing their work in their usual good and rapid style.

Farmers are smiling over the present high prices of grain, it looks as though they are to have a few properous years again which are very welcome after a long period of oppression.

A canary which has forgotten to migrate south at the usual season is roaming around, perching wherever it is allowed. Some of the young ladies of our village sing "Silly Dickey" to the tune of Mr. Joseph Beauvis' familiar son "My Heart is My Ain," with great emphasis.

The Union Sunday School was closed for the season on Sunday last. The most interesting part of the proceedings was the presentation by the superintendent, Mr. David Wilson, of the handsome prizes won by the pupils during the summer.

Young's Point.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SOCIAL.—On Monday evening a large number of friends assembled at the residence of Mr. W. J. Young on invitation, and a very enjoyable time was spent in dancing, card playing and other amusements till the wee sma' hours. An event of the same kind occurred at the residence of Mr. P. A. Kearney a few evenings previous.

RETURNED HOME.—Mr. M. Blewett's party returned home on Saturday from Deer Bay, having succeeded in securing a couple of deer. Mr. J. Stabler's party came down on Thursday, having captured eight deer.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. Young was in Deseronto last week.

Mr. A. R. Lee, of Peterborough, is visiting his brother, Mr. T. N. Lee, of this place.

LAID UP.—The steamer Mary Ellen has laid up after a most successful season.

Rosedale.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On the completion of the public works at Rosedale, Mrs. Walters, wife of Mr. Wm. Walters, the popular overseer, was presented with a magnificent silver fruit basket, accompanied by the following address, which shows the great degree of popularity attained by that lady:—

To Mrs. Wm. Walters:

MADAM,—We, the undersigned, herewith present to you this small token, in order to show, in a faint manner, our appreciation of your kindness to us while in camp during this season. Kindly accept of the same with our best wishes for your and your family's future success in life. We have the honor to be, madam,

Yours respectfully,

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin street, London, England, and 79 Bay street, Toronto, intends sending a practical optician—Prof. L. J. Druiff, (of London, England), to his agents Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's celebrated Spectacles and Eyeglasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. The date of first visit is, Saturday, November 10th. dw

The Modus Operandi.

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and the Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in Chronic Complaints. 2w45d

THE MORMONS IN THE N.W.

A DELEGATE AT THE CAPITAL TO SECURE A TOWN SITE.

Another Meeting of the Provincial Treasurers of Ontario and Quebec With the Minister of Finance to Take Place.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—Messrs. C. O. Card, M. Lyman and J. W. Taylor, representing the Mormon Colony at Lees Creek, N.W.T., are in the city for the purpose of endeavoring to secure from the Government a town site at Lees Creek. In an interview yesterday Mr. Card stated that the colony numbered 125 souls. He said there was no intention of making a wholesale transfer of the Mormons in Utah to the protection of the British flag and when asked whether the Mormons in Canada proposed to practice polygamy replied that they did not propose to break the law.

It is expected that another meeting of the Provincial Treasurers of Ontario and Quebec with the Minister of Finance will take place about the end of the current month with a view to adjusting the outstanding accounts between these provinces and the Dominion.

The tenders for the lock at Sault Ste. Marie, fourteen in number, were opened yesterday. It will take some time to extend them and it is not likely the contract will be awarded before next week.

Father Labelle, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Quebec, Prof. Chartier, Prof. Choquette, Mr. Birmatches and Mr. Piles of Quebec were in the city yesterday. They form a committee which is investigating the resources of the province. They inspected the Central Experimental Farm and expressed themselves as well pleased with what they saw. The visitors left last night for Guelph to visit the Ontario Agricultural College there. Hon. Father Labelle proposes to establish an experimental laboratory at Quebec. He proposes to make tests with fertilizers and soils from various parts of the province.

Mr. McMillan of Petrolia interviewed the Minister of Customs yesterday and asked that sterine, which is used in the manufacture of wax, should be placed on the free list. At present sterine is not produced in Canada, and there is a duty of 2 cents a pound on it.

There is some talk of Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, ex-M.P., being a candidate for the mayoralty. A French Canadian convention, to consider the propriety of bringing out a candidate, will be held on Nov. 15.

BETTER THAN WATER.

A Poor Well-Digger Strikes a Rich Bed of Mica—A Chance for Speculators.

HAMILTON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Robert Ledex, an old well-digger, who for over forty years has been digging in the bowels of the earth in search of "bright, sparkling water," is in luck. When engaged at his usual avocation on a farm within four miles of Hamilton, he struck something bright and sparkling, which was not water either. It proved, on examination, to be mica of the pure white type, and knowing once pronounce it the genuine article. Mr. Ledex says that the vein was found between seven and eight feet below the surface, and is over nine feet in depth. He says he has been for years looking for something of this sort in the vicinity of Hamilton. Frequently has he come across iron ore, which led him to believe that mica was not far off, but not until yesterday did he find the perfect article. Mr. Ledex is a poor man, and, of course, is anxious to make something out of his find.

A Brilliant Wedding at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—A brilliant marriage took place last night at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, when Oswald de Normandy Cammon, barrister of New York, was wedded to Miss Maude Church, daughter of Judge Church of the Court of Queen's Bench. Rev. Messrs. Wood and French officiated. The happy couple will reside in New York.

The marriage of Mr. V. H. Meredith, assistant local manager of the Bank of Montreal, to Miss Isabel Brenda Allan, daughter of Mr. Andrew Allan, will take place next week.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9.—Dwelling houses in Milltown occupied by Wesley Reed and B. Reed were burned Wednesday. The former, owned by its occupant, was insured; the latter, owned by L. A. Appleby of this city, was uninsured; loss $4000.

James Lattimer, a merchant of Madoc, has gone to the States, after borrowing money from all who would lend it to him.

Mr. J. J. Kelly, head master of the Separate School, has tendered his resignation. He will at the end of the year retire to study medicine.

Sudden Death at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Nov. 9. Mrs. John Kiley, about 50 years of age, was found dead by her husband upon his waking from sleep yesterday morning in his residence on Glengarry-avenue. The deceased was up and about her work as usual on Wednesday and retired for the night without complaining of ill-health. Her taking off was evidently as quiet as it was sudden and is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

Rescued by Hackett.

WINDSOR, Nov. 9.—About 1 o'clock Sunday morning Andrew Hackett, living on Bois Blanc island, was awakened by the cries of some parties in distress off the lower end of the island. He started at once, and found it was part of the crew of the schooner Onward, who, while trying to drop anchor, were capsized. Their names are Lewis and Albert Talbot, and they were nearly exhausted when rescued. This makes the fifth rescue for Mr. Hackett this season.

Intercolonial Brakeman Killed.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 9.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning a terrible accident occurred all the Intercolonial roundhouse, by which Henry Bagnall, 30 years old, a brakeman, lost his life. He was engaged coupling cars, when he slipped, and before he could recover himself was crushed between the buffers so badly that he lived but a few minutes afterwards. The deceased lives at Indiantown, where his wife and two children reside.

With groans and sighs, and dimsie eyes,
He seeks the couch and down he lies;
Nausea and faintness in him rise,
Brow-racking pains assail him,
Sick headache! But ere long comes ease,
His stomach settles into peace,
Within his head the throbbing ceases—
Pierce's Pellets never fail him!

Nor will they fail anyone in such a dire predicament. To the dyspeptic, the bilious, and the constipated, they are alike "a friend in need and a friend indeed." b

SUN

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPY OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,872,777.00, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,967,000 00 insured under 1,540 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,909 for $14,061,377.00.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,231.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,300 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$139,422 60	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	108,580 67	195,168 29	1,167,866 14
1880 to 1884, four years	120,976 84	263,264 31	2,962,924 00
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 80	476,897 24	4,020,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,004 45	$10,872,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

IS SHE OFF TO FILLIBUSTER?

A Haytian General and His Staff Said to Have Sailed from New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The report that the United States revenue cutter Chandler had chased down the bay Monday night the Clyde line steamship Saginaw, supposed to have on board a cargo of arms and ammunition for the use of the rebellious inhabitants of Hayti, caused considerable consternation in shipping circles.

It was a fruitless expedition for Uncle Sam's little cutter, for the Saginaw had several hours' start and was a good distance seaward when plucky Capt. Smith started to overhaul her. As to whether she really carries the contraband articles which the Haytian Consul in this city thinks she does, opinion differs. Her actions after leaving the city, however, were very suspicious, and the explanations given by the Clyde line people are not considered very satisfactory. The Saginaw left her wharf at the foot of Wall-street about 11 o'clock Monday morning. The operator at Sandy Hook says that after steaming down in the forenoon she disappeared on her course to the south. At 2.30 p.m. he observed her coming back. She came to anchor in the Horseshoe and remained there until late in the afternoon. She passed out at 6 o'clock on her way south and was not again seen. The operator at the Hook had complete observation of the movements of the steamer but failed to see anything suspicious going on about her.

It is said that while the steamer was at anchor down the bay a lighter went alongside of her and transferred to her large quantities of powder, small fire-arms and cannon. It is almost certain that no lighter passed through the Narrows, for if it did seamen say it could easily have been seen, but instead of going down through the Narrows Capt. Smith, of the Chandler, is of the opinion that a lighter did approach the steamer through the Kills by the way of Perth Amboy. The Haytian authorities also assert that a tug was seen alongside the Saginaw, and that Gen. Papillon, who is said to be the leader of the insurrectionists who are attempting to overthrow the present Government of Hayti, and his staff were seen to get aboard the steamer.

Gen. Papillon arrived in this country from Hayti only a few weeks ago. As soon as he and his staff got aboard the steamer began her journey to run the Haytian blockade, it is said.

The Clyde line people are very indignant about the published reports, and characterize them as nonsense. They declare most positively that the steamer does not, to their knowledge, carry any contraband articles and is not on a filibustering expedition. "The Saginaw is not going to Hayti," said a representative of the line. "She was to have stopped at that island, but in consequence of the revolution there, and the fact that her ports are closed against all foreign vessels, the idea of touching at Hayti was given up It is simply absurd to say that we did not take certain cargo to make room for the munitions of war, which it is said the Saginaw took aboard down the bay. It is a fact, however, that there is a large quantity of freight on our pier which the Saginaw did not take. This is general merchandise consigned to parties in Hayti. When we concluded not to touch at Hayti we refused to take it."

He admitted that one of Raymond's tugs went down to the steamer to take off a Mr. Hand of Philadelphia, who went down to the Hook to adjust a new binnacle compass, which was placed in the steamer last week. Mr. Hand went down the bay, he said, to "swing" the compass, claiming that to do this it was necessary to head the steamer towards the various points of the compass to ascertain whether the needle was true or not.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. Nerviline has created wonder in the minds of those who have usually tried other remedies, since its action seems magical. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

Among The Indians.

"While my husband was trading in furs he came across an Indian who was taken to his lodge to die. He had inward pains and pains in all his limbs. He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. Beaw, Cook's Mills, Serpent River, Ont. 2w45d.

A Quarter Of A Century.

For more than twenty-five years has Haggyard's Yellow Oil been sold by druggists, and it has never yet failed to give satisfaction as a household remedy for pain, lameness and soreness of the flesh, for external and internal in all painful complaints. 1e045d

No Rehearsal.

The church choirs of the town were to have met last night at the George street church to hold a joint rehearsal of music for the union thanksgiving services next Thursday. Only Mr. Carter and a few vocalists were present, and after waiting a while they went home without having had any practice. It transpired that the ministers of the several churches had neglected to notify their choirs of the arrangement, and only those who saw the announcement in the papers were present. It has been decided to hold two rehearsals next week, Monday and Wednesday evenings.

The Dampening Effects of Rain.

The inclement weather had a most depressing effect upon the attendance at the parlor social at the residence of Mr. A. L. Davis last night, and consequently there were but few present. However, those who braved the steady downpour of rain without, were repaid by the hearty enjoyment that reigned continuously within the house. A good musical programme was rendered, including selections by the orchestra. Oysters, tea and coffee were supplied to the hungry for a small sum, and the evening was spent in gay and friendly intercourse. Though the social could not be termed a success financially, the Ladies' Aid of the Charlotte street church have only the weather to blame, as had the night been at all propitious there would, no doubt, have been an overflowing assembly as on several previous occasions.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Mr. Grover Cleveland, of Buffalo, registered at the hotel de McGinty last night and was given separate apartments on the ground floor by the genial guardians of the station house. Grover was apparently in hard luck. His clothes looked as if the rats might have nested in them not long ago, and his general appearance indicated that he was an entire stranger to soap and a boon companion to the flowing bowl. Grover did not claim to be the genuine "Grover," but bore a remarkable likeness to the illustrious Democratic leader across the lines who has been elected to stay at home for the next four years. The distinguished visitor luxuriated in the downy softness and elegance of his cell all night, with his boots for a pillow, and this morning continued his "tramp" on the great shoe line westward.

New Law Firm

As may be seen by reference to the advertising columns of the EXAMINER, a new law firm, Dennistoun & Stevenson—R. M. Dennistoun and Arthur Stevenson—has been formed. The offices of the firm, and fine, new offices they are, are at 417 Water street. Both members of the new firm are clever and popular young men, and they will, doubtless, enjoy their full share of the cure grate of legal practice.

As it Should Be.

The Endeavor Society of the Charlotte street Methodist church have extended an invitation to the Y.P.A. of the George street Methodist church to furnish one half the programme of the entertainment to be held in the Charlotte street church on the evening of Thanksgiving Day. At the last meeting of the Association of George street church the communication was received and a favorable answer sent to the secretary of the Endeavor Society. It is suggested that frequent interchanges of this nature would be very profitable to both Associations.

A Bear Hunt.

There's a bear in the woods not far from town, and a party of local braves will go on the war path after his ursine majesty next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. The bold Bruin infests the woods near the residence of Mr. Lang, M.P., Otonabee, and it is said has already lunched off several fat sheep on the farms of Messrs. Armstrong and Fitzgerald. Bear tracks were seen last Saturday on the 5th line, Otonabee. His bearship had better render his thanks before next Thursday, for he won't have much of an opportunity after the town sports get on his track.

The Town Stables.

Improvements are being made to the fire hall stables that, it is hoped, will in future obviate all unpleasantness arising from the stench about the town buildings, that, it is supposed, was caused by the unsanitary state of the stables. A condition of things was found while the repairs were being made that would seem to warrant this supposition. When the wooden floor was taken up the stench was so strong that the men had to quit work. A new brick floor, with cement, is being put down, and now the fluids that were formerly absorbed by the wood will be run off into the sewer. A couple of ventilating shafts will also be put in the ceiling, and the stable floors washed every morning. With these precautions, it is believed the stables can be kept clean and sweet in future.

The Lacrosse Championship.

The intermediate championship contest will have to be fought over again. The council of the C.L.A. met at Paris yesterday and decided that Fergus, too, should be suspended from the association for playing "ringers." This leaves the following clubs eligible to play for the intermediate championship, which will be fought out in Paris on Thanksgiving Day:—Riversides, Peterboro; Young Torontos, of Toronto; Stratfords, of Stratford; Listowels, of Listowel; Keats, of Blenheim; Dufferins, of Ingersoll; Niagaras, of Niagara. Mr. C. J. Phelan, secretary of the Riversides, this morning received a telegram notifying the club of the new arrangement. Of course the Riversides do not wish to allow the honor to pass away without an effort to secure it, but it is doubtful if, at this late season, a team strong enough to compete could be got up. The members of the club are considering what action they will take.

Collapse of a Building.

This morning some workmen went to their work on a building in town, and after putting their dinner pails in an outbuilding came down town, thinking it was too wet to work. Shortly afterward other workmen arrived, but in the meantime the building had collapsed and tumbled into ruins. The new arrivals, seeing the dinner pails, thought the workmen had been buried in the ruins, and they set to work in desperate haste to rescue them. They had just worked themselves into a drenching perspiration when the victims they were digging for returned from down town. Of course, the situation may be imagined. The first workmen explained that they didn't care whether they worked that day or not—they had saved a day's pay by going down to gough brothers and buying good waterproof boots—tiptop boots, at less than half the price charged by Shylock dealers. When you want double value for your money in boots and shoes go to gough bros., 375 george street.

Dramatic Readings.

In spite of the industrious downpour of rain last night, there was in attendance at the Foresters' hall a fair audience, representing the literary culture of the town, to listen to the dramatic readings in monologue of Mons. Florestan, the French actor. He began his impersonations by appearing as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." He dressed the character well, and gave a very fine rendition of the selection, from the negotiation of the loan, down to the termination of the trial scene. Though a Frenchman, he spoke good English, and so strong was his acting that his individuality was lost and the auditors saw only the grasping Jew, with his literally cruel logic, his passionate desire for revenge, and agonizing despair at the loss of his "ducats—and his daughter." This reading was a splendid interpretation of the character and situation, and was greeted with hearty applause. Mons. Florestan next gave selections from Willis' "Charles I." These, though well treated, were not so happy as the preceding. In the latter part, especially the selection, it was rather lachrymose and monotonous, lacking the fire and variety of the Shakespearian selection. But in the selection from Racine's "Phedre," given in French, Mons. Florestan was at home, and the fire of his genius had full play in the stirring passages rendered. The entertainment was altogether a fine one, and disclosed in Mons. Florestan dramatic abilities of the highest order.

Collapse of a Building.
This morning the brick work of a house in course of erection just near the town limits, belonging to Mr. Geo. Little, collapsed. As to the cause of the collapse, the reasons assigned by different persons are conflicting, and therefore the EXAMINER contents itself with the statement of the occurrence.

Stopped the Runaway.
A pedlar's wagon took a lively though brief excursion across the market square about noon to-day. The wheat buyers on the square made a gallant capture of the runaway steed. They all did their share of shouting, but the prize was by common consent awarded to the new buyer for Rathbun & Co., who, at the risk of life and limb, held up the frightened horse. Last week a similar runaway occurred, but Mr. Kit Huffman carried off the honors.

Engaged for Two Years.
Following is a portion of an interview with Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, who are holding revival services in Winnipeg, published in the Sun:—Messrs. Crossley and Hunter are really engaged for about two years ahead, and if they accept all the invitations on hand they would lay out work for four or five years. Next year they propose visiting Hamilton and London, where they labored successfully for five months four years ago. This year they were urged to go to Toronto, where they could have spent six months in the Metropolitan, Queen and Elm Street Methodist churches. They do not expect to be able to touch Toronto for a considerable time. From this city the ministers leave for Detroit, where they will hold services in the largest church in Michigan. From there they go to Peterborough, Kingston and other cities.

THE FRENCH NAVY.

A Tiff in the Chamber of Deputies over the Estimates.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday M. Dreyfus moved that the 42,000,000f. asked by the Government to fortify the harbors of Brealand, Cherbourg, be spent in building cruisers and torpedo boats. The German and Italian navies, he said, were superior to the French navy, and the German Government was about to demand 250,000,000 marks to build more vessels.

Admiral Krantz, Minister of Marine, said that when the Germans demanded that amount he would demand a similar sum. [Applause.] The French navy should not be underestimated. The year 1889 would see it in a respectable condition.

Mr. Dreyfus withdrew his motion.

Mr. Dorian moved to reduce the estimate for naval supplies by 1,500,000 francs.

Admiral Krantz opposed the motion urging that the full amount was necessary in order to complete the storing of coal.

The Budget Committee accepted the motion, whereupon Admiral Krantz said that he should regard it as a mark of want of confidence.

This declaration caused great excitement and M. Dorian withdrew his motion and declined to participate any further in the debate.

An Astounding Find.

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—In addition to the unhidden letters from the late Emperor Frederick found in Baron von Roggenbach's house the police discovered in a secret drawer in a writing desk two bundles of telegrams and letters from Frederick, written when he was Crown Prince; his wife, Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales, Prince Alexander of Battenberg, Dr. Mackenzie, the Duke of Cumberland, Count von Seckendorf, Dr. Aradhorst and others.

He Desires No Addresses.

VIENNA, Nov. 9.—Emperor Francis Joseph has officially intimated that it is his special wish that on the occasion of the anniversary of his accession to the throne he shall receive neither addresses nor deputations and that no fetes be held [illegible]

THE PACIFIC CABLES.

What is Being Done to Promote the Scheme in London and Australia.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Systematic efforts are being made to promote the Pacific cable project. It is believed that the recent frequent breaks in the existing cables and the promises of hearty Australian assistance is leading the Imperial Government to adopt a more favorable attitude than was evinced at the Colonial Conference. A public meeting of city merchants and others will be held on November 22 to urge the Admiralty to expedite the survey route. Reports already received of the operations of the steamer Egeria are stated to confirm the previous accounts of the great depth of the Pacific in the line of the proposed cable.

Glenelg Mills Burned.

ALVINSTON, Nov. 9.—The Glenelg flour mills, owned by William and J. G. Greey, of Toronto, were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. There were over 8000 bushels of wheat besides a large quantity of flour and feed stored in the mill, which is a total loss. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a lamp explosion. The insurance is not known. The total loss is over $20,000. Warner's woolen mills, situated near the fire, was saved by the hard work of the citizens. Several dwelling houses and barns in the village caught fire from flying cinders, but were saved without much damage.

A Smashup in a Fog.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—A dense foggy atmosphere prevailed in this section yesterday morning and one of its results was a railway smash-up near Cragin, a suburban station on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. A heavy freight train crashed into the rear of a passenger train, smashing two cars and fatally injuring one passenger in the rear car. Passengers in the other cars were badly shaken and some slightly hurt.

A Great Father.

HAMILTON, Nov. 8.—John O'Grady was summoned to appear before Police Magistrate Cahill yesterday charged with assaulting his son, Andrew O'Grady. The lad is a bright and intelligent little fellow. He transgressed Tuesday and did not go to school. His father chastised him for playing truant, and his punishment was exceedingly severe. The boy told the magistrate that O'Grady knocked him down and kicked him on the head. His head was badly bruised, especially on the forehead. He was not well enough to attend court and the case was adjourned until to-day. The magistrate refused to allow O'Grady to leave the court-room until he obtained bail.

The Crowning Bargains
OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN

After having been favoured with a large and prosperous trade during the past Fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance.

Therefore, about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in his employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the Firm, and become an Active Partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 WORTH OF STERLING GOODS

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, unequalled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will all be gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a Large Proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-Made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about HALF their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Expenditures Kept Below Last Year's—Statement for the First Four Months of the First Year.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—The statement of revenue and expenditure for the month of October shows that while the revenue continues to increase the expenditure is being held down below last year's figures and a very gratifying surplus is the result. For the first four months of the fiscal year the revenue has been:

Customs	$ 8,332,108
Excise	2,312,712
Postoffice	628,758

The decreases are:

Postoffice	$ 50,787

Sir John Thompson and Sir Adolphe Caron returned from New York yesterday. They both say that they know nothing about being shadowed by detectives, but were pestered to death by reporters. Said Sir Adolphe; "The New York reporter is the greatest nuisance I ever met in my life. If he were only satisfied to say what you tell him and take 'no' for an answer, but he won't. The only interview accorded was one to The New York Herald the day after the election. Other reported conversations with us were purely imaginary. Altogether we had a pleasant time."

The Mormon delegates had an interview with Hon. M. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, yesterday, and explained what they want. Amongst other things they want a town site, a water power for a grist and saw mill, exemption, for a time at least, from timber dues, the free admission of their cattle as settlers' effects, etc.

No militia general orders were issued to-day, but there will be a batch next week, which will be the last for this year.

Lord Sackville, who is related to Lord Stanley by marriage, will visit the Governor-General shortly. Lord Stanley's aide-de-camp gave information to that effect to the newspapers here yesterday.

"Provided, however, that such horn, bell or steam whistle shall be used only as much as is necessary in the opinion of the Canal Superintendent to give the lockmaster or bridgekeeper timely warning to make preparations to receive vessels or boats or allow them to pass a lock or bridge within the limits of any city or town, between the hours of ten o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning. Horns only will be used when approaching a lock or a bridge, and if the person in charge abuses or allows an abuse to be made of the steam whistle, principally at night in cities or towns, he may be subject to a penalty of not less than $1 and not exceeding $10."

An order-in-council has been passed on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance prescribing regulations for Government Saving Banks. The rate of interest is retained at 4 per cent.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Dr. McCully Held for Trial but Liberated on Bail—Victoria and Federation.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—The adjourned charge against Dr. McCully, of having feloniously wounded Henry H. Oldwright by shooting him in the leg, came before the Police Magistrate yesterday. The defendant was committed for trial but liberated on his own bail in the sum of $1000.

At a largely attended meeting in the Metropolitan Church yesterday for the purpose of consultation as to the best means of furthering the erection of Victoria College in Queen's Park, Toronto, Dr. Potts, Chancellor Burwash, Rev. Hugh Johnston, ex-Governor Aikens of Manitoba, Senator Macdonald and others spoke in favor of the scheme, and a resolution endorsing it and pledging aid to raise the funds necessary for the purpose was unanimously passed.

The man who died suddenly on a Yonge-street car on Thursday night has been identified as William Rice, a shoemaker, who worked for Robert Mayfield of 372½ Yonge-street and who boarded at 374 on the same thoroughfare. He was unmarried, but has a sister in St. Thomas and another in Chicago.

John Keanedy was docked at the Police Court yesterday and charged with attempting to kill Policeman John Welch in Elizabeth-street Thursday night. Keanedy's motive for firing three or four shots at the officer from a revolver is somewhat of a mystery. The men had never met before, and Keanedy is a stranger in town. He says he came from Rochester. He elected to be tried by a jury and was remanded till Thursday without bail.

He Saved Himself.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 10.—J. H. Glass, of the Grand Trunk Railway freight sheds here, had a narrow escape from instant death yesterday afternoon. A case of bacon weighing 600 pounds was being transferred from Flavelle's express wagon to the high platform, and just as the large box was balanced on edge on the platform the horses sprang away and let Mr. Glass, who was in the wagon, down in the mud directly underneath the falling box. Fortunately he managed to throw himself to one side just in time to avert a horrible death.

ANOTHER LONDON HORROR

A TERRIBLY MUTILATED BODY FOUND IN SPITALFIELDS.

The Victim's Head Severed and Placed Under One of Her Arms—The Bloodhounds Lose the Scent.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The murder fiend has added another to his list of victims. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning the body of a woman cut in two pieces was discovered in a house in Dorset-street, Spitalfields. The body was disfigured in the same horrible manner as those of the women murdered in Whitechapel.

The appearance of the remains was frightful, and the mutilation was even greater than in the previous cases. The head had been severed and placed beneath one of the arms. The ears and nose had been cut off. The body had been disemboweled and the flesh was torn from the thighs. The skin had been torn off the forehead and cheeks. One hand had been placed into the stomach.

The victim, like all the others, was a fallen woman. She was married, and her husband was a porter. They had lived together at spasmodic intervals. Her name is believed to have been Lizzie Fisher, but to meet the habitues of the haunts she visited she was known as "Mary Jane." She had a room in the house where she was murdered. She carried a latch key, and no one knows at what hour she entered the house Thursday night, and probably no one saw the man who accompanied her. Therefore it is hardly likely that he will ever be identified. He might easily have left the house at any time between 1 and 6 o'clock yesterday morning without attracting attention. The doctors who have examined the remains refuse to make any statement until the inquest is held.

Three bloodhounds belonging to private citizens, were taken to the place where the body was and placed on the scent of the murderer, but they were unable to keep it for any great distance and all hope of running the criminal down with their assistance has been abandoned.

The murdered woman told a companion Thursday evening that she was without money and unless she obtained a supply would commit suicide. It has been learned that a man respectably dressed accosted the victim and offered her money. They went to her lodgings on the second floor of the Dorset-street house.

No noise was heard during the night and nothing was known of the murder until the landlady went to the room early yesterday morning to ask for her rent. The first thing she saw on entering the room were the woman's breast and viscera lying on a table.

Dorset-street is short and narrow and is situated close to Mitre-square and Harbour-ground.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Conybeare asked the question whether, if it was true that another woman had been murdered in London, General Warren, the Chief of the Metropolitan Police, ought not to be superseded by an officer accustomed to investigate crime?

The question was greeted by cries of "Oh! Oh!"

Mr. Speaker called: "Order! Order!" and said that notice must be given of the question in the usual way.

Mr. Conybeare replied: "I have given private notice."

The Speaker: "The notice must be made in writing."

Mr. Cunningham Graham then asked whether General Warren had already resigned, to which Mr. Smith, the Government leader, replied "No."

There is great excitement about the management of the Metropolitan Police under Sir Charles Warren. Of seven chief officers five are retired military men with no police experience. Chief Inspector Munro, who successfully tracked and secured the conviction of the dynamiters, resigned in disgust, as did his deputy. The Government did not allow Munro to entirely sever his connection with the police and he is retained in the Government pay.

The force numbers nearly 12,000 men, and is the only police force, except the Royal Irish Constabulary, in Great Britain directly under the control of the Government.

THE GUILDHALL BANQUET.

Lord Salisbury on the Government's Policy—The Peace of Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The usual banquet of the Cabinet Ministers was given at the Guildhall last evening. Lord Salisbury delivered a long speech. He denied that the Government had yielded to their opponents on the question of policy. They were never more resolute or more confident in advancing a policy which they honestly believed they could successfully execute.

England had perhaps noticed that popular institutions existed to the westward. [Laughter.] Events in America would add more to the history of electioneering than to the history of politics. [Laughter and cheers.] If there was any complaint against the Washington statesmen it did not involve the two nations. [Cheers.] The Washington statesmen had not apparently commended themselves to the approval of Americans. [Cheers.]

In regard to the peace of Europe Lord Salisbury said it appeared that all of the rulers had an earnest and intense desire to maintain the peace. He trusted that they would continue in their present attitude. The only danger might be an outburst of the people of some country who might disregard the wise counsel of those in power. Year after year saw larger armaments and vaster expenditures for defensive purposes. If the process continued, where would it end? He had heard on good authority that the five great powers maintained 12,000,000 of armed men. He did not suggest that that fact ought to diminish the confidence of the public in the maintenance of peace, but he thought that amid such preparation the English Government must not remain inactive. [Cheers.] If England's commercial community felt that the Government's power of protection was insufficient the terror that would result would cause a greater loss than any expenditure necessary to insure confidence. But European nations must view their armaments with misgiving. England only sought to protect her shores and her commerce.

Election Protest to be Dropped.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—It is currently reported here that the contested election case of Mr. Meigs, M. P., and Mr. Spencer M.P.P. for Missisquoi, will probably be dropped. The leading politicians are not disposed to put the electors to a contest before the general elections.

The Tragedy in Shawa.

PETROLIA, Nov. 10.—The verdict of the coroner's jury who investigated the tragedy which took place in Dawn Township Thursday morning was: "That James Scott came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by his wife while laboring under a fit of insanity."

Mrs. Scott passed through here yesterday afternoon on her way to Sarnia Jail.

Mormonism and the Bible.

Being a Series of Papers which will Appear from Time to Time, Exposing One of the Most Absurd Parodies of Christianity Ever Attempted to be Palmed Off on the Unlearned and Untaught in Biblical Study.

(Third Paper.)

THE PLACE WHERE THE NEW REVELATION WAS TO BE GIVEN.

Mr. Smith quotes Genesis xlix., 26, where we are told that the blessings of Jacob have prevailed above the blessings of his progenitors upon Joseph unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills.

Now, Mr. Smith, in order to suit his own theory, makes Jacob's blessing altogether a thing of the future. But this is his own idea, and not that of the Bible. The Bible says that "the blessings have prevailed," i. e., they have already extended to the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills. Now, at that time, no blessing on Joseph had reached America, therefore, if his blessings had then prevailed unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills, these hills could not have been in America.

The meaning of Genesis xlix., 26, is that the blessings on Joseph had reached in greatness the utmost bound of the everlasting hills, and not that geographically they had stretched so far as the boundary of the hills. It is also plain to see what hills Jacob was comparing Joseph's blessing with, viz., the great hills of Palestine; for he knew no others, and therefore he could have had no others in his mind when he declared of Joseph's blessings that they have already prevailed unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills. The greatness of Joseph's blessing may be seen in Genesis xli. 38-45.

But further, not only is Mr. Smith's theory doomed by the plain construction of verse 26, but the tribe of Ephraim, which he wishes us to believe received a new revelation, was actually rejected by God (Psalm lxxviii. 67), and although, as he points out, the sons of Joseph had Judah's birthright, yet the whole world has been blessed, not through Ephraim, but through Judah. I. Ch., v, 2; Heb., vii, 14: For to Judah was the gathering of the people to be. Gen., xlix, 8-10 (see also revised version, Variorum teachers' Bible, which gives a different reading to Gen., xlix, 26, in the authorized version, and which shuts out Mr. Smith's theory.) But Mr. Smith is positive that, for the utmost bound of the everlasting hills, we must cross the Atlantic ocean to America, and so, as he is determined to get us over the sea in some manner, he must needs find hints of the journey in the Bible. This he discovers in Gen., xlix, 22. Joseph, a fruitful bough, branches run over the wall, or sea. Of course, we all will admit, with him, that "branches" refers to descendants. But I was at a loss to understand how "sea" could be added to "wall" until I looked down his list of texts and saw Isa, xvi, 8: "Principal plants gone over the sea," and Jer., xlviii, 32: "Thy plants gone over the sea." Immediately after this he had again quoted Gen., xlix, 22. There could be no doubt then, whatever, that he meant Isa, xvi, 8, and Jer., xlviii, 32, to support his addition of "sea" to "wall" in Gen., xlix, 22, yet he flatly denied this when I chanced to meet him a few days since. I was returning from one of my stations, we were both driving, and I had turned aside from the road to allow him to pass, and, on recognizing each other, an altercation arose, in which I accused him of misleading people unlearned in the scriptures, by quoting passages which had not any connection with each other. I then pointed out that Gen., xlix, 22, was a prophecy of Jacob on Joseph, and was thus connected with Israel, while Isa, xvi, 8, and Jer., xlviii, 32, were prophecies against the nation of Moab, and consequently could have no reference to Israel. He at first denied that he had quoted these passages in support of one another, but when I asked him "for what then had he quoted them?" he tried to shuffle out of his false position by asking me to prove that Moab had no connection with Israel. I replied that those only were Israelites who were descendants of Abraham through Jacob. He contended, however, that inasmuch as the father of Moab, viz. Lot, was the nephew of Abraham, Moab was connected with Israel, and so the prophecy against Moab could be counted as against Israel also. Here, however, I appealed to the driver of Mr. Smith's vehicle, one of his converts, who admitted that the prophecy against Moab after it had become a nation could not be connected with Israel. Had Mr. Smith only known his Bible he would have remembered that the Moabites were not only excluded from worship with the Israelites until the tenth generation for ever (Deut. xxiii, 3), but that at the return of the Jews from Babylon they were utterly rejected by Nehemiah (xiii, 1, 2, 3). So far satisfied, however, I further accused Mr. Smith of quoting prophecies spoken long before and long after his pretended descendants of Ephraim had gone to America, and that, therefore, a revelation, given, as he pretended, only in America to these said descendants, could have no connection with utterances fulfilled years before these people started for America and years after they had gone there. This he met by declaring that America had been peopled by part of those who had been dispersed by the failure of the tower of Babel. But the whole Mormon argument is founded upon the idea of a revelation given to the descendants of Joseph in America, through the blessing of Jacob. Therefore, even supposing it were true that part of the dispersed people at the tower of Babel had found their way to America, they, or their descendants would have no connection with the blessing of Jacob upon Joseph.

But the fact was, Mr. Smith was compelled to hold his position in some manner, logically or illogically, critically or uncritically. We now see that Isa. xvi., 6v. and Jer. xlviii., 32v. refer to Moab. Mr. Smith was guilty of a dishonest misapplication in connecting them with Jacob's blessing on Joseph. One of his great points, however, seems to be in the patriarchal blessing given to Ephraim and Manasseh, Gen. xlviii 13-19v., containing the prediction that these two tribes should grow into a multitude into the midst of the earth, and that Ephraim was to become a multitude of nations. Mr. Smith asserts that Ephraim never became a multitude of nations in Palestine. Consequently we must look elsewhere for the fulfilment of verse 19, which he affirms was fulfilled only in America with its many Indian nations. His assertion, however, appears to be founded upon an erroneous idea of the meaning of the word nation, as I shall show. But I must first point out another of his mistakes, the very smallness of which shows his lack of critical knowledge. In his notes he connects Manasseh with Ephraim in the prophecy that the latter should become a multitude of nations. I have already shown, in my second paper, that the name Ephraim became a recognized title of the tribes which formed the northern kingdom of Israel. But when you connect Manasseh with Ephraim's special blessing, viz., that he was to become a multitude of nations, you alter the whole course of the Bible narrative, because Manasseh never represented the northern tribes as Ephraim did. Now the Hebrew word rendered "multitude" in the authorized version, is really "fulness" (see R.V., etc.) do that, when the Bible, in tracing the national history of the Israelites, represents Ephraim as standing for the northern tribes, we at once see the fulfilment of the prophecy. Mr. Smith, however, wishes to have it fulfilled somewhere else, consequently he dishonestly overlooks where it is fulfilled in Scripture, and, slightly altering the prophecy by connecting Manasseh with the fulness of nations alters the whole subsequent narrative.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Like Cleveland, Harrison Failed to Carry His Own County

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—Official returns from all the precincts show that Gen. Harrison carried the city of Indianapolis by a plurality of 156, the vote being: Harrison, 13,326; Cleveland, 13,170. Blaine carried the city by 620 plurality. Official returns for Marion County including the City of Indianapolis give: Cleveland 17,517, Harrison 17,139; Cleveland's plurality 378 against 295 plurality for Blaine in 1884.

It is pretty definitely settled that Gen. Harrison's plurality in Indiana will be about 2600. The official figures on the State will probably not be known for several days yet, as only three counties have been received by the Secretary of State. The Democrats concede, however, that the Republican plurality will be about 2600.

The entire Republican state ticket is elected. Gen. Hovey's vote kept very close to the presidential vote.

Both Claiming West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 10—The excitement over the result of Tuesday's election still continues. Both parties are figuring on the slow-coming returns and claiming the state.

Inaugural Preparations Begun.

WASHINGTON, D. D., Nov 10.—Preparations for the inauguration of Gen. Harrison have already began.

Blaine Can Have Anything He Wants.

Crazed by the Election.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—David Waxman, aged 26, was driven insane by the election excitement, and was taken to the asylum yesterday. He imagines himself to be President-elect Harrison.

Hoosiers' Returning Sanity.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—Indianapolis Republicans are still jubilant, but the remarkable demonstrations of the past two days have ceased. General Harrison is receiving a great many callers.

CHEATING THE HANGMAN.

A Villain Shot in a Scuffle—John Glenn's Awful Crime.

GLENN'S FALLS, N.Y., Nov. 10.—The most intense excitement prevails in the village of Sandy Hill over a series of events which is seldom paralleled in civilized localities. John Glenn, a well-known baseballist, formerly of Rochester, made a villainous attack upon the young daughter of Robert B. Sherrill, a prominent business man of the village, and fearfully abused her. The crime was committed in a secluded corner of the school grounds. The child was left in a terrible condition.

Glenn evidently thought that it would be well to get as far away from Sandy Hill as possible. After he committed the crime he at once fled. But the story of his offence became known immediately and a posse of citizens, hastily organized, started in pursuit. Officer Mason overtook Glenn a little way out of the village and captured him after a sharp tussle. Then the officer started for the police station. At a street corner the prisoner made his escape, taking refuge in the house of Hon. M. G. Paris. Officer E. P. Morrison joined Mason at that moment and after a search found Glenn hidden in the cellar of the house. Slipping a pair of handcuffs on the prisoner's wrists the officers placed him in a cart and drove rapidly to the office of Justice D. J. Sullivan.

As the news of the crime spread, hundreds of excited citizens gathered from all points, and arrangements were quickly made for lynching the villain as soon as he was captured. As Morrison stepped from the cart, with Glenn in charge, the crowd rushed upon him. The officer pluckily stuck to his man, and drawing his revolver, commanded the crowd to stand back. In the rush that followed, Morrison's arm was grasped by persons unknown, and the revolver was turned toward the prisoner and fired. The fellow dropped to the sidewalk. The bullet had penetrated the head beneath the right jaw, and lodged in the brain. He was removed to his brother's house. He is still alive, but is doomed to die.

It is said that Glenn has already served two years for a similar offence, and that two years ago he abused his own niece. One year ago he shot at a street car driver, but failed to hit him.

AN ALLEGED RAILWAY DEAL.

The C. P. R. Said to be Negotiating for a Purchase From the G. T. R.

WINDSOR, Nov. 10.—It is again stated here that the Canadian Pacific people are negotiating for the purchase of the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk from Komoka to Windsor. A well-known railroad man said last evening: "I know positively that the Canadian Pacific railway officials have been for a month past trying to buy the Great Western. Two weeks ago there was only a difference of $450,000, and this is a mere bagatelle when the magnitude of the road is taken into consideration. The Grand Trunk leased the Western with the hope of forever shutting out the Canadian Pacific, and it is a loss to them. Besides, they have another road running into Detroit. Now that they see the Canadian Pacific is bound to come they will get rid of the Western as soon as possible.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

Retaliatory Measures Against the C. P. R. Likely to be Deferred.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10.—The Sun says that the Legislature will probably defer action on the proposal to impose retaliatory measures against the Canadian Pacific Railway till the January session and even then cooler counsels will prevail.

Two young lads, Charles Comb and Richard Welch, aged 13, have been committed for trial.

The Deadly Coal Stove.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Wm. Hale, her three children and Miss Foe, a boarder, were asphyxiated during Thursday night by gas from a coal stove. The women are very low but will probably recover and the children are out of danger.

BABY'S SKIN AND SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by Cuticura Remedies.

Our eldest child, now six yea of age, when an infant six months old was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physician, who attempted to cure it; but it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid rash, ugly, painful, blotched, and malicious. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we were advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The effect was simply marvellous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.

Clear Skin, Pure Blood.

No mother, who loves her children, who takes pride in their beauty, purity, and health, and in bestowing upon them a child's greatest inheritance,—a skin without a blemish, and a body nourished by pure blood,—should fail to make trial of the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

I have seen the CUTICURA REMEDIES used for milk crust by a visitor in my house, and can testify that the cure was speedy and permanent. I have also used them myself, for eruptions of the skin on my little child, with satisfactory results in every respect. The skin was broken out and began to assume ugly proportions. I have also heard my neighbors speak of CUTICURA REMEDIES in the highest terms.

SOME AWFUL DISASTERS,

SIX MEN PERISH AT A FIRE IN THE FLOUR CITY.

Leaping to Escape the Flames They Die Within an Hour—Five Others Fatally Injured—Terrible Explosion.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 10.—The most disastrous fire ever experienced in this city occurred last evening at the works of the Steam Gauge and Lantern Company. It was located in a building of seven stories with two basements, situated on the brink of the Genesee Falls. The fire broke out at 7.35 o'clock. About forty people were at work mostly on the third floor. The smoke was very dense and the men could not reach the fire escapes and they were forced to jump from the third-story windows. Fourteen jumped on the west side of the building and were frightfully injured, six of them died within an hour. Four others will die. The names of the dead are:

JOSEPH DARNER.
JOHN GREMOUR.
JOSEPH WEBBER.
HARRY SCHNEIDER.
JOHN GALE.
An unknown man.

The fatally injured are Richard Paset, Frank Siddons, Daniel Watkins, John Jern. It is thought that four or more bodies are in the ruins, including one or more girls.

Loss on building $65,000, insured for $40,000. Loss on lantern plant $175,000, insurance on plant $179,000.

DEATH IN A MINE.

Fearful Explosion—160 Men Thought to Have Been Killed.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—A Journal special from Pittsburg, Kan., is as follows: The most dreadful disaster in the history of Kansas occurred at 5 o'clock Friday evening. When the men were preparing to leave off their work at shaft No. 2 at Frontenac, a suburb of Pittsburg, a terrific explosion was heard that shook the earth for a great distance and completely shattered the shaft. Upon investigation it was found that 160 men were within the mine at the time of the explosion. Being 112 feet below the surface it is almost certain that all are dead. The only exceptions were two men who were in a car coming up and being near the top of the shaft managed to escape.

Twenty Miners Drowned.

VIENNA, Nov. 10.—The Salgotarjo coal mine, Hungary is flooded with water. Twenty miners were drowned.

Six Killed by Train Collapse.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A house collapsed in Litchfield-street yesterday, causing the death of 6 persons and the injury of 20.

A Collision at Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A telegram from Havre states the Cunard line steamer Nantes came into collision 37 miles off the Lizard with the German ship T. Ruger, Captain Meyer, from Havre, and both vessel's sank. A portion of the ship's crew has landed at Treuville. The fate of the rest of her crew and of the steamer's crew is unknown.

THE CROFTERS AND CANADA.

The Question Will be Considered in the English House of Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The whole question of crofter emigration will be raised in the Commons shortly upon a vote to defray the expenses of those sent last season for settlement in Manitoba. It is understood that the Scotch Radical members intend to use Duncan McIntyre's criticisms with a view to impede the development of the state-aided scheme next spring. Mr. Smith stated in the Commons to-night that the Government intends to propose a vote at an early day in order that the House may discuss the course adopted by the Government, and expressed the hope that the full discussion would be deferred until the proposed special parliamentary emigration committee had considered the question. The Radical members entertain the strongest feeling that an immediate discussion is desirable.

The Pacific Cable Scheme Almost Assured.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Earl Winchelsea will preside at the conference on Nov. 23 to consider the Pacific cable project. All the leading commercial and shipping houses interested in Canada and Australasia are invited. The conference will be asked to strongly approve of the cable as a benefit to commerce during peace and a safeguard to the Empire during war and to petition the Government to obtain the necessary soundings with the least possible delay.

It is said the necessary imperial and colonial guarantee of £75,000 per annum is already practically assured, and the early completion of the survey is alone needed to enable the project to proceed.

Queensland's Protest Against Blake.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Queensland's official protest against the selection of Mr. Blake, late Governor of Newfoundland, as the new governor of Queensland, is exciting great interest in colonial circles. Mr. Childers, ex-minister, asked a question in the Commons to-night in reference to the time the official protest was received. Baron de Worms, replying on behalf of the Government, said the Colonial Office only received the protest at the same time as the published papers. The Colonial Secretary would consider the subject. Some think the incident will not unlikely raise the question whether self-governing colonies should not have some advisory voice in the selection of their governor.

Highway Robbery at Thamesville.

THAMESVILLE, Nov. 10.—While Mr. Aubrey, who lives a few miles from town, was going home last night, three men attacked him, beat him severely and ran him into the gravel pit, where they took $6 from his pocket. The old man shows signs of having been roughly handled.

He Made Restitution.

WINDSOR, Nov. 10.—The night clerk at the Manning House here skipped the other morning for Detroit, taking $100, all the money there was left in the safe. He has sent the money back to his employer with a letter stating that he did not know what prompted him to do as he had done.

Montreal's Ice Carnival.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—The Carnival Committee have raised $18,000 towards the expenses of the carnival. It is understood that Mr. Hopkins' design for the ice palace has been accepted.

Erodie the Bridge Jumper.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Nov. 9.—At 6 o'clock this morning Steve Brodie ascended to the top of Poughkeepsie bridge 212 feet above the river, made a spring and jumped into the river. Three of his ribs were broken.

Nothing dry for Pitcher's Castoria.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we request a trial for Nerviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 6dw45

He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. Beaw, Cook's Mills, Serpent River, Ont. 2w45d.

Order of Chosen Friends.

A New Mutual Benefit Society Established in Peterborough—Stanley Council No. 45—The Officers Elect.

Last night in the lodge rooms of Peterborough Lodge I.O.O.F., Stanley Council No. 45 of the Order of Chosen Friends was established. It is a mutual benefit society, and the first secret society in the history of the world to admit ladies as members. The Order of Chosen Friends was established in 1879, and has now a membership of 40,000 scattered over the United States and Canada. The fees are low and the benefits good, and it has a social element that commends itself to the public.

For a week or so past Miss Fallis, of Toronto, Deputy Organizer, assisted by Miss Walsh, of Toronto, has been engaged in securing names for membership, and Friday night about twenty of these met for organization. This was accomplished by Mr. James Gowanlock, Acting Supreme Councillor for Canada, and Dr. Lennox, Acting Grand Marshal, of Toronto. After initiation into the mysteries and rites of the Order, the officers were elected as follows:—

Past Councilor	Mrs W J Green
Councilor	J R Stratton
Vice-Councilor	R R Hall
Secretary	E Gallagher
Treasurer	Geo Stevenson
Prelate	Miss Richardson
Asst. Secretary	Mrs J R Stratton
Marshal	F Might
Warden	Miss Armstrong
Guard	Chas H Allen
Sentry	A E Dixon
Trustees	Messrs W J Green, T Brooks and A Gibson
Med. Examiner	Dr Goldsmith

It was decided to hold two meetings a month, on the first and third Tuesdays, and for the present the Oddfellows' hall has been kindly loaned them by the officers of Peterborough lodge as their place of meeting. The next meeting will be held on the 20th.

This Society possesses many excellent features. It is a fraternal organization, exerting a powerful moral and educational influence, and possessing an admirable system for the dispensation of material aid to its members. It provides sick and death benefits, and in case a member becomes totally and permanently disabled, it pays one half the benefit. Old age, 75 years, is made a disability.

Don't Miss It.

Having decided to clear out my entire stock within the next two months, I shall make a reduction in ordered clothing, from $6.00 to $8.00 per suit less than former prices. Overcoats same rate, Pants at cost—for Cash only—and all my furnishings must go at cost or under.

This is a genuine sale of good goods, mostly bought new for this Season's trade, and great bargains will be given.

Flannel Shirts to order, formerly sold at $2.25, now $1.75, A1 material. White and French Cambric from 35c. to 50c. less. Don't miss this chance for securing great bargains.

The Battalion Concert.

For variety and interesting features, the programme to be presented at the military concert in the Opera House, on Thursday evening, Nov. 15th, has never been surpassed in Peterborough. Brilliant military evolutions and exercises, assaults-at-arms, military music, and stirring songs, classical clarionet solos by an artist of the highest order, striking tableaux, altogether combine to make a splendid programme. Don't miss this concert.

Week of Prayer.

Following are the appointments for the services during the week of prayer in the Y. M. C. A. Hall:

Sunday,	Nov. 11	Rev. K. F. Torrance.
Monday,	" 12	Rev. M. L. Pearson.
Tuesday,	" 13	Rev. A. Ball.
Thursday,	" 15	Rev. S. J. Shorey.
Friday,	" 16	Rev. P. C. Parker.
Saturday,	" 17	Rev. A. C. Wilson.

At the Sunday evening service Nov. 11 Rev. Mr. Torrance will take for his subject, "Have you seen Him?" John i., 29.

Expanding and Improving.

Mr. Thos. Kelly, dry goods merchant, has an accommodating and worthy landlord who intends remodelling and enlarging the interior of his store at the corner of Simcoe street to meet requirements. Between this and the 15th of January next, when the work of alteration will be begun, the large stock of dry goods at present on hand will be sold off at a bargain, because Mr. Kelly intends following out the scriptural injunction to "put new wine in new bottles," and in his new store he will lay in a stock of the newest and freshest goods in the market. In the meantime bargains will be offered to the public that are unexcelled in the district.

A Cyclone in Clothing.

To-day, gough bros., the wonderful cheap men, threw wide the portals, to admit the throng of purchasers of the bankrupt stock of the late Henry Sheppard, Opera House block. An immense stock of clothing, new and fresh, amounting to $18,600, bought for 50 cents on the dollar. O, what mountains of bargains! Going off with a rush! Magnificent winter clothing of all kinds at half price! Don't delay joining the procession and seize your share of bargains. Nothing like it ever seen in town before. Prices slaughtered as ruthlessly as if the Whitechapel fiend had cut them down. Here's a perpetual picnic in bargains for the public till the $18,600 Sheppard stock is cleared out at half cost. Come without delay; come and make it pay; bargains will not stay; they are the people's prey, and they will melt away, like snow on sunny day.

A Bona-Fide Clearing Sale.

The clearing sale announced by Mr. H. LeBrun in the columns of THE EXAMINER is a real and genuine clearing sale, preparatory to a change in the management of the business, and not a clap-trap announcement to boom business, but a genuine, downright, honest sale. Mr. LeBrun, during his fifteen years in trade in town, has never held a clearing sale, but now he is preparing to make a change in business—to admit a partner, Mr. Joseph Picard, and the stock must be cleared out, regardless of cost. A $24,000 stock of first-class goods will, from Saturday, November 17th, be thrown upon the market at greatly reduced prices. LeBrun's goods are all of the very best quality and the purchaser desirous of securing the best of bargains, in the best of goods, is respectfully referred to Mr. LeBrun's announcement elsewhere in this issue. The reduction in price takes place in every department, and, therefore, every department affords decided bargains. Remember this is no bogus announcement, but a bona fide sale, in which the best of goods are offered at great reductions. Don't neglect to read Mr. LeBrun's advertisement in another column. Safe and honest bargains for everybody.

The Cause of Ireland.

Meeting of Irish Sympathizers—A Parnell Defence Fund Established.

Last night about fifty gentlemen of the town met in the Murray street Separate School to discuss ways and means to assist the Irish cause. The meeting was called by the President and Secretary of the Peterborough branch of the Irish National League, and the responses were numerous and enthusiastic.

Rev. Father McEvay was called to the chair, and Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle, secretary of the League, occupied a similar position for this meeting. The chairman and Messrs. T. Cahill, J. W. Fitzgerald, J. O'Meara, Dr. Kincaid, C. J. Leonard, T. Dolan (President of the League), L. M. Hayes, and Mr. Geo. Bell, who represented the Knights of Labor, all made addresses, expressing their entire sympathy with Mr. Parnell in his efforts in behalf of Ireland's cause, and the chairman pointed out the necessity there was for contributing liberally to the Parnell defence fund at the present time. The addresses were all enthusiastic, and warmly received, and were besides given a practical financial support. Contributions were taken for this fund to the amount of $134, and committees were appointed to canvass the wards for further donations.

The members of the Peterborough branch of the Irish National League have a heartwhole interest in this movement for the freedom of Ireland and are determined to do as much as they can in behalf of the cause.

The next meeting will be held a week from Monday night.

Scalded to Death

A Little Three-year old Boy Falls in a Pail of Boiling Water and Lingers for Twelve Hours.

Yesterday forenoon the little three-year-old and only son of Mr. Patrick Heenan, who keeps the Temperance House on Hunter street, fell into a pail of boiling water and was fatally scalded. The mother had just lifted the water off the stove and placed it on the floor, when the child, who was playing with a dog, ran backwards and stumbled right into it. The lower part of his body was horribly burned. Quickly Dr. King was summoned and everything possible done for the little sufferer, who lingered in agony till about ten o'clock at night when he died.

The parents are grief stricken at the sudden loss of their bright little boy, and they have the sympathy of everyone in the calamity that has befallen them.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER
THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Belleghem's Furniture.

Nothing more greatly conduces to home comfort, and consequently to home happiness, than a good supply of honest, durable and elegant furniture. Badly built, breakable chairs and ricketty sofas will ruin the most amiable of tempers, besides weakening the most ample pocket book. But those who buy their furniture of D. Belleghem, the Furniture King of the Midland District, have none of these annoyances. His furniture is constructed of the best of woods carefully kiln-dried beyond the possibility of shrinking or warping, and this material is honestly put together by the best of workmen and machinery. THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade, and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of Caps, and can now offer

READY-MADE CLOTHING.

Our ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly, it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

DRESS-MAKING.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

FLANNELS and UNDERWEAR

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN

After having been favoured with a large and prosperous trade during the past Fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance.

Therefore, about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in his employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the Firm, and become an Active Partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 WORTH OF STERLING GOODS

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, unequalled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will all be gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a Large Proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-Made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about HALF their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

LONDON'S LATEST HORROR

THE PEOPLE GROWING CALLOUS TO SUCH CRIMES.

Minute Fisher's Murder Awakens Less Excitement Than Jack the Ripper's Former Deeds of Blood.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Although the latest Whitechapel murder is of such a nature that it cannot be passed over without great public stir, the popular excitement it has created is less than that which was noticeable after the other frightful crimes came to light. The frequency with which the horrible deeds have been committed have made people callous to them, and if it were not for the shocking details of yesterday's crime and the present denunciation of the police department, the press would chronicle the deed and after a brief ruffling of the surface, London's social tide would continue to ebb and flow in peaceful forgetfulness of the revolting crime. According to statements made yesterday by the neighbors of the unfortunate woman, the victim was alive and chatting with her next door lodger half an hour before her mutilated body was found. The surgeons, however, who viewed the corpse are unanimous in the opinion that the woman was murdered between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, thus confirming the first reports of the case. The detectives' inquiries elicited the statement that the woman was singing at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Sir Charles Warren is away on a leave of absence, his present locality being a mystery. He was last heard from at St. Petersburg. Urgent telegrams have been sent to him recalling him to his duty, but they have not reached him as yet. He is believed to be en route to Moscow now, but no one seems to know where he is. The fact of his absence has not yet been made public, but there will be a perfect storm of indignation when it is known.

The Cabinet discussed matters relating to the Whitechapel murder, and touching upon Commissioner Warren's efficiency, for three hours yesterday afternoon, and it is rumored that they will make a scapegoat of Warren. This would certainly be a sop to the public and would ward off censure of the government for a time at least.

The favorite theory regarding the identity of the murderer seems to be that he is the Malay formerly spoken of as a cattleman attached to some steamer that makes trips of a week's duration to some European port. The police incline to this supposition. According to this theory the murderer, after killing his victim, could destroy all trace of his whereabouts by immediately shipping and not returning to London for a week or so.

A proclamation in the name of General Warren, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, has been issued offering a free pardon to any accomplice the Whitechapel murderer may have had, provided he will give information which will lead to the murderer's apprehension.

It is learned that the woman whose mutilated body was found in the Dorset street house yesterday was a native of Limerick, Ireland. She migrated to Wales, where she married a collier, who was subsequently killed by an explosion. After that she drifted to London.

A PREDICTION VERIFIED.

The Story of Whitechapel's Reign of Horror—Nine Victims in Thirteen Months.

When the corpse of the eighth victim was discovered on the Thames Embankment, about five weeks ago, it was suggested that the murderer, tired of the monotonous success attending his blood hunt amongst the most forlorn and friendless and pitiful of all human creatures, might, in search of change and recreation, try a higher range of work and seek victims amongst women of a better condition of life than those amongst whom he had served his novitiate in murder. This prediction has in part been verified. Lizzie Fisher, the market porter's cast-off wife, whose body was found on Friday morning, its parts scattered about the floor, tables and chairs of her bedroom in Dorset-street, Spitalfields, was about one degree higher in the scale of immorality than her eight predecessors. As a set off to this social advantage the murderer had subjected her to a little extra mutilation before leaving her. Otherwise the method of murder was precisely similar to that adopted in the other cases, and no room is left for doubt that the crime was committed by the same hand.

Dr. Forbes Winslow, a recognized authority on questions of mania, has expressed the following opinion in regard to this fresh murder, which is of interest in view of his professional reputation:

"It is," said he, "the work of the same homicidal lunatic who has committed the other crimes in Whitechapel. All the harrowing details point to this conclusion. The way in which the murder was done and the strange state in which the body was left is not consistent with sanity. I stated some days ago that the murderer was then in a lucid interval and would recommence directly this state had passed away. It appears that the authorities were forgetting this theory and that some one had been persuading them that the fact of so long a time intervening between the murders, therefore the murderer could not be a homicidal maniac. I desire flatly to deny this and to state more emphatically than ever that the murderer is one and the same person, and that he is a lunatic suffering from homicidal monomania, who, during lucid intervals, is calm and forgetful of what he has been doing in the madness of his attack."

Dispatches declare that the London police have enlisted the services of bloodhounds in their search for the murderer and that these sagacious animals, after wandering helplessly up and down a few streets, lifted up their heads and bayed their inability to carry the case any further. The result had long ago been foreseen by those who read the ludicrous picture presented to Londoners some weeks ago, when a hapless policeman was detailed to take exercise, and canter up and down the Whitechapel-road, with two star bloodhounds, specially engaged for the purpose of detection in anticipation of the next murder that might come along. One day the bloodhounds broke the bonds that held them to their blue-uniformed captor and disappeared, and then London was treated to the edifying spectacle of the police pursuing the escaped dogs all over the city and the crowd chasing the police.

The only case in which a murderer in England has ever been successfully tracked by bloodhounds occurred a few years ago. A little girl was missed from her home in Bolton, Lancashire, and after several days' vain search her parents reluctantly consented to allow one of their neighbors to try a young bloodhound. The dog took the scent from the girl's Sunday clothing, followed the scent to a barber a shop, pushed his head through the paper which covered a disused doorway and there the body was found. The barber's trial, confession and execution followed.

TWENTY-FIVE DEAD MEN

TAKEN OUT OF THE PITTSBURG (KAN.) MINES.

Nine of the Wounded Rescued—Twenty-Five Missing and Supposed to be Dead—Heartrending Scenes.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—A special from Pittsburg, Kan., gives details of the horrible holocaust in shaft No. 2 of the Pittsburg and Cherokee or Santa Fe Mining Company near that place on Friday night. The company had more orders than they could fill and in their attempts to keep up they have been running an unusually large force of miners. Friday morning 164 men were lowered into the mine. At noon the shots were fired all right and later the miners descended for afternoon duty. At 5.30 they were ready to fire their shots again. The first shot had been fired but before a man could be hoisted a terrible rumbling noise was heard above and a black cloud of dirt, shots and dust shot into the air from the mouth of the shaft, tearing away the trestle upon which the cages are hoisted and filling the shaft with debris.

The explosion occurred in the east side and is attributed to the inexperience of some of the new men. Before the men outside could recover their senses, one of the miners appeared at the air shaft nearly suffocated. He was helped out and followed by others until a large number had escaped—how many is not known. There was plenty of help at hand, and those at the top devoted their attention to rescuing their entombed companions. The fan house, only slightly damaged, was first repaired, canvas being nailed over the holes that had to be closed. About 12 o'clock the fan house was ready and fresh air was pumped into the mine, driving back the poisonous gas and averting suffocation. Attention was then turned to repairing the cribbing so that the cages could be lowered. Men lowered into the shaft by rope and bucket could accomplish nothing.

At 2 a. m. the cage was ready to descend and the first rescuing party were lowered into the shaft. Owing to the bad air they could not remain long. On the first return of the cage it contained a number of uninjured but badly demoralized men. The bottom of the shaft was badly damaged and it was difficult to get at the dead. As found they were piled together at the bottom and the living and badly wounded were hoisted to the top. At 4 a.m. five had been rescued and at 1 p. m. four more were brought out alive. At this time they struck an entry containing twelve more dead and at 2 p. m. twenty-five dead and nine wounded had been found, with 25 missing who are supposed to be dead. A large number of the killed are French and Italians.

A temporary hospital was prepared in a blacksmith shop near by, where the most heartrending scenes were witnessed as the mangled and badly-burned men were carried in. David Tweed and W. Elwood, two of the badly injured, died soon after being taken to the hospital.

For hours after the explosion snuffed out the lives of nearly 100 also the scene at the pit was distressing. Poorly clad women, with babies clasped to their breasts, came through the darkness by the light cast from the bonfires, like haggard, uneasy beings from another world. Some shrieked above the storm, and muttered as they fell helpless on the shoulders of the stronger neighbors, others were mad in their despair and tore their hair and garments and would have dashed into the tomb headlong but for the strength exerted by miners from other shafts. One poor woman whose husband and two sons were in the pit laid her three youngest children beside a blazing fire and fell into hysterics among them. She lay unnoticed in this position until morning when she was removed to her home a raving maniac.

At one time the crush of women and children at the shafts was so great that it was feared that violence would be necessary in order to clear the way for the rescuers. The poor creatures fought each other in their despair and in some instances inflicted severe punishment. As the night wore on the work of recovering the bodies continued until the floor of the engine room was strewn with mangled men. Then bodies were placed in rows upon the ground where the rain and snow beat upon them. Most of the victims were shockingly mutilated and some were so disfigured as to be unrecognizable. All were covered with blood and dust, and many were almost stripped of their clothes. There was nothing left of the first man brought up from the dreadful hole but a bleeding, ruby trunk. The head and arms and legs had been blown off. Many of the rescuers fainted at their work.

CANADA AND THE AUSTRALIAS.

The Dominion Government Will Invite a Conference With These Colonies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—It is understood that the Dominion Government has decided to invite the Governments of Australia and New Zealand to send delegates to Canada at as early date to consider the question of improved trade relations between the Australasian colonies and the Dominion, and especially cable communication via the Pacific.

For years the United States, so far as this continent is concerned, have had the monopoly of trade with the greater Britain of the Antipodes. A conference of colonial delegates at Ottawa could not fail, therefore, to have a good effect.

Another question which will come up for discussion is that of direct steam communication between Vancouver, Auckland and Sydney. The contract for carrying the Australian and New Zealand mails to and from San Francisco, which has been held by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for the last 10 years, terminated in the spring of this year, and was renewed by the Australasian Governments for one year only, owing to the prospective opening of a direct line to Vancouver. Should the C. P. R. or any other company decide to inaugurate direct service to and from British Columbia, and secure the substantial subsidy given by the Australasian Governments a great point will have been scored in favor of the Canadian trans-Continental route. But the question of primary importance involved in the subject of improved trade relations between ourselves and Australasia is that of direct cable communication from Victoria to Auckland and Sydney via the Hawaiian, Fanning and Christmas Islands. The Imperial authorities recognize that Great Britain is just as much interested in a direct Pacific cable as the colonies, and early in the year sent out H.M.S. Egeria to survey the route. Three years is, however, too long a period to wait for the consummation of a project which everyone who takes an interest in British progress and British unity recognizes should be completed without further delay. The first line from the old country brought home by the double wreck of the Eastern Cable Co.'s line will be laid in a few weeks, and it has made the task of the admiralty, combined with that of the Eastern Co., to raise the Imperial Government on to its own cable.

THE CHURCH'S MISSION.

Educational Sermons in the Methodist Churches.

Rev. Reuben Potts and Reverend Francis Harding conducted services yesterday in the Methodist churches. In the morning Rev. Mr. Potts preached a sermon on "The Church of the Living God," and in the evening a missionary sermon.

On Sunday the annual educational services were protracted in the George and Charlotte street Methodist churches by Rev. Dr. Potts, Secretary of the Educational Society, and Rev. Dr. Burwash, Chancellor of Victoria University. It was requested that the collections of the day would be in behalf of the educational fund, and contribution envelopes were distributed among the congregations.

At the Charlotte street church in the morning Rev. Dr. Potts preached to a large and attentive congregation. He read for the lesson the first chapter of Revelations, and for his text chose the last chapter of Matthew, 18-19 :—

"And Jesus came and spake unto them saying, all power is given unto me in Heaven and in earth.

"Go ye therefore and teach all nations—"

It was recorded of the Duke of Wellington that prior to conviction with a young minister the latter had expressed the thought that this statement was the great stumbling block for the church; it was the most conclusive and difficult for the church to get around in. To this the Duke replied:—"Young man, you have received your ministerial orders." So this text might be regarded as the continuing orders of the church, authoritative and comprehensive. Christ said he had all power in Heaven and in earth, which would imply that he possessed all the power of the mediatorial throne, as the atonement and intercession of Christ in Heaven, and also all the power of the Holy Spirit and every Christian agency on this earth—all the power of the church, the pulpit, the Sunday school, for the grand redemptive work. The vital and inspiring truth of the text was that in some way or other the church is linked to God. Christ has all power, and he says, "Go ye forth and teach all nations because I have all power."

Dr. Potts said the theme of his address would be

"THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH TO THE WORLD."

The church, he said, had a great mission, and every individual had a mission to perform; and the responsibility of this mission depended upon their knowledge and appreciation of it. This Christianity was intended to give them; to expand and clarify their vision; to put its own trade mark on every character.

The mission of the church, he said, was a many-sided one. It was first of all a mission of testimony. In some of all ecclesiastical systems given by God. The Jewish and Christian systems were far more dependent upon testimony than advocacy for its propagation. The man who can rise up and say, "I know God has pardoned my sins," does more good for the cause than the most eloquent sermon. And the testimony of the church is, that there is a God who answers prayer, cases the troubled conscience and gives us a glorious hope of immortality and eternal life. But the trouble was, those who could testify of a personal salvation were silent when they should speak, were weak and faltering when they should be valiant and strong. Christians ought at all times bear testimony to God.

Then the church had a mission of world-wide evangelization, a sublime and glorious mission that meant the fulfilment of the 26th chapter of Isaiah and the 72nd Psalm.

Then the mission was an educational one,—"Go ye therefore and teach all nations." This educational mission was not salient in the sense of public schools and universities, but physical, moral and spiritual as well as intellectual education. The church was interested in all these. All God's dealings with his people tend to their education. He has but two text books, and there are object lessons in them that children can understand and cause that only minds can have a full knowledge of; but there was a perfect harmony between them all, and it was only the bigotry and skepticism of the world that made trouble between revelation and nature, between God and man. Could there be anything more educational than the hymnology of the church, which breathes and electrifies inspiration? Then the school of God's providence educated. It was a trying school to be sure, one of sorrow, tribulation and perplexity, but one in which man is educated in trust, in patience and development of character.

Then the church was interested in the secular education of our country. "In this province of Ontario," said Dr. Potts, "we have on the face of the earth, and I never think of it without thinking of the greatest man this country ever produced, Egerton Ryerson. Next Queen's birthday or about that time we shall erect a magnificent statue of him in Toronto, but the greatest monument to his memory is this educational system of Ontario." The church was interested in this, but it was peculiarly and profoundly interested in the education of its ministry, because it was vitally connected with the pulpit. The Methodist church was bound to look after the education of its own ministry, so that the men who occupied its pulpits would be of one doctrine. If young ministers attended various colleges and seminaries, religious or sectarian, what a medley of theology would be propounded! They wanted men educated in their grand theology, who, when they came into the pulpit would give forth no uncertain sound.

Then the mission of the church was glorious—glorious as the redeeming work of Jesus Christ. Everything that Christ contemplated the church contemplated also. Its mission was glorious in its work of rescue, in its product of character.

Think, he urged, of the responsibility of the church's mission to the world. There was an individual obligation resting on each one, and a denominational responsibility upon all; for whatever a man's church undertook became his work also.

In pointing out the connection between the subjects of his address and the appeal of the Educational Society, Dr. Potts explained that they collected $70,000. One-third of it, he said, was retained by the annual conference (all distributed to Edens (without interest) to young men aspiring to study for the ministry, but without means. The two-thirds left was applied among the different church educational institutions—a fifth to the Sackville, N.B., College, a fifth to the Montreal Theological Seminary, a fifth to the theological department of Victoria University, and the remaining two-fifths to the University itself, because the young men who attended the theological department ate in the other classes as well. The society was growing. Last year the income was $16,000, and they hoped to reach $20,000 in a few years. Two years ago they were able to give Victoria University $2,000; this year it is $3,100; two years ago Montreal Seminary got $900; this year $1,200; and so with the Sackville College. The gifts of the people were increasing; for instance, two Toronto laymen that last year gave $1500 to the educational fund, this year gave over $2000, and other churches were doing as well. The people were awakening to the importance of the matter. Last year $200,000 was given for missionary purposes, and, coupling this with the importance of the educational interests of the church, the people could see about what was right for them to do. Dr. Potts said he wanted the Charlotte street church to give $100 during the day to the Educational Society.

Referring to the federation movement, he said the Educational Society had nothing to do with it. It was an entirely foreign matter, and he would have an opportunity later on in the season of laying it before them. The society supported all the colleges mentioned, and, after the next general conference, would have the Wesleyan College to maintain. In view of these facts he pointed out, in conclusion, how important the educational interests were, and well worthy of support.

Evening Sermon.

In the evening Rev. Dr. Burwash addressed the congregation, taking for his text the second verse of the second chapter of the second epistle to Timothy:

"And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also."

This was Paul's last care and charge with reference to the duties of the infant church, written a few weeks or perhaps days before his martyrdom. The circumstances surrounding him were such as would depress an ordinary mind—the darkness and wretchedness of a prison dungeon were his lot. But does he murmur? No. Is he preparing himself to meet the fate that he apparently has a presentiment of? No; he has no thought of himself at all. His cares and thoughts and all the burden of his heart are for the church. For himself he merely says: "I am ready; I have fought the good fight; and am prepared to receive the reward that is laid up for me." He foresees the difficulties the church will meet with, and counsels for its future guidance. The words of the text were very common ones once, and implied that the church was the repository of a grand inheritance of truth from the lips of Jesus and his apostles. The church is to be the keeper, the witness and disseminator of the Word of God from generation to generation in time to come, and the mission of the church was to teach this deposit of divine truth from age to age. There were two essentials to this function of teaching, viz., fidelity and ability to teach. True fidelity was founded upon deep faith and entire conviction in the principles taught. Paul also required men of ability to teach, and this meant what John Wesley termed "a clear understanding of the things of God." The teacher must first understand the Bible—no small matter, because the good book contained unfathomable depths of richness, wisdom and knowledge. Rev. Dr. Burwash expatiated upon the many virtues of the Bible and its incomparableness. And there was, he said, never a time in the history of the world when a was more required than to-day. Ministers required more than ever an exact understanding of the Bible, for the young people who were growing up were being so educated that they would in future critically examine the class of instruction given them from the pulpits. An understanding of the Bible implied that the ministry would have to possess a knowledge of the language and history of the Book and the working of the holy spirit. All the different phases of life were comprised in the Bible, glimpses of all sorts, and varieties, and circumstances of human life. The study of the book of human life and the Book of God went hand in hand, and the minister must be well informed in the affairs of human life; and most of all, a knowledge of the life of his day. The age demands a ministry fitted for the work. The church must awake, and the problem of how the church was to keep its hold upon the masses must be solved at once. An educated and capable ministry was more than ever required. It was ... in purpose that the Educational Society made its appeal, and he urged the congregation, as they valued their church privileges, as they valued their religion and the future of their children, they must awaken to the needs of the hour. And, he was pleased to say, the church was waking up. The first year the society got $7,000, and last year the people contributed $16,000. This year, especially, a strong appeal was made, and, according as they responded and helped educate the young men who were to preach to them in the future, by their Christian intelligence and enterprise, so would the church prosper.

THOROUGH UNDERSTANDING OF THE BIBLE

DRAMATIC AND TERRIBLE.

The Story of Outrage and Crime Presented to the Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The evidence given before the Parnell Commission has suddenly become striking, dramatic and terrible. Such a story of outrage and crime is being told as impresses the most callous witness, after a witness steps into the box to describe murder after murder in a manner all the more effective from its brevity and simplicity. "Inspired by the Shamed," says one observer most truly, "there is in that a picture of life in this country is given with vividness never before known. None of these stories is new. The Huddy murder, the Blake murder, and all the other awful incidents of this long struggle, were known. But a trial in London brings them nearer to London, and interest in the proceedings of the Commission, heretofore languid, has become intense.

Sir Charles Russell himself has been so much affected as to lose his temper and enter upon a contest with the president of the tribunal, of which Sir Charles was very far from getting the better. He had, in fact, to submit to be reduced and silenced. He was, of course, that these cases against the Court to rule that The Times, before producing evidence of crime, should connect the defendants with it. But the court had ruled against him. The plaintiffs are impossible, no doubt, and the Attorney-General irresponsible. They are both under legal and moral obligation to establish, if they can, the complicity of Mr. Parnell or some of his colleagues in this crime. But meantime the effect on public opinion is damaging to them all.

RIOTING IN MADRID.

Senor Canovas' Carriage Stoned—Attack on a Newspaper Office.

MADRID, Nov. 11.—The arrival of Senor Canovas, the Conservative leader, from Seville this morning was the signal for a riotous outburst. The mob surrounded and followed his carriage, hooting and throwing stones. The windows of the carriage were smashed by the flying missiles. Senora Canovas who accompanied her husband, was struck by a stone, but was not seriously injured.

Subsequently an attack was made on The Epoca newspaper office and every window in the building was broken with stones.

Prosper Embezzlers to Canada.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Local Government Board's report shows that only 611 pauper children emigrated to Canada last year, as a case to the lower rates of $1.62. The board only subsidized 350 other poor persons to go to the colonies and the United States during the year.

The Times says that in future, as in the past, our paupers will probably be sent to Canada, as the cost of the outfitting and other charges will absorb them received no consideration from anything in this or previous reports.

Mr. Dewdney.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPY OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,873,777.00, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,207,000.00 insured under 1,840 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,980 for $14,081,377.00.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,221.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $695,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,600 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in Income.	Gain in Assets.	Gain in Insurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$169,482 69	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	26,580 67	195,186 29	1,167,886 14
1880 to 1884, four years	126,976 64	262,264 21	2,662,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,481 80	475,977 24	4,020,373 65
Total in 1887	$425,831 54	$1,729,664 46	$9,000,873,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

THE ROCHESTER FIRE.

Twenty-one Men Missing and Supposed to be Dead in the Ruins.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 11.—Friday evening's fire was the worst that ever occurred in this city. At least twelve lives were lost and twenty persons injured. The pecuniary loss will amount to $800,000. The alarm was sounded at 7.30, and the department was soon at the scene. At that time little fire could be seen from the outside. The building was approachable only on one side, and the firemen had only a narrow alley to work in. The building stood on the e qe of the upper falls of the Genesee River. These falls are ninety-six feet high. When the firemen arrived the windows on the street side of the building were filled with men calling for help. There were sixty-five men inside. Firemen answered them telling them not to jump after they would soon be rescued. The men paid no attention to the encouraging cries, and soon the air was filled with falling human bodies. At least twenty men jumped from the third story. All of them were more or less injured. They were at once taken to hospitals. Four of them died of injuries before they could be removed.

There are twenty-one missing men. It is supposed that all the missing are dead and in the ruins. Three more bodies have been taken from the ruins of the lantern works building. They were burned to a crisp so that it was impossible to recognize them.

The Union and Advertiser started a subscription list for the benefit of the fire sufferers with $100. In an hour $1200 had been subscribed. The Republicans who intended having a parade in honor of Harrison have decided not to have it, but to donate the amount such a celebration would cost to the sufferers. Several men who won on the election have offered half their winnings for the benefit of the injured and the families of the dead.

Perished in a Burning Dwelling.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Frederick Knas, a laborer, his wife and his year-old daughter Anna perished in their burning dwelling at Vernon Centre at 1 o'clock this morning.

Several Persons Injured at this Fire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A fire in the manufactory of Cornell, Bingham & Co., paper men in Mission Place, yesterday morning, caused a damage to that firm of $20,000. Messrs. Benedict & Valentine, bookbinders and printers, sustained a loss of $25,000, while the building was damaged to the extent of $3000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

As the fire was in a thickly populated district three alarms were sent out. These brought the reserves from the Mulberry and Elizabeth street police stations. There was a regular stampede on the part of the employes in the burning building. In the mad rush for the street, several were injured. Among those sent to the Chambers-street Hospital, were William Tracey, suffering from severe contusions on the neck and leg; John Porter, severe scalp wounds; Frank McKee, scalp wounds; Timothy King, fractured arm; William Meyers, fractured arm. Philip Meisberg, a printer, jumped from one of the windows. He sustained a broken leg and a severe scalp wound.

SLAVE TRADING MUST STOP.

The African Agreement—Bismarck Joins in to Pacify the Vatican.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The chief event of the week in the African agreement among the powers. For the past half century English men-of-war have carried on a military and almost fruitless struggle against slave trading off the African coast. Suddenly all has changed; the leading powers have been found to be willing to co-operate. The reasons for the change are not far to seek. Several circumstances combined to bring it about, but without doubt the leading factor, next to the attacks upon the German colonies, was the interest thereof the Pope has displayed in the abolition of slavery. As in the Caroline affair, Prince Bismarck has again seized the occasion, without cost to himself, to conciliate and satisfy the Pope and thereby purchase the good will of the German Catholics. Cardinal Lavigerie's eloquent European campaign has already proved fruitful. Count Kalnoky has intimated his readiness to send a man-of-war to assist in the blockade, and other powers, including Russia and Greece, are disposed to co-operate. A Mozambique dispatch announces the departure of the Italian cruiser Dogali for Zanzibar. The agreement with England gives great satisfaction here, but it is thought that some territorial action is also required.

The Kaiser's strictures on the Liberal press continue to be discussed. An important outcome of the affair was its effect on the Freisinnnare party in the Landtag elections, their loss amounting to one-fourth of their whole number.

Count Von Seckendorff accompanies the Empress Frederick to London as equery. It is said to be a probability, however, that the visit will be again postponed.

The rumor that the Kaiser had assented to the betrothal of his sister to Prince Alexander of Battenberg is semi-officially denied.

The Political Correspondence of Vienna denies the statement that the Emperor of Austria under medical advice is going on a sea voyage to India or America.

THE UMBRIA IN COLLISION.

The Queen of Ocean Racers Cuts off the Iberia's Stern.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—That Queen of ocean racers, the Cunarder Umbria, collided with the Fabre line steamer Iberia about four miles off Long Beach Hotel just beyond Rockaway Saturday afternoon at 1.10 o'clock. The Iberia was badly damaged, having her whole stern cut off. The Umbria, after taking off the crew of 30 men from the disabled vessel and lying by all night, came up to her dock this morning for repairs. When she left the Iberia, the latter was sinking badly at the stern and it looked as if she would go to the bottom before long.

As to the Umbria, she was but slightly injured and came back to her dock merely as a precautionary measure. All the marks she bore of the ugly wound she gave the Iberia were queer triangular ragged-edged nicks in her collision bulkhead, in its largest dimension also sixty-three feet. The hole is just aft of the extreme bow and at its lowest point about five feet above the water line. This is on the starboard line. A small hole through which a swabber might fly was also punched in the plate on the port side directly opposite. The hole appeared to have been made by the revolving screw of the Iberia.

Death of John L. Bush.

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 11.—John L. Bush of Clinton Place, Niagara Falls, Ont., one of the most respected citizens of the Niagara peninsular, died at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the 70th year of his age. He caught a cold three days ago which turned into pneumonia. He was owner of the Clifton House, which he purchased with the "Zimmerman" property at the time of that gentleman's bankruptcy. Mr. Bush came from New York State and always retained American citizenship. He had been in the New York State Assembly.

A Sure Remedy for Neuralgia.

Neuralgia is one of the most common and painful affections incidental to the climate. Life to thousands is made miserable through its agency, and as it affects the nerves, only the most powerful and penetrating remedies can reach it. To all suffering from any kind of nerve pain, internal or external, we recommend a trial for Norviline. Sold by all druggists and all dealers in medicines, 10 and 25 cents a bottle. 64w45

He gave some Yellow Oil internally and applied it externally, and cured him. It also cured my husband of Rheumatism, and I find it valuable for coughs and colds, sore throat, etc." Mrs. A. LOCAL NEWS.

The Weather.

Fresh to strong west and south-west winds; fair and a little higher temperature.

The Dickson Siding.

Grading has been begun on Dickson street for the spur line to the mills. The track will run along the outer edge of the street close to the factories. Work is still progressing on the grading of the island embankment, and, from all appearances, it must be near completion. The next move will be to build the trestle work at the lower end.

SEE THE Branching Out.

Mr. J. J. Turner's tent, awning and sail business is flourishing greatly, but he is like a lady in the matter of dresses—the more he has the more he wants. He is arranging to expand his business, and with this end in view he has placed a travelling agent on the road, who starts out on his first trip this morning. Mr. Turner is a live business man and it is to be hoped that his new venture will be a most remunerative one.

Local Saw Mill Machinery.

The Monetary Times says:—The News Advertiser announces a new lumbering firm in Vancouver, viz., Anderson & Grady, composed of John Anderson, late of Pembroke, and Mr. C. Grady, of the first named place. They intend to erect a new mill on the Inlet, with a capacity from 70 to 80 thousand feet of lumber per day; the machinery for it, made by the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., Peterborough, is on the way.

McCIBNEY FAMILY

Saturday Night.

The Saturday night entertainment held by the "Y" was well attended, as usual. Refreshments were dispensed by the ladies, and a short programme was rendered. Mr. A. Clegg contributed an admirable reading; Miss E. Hall an instrumental solo, and the Y.M.C.A. band a couple of selections.

Obituary.

The death is recorded, with regret, of Mr. Michael H. Moher, of Eanismore, son of Mr. Wm. Moher, Douro. Last Sunday, Nov. 4th, Mr. Moher walked about two miles to church. On his way home he felt ill and a chill succeeded. His illness continued during the week, and in spite of the exertions of four medical men, ended in death Monday morning at 2 o'clock. The deceased leaves behind him a wife and two children. Four years ago he married the eldest daughter of Mr. Michael Crough, of Eanismore. The EXAMINER joins the community at large in sympathy for the bereaved families.

TWO NIGHTS ONLY

To the Boys for Nothing.

If a pair of boy's boot cost $1.25 (King's make) and were 12 months, how much ought the shoddy man to get for a pair of shoddy boots that wears out in 17 days? The first boys who brings me the above question correctly worked out by himself, and can wear No. 2 boots (or smaller) will receive a pair of King's boots for nothing.

Be Careful of Your Eyes.

Persons who feel their sight failing and need artificial aids to sight, should not forget that Mr. P. H. Morris, a skilful optician and oculist, representing B. Laurance & Co., the celebrated spectacle makers, will be at Mr. John McKee's Drug store, 368 George street, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Nov. 20th, 21st, and 22nd. Mr. Morris will cheerfully select and fit to the requirement of the eye, all who will call on the above dates. It requires a skilled man to select glasses that will aid, without injuring the sight. dw

FRIDAY & SATURDAY

Opening of the Week of Prayer.

The first of the series of meetings of the Y.M.C.A. week of prayer was held last night. It was addressed by Rev. E. F. Torrance, who took for his subject, "Have you seen Jesus?" In his address he took up some of the answers that might be made by persons then in the congregation to this question. His appeal to the backslider was especially touching, and, taken altogether, this, the first of the series, augurs well for the success of the remainder of the meetings. This evening the meeting will be addressed by Rev. M. L. Pearson, who will take for his subject: "Curious—Serious—Saved," from Luke xix., 1-10. It is hoped that the workers will be encouraged by an increasing attendance at their meetings.

NOV. 16 & 17.

Yesterday's Educational Sermons.

Yesterday in the Methodist churches, Rev. Dr. Potts and Rev. Dr. Barwash preached educational sermons, and no better practical enforcement of their general subject—the necessity of an educated ministry—could be presented than the force, vigour and eloquence of their respective addresses. No two illiterate men, be they possessors of never so many and prized graces of Christian character, could have so presented the truth, could have so worked up the enthusiasm of their hearers, and so stimulated liberality on behalf of the cause of Methodist higher education. Dr. Potts, from his intimate association with the subject, from his intimate knowledge of it, from his intense zeal and earnestness in the cause, was particularly impressive. And his presentation of the necessity of education, his eloquent tribute to the pre-eminent merit of the public school system of Ontario over any other on the face of the earth, were most convincing. The epigrammatic illustration that an uneducated quack could no more practice the art of healing than a pulpit quack could preach the gospel, pricked the root of the matter. The necessities of the age demanded an educated ministry. The missionary to Japan had to encounter educated, cultured, shrewd men, and, aside from his divine commission, he must be intellectually armed cap-a-pie, not only to enable him to acquire the language readily, but to be able to cross swords successfully with the brightest of pagan intellects. And he is right. St. Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles, apart from his zeal and stalwart spirituality, owed much of his success to the fact of his being an educated and cultured Christian gentleman. He could cope with the keenest champions of the intellectual polytheism of Greece and Rome and hold his own before kings and princes. The minister of to-day is an apostle to the Gentiles, and has to do battle with the giant intellectualism of the age which arrays itself against the gospel. The Methodist Church is pretty well alive to the importance and necessity of an educated ministry, and what is lacking in popular appreciation on the subject will be supplied before men like Dr. Barwash and Dr. Potts have done with the work. Men like these are unanswerable arguments in favour of an educated ministry, and may be justly regarded as "pillars of the church." The mission of Methodism will approximate the more nearly to fulfillment the more fully it recognizes the fact of the indispensable importance of a ministry, educated of mind as well as holy of heart and life, and the more closely it binds its sympathies and interests with our national system of education. There, can of course, be no sympathy between the church and the world, but there can and must be between the church and the people, and that denomination will best fulfil its mission that cultivates this sympathy in the fullest and broadest spirit.

Church Chimes.

The Federation mass meeting announced for this evening in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church has been declared off, pressing business compelling Dr. Potts to be elsewhere this evening. The meeting has been postponed till another date.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock a district convention began in the George Street Church, at which the clergymen and officers of the two Methodist churches assembled for the purpose of discussing the Federation scheme.

At St. Andrew's Church last night a special sermon to young men was preached by Rev. A. Bell. It was intended, by request of the Y.M.C.A., to have young men's sermons preached in all the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches of the town on Sunday, but, owing to the engagement of Rev. Doctors Potts and Barwash, they were postponed for a week, except at St. Andrew's.

Next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, at 11 a. m., union thanksgiving services will be held in the George Street Church, at which suitable addresses will be delivered by the pastors of the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist churches. The choirs of the churches interested will unite on this occasion and render special music.

Sunday evening, at the George street church, Mr. Huestis, of Toronto, sang a solo. Mr. W. H. Dingle presided once more at the organ, and his many friends were pleased to see him around again.

Rev. C. S. Lord, late of Bermuda, was inducted on Friday into the pastoral charge of the Presbyterian congregations of Grafton and Vernonville.

Bishop Dowling lectures in St. Peter's Cathedral next Sunday evening on "The Church and the Bible." On Thursday, Nov. 22, the same lecture will be delivered in St. Mary's Church, Port Hope.

The services in the Mark street Methodist church, Ashburnham, Sunday were unusually successful and the congregations full. In the evening, after a sermon to young men, based on Dan. i., 8, the pastor held a prayer meeting, and invited those who were seeking the pardon of sins to come to the front. Four young persons responded and came out on the Lord's side, two more held up their hands as expressing their determination to seek the Saviour. The pastor stated that God had given them a cloud as "large as a man's hand," the precursor of an abundant rain.

The gifts of the Methodist people to the Educational Society Sunday were about double the amount they gave last year. At the George street church the collections amounted to $125 and in the Charlotte street church, about $100—the amount asked for by Dr. Potts.

Interesting Souvenir.

Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, of China Hall, has "something new" to show his customers. This is a set of souvenir china cups and saucers, each bearing a copper-plate print of public buildings in Peterborough, comprising views of St. John's, St. Paul's, St. Andrew's, St. Peter's and the George street Methodist churches, the Court House Park and China Hall. Photographs of these places taken by Mr. G. B. Sproule were sent to Germany and there printed on the cups by the makers. The views are all clear and accurate, and make the cups and saucers interesting souvenirs. In order to make them cheap as possible, Mr. Wilson ordered 100 dozen. He informed the EXAMINER this morning that they were "taking like hot cakes" among his patrons.

Arrested for House-Breaking

A Resident of Harvey in the Gaol for Ransacking a Lodge on Pigeon Lake.

On the 3rd of October Mr. W. H. Clarton's lodge on Pigeon Lake was broken into and the contents nearly all carried off. Last Thursday a detective, who had been engaged to ferret out the guilty party, went up to the scene of the burglary, and as a result of his investigations, Thos. Shouldice, a resident of Harvey in the vicinity of the lodge, was this morning arrested and brought to town, charged with house-breaking. He was placed in gaol for about an hour until Police Magistrate Edmison arranged a time for hearing. About twelve o'clock Shouldice was brought before the magistrate and remanded for a week, for the purpose of enabling the Crown to get necessary witnesses at the trial. Mr. Clarton, at the time of the burglary, offered a reward of $50 for the conviction of the guilty party.

An Explanation.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

Sir,—I notice in your issue of the 10th inst., you say that I represented the Knights of Labor at the meeting held on behalf of the Land League. I beg to say I was not there as a representative of that Order but simply as a member of the League, and the views I expressed were my own and not those of the K. of L. By publication of the foregoing you will greatly oblige,

Yours truly,
GEO. BALL.

Nov. 12th, 1888.

[Mr. Ball's explanation is cheerfully given. The reporter of the EXAMINER was, on the occasion referred to, absent at another meeting, and secured the information published from a gentleman prominently connected with the meeting, who was credited with being able to supply a correct version of the proceedings.—ED. EXAMINER.]

The Meanest Man On Earth.

An exchange unbosoms its pent-up indignation in this feeling manner: A man living in the country who owes nearly four years' subscription, put his paper back in the post office last week and marked it "refused." We have heard of many mean men—there is one man who used the wart on his neck for a collar button, and one who pastured a goat on his grandmother's grave, the one who stole the coppers from the dead man's eyes, the one who got rich by giving his children a nickle each to go to bed without their supper, and then stealing the nickles after the children were asleep—but for pure, downright cussedness, the man who will take a paper for four years, mark it "refused" and then stick it back in the post office, is entitled to the first premium. Please send us your picture—we want to stick it up in the office to keep the mice from eating the paste.

DRESS-MAKING.

In our Dress Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

FLANNELS and UNDERWEAR

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

Therefore, about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in his employ ever since commencing business — will be taken into the Firm, and become an Active Partner of the same.

The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-Made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about HALF their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

THE NEWSPAPER CHARGES

FIRST SESSION OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION AT WINNIPEG.

A Reference Back to the Legislature Asked for Enlarged Scope of the Commission—Evidence to be Taken To-day.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—The first sitting of the Royal Commission to enquire into the newspaper charges against the members of the Government was held yesterday.

Counsel for The Free Press and The Call asked a reference back to the Legislature for enlarged scope on the commission so as to include all the charges made, and intimated that if it was not allowed the matter might be dropped.

Attorney-General Martin claimed that the principal charges were mentioned in the commission and the newspapers wanted to bring in extraneous and irrelevant matter.

Judge Killam adjourned the session till to-day when evidence will be taken.

A REPENTANT DEFAULTER.

Ex-Treasurer Axworthy of Cleveland Explains His Case.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—Thomas Axworthy, the defaulting city treasurer of Cleveland, who left here $430,000 "short" in his accounts and with $150,000 of other people's money, has written Mayor Babcock a letter. It was sent from Montreal on Oct. 29, and when the mayor received it he hastened to Montreal in order to have an interview with Axworthy. He remained there a week, and returned to Cleveland without having seen his man. Yesterday afternoon the mayor gave the newspapers a copy of the letter. It reads:

"There has, no doubt, been considerable comment concerning my absence. I arrived here sometime since. I should have written before, but could not summon the courage to do so. I shall have to remain in some part of the Dominion for perhaps all the time, for the following reasons: I went east about Oct. 1 for the purpose of collecting large sums loaned by me on call, from time to time during the last four years, at the suggestion of prominent Cleveland parties. I had been receiving the interest regularly, but greatly to my surprise and horror, when I demanded the principal, I was answered: "We cannot pay it: in fact it would have been impossible for us to have done so within four months after we had made the loans, etc. In fact investigation showed such to be the case, although I supposed the parties to be worth millions. I need not dwell on this matter. In fact I cannot. It is too horrible for me to think or write about. You will know from the position I occupied in your community how my situation must affect me or any other man that has always been strictly honest to the letter thus overwhelmed by circumstances which, when too late, he finds he cannot control. There was a combination to ruin me and it has succeeded. I am properly and deservedly, perhaps, the sufferer and an exile I am not writing you, however, in extenuation of criminal carelessness and consequent misery, but writing you as the executive of the City of Cleveland to advise you that as far as in my power lies I desire to make amends by turning over my entire property, real and personal, for the benefit of the city or my bondsmen. An action in the proper court will, I think, make this entirely legal. Below I give in full my entire belongings, to which I waive all right and title, and I will write my wife asking her to quit claim to all the real estate belonging to me in my name for a nominal consideration. My stocks, deeds, bills of sale, etc., are in box 64, National Bank of Commerce. Goodbye, God bless the City of Cleveland and you all, is the earnest prayer of

"THOMAS AXWORTHY."

Mayor Babcock will probably make another trip to Montreal in the hope of having a personal interview with the defaulter.

"RECONSTRUCTED."

What the Canaries Have Been Singing About the New Ministerial Timber.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—The World says this morning: That the Ontario Cabinet will shortly be "reconstructed" about one hundred little canaries continue to sing to young men of The World. It is now definitely known that poor Mr. Pardee will never take his seat again among the ministers. It is understood that all hopes of his recovery are given up, and his death may occur at any moment, so serious is his condition said to be.

Col. J. M. Gibson of Hamilton will undoubtedly be taken in, and the "reconstructed" Cabinet should be something like this:

Premier and Attorney-General—Hon. Oliver Mowat.

Commissioner of Crown Lands—Hon. A. S. Hardy.

Commissioner of Public Works—Hon. C. F. Fraser.

Provincial Treasurer Hon. A. M. Ross.

Minister of Education Hon. G. W. Ross.

Minister of Agriculture— Hon. Charles Drury.

Provincial Secretary—Col. J. M. Gibson, Hamilton.

The canaries who sang The World this information also sing that they will wager dollars to doughnuts that they sing correctly.

THE RIPPER'S LATEST VICTIM.

Gen. Sir Charles Warren's Resignation Announced in the Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 13. Gen. Sir Charles Warren, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, has tendered his resignation. It is understood this action is due to the severe criticism that has been made on his efficiency recently in connection with the Whitechapel murder.

In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Mr. Matthews, the Home Secretary, announced Gen. Warren's resignation. The announcement was greeted with cheers.

A Ghastly Spectacle.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—John McCarthy, the landlord of Lizzie Fisher, the Whitechapel monster's latest victim, thus describes the hideous spectacle which met his gaze last Friday in the murdered woman's room:

"When I looked through the window the sight I saw was more ghastly than I had prepared myself for. On the bed lay the body, while the table was covered with lumps of flesh. Soon Superintendent Arnold arrived, and instructions to break the door open were given. I at once forced it with a pickaxe and we entered. The sight looked like the work of a devil. The poor woman had been completely disemboweled. Her entrails were cut out and placed on a table. It was these I had taken to be lumps of flesh. The woman's nose had been cut off and her face was gashed and mutilated so that she was quite beyond recognition. Both her breasts, too, had been cut clean away and placed by her side. Her liver and other organs were on the table. I had heard a great deal about the Whitechapel murders, but I had never expected to see such a sight. The body was covered with blood and so was the bed. The whole scene is more than I can describe. I hope I may never see such a sight again."

The man with whom the victim has been recently living could not really recognize her, but of course, the surrounding clothes, etc., indentify her. She leaves a natural son, aged 10, who was absent with a neighbor at the time of the murder and knows nothing of the occurrence.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

THE ACTION OF THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT APPROVED.

Favorable Comments of the Press of the Capital—Increase in the Export Duty on Pine Saw-Logs.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The action of the Dominion Government in inviting the Australian colonies to send delegates here to a conference with a view to the establishment of closer trade relations and to the laying of a cable under the Pacific to connect Canada and Australia, meets with general approval here and all the papers have favorable comments. The Citizen says: "The importance of this step cannot be overestimated in view of the fact that both of the self-governments and the crown colonies of Australia are progressing very rapidly."

The Free Press thinks that "no harm can come out of such a conference. The establishment of direct cable communication between Canada and Australia is highly desirable," but questions whether any great amount of trade can be developed on account of the similarity of the products of Canada and Australia.

The Journal gives the proposal very hearty support. In the course of its remarks it says: "We congratulate the Dominion ministers on their report. It is a good time to approach our sister colonies with a view to closer relations. We are pushed back by our neighbors on the south with bitterness and contumely. We must look elsewhere for fair treatment and fair trade, and where else can we look better than to the kindred nations beneath the Union Jack?"

It is understood that an order-in-council has been passed increasing the export duty on pine saw-logs from $2 to $3.

No decision has yet been arrived at in the matter of the tenders for the lock at Sault Ste. Marie. The story that the work has been awarded to an American firm is wholly without foundation. Messrs. Hugh and John Ryan are said to be amongst the lowest tenderers and may secure the contract, but the matter will not be decided until this afternoon.

Application will be made to the Minister of Agriculture to-day by the Royal Electric Company of Boston for a cancellation of the patents held by the Edison Electric Light Company of Montreal on the ground that the Canadian patent laws have not been complied with, inasmuch as the articles patented have not been manufactured in Canada within two years of the granting of the patents as required by the act.

Commander Smith, R. N., the new chairman of the Board of Masters and Mates, has just concluded his first examination at Quebec in that capacity. It is believed that he will go once more to England before taking up his residence in Canada.

About forty laborers left last night for Mattawa, from whence they will go about thirty miles farther up the Ottawa by water and be kept at work all winter on the Lake Temiscaming Railway.

Rev. Wm. Walsh, late incumbent of the Reformed Episcopalian Church in this city, made his first appearance as an Anglican minister yesterday in St. Paul's Church at Rochesterville.

DEATH OF LIEUT.-COL. ROSS.

He Passes Away at Picton in His 71st Year—Sketch of His Life.

PICTON, Nov. 13.—Lieut.-Colonel Ross, ex-M.P., died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

[Lieut.-Col. Ross represented Prince Edward county in the Federal Parliament from 1863 to 1878. In 1862 he and Mr. Beg, now Lieut.-Col. Beg, organized the 16th Batt. and he was at once appointed Colonel and retained the command up to 1883, when he resigned. He was mayor of Picton from 1860 to 1864, and again in '85 and '86. In politics he was a Liberal. Col. Ross was in his 71st year and leaves a wife and four children, two sons—W. T. Ross, Collector of Customs at Picton, and Fred Ross of Chicago, and two daughters—Mrs. Gilmore of Chicago, and Mrs. G. A. Simpson of Brandon, Man.]

ENTERPRISING SYNDICATES.

To Furnish Electric Lighting and Power for the City of Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—R. McLennan, representing a Toronto syndicate; James Conmee of Port Arthur, representing a western syndicate; R. R. Thomas, representing a Montreal syndicate; James Leggatt, representing English capital, and D. Barr, representing a New York company, have purchased Isle au Herron in the Lachine rapids for the purpose of developing the water power and for furnishing electric power and lighting for the city. The building of the necessary dams, bridges, etc., will be commenced immediately. The improvements will cost about $500,000.

Hungary's Debt Conversion Scheme.

PESTH, Nov. 13.—In the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet yesterday, Prime Minister Tisza, replying to criticisms of the proposed scheme for the conversion of Hungarian loans, contended that the scheme fulfilled the general desire for the abolition of the present method of redemption and would effect a saving of 1,500,000 florins in 1891. The group of bankers which had undertaken to handle the new bonds would not have offered their services had they not been convinced that great confidence was felt abroad in the condition of Hungarian finances, "and I am confident," continued Herr Tisza, "that unless a great revolution of events occurs the finances of the country will become in so favorable a condition as to permit a more satisfactory conversion to be affected ten and fifteen years hence."

A Petrolia Firebug Confesses.

PETROLIA, Nov. 13.—On Saturday morning at 11 o'clock fire broke out in Dr. Loughead's barn. The flames were confined to the barn and after about an hour's hard work extinguished. Harry Bellingbroke, a discharged employe of the doctor's, was arrested four hours later on suspicion of having started the blaze. He made a full confession and said that he did it to get even with Dr. Loughead for discharging him. Yesterday Bellingbroke was committed for trial.

Two Young Kingstonians Missing.

KINGSTON, Nov. 13.—On Saturday two sons of Rev. Mr. Burns, Lionel, aged 20, and Victor, aged 16, started off in a canoe on a shooting excursion. Not having returned home Saturday night, a search was instituted on Sunday afternoon. Their boat was found on Point Frederick, but no tidings of either of the young men was obtained. It is feared they are drowned.

Customs Protest Rates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Erie Railroad makes on its differential rate pool yesterday put in force rates from New York and Chicago ranging from 65c. to 15c., or from 2c. to 1c. per 100 pounds below the New York Central rate. Advices from Philadelphia state that the Pennsylvania road has met the cuts and issued a reduced schedule.

14 Dead and 18 Missing.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 13.—Two more bodies were recovered from the steam gauge and lantern works ruins yesterday, which makes 14 surely dead and 18 missing.

Ex-Queen Natalie has purchased an estate at Kalusz, Warsaw, for 1,800,000 roubles.

The twenty coal miners who were supposed to have been drowned in the flooded Salgotarjan coal mine in Hungary were rescued.

OLD SCHOOL DEBENTURES.

Mr. Davidson Makes an Explanation.

The Town Trust Commissioners' Position in the Matter — The Pigeon Creek Bridge to be Re-opened—A Mass of Petitions and Accounts Disposed of by the Town Council—All Old Scores to be Cleaned Up.

At the council meeting Monday night there were present: Mayor Stevenson and Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Winch, Kelly, E. H. D. Hall, A. Hall, Yelland, Moore, Douglass, Langford and Hartley.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Pope, Street Inspector, to whom the question of opening up the post office drain was referred, reported that the drain had a sufficient fall.—Received.

Messrs. Hall & Hayes, solicitors, notified the town that the corporation must cease taking gravel off the bridge works property or be prosecuted. The Street Inspector was instructed to take no more of the gravel objected to.

Mr. E. Pearse, County Treasurer, forwarded the minutes of the meeting of the joint committee of the town and county councils for the taking over of the locks bridge.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. J. G. Macklin, Chief Engineer of the G.T.R., stated that the railway crossing on Smith and Benson streets was being repaired according to requirements.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Messrs. Edmison & Dixon, solicitors, on behalf of Mr. W. H. Manning, applied to have a proper grade of McDonel street struck at once for the benefit of persons building houses.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

THE TOWN CLOCK.

Mr. H. Calcutt's facetious application for the purchase of the eastern dial of the town clock (published in the EXAMINER some time ago) was read.

Mr. R. W. Muncaster, caretaker of the town clock, explained that the uselessness of the east dial was due to the wire screen which was broken in and caught the hands, and until the screen was removed or repaired the eastern face would be useless.

On motion the matter was referred to the Property Committee with power to act.

Mr. E. A. Peck, solicitor, on behalf of John Adlum, asked the town council what they intended to do regarding the application of Mr. John Adlum, who had been disabled by the action of a constable. A statement of Mr. Adlum's claims appeared in the EXAMINER some time ago. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

A communication was read from the County Clerk stating that the Pigeon Creek bridge was closed.

This led to a discussion. The Mayor said that the Warden of the county had told him it could be repaired for about $300 and the county was willing to stand half the expense if the town did likewise.

The matter was then dropped and taken up later on.

PETITIONS.

Mr. John McNaughton and others applied to have the water mains on Sherbrooke street extended to Stewart street and a hydrant placed at the corner of Sherbrooke and Bethune streets.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. John Kelly, Rev. E. F. Torrance and a number of residents in the vicinity asked for the removal of the electric light from the junction of Reid, Sherbrooke and Park streets to the corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke streets.

Mr. Cahill moved that the matter be referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee with power to add another light on the corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke streets. He thought that another light should be granted on Rubidge street.

Mr. John Kelly was given a hearing, and on motion the matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report.

Mrs. Payne's application for remission of dog tax was granted on her taking the necessary affidavit.

Mr. T. Dolan and others applied for a hydrant on Brock street between George and Aylmer streets.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. W. Brandrette and 15 others asked for a hydrant on the corner of Bethune and King streets.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. E. Pearse asked remission of the taxes on the lot on the corner of George and Dalhousie streets.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mrs. Margaret Bird, Wm. Bogan, Mrs. Margaret Plunket, the Y.M.C.A. and the Barnardo Home, all made application for remission from taxes. These were all referred to the Finance Committee.

Edward Satterby asked for a remission of a portion of his butcher's license.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Wm. Breckenridge asked for a sidewalk on the west end of Chamberlain street.—Granted.

THREATENED ACTION.

The MAYOR stated that he had received a letter from Mr. D. Gamble's solicitor, threatening the town with action if the railway crossing on Smith street was not properly fixed.

Mr. HARTLEY explained that Mr. Gamble objected to the railway company building a high sidewalk on posts instead of filling in as they should do.

The matter was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

APPLIED FOR EXEMPTION.

Mr. Geo. Hilliard personally urged his application, made some time ago, for the exemption from taxation of the Blythe woollen mills.

After he had laid his case before the council, Mr. Hilliard was asked to meet and confer with the Finance Committee on the matter.

A WATERWORKS COMPLAINT.

Messrs. T. Hay, Mitchell, Foote and Irwin brought before the council a complaint regarding the waterworks. They maintained that the Water Company had not fulfilled provisions on McDonnel street, but had extended their mains only half way from George to Aylmer street, and had placed the hydrant in the middle of the block. The ratepayers below the hydrant were unjustly held liable by the Water Company to pay special water rates when they were not receiving any benefit.

On motion, the matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

FINANCIAL.

Mr. Davidson presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending payment of the following accounts:—J. K. Belcher, $100; Lewis & Redman, $1.50; R. H. Smith, $100; John Doherty, $3; John McKee, $2; S. W. English, $12.95; G. N. W. Tel Co., $1.75 and $6.64; C. P. R. Tel. Co., $3.49; A. McDonald, $234.86.

The report was adopted.

ANOTHER BRIDGE.

Mr. Langford read the following report:

To the Mayor and Council:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee would recommend that a bridge and approaches be built on Townsend street at and over the creek; the cost of same not to exceed $400; and that Your Committee have power to proceed with the work at once.

In reference to the drain on the west side of Park street, from Weller street to the creek, Your Committee would not advise the doing of it this year, owing to the lateness of the season, but would favorably recommend it to the council of next year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

Mr. LANGFORD, in answer to Mr. Moore, explained that the bridge was between the C.P.R. track and Spaulding's bay, and would help fill up the bay.

Messrs. Moore, Hartley, Douglass and Yelland objected on the ground that it was too late in the season, and that it was a useless expense, but the report was adopted.

WATER AND CHARITY.

Mr. A. Hall, chairman, read the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, recommending that the petitions of E. C. Hill and others, and A. P. Pousette and others, asking for extensions of water mains on Brock and Park streets, be granted; and that the placing of the hydrants be left to the council of 1889.

Mr. Hall also presented the report of the Charity Committe, showing expenditures for August, September and October of $80 55, divided as follows:—No. 1 Ward, $9 00; No. 2 Ward, $35.55; No. 4 Ward, $36.00; No. 3 Ward had not yet reported.

The report was adopted.

MOTIONS.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. E. H. D. Hall, that the Fire Water and Light committee consider the advisability of placing an electric light at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets, and report to the council.—Carried.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, that John Newtons' taxes be remitted.—Carried.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, that the Street Inspector be instructed to put down a crossing on Water street at Smith street.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Street Inspector be instructed to put down a sidewalk on the south side of Wrecott street in front of some new houses recently built.

Mr. KELLY didn't think this sidewalk was needed as much as some others, but Mr. Cahill made an appeal for fair treatment of citizens in the suburbs, who were enterprising enough to build houses. Mr. Hartley and Mr. Douglass supported Mr. Cahill, but Mr. Kelly's motion to refer the matter to the Street and Bridge Committee was carried.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, that a sidewalk be put down on Cemetery street as far as Mr. Tangney's house.—Referred to the Committee.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall moved, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that the Inspector be instructed to put a railing along the crib work of Crescent street. Mr. Hall said that the place was a dangerous one and if the railing was not put up the town might soon be saddled with an action for damages. The motion was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr Douglass called attention to a dangerous place on Rubidge street, at the creek, where he thought a protecting railing should be put up.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Winch, that the taxes on the Y.M.C.A. rooms be remitted, less the school tax.—Carried.

NIGHT NOMINATIONS.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Yelland, that the town clerk direct the town solicitor to prepare a by-law for holding a meeting of the ratepayers of the town at the old music hall on the market square at 7.30 o'clock on the evening of the proper day therefor, for the nomination of Mayor and councillors for the several wards of the town, under sec. 10 of the Municipal Amendment Act of 1888.

Mr. Moore and others thought that if the nominations for the whole town could be held together in the evening, as he believed the statute provided, it would give the ratepayers a chance to come together and hear the opinions of the nominees, and besides it would effect a saving in the election expenses.

Messrs. Hartley, Langford and Douglass thought the union nomination meeting would only create confusion and cause an all night talk for no purpose. Mr. E. H. D. Hall contended also that each ward representative would only care to appear before his own constituents.

The motion was lost, and Mr. Moore demanding the yeas and nays they were taken as follows:—Yeas — Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, A. Hall, Yelland and Moore;—5; nays—Messrs. Winch, Kelly, E. H. D. Hall, Douglass, Langford and Hartley.—6.

CLEARING UP OLD SCORES.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Street Inspector be instructed to put down the sidewalks reported upon by the Street and Bridge Committee and passed by the council before putting down any others.

There was some discussion but finally this motion passed.

THOSE SCHOOL DEBENTURES.

Mr. R. S. DAVIDSON said he had an explanation to make to the council relating to the old school debentures. A few months ago there was an idea prevalent among the members of the school board that there were school debentures amounting to $30,000, which should have been paid off some years ago; but the fact was there were no school debentures. In order to get at the facts of the case, Mr. Davidson said, he had gone to the office of Mr. Pearse, Secretary of the Commissioners of the Town Trust, and got the information. They went back as far as 1873, and got the auditors' report, which he read as follows:—

In November, 1873, your auditors and treasurer, in their special report on the school debt, arrived at the conclusion that the then debenture debt on the school was $19,400, represented by debentures falling due as follows:—$3,000 in the year 1875, $1,600 in 1876, $1,600 in 1877, $2,000 in 1878, $2,800 in 1879, $5,000 in 1880 and $3,400 in 1881. Your auditors have adjusted these several sums to debentures now outstanding, and recommend that, in order to avoid confusion in the future, the following debentures be considered and dealt with as school debentures.

At that time, Mr. DAVIDSON said, they came to the conclusion that there was $19,400 school debentures outstanding. The members of the school board said at that time the sinking fund was enough to retire these debentures, but they were renewed on short dates of five and ten years; but at that time the credit of the town was not as good as it is now, and some six per cent. debentures were sold at 82 cents. However, there was a one per cent. sinking fund at that time, which the discount on the debentures soon more than swallowed up, and new debentures were issued in batches of $6,000 and $8,000, altogether amounting to $83,000; so that at present there are $20,500 school debentures, of which about $3,000 are in the hands of the town commissioners, and he made this explanation to set the commissioners right before the public.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. James Bogue asked to be relieved of his tax for the support of the Nicholls' Hospital because he was a Roman Catholic.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. MOORE asked why it was Mr. E. Pearse, who was appointed auditor of the town's books, had not yet reported? On motion the town clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Pearse to report at once.

Mr. MOORE, on behalf of Mr. John McNaughton, called the attention of the council to the fact that certain gas lamps in the west and south ends of the town were not lighted recently.

Mr. CAHILL asked if the gas lamps outside the electric light could not be lighted at once? He further complained that some of the houses in the lower end of the town were not numbered.

Mr. John McNaughton was given a hearing. He complained that the gas lamps were begun to be put out at eleven o'clock whereas they were to be kept burning till 12 o'clock.

Mayor Stevenson promised to look into the matter.

Mr. Cahill moved that the accounts of the Times Printing Co., Mr. R. E. Wood and Mr. W. Salisbury, be paid.—Carried.

THE PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE AGAIN.

Regarding the Pigeon Creek bridge, Mr. Hartley believed it would be advisable for the town to join with the county in paying half of the expense of having the bridge repaired, as the bridge was an important thoroughfare and brought much trade to our markets. Mr. Langford agreed, and Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that the question of the repair of the Pigeon Creek bridge be referred to the Joint Committee with power to expend $75 if the county council expend a like sum on such repairs.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Winch, that the town treasurer be authorized to pay street and bridge pay sheets out of any moneys that may be in his hands belonging to the corporation; that the council indemnify him on so doing; and that the seal of the corporation be attached to this motion to give it the effect of a by-law.

There was some discussion as to the need of this money being used, which might cause a deficit. Mr. Cahill didn't expect there would be any deficit.

The motion was lost.

The council then adjourned for three weeks.

DARING AND SUFFERING.

Rev. W. J. Scott was requested by Col. G. J. Foreacre, then provost marshal in Atlanta, to visit some Federal prisoners at the city jail who were about to die. On his way Mr. Scott called on Rev. George G. N. MacDonell and asked him to go along. At the jail they were taken into the room where our comrades were. Scott says:

"They impressed me at once as a body of remarkably fine looking young men. I could but notice also their cheerfulness under such painful environments." He told them that he was the bearer of unwelcome tidings. This arrested their attention, but they were still unprepared for the blow that followed. Then Scott, with the brevity which was the best kindness, with a few questions answered, gave the full truth, every word being like an added stab, telling them that they had been found guilty at Knoxville—of being spies—that they were to die—to die by hanging—and at once! Their natural and indignant protests were waved aside as something with which the ministers had nothing to do; their only business was to help the doomed men by prayer and counsel to prepare for death, and the hour was at hand. Anxiety and even horror was in an instant depicted on every countenance. When they asked, "How soon?" he answered, "In less than two hours." This was probably a merciful overstatement. The hearts of the preachers, upon whom had been rolled the fearful task of first communicating this terrible intelligence, were very heavy. Scott adds: "They were gallant men, who would have stood unshaken in the imminent deadly breach. They were picked men, chosen for their soldiery qualities; yet in a moment every cheek blanched to the lily's whiteness. In another moment, however, they rallied and appeared firm and unflinching." Scott and MacDonell then gave them such counsel as the dying need, recited to them appropriate Scripture passages, and prayed with them.

What followed is so extraordinary that it is fully given in Mr. Scott's own language with only two remarks. The "few hours' notice" was virtually no notice at all, as, according to Mr. Scott's own words, all the time was taken up with clerical and official preparation. From the moment the awful news was communicated there was no pause save for the prayer of the minister, the reading of the sentence, the binding for the execution and the clasp of hands with friends. This was all.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL. JOHN SCOTT.
FIVE OF THE RAIDERS EXECUTED.

We had often said to each other that no matter who else might perish, Ross in some way would escape by reason of his high standing as a Mason. Probably the following narrative shows better than anything else the fearful resolution with which this deed of blood was carried through. Mr. Scott continues:

As we rose from our knees one of them—I am not sure at this late day whether Ross or Campbell—gave me a Masonic signal which craftsmen are only permitted to use in seasons of supreme peril. I recognized it instantly and took him aside and satisfied myself that he was a "son of light." No one who has never been raised from a dead level to a living perpendicular can appreciate my feelings. I said with a faltering voice:

"My brother, I will do what I can for you consistently with my obligations to the government to which I owe allegiance."

He replied: "I ask for nothing more. We are about to be executed with only a few hours' notice. We had no intimation of it until you informed us. Now, can you not prevail on the military authorities to respite us one or two days?"

I replied: "I will make an honest effort."

The other prisoners must have heard a portion of the conversation, for they seemed quite elated.

I knew that I must act promptly, so leaving brother MacDonell to talk with them, I left the cell and went down into the front prison yard where a squadron of cavalry were already drawn up. They had, I found, been waiting quietly for our appearance. Col. W. J. Lawton had on that day assumed command of the post. He was an old and highly esteemed personal friend. I told him what had transpired in the cell, and urged him to respite them at least until the next day; that to execute them on such short notice would be utterly indefensible; that he could easily cut off all possibility of escape. He was a man of generous impulses, and I saw he was greatly troubled and perplexed. He replied:

"I agree to all you say. I would most gladly afford them relief, but," he continued, "my orders are peremptory. I am required to execute them today and have not the slightest discretion. If I disobey my orders I am liable to be cashiered and disgraced."

He proposed to show me his orders, but I told him his statement was sufficient.

I was compelled to return and announce my failure. I was then asked if I would transmit some messages to their friends. I said certainly, if the military authorities would allow it. They then dictated their messages, brother MacDonell writing three in his memorandum book and I writing four in mine. There were but slight verbal differences in their messages, and the following may be taken as a sample of the whole:

"I am to suffer death this afternoon for my loyalty. I am true to the old flag and trust in God's mercy for salvation."

The name of the party and number of his regiment was attached.

The messages were not sent because of some technical objections at the war department.

Immediately after this failure to get the least respite in the inexorable orders, the officers read the sentence of the court martial, which directed the hanging of the accused "as soon as this order shall be made public:" "between the 15th and 23d days of June next."

When this cruel clause was first inserted, it was probably thought that all the band would be convicted in the same manner, and them in one terrible hour all would be swept away with no opportunity to leave any word behind! The refusal to send a harmless message to friends—a privilege that would not be denied to the most infamous criminal—agrees with this view.

ATTEMPTED WIFE MURDER

JOHN ARMSTRONG, LATELY OF PORT HOPE, SHOOTS HIS WIFE.

Two of the Bullets Take Effect in the Woman's Hand and Head—The Would-be Murderer Fatally Shot.

COURTLAND, Nov. 13.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening John Armstrong, lately from Port Hope, who parted with his wife last winter, and who has been in this vicinity for the last two weeks, entered the home of his wife at Middleton, in the County of Norfolk, and with a revolver fired three shots at her, two of them taking effect in her hand and head.

Her son, a young man by a former husband and who has been working the farm for his mother this summer, secured a shotgun which was in the house at the time and fired the contents into the head and face of Armstrong.

A neighbor, James Ronson, happened to be in the house when Armstrong came in and was a witness of the whole affair.

After Armstrong had been shot he was secured but the wound is thought to be fatal.

Mrs. Armstrong may survive her injuries.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Followed by the Suicide of the Assassin—Illinois Tragedy.

WINONA, Ill., Nov. 13.—The village is in a fever of excitement over a double murder, followed by the suicide of the assassin, yesterday morning. The victims of the brutal assassination are Peter Howe, senior member of the banking firm of A. Howe & Son of this place, and his wife, the former aged 73 and the latter 69. They lived in a large two-story frame house, the only other occupant of which was a domestic. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning as she came down stairs from her bedroom to begin her daily duties the light of the lamp, which she carried, fell through the open door of Mr. and Mrs. Howe's bedroom and revealed a ghastly sight: the walls and bedclothes were covered with blood and lying on the coverlet was a car coupling pin to which adhered hair and clotted blood.

She ran to communicate the terrible story to Mr. Irwin, Mr. Howe's son-in law. The latter at once suspected Charles Burkhart of committing the deed and a watch was placed in the rooms where he resided with his wife over a grocery store. Burkhart was observed walking up and and down the hallway apparently in great agitation. It was not long before he discovered that sentinels had been posted outside and he went into his bedroom, procured a razor, cut his throat from ear to ear and was dead inside of five minutes. His wife, who had been in the adjoining room, heard his dying moans. When she entered the room he requested her as best as he could to care for the baby.

The cause of this terrible deed is attributed to a petty spite on the part of Burkhart. The domestic in the house of the murdered couple, Sarah Richardson, a handsome girl of 19, and Burkhart's stepdaughter, was often importuned to come and live with him, but she refused to do so, and he thought the Howes were at the bottom of her objections. He, therefore, concluded to murder them.

The coroner last evening obtained a statement from the domestic, Sarah Richardson. She said that her stepfather, Brukhart the murderer, came to the house Sunday night did his fiendish work down stairs, then came to her room, told what he had done and after an attempt to ravish her left the house. She lay all night not daring to give the alarm lest he waylay and murder her. Apparently the assassin's motive aside from revenge and liquor was to enable his stepdaughter to come into possession of a sum of money promised her by the old couple provided she would stay with them during their lifetime. It would seem that the murderer had a crazy idea that with the girl once in possession of this money it would be an easy matter for him to secure it.

Brown's Time Hadn't Come.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 13.—William Brown, grocer, of Collamer Village, whose family had left him on accounts of his drinking habits, last night placed three kegs of powder in his store where they would be exploded by fire, touched a match to some inflammable material and cut his throat. Two of the kegs exploded, wrecking the building, but Brown will recover.

Last evening the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall was addressed by Rev. M. L. Pearson, who took for his subject the curiosity of Zaccheus. Ravages of the Wet Weather.

From several parts of the province comes the complaint that the wet weather is interfering with farm work. But in this vicinity there is no complaint. Not that there has been less rain here, but because Peterborough farmers are better prepared for wet weather, at least all those who wear gough bros.' prime watertight boots, which are so cheap that the poorest farmer can afford a pair, and so good that the richest farmer would not do without them for twice the money; what the same kind cost at the high price stores. For cheap boots and shoes that would discount the deluge or any other wet weather, go to gough bros., 375 george street.

The Bishop's Visit.

Last week's Fenelon Falls Gazette, says:—"On Saturday last Bishop Dowling of Peterborough, paid his visit to this part of his diocese, and he was accompanied by Rev. Father McEvay. The carriage in which they were driven from the station was preceded by the Fenelon Falls brass band, Father O'Brien having engaged it for the occasion. On Sunday morning his Lordship said Mass here, and was afterwards driven to Bobcaygeon, where he said Mass in the afternoon. Returning to the Falls, he addressed the congregation at Vespers, which were conducted by Father McClosky, of Victoria Road. On Monday the Bishop and Father McEvay returned to Lindsay, where they parted, his Lordship continuing his journey to Peterborough, and Father McEvay going to Galway in company with Father Laurent."

St. Peter's Literary Society Debate.

The second debate of St. Peter's Literary Society was held last evening in the Murray street school house. In the unavoidable absence of Dr. Brennan, president of the association, Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle occupied the chair and performed the duties of critic and judge in a highly satisfactory manner. The subject of debate was: Resolved that Robert E. Lee was a greater general than Ulysses S. Grant. Mr. C. E. Roach opened for the affirmative in a brilliant and lengthy speech, which showed that he had given it good preparation. The leader of the negative, Mr. Hackett, not being present, Mr. John O'Meara was called by the chairman to fill his place. He was followed by Dr. McGrath for the affirmative, who handled the subject in a masterly manner. After an able speech on the negative side by Mr. J. P. Sarsfield, Mr. Roach replied at length to the argument advanced by the negative side, after which the chairman proceeded to sum up the points elicited, finally deciding that the affirmative had made out their side of the case. A large number of ladies and gentlemen was present and manifested great interest in the proceedings. Several solos were rendered during the evening, and after a recitation by Mr. John O'Meara, "King Robert of Sicily," the meeting adjourned. It was decided to hold the next debate in the C.M.B.A. hall, Simcoe street, on next Monday evening. The subject for next debate is: Resolved, that a Republican form of government is preferable to a Monarchy. John O'Meara and J. D. McIlmoyle take the affirmative and Dr. McGrath and C. E. Roach the negative.

TUSSEL WITH A JAIL BIRD

Greenfield, the Burglar, Committed for Trial.

Policeman Stewart gives a Thrilling Account of his Encounter with Greenfield—Resume of the Evidence—The Prisoner Committed for Trial—He is Positively Identified by the Witnesses.

The court room was filled with a mass of tightly-packed humanity this morning, when the preliminary trial of Greenfield was held before P. M. Dumble. Mr. R. E. Wood, C. C. A., conducted the prosecution and Mr. C. W. Bawers defended the prisoner.

The charge on which Greenfield was tried was "shooting with intent to kill."

Constable STEWART, the first witness, told of his discovery of the open window in rear of Gough Bro's. store between three and four o'clock on the morning of August 31st last. He opened the blind and saw "this gentleman" (pointing to prisoner) standing near the back door in the shade. A jet of gas was burning, and prisoner on seeing the constable ran out directly under it and started down the store. The officer then shouted to him to stop, and threatened to shoot if the other did not obey. The man, however, threw himself under one of the tables of goods, and disappeared from sight, and the constable didn't see him again until he got down to the third or fourth table, when he peered over the top. Officer Stewart was then in the act of getting in through the window, and had his knees on the sill when he saw the upper part of the man's face above the table. As the officer jumped to the floor a revolver shot came from down the store and the bullet whizzed so close to his ears that he heard it hum. It struck the window frame and glanced off, and he heard the bullet fall on the floor. The burglar was then 33 feet from the constable, and as he fired he turned and ran to the door, and Stewart shot at and pursued him. The fugitive dashed straight at the plate glass door, and threw himself through it, his right shoulder breaking the glass first. As he turned his right shoulder to the glass he pointed a revolver with his left hand and fired at the officer, who followed him through the hole in the door and saw him running down the street between the store and Fairweather's corner. The officer shot again at the fleeing burglar, and the latter returned the fire with interest, three bullets whizzing past his pursuer's head in dangerous proximity. The fellow ran out on the road at the corner and circled around westward to the sidewalk on Simcoe street, and in so doing turned his face directly towards the officer, and looked at him. The gas lamp at the corner was burning brightly. Then the burglar continued down the sidewalk, and fired three or four more running shots at Stewart, who gave chase, but in the darkness lost all trace of him. On returning to the place he gave the alarm, and found bloodmarks at the store and on the sidewalk in the west end of the town, as if made by a wounded man. He next saw the prisoner when he was brought over from Buffalo, on the 8th Nov.

"Do you recognize him, then?"

"Yes, sir."

Mr. Dumble—"Is he the man who shot at you?"

"Yes, sir."

JOSEPH WELSH, who lives at Auburn, was the next witness. He had seen a tough-looking individual without boots on the day of the burglary near Auburn, but did not think it was the prisoner. The man he saw was of very dark complexion.

MRS. MCNAIRN, who at the time of the burglary lived in Otonabee, just near the locks, told of her connection with the case. She had been in town the day of the burglary and had purchased an evening paper containing an account of the affair. She went home in the evening, and had been there scarcely an hour when "this gentleman," (signifying Mr. Greenfield), called. Mrs. McNairn had seen him in town before, and knew him by the name of Ferguson. She washed and apparently just recently made by glass on his left wrist and two fingers of his right hand, and gave him a cup of tea. He told her the wounds were caused by falling from a railway car. His pants were torn and he was without boots or vest. He remained about 15 minutes and then went away, but before going told her his knee was cut and his leg sore. A vest, the one found in Gough Bros.' store at the time of the burglary, was produced and Mrs. McNairn identified it as being of the same material as the coat he wore.

Mr. Thos. McMullen is a very old man who lives close by Mrs. McNairn's. He was at her house after she came home and she told him of the burglary. He went to his own home and shortly afterwards the prisoner (whom he identified) came up to "his shanty." He had clothes on his arm, and told Mr. McMullen the same story as he had Mrs. McNairn. Mr. McMullen said, "No, you didn't fall off any cars, but you were in Gough's store." The other said: "Why, what do you know about that?" and Mr. McMullen replied that Mrs. McNairn had told him. He asked the prisoner what he had gone into the store for, and the latter replied that he had been in the penitentiary for three years when and it was always cast up to him, and he had to have some way of living. Mr. McMullen said the constables would be after him, and the prisoner replied, flourishing a revolver, "By ——, no constable will ever take me alive." Previous to this a couple of men had driven up in a buggy and tied it not far away, and the prisoner saw it and remarked "Do you see that buggy?" and walked away. Mr. McMullen saw the buggy being driven away shortly after.

[This, it will be remembered, was Mr. Tobe Fitzgerald's buggy, in which he and a friend had come down to do some shooting. The horse and buggy were stolen and found next day in Cobourg, where they had been left in the streets.]

P.C. ADAMS testified to the finding of the package of revolvers (stolen from Stethem's), the vest and boots of prisoner and goods, ready to be taken away.

Chief ROSZEL told of the extradition of the prisoner.

Wm. KEMP, butcher of Ashburnham, said he saw a man that looked very much like prisoner, without vest or boots, walking past his slaughter house in Auburn the afternoon of the burglary. Could not positively identify him, however.

This closed the case for the crown and the prisoner was committed for trial at the next County Court, December 11th.

Peterborough Victorious.

The Appeal Case Peterborough vs. Victoria Decided in our Favor.

The case that has been pending between the counties of Peterborough and Victoria for a long time, regarding the maintenance of the Bobcaygeon bridges, has at last been decided in favor of Peterborough. Readers of the EXAMINER are already familiar with the case. It was first tried in September, 1887, at Lindsay by Judge Robertson and an adverse decision given. It was carried to the Appeal Court, judgment reserved at the time of hearing. This afternoon Mr. E. B. Edwards, county solicitor, received a telegram stating that "Judgment was given allowing the appeal with costs. The road on which the Bobcaygeon bridge is situated is held not to be a 'deviation' within the meaning of the Act of 1885, and Peterborough is not therefore liable for its maintenance."

Obituary.

Mr. John Kavanagh.

The San Francisco, Cal., Daily Reporter gives an extended obituary notice of the late John Kavanagh (a brother of Mr. T. Kavanagh, of the Kavanagh House), who was a resident of that city. The Reporter says:—

John Kavanagh, the merchant tailor under the Palace Hotel, died on Tuesday at his home, 140 Twelfth street. He had resided twenty-five years in San Francisco, and was a good citizen. Deceased was President of Branch No. One of the Irish National League, an active member of the Knights of St. Patrick, the Irish Parliamentary Club, and other societies of a religious and political nature.

A great number of sorrowing friends were present this morning at the funeral. The parlors of the residence, 140 Twelfth street, were not large enough to accommodate the throng. Around the rooms and on the coffin were many and beautiful floral tributes.

Delegations from the Knights of Honor, Chosen Friends, the Catholic Benevolent Association, Knights of Saint Patrick and Knights of the Red Branch were present in honor of their deceased comrade.

The pall-bearers were Colonel J. J. Tobin, Judge Toohy, T. P. Riordan, Matthew Donnell, John Farren, Owen Rohn, D. Sheerin and Mr. Hertzog.

The funeral ceremonies at St. Joseph's church, Tenth street, were impressive. Fathers Seanian, Coyle, Walsh and McCue performed the last rites. After the ceremonies the funeral procession went to Coles Cross Cemetery, where the body was interred in family vault.

Mr. Kavanagh left a widow and five sons, Richard Henry, Francis Joseph, John Kavanagh, jr., Fred W. and Charles V.

Northwest Notes.

Here are some crop notes and figures relative to Portage La Prairie, which will be perused with interest by the farming public. The Mr. Paterson referred to is a brother-in-law of Mr. Wm. VanEvery town:—The Farmers' Elevator has received this year so far 35,000 bushels of wheat and 5,000 bushels of barley.

H. S. Paterson of the Farmers' Elevator appears to be buying the bulk of the barley offered for sale. He is paying 45 cents per bushel. He has already shipped 6 cars, of first class barley containing 700 bushels to the car.

The Farmers' Elevator is tend going into the custom chopping business. Negotiations are now going on for a new chopper.

Of the 35,000 bushels of wheat received at the Farmers' Elevator 18,500 were No 1 hard.

At Ogilvie's elevator there have been received 46,000 bushels of wheat, of which 33,000 bushels are No 1 hard, 2,500 bushels of barley and one carload of oats.

The Portage Milling Co have purchased this year about 60,000 bushels of wheat.

The total amount of wheat received at the three elevators this year is about 140,000 bushels.

The price of No. 1 hard has ranged from 90 cents to $1.15 per bushel. The present price is $1.05.

A large proportion of this year's crop on the Portage Plains is still in the stook. A prominent grain man informs us that he took a trip the other day through the country to see for himself whether or not the grain in stook had been damaged by the wet. He found no damaged done to oats or barley and very little to the wheat. This will be good news to all, as some people imagine the damage to be considerable.

A BOMB AT COBOURG.

THE ANTI-FEDERATIONISTS CARRY THE DAY.

Victoria to Remain Independent—A Senate Vote of 21 Against 16 to Decide—Moments of Intense Excitement.

COBOURG, Nov. 13.—The Senate of Victoria University, composed of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, General Superintendent, professors of the faculties, members of the Board of Regents and representatives of affiliated colleges and of the alumni met in Victoria College to-day to consider the question of surrendering the charter and entering into Federation. The result of the meeting was a great victory for the anti-federationists who believe in maintaining an efficient independent university.

Chancellor Burwash took the chair at 11 o'clock. The members of the Senate present were: William Kerr, LL.D., Q.C., Vice-Chancellor; Rev. A. Carman, D.D., General Superintendent; Professor John Wilson, LL.D., Professor Alfred Baynar, M.A., Professor A. R. Bain, LL.D., Dr. Powell, Dr. Rosebrugh, Professor Eugene Haanel, Ph.D., F.R.S.C., Professor E. J. Badgley, LL.D., Professor Arthur P. Coleman, Ph.D., Professor L. E. Horning, M.A., B. M. Britton, M.A., Q.C., M. Lavell, M.D., Rev. E. B. Ryckman, D.D., Judge Dean, M.A., Rev. W. S. Griffin, D.D., J. J. Maclaren, LL.D., Q.C., Rev. E. H. Dewart, D.D., Rev. A. Sutherland, D.D., Hon. W. E. Sanford, Rev. John Potts, D.D., Rev. S. G. Steen, D.D., Rev. J. C. Antliff, D.D., Rev. A. Burns, LL.D., James Mills, M.A., Rev. W. R. Parker, D.D., S. F. Lazier, LL.B., H. C. McMullen, M.A., Rev. D. G. Sutherland, LL.B., B.D., Rev. James Allen, M.A., W. S. Dounay, M.A., M.D., C. M. Gould, M.D., H. Hough, M.A., W. R. Riddell, B.Sc., LL.D., D. C. McHenry, M.A., G. N. Bigelow, M.A., LL.B., Rev. Hugh Johnston, M.A., B.D.

A letter was read from Hon Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education, guaranteeing certain statutory legislation asked for by the Board of Regents The debate opened on the following motion concurring in University Federation, which was moved by James Mills, M.A., principal of the Agricultural College, and seconded by Rev. Dr. Griffin, Guelph:

Whereas, the joint body consisting of the Board of Regents and the Advisory Committee, by virtue of the powers vested in it by the General Conference at a recent meeting in the city of Toronto, resolved that the proper steps be forthwith taken to place Victoria University in federation with the Provincial University by giving the required notice to the Provincial Secretary provided we have assurance that by special Act of the Provincial Legislature, or otherwise, Victoria University shall continue to exercise her powers to confer degrees as heretofore until removal to Toronto, and that all such graduates be included in the provisions of sections 7 and 11 of the Federation Act as graduates of Victoria University:

Whereas, the Board of Regents subsequently accepted this decision of the joint body and as a matter of courtesy asked the Senate to concur with this action, and whereas the conditions set forth in the resolution of the joint body as presented by the committee of the Board of Regents have been satisfactorily met on all points by the Minister of Education;

Therefore, resolved, that this Senate concurs in the action of the Joint Committee and the Board of Regents in forthwith giving the required statutory notice as to the entrance of Victoria University into federation with the Provincial University as soon as the desired legislation shall be obtained.

It was moved in amendment by H. Hough, M.A., Toronto, seconded by Dr. Gould of Colborne:

Whereas this Senate has been asked to concur in a resolution of the Board of Regents whereby it is proposed to surrender in the near future our degree-conferring power, and to notify the Minister of Education that we are ready to enter into federation with the Provincial University, and whereas it has been declared that the reference of this question to the Senate is a matter of courtesy and not of right, and whereas it is important that the relative powers of the Board and the Senate touching this matter should be clearly ascertained:

Therefore, be it resolved, first, that in our judgment the rights and powers vested by charter and statutes in the Senate of Victoria University are such that the Senate alone has authority to surrender the degree-conferring power and that any act of the Board of Regents providing for such surrender is ultra vires of that body.

Resolved, second, that in view of the fact that the earnest appeals of the past two years for subscriptions in aid of Federation have resulted in securing less than half the amount considered necessary at the last General Conference, showing that the sympathy of the church at large is not with the movement, we consider it highly inexpedient to imperil the very existence of our University by relinquishing the degree-conferring powers at the present time. Therefore we decline to concur in the recommendation of the Board of Regents until the amount subscribed is sufficient to enable the entrance of Victoria into Federation financially safe;

Resolved, third, that a committee, consisting of the members of the Senate who are of the legal profession be appointed to consider the legal aspects of this question and to take such steps as may be necessary to protect the rights of the Senate in regard to the surrender of the degree-conferring power, and moreover as we are for the first time invited to a discussion of the question of Federation itself this Senate records its disapproval of a measure which will lower the rank of our institution, which will deprive the Methodist Church of its long-enjoyed advantage of an independent university at a time when it is well able to sustain it, which places beyond its power the carrying out of its long-cherished traditional policy of maintaining an oversight of the training of its students in the higher and more perilous branches of the arts, and which belog altogether unlike the federation of all of the colleges of the country first proposed we believe to be calculated only to lead to the absorption of Victoria without securing that nationalisation of our educational system which was considered so desirable, and we direct our registrar to transmit to the Board of Regents a copy of this resolution with our urgent request that they take no steps farther committing the church and the University to this measure until they have secured the amount contemplated by the General Conference as necessary to safety and efficiency in entering upon our work in our proposed new relationship.

Principal Mills was granted leave to amend his motion by striking the words, "as a matter of courtesy" out of his motion.

Dr. Stone moved to add the following words as a rider to Principal Mills' motion

"And the sum of $100,000 in available funds are in the hands of the Bursar of Victoria College, with such further subscriptions as the Board of Regents may deem necessary and adequate to the erection of the necessary buildings, and such income of an endowment as they may deem essential to the success of our operations as a federating college."

The Chancellor ruled Dr. Stone's rider out of order. The vote was taken amid intense excitement at 5.30 o'clock, when Mr. Hough's amendment was carried on the following division:

Yeas—Kerr, Lavell, Maclaren, Alexander Sutherland, Sanford, Burns, Lazier, McMullen, D. G. Sutherland, Allan, Dounay, Gould, Hough, Riddell, Bigelow, McHenry, Reynar, Bain, Horning, Powell, Rosebrugh—21.

Nays—Carman, Dean, Britton, Ryckman, Griffin, Dewart, Potts, Stone, Antliff, Mills, Parker, Johnston, Badgley, Wallace—14.

The announcement of the result, a majority of seven for non-concurrence, was received with deafening cheers, the students singing:

On the old Ontario's strand
Victoria evermore shall stand.

Four of the "nays" said they were prepared to vote against Mr. Mills' motion; further motion nor amendment suited them.

Mayor Clarke of Cobourg was introduced. He announced that the citizens of Cobourg had authorized him, in addition to the town's grant of $25,000 and 20 acres of land, to offer [illegible] of $1500 a year for five years toward the endowment of a chair in Victoria University.

Mr. H. A. Massey of Toronto was also presented to the meeting, and said that he would give from $100,000 to $250,000 towards the maintenance of an independent university at Cobourg, provided his bequest was supplemented by a similar sum. These offers were received with tremendous cheers.

The Senate adjourned and the Board of Regents was convened, when, on motion of Dr. Sutherland, it was resolved, in view of the action of the Senate, to defer further action indefinitely.

There was great excitement in town when the result of the meeting became known. This puts an entirely new phase on the Federation scheme, the outcome of which is fraught with much anxiety to the Methodists throughout the country.

STANLEY ON ANNEXATION

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL MAKES A STIRRING SPEECH.

His Excellency's Reply to an Address from the St. Jean Baptiste Society—The Advantages of our Government.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The officers of St. Jean Baptiste Society waited on His Excellency in the Eastern Block this morning and presented an address. In the course of his reply, which was in French, His Excellency, after alluding to the devotion of the French-Canadians to the British flag, as in 1776 and 1812, touched on the question of annexation. He said:

"Your loyalty, as you say, has been subject to many trials and you have overcome those temptations of which you spoke just now in a manner which you can recall to day with just pride. In this, the nineteenth century, the same temptations do not fail to present themselves, although under a changed aspect. For instance, people talk of annexation and of various other cries known to the political world.

"The monarchical constitution gives us complete autonomy without obliging us every four years to be subject to those violent oscillations of politics like those which just now have disturbed the business of our neighbors in the United States, and under the external form of a republic it would be impossible to find a more complete expression of the sentiments and of the wishes of citizens than you find to-day with us.

"Do not therefore, gentlemen, listen to those who would endeavor to disturb you. We know very well the object of such intrigue. Let us remain tranquil. Do not let it be said that the Dominion of Canada mistrusted itself.

"Without doubt the Confederation, like other states, will have her difficulties but she will come well out of them. Strong in the wisdom and the energy of her sons, preserving always what is best in the traditions of our two great nations, pressing forward always in all that concerns liberty and civilization, she will surmount her difficulties and she will overcome her obstacles."

MANITOBA MATTERS.

The Debate on the Address—The Newspaper Charges Reported Not Proven.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—The Legislature got down to work this afternoon and Mr. Colcleugh, seconded by Mr. Jerome, moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Mr. Norquay offered no amendment but criticised the Government pretty strongly.

Premier Greenway made a forcible reply and after several members had spoken the debate was adjourned.

Replying to a question the Premier said he hoped to be able to announce the policy of the Government respecting the Hudson Bay Railway aid act before the close of the session.

The Commission to enquire into the charges brought by The Call and The Free Press against the members of the Government came to an end to-day, owing to the non-appearance of witnesses to prove the charges. Counsel for the newspapers stated they were prepared to substantiate the charges they had made, but not these prepared by the Government for the Commission to investigate. Counsel for the Government contended this was a mere subterfuge and the Judge decided he would report the charges not proven.

Scott Act Fines in Ontario Co.

WHITBY, Nov. 13.—John Ferguson, license inspector for South Ontario, worked up a big list of whisky sellers for Magistrate Horne's court here yesterday. Chas. Lynde, Jr., storekeeper at Audley, was fined £50; Walter Hodgson, hotelkeeper at Raglan, a second offence, $100; John A. Dean of Oshawa, who has rented an hotel at Columbus, trial adjourned for a week for further evidence; George Brown, bar tender at the Oriental Hotel, Port Perry, $50; Thomas Doncaster, owner of the same, third offence, 60 days in jail.

She Worked the Missionary Dodge.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 13.—A young lady of respectable parents here has got herself into a rather embarrassing predicament lately. She has been in the habit of collecting, ostensibly for a missionary society, but in reality for herself. Her excuse, when questioned about the matter, was that she did not receive sufficient pin money to clothe her as stylishly as the other girls in her set, and she decided upon the course she took to increase her exchequer. She has left the city.

No Information has been received by the Department of Militia with reference to the rumored disbandment of the 7th regiment of London and it is most probable that if any move in that direction is made it will be strongly discountenanced at headquarters.

The hearing of the application to cancel the Edison patents, held by the Edison Electric Light Company of Montreal, for incandescent electric lighting in Canada was commenced before Mr. Richard Pope, Deputy Commissioner of Patents, this afternoon. The petitioners are the Royal Electric Company and associated with them are the Sawyer Manufacturing Company, the United States Electric Company, the Westinghouse Company and the Thomson-Houston Company of Boston, Mass. Cancellation of patent is applied for, on the ground that the patentee failed to comply with the patent regulations which provide that the article can not be imported one year after the patent is granted, and also failure to begin the manufactures within two years after the issue of the patent. The petitioners among other things represent that the Edison Company violated the law after due time had elapsed in importing lamps whole and in parts. Mr. R. D. McGibbon appears for petitioners and D. McMaster, Q. C., for respondents. A number of witnesses, including several experts, are to be examined and the case will probably take three or four days.

IMPROVING PETERBOROUGH CHEESE.

The cheese industry of Canada is one of the most important connected with agriculture. Last year Canada exported 78,780,856 pounds of cheese, as compared with an export of 55,325,167 pounds in 1882, an increase in five years of 42.4 per cent. The value of the exported cheese of 1887 was $7,562,008, as against a value of $5,979,837 in 1882, an increase in value in the five years of 26.3 per cent., showing that the price does not increase with the increased product. Taking quality as an index of price, it would seem that the quality of cheese is not improving. Canadian cheese stands among the first in the markets of the world, and that of Peterborough is among the best, but the Cheese Makers' Association seem to think the quality can be improved yet, and they are, with laudable enterprise, making efforts to bring about that improvement. With this view, the Association has secured Prof. Robertson, of the Dairy Department of Guelph Agricultural College, to deliver a series of addresses to the cheese makers and patrons of this district. The meetings have been arranged as follows:—

At Lakefield cheese factory on Tuesday, 27th Nov., 7.30 p.m.

At North Smith factory on the 28th, 7.30 p.m.

At Warsaw factory on the 29th, 7.30 p.m

At town hall, Keene, on 30th, at 7.30 p.m.

At the council chamber, Peterborough, on Saturday, Dec. 1st, at 2 p.m.

At the town hall at Bobcaygeon, on Monday, 3rd December, at 7.30 p.m.

Prof. Robertson has, of course, made a special study of this subject, and he will be able to give much valuable, practical, as well as scientific instruction. It is to be hoped the farmers—for all concerned are farmers—will appreciate the opportunity thus presented. The Ontario government has shown a decided interest in the welfare of the farming community, and not the least evidence of this interest is the establishment of a Dairy Department in connection with the Agricultural College, and the placing over it of a shrewd, practical, every-day man like Prof. Robertson. This is just what should be done, for the dairy interest in Canada involves the most money of any separate industry, except wheat-raising. The exports of wheat last year were worth $7,900,000, while the cheese exports were worth $7,500,000. An industry of such importance as the cheese industry should receive the closest attention, and, therefore, it is to be hoped all concerned in it will make it a point to attend the above meetings and hear Prof. Robertson's instructive addresses.

The President of the Cheese Makers' Association, Mr. J. W. Hall, Lakefield, has done his utmost to make these meetings a success, and it is hoped that the patrons of the several factories will turn out in large numbers to hear the addresses.

A Manitoba Tour.

On August 7th Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fowler left by C.P.R. for Winnipeg, on a Northwest tour. After spending a few days in that busy city they went to Deloraine in the Turtle Mountain district, south-western Manitoba. Twelve miles from Deloraine they visited Mr. Archibald McGregor, formerly of Elderaley, Bruce county, who is married to Mrs. Fowler's sister. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler remained in the Turtle Mountain district about two months. Mr. McGregor and his two sons farm over 1,000 acres and they are very comfortably situated. In driving over the Turtle Mountain district whence the people get their supply of firewood, the crops were found to be very badly damaged by hail and frost—the damage amounting to fully eighty per cent. Leaving the Turtle Mountain district Mr. and Mrs. Fowler drove across the Souris (Mouse) river ten miles and found the crops also badly damaged in places, and spent a short time with Mr. Wm. Pumble, whose wife was formerly of Smith township—a Miss Lochart. Thence a drive of fifteen miles north took them across the Souris river again. The crops were, some of them very good; in other places they were badly damaged. The next drive of Mr. and Mrs. Fowler was a drive north of Deloraine to Messrs. Wm. and Albert Turnbull's, brothers of Mr. J. C. Turnbull, merchant, Peterborough. They live about fifteen miles north of Deloraine and are very comfortably situated, and were this year blessed with good crops. The tour lets next drove to Mr. Wm. King's, formerly soda water manufacturer of Peterborough. He and his family were found in good health. Two of his sons have taken up land; the other son remains at home. Their crops were good this year. Within eight miles of Plum Creek the crops are all good. At Plum Creek there is a large grist mill and elevator. From Plum Creek the next drive was a long one—63 miles—to Alexandria, on the main line of the C. P. R. From thence Mr. and Mrs. Fowler went east to Brandon, and from this place, via Winnipeg, to Pembina, where a visit was paid to Mr. Fowler's nephew William, son of Mr. John Fowler. Mr. Wm. Fowler, jr., has been in Dakota since 1882 and is doing well. During a fortnight's stay at Pembina, Mr. Fowler drove to the several small villages within a radius of twenty-five miles. In this vicinity there are several families from Otonabee and this county. There was about half a crop in some places, and in other places they were wholly destroyed. At Emerson they saw Mr. Joseph Walton and several others from Peterborough. Returning to Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler took the C.P.R. train east, and reached home safely on Monday, Nov. 5th, after a pleasantly passed three month in the Northwest.

A Norwood Marriage.

The commodious home of Thomas Buck, Esq., lumberman, of Norwood, was thronged with guests on the evening of Wednesday, the 7th inst., who had assembled to witness a most interesting and happy event—the celebration of the nuptials of his daughter Kate, to Mr. David Sanders, merchant, of Warkworth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. Clarke, ex-president of Conference. The bridesmaid was Miss Eliza Starr, of Norwood, cousin of the bride, and the groomsman Mr. J. R. Chisholm, of Warkworth. The bride was elegantly attired in a dress of fawn-brown satin, and wore a sprig of white roses and the conventional veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore a dress of seal-brown satin trimmed with brocaded plush. After the marriage ceremony was performed the company sat down in the spacious dining-room to a table bountifully spread and partook of a sumptuous repast. The party spent a couple of hours in merriment and social enjoyment when the happy couple took their departure for their new home. The bride will be greatly missed from our village, especially from the societies of the Methodist church, of which her many excellent qualities of mind and heart, as well as her accomplishments, made her a useful member. Mrs. Sanders bears with her the kindly feelings of very many of the people of Norwood, and their sincere wishes that her married life may exceed in happiness and prosperity her most sanguine anticipations. The wedding presents were varied, beautiful and numerous.—Com.

Deserted Churches.

Sunday evening, at the Charlotte street church, Rev. Dr. Barwash, in pointing out the need there was for an educated ministry to retain the hold of the church upon the masses, related an incident that had come under his own observation. He was in New York City not long ago, and attended morning worship at a fine church with a seating capacity for twelve or fifteen hundred, but the actual congregation present did not number 150 at the most. It was a fact, he said, that in these great centres people don't go to church. They lounge about their homes in the morning, spending the time either in smoking, eating or reading, or in sleeping; and in the evening they drift off to some place of amusement, and the churches are deserted.

THIS MAY BE THE REASON

WHY GEN. WARREN HANDED IN HIS RESIGNATION.

Lord Randolph Churchill's Trenchant Speech in the House of Commons in Connection with Estimates.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Matthews, Home Secretary, stated that the resignation of Sir Charles Warren as Chief of the Metropolitan Police was solely due to his refusal to submit to the rule which forbids officials to publicly criticize Government service. Gen. Warren in announcing his resignation, said Mr. Matthews wrote that had he known that such rule existed he would never have accepted the post.

In the debate on the estimates in connection with the Supreme Court of Judicature Mr. L. J. Jennings (Con.) moved to reduce the appropriation by a considerable sum.

Lord Randolph Churchill approved the proposed reduction. He said the money squandered on court officials was a public scandal and a national disgrace amounting to malversation of the public money on a large scale. The new Departments of Justice recently added to the machinery consisted of nothing but lawyers. It was absolute brigandage on the taxpayers. Before the Government asked them to vote this money, let them obtain a pledge that these visible evils would receive earnest and immediate attention.

Attorney-General Webster deprecated Lord Randolph Churchill's excessive criticism as calculated to excite the imagination of the country. The Government neither winked at favoritism in the matter of appointments nor showed indifference toward the effecting of reductions, but it could not alter salaries immediately. He promised that attention would be paid to the recommendations of the committee.

Mr. Jennings' motion to reduce the estimates was rejected, 148 to 129.

The Oaths Bill.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Oaths Bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords to-day without division.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 13. At the meeting of the Parnell Commission to-day Presiding Justice Hannen intimated that the court's decision in the matter of the disclosure of document was that all the documents which The Times possessed, including even those which The Times' solicitor thought spurious, should be disclosed in order to assist in the search for the truth.

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, stated that he had received several threatening letters.

Justice Hannen remarked that he also and probably others engaged in the case had received similar letters. The intimidation of witnesses, he said, was so certain that precautions must be taken not to allow the premature disclosure of their names.

The taking of evidence in relation to outrages was then proceeded with and James Mannion, one of the witnesses called, declared himself both a Fenian and a member of the National League. He said he had taken part in several outrages and had gone on moonlight expeditions. He knew no moonlighter who was not also a member of the League.

Peter Flaherty, a farmer of Galway, testified that he was a moonlighter and was not ashamed to acknowledge it. He was perfectly ready to act with the moonlighters again.

Edward Flanagan said he had been in America since 1870. He had been present at numerous League meetings at Pittsburg and New York, at which Stephen J. Meany had presided. He said that Meany had collected funds for the purpose of buying firearms for use in Ireland.

The court then adjourned.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY K. OF L.

Opening Session at Indianapolis—T. B. Barry Not Permitted to Speak.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—The General Assembly of the Knights of Labor met here to-day. The reports of the Committee on Credentials was first considered. No great fight was made over the report, everything being decided practically as recommended by the committee.

Mr. T. B. Barry was in the hall when the session opened. He endeavored to speak but General Master Workman Powderly told him that having been expelled he had no right there and must go. He again tried, as he said, to say a word of explanation, but was compelled to leave the hall.

Pern Wouldn't Apologize to Uncle Sam.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Department of State does not anticipate any serious results from the complications between this country and Peru growing out of the seizure of the building in which is situated the United States Consular agency at Molendo, Peru. The Consular records were not disturbed. As the action appeared to be a technical discourtesy towards the United States an apology was requested, but was refused by the Peruvian Government on the ground that it had done nothing to warrant an apology. The State Department is waiting complete details of the affair before proceeding further, but as already stated anticipates no trouble.

This Way Went Carlisle.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—An examination of the ballots in Boone, Campbell, Kenton and Pendleton Counties in the 6th Kentucky district shows that 7502 perforated tickets were cast for John G. Carlisle, the present Speaker of the House. His majority in the entire district was 6051, so that if no further search is made there are enough ballots to defeat him, if it shall be declared upon contest that these perforated ballots are void.

A Philadelphia Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Peter Kretchman yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Matilda Hellerman, aged 38, and then surrendered to the police. The only explanation the murderer gave was that his wife had died about three weeks ago and that she had been ruined and driven to her death by Mrs. Hellerman.

Declined with Scorn.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Steve Brodie, the bridge jumper, has declined the challenge of Thomas Barron of Albany to jump together from the Niagara bridge. To jump with him, he thinks, Barron should qualify himself by leaping from the Brooklyn and Poughkeepsie bridges.

Another M.P. Jailed.

DUBLIN, Nov. 14.—J. D. Sheehan, M.P., who was arrested recently for advocating the plan of campaign, has been arrested again and sentenced to one month's imprisonment for refusing to give bail for his good behavior.

A Tremendous Sensation

would have been created one hundred years ago, by the sight of one of our modern express trains whizzing along at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Just think how our grandfathers would have stared at such a spectacle! It takes a good deal to astonish people now-a-days, but some of the marvelous cures of consumption, wrought by Dr. Pierce's Golden Discovery, have created widespread amazement. Consumption is at last acknowledged curable. The "Golden Discovery" is the only known remedy for it. It takes at the right time—which, bear in mind, is not when the lungs are nearly gone—it will go right to the seat of the disease and accomplish its work as nothing else in the world can.

A Red Letter Day.

Remember! Saturday, 17th, is the opening day of H. LeBrun's great clearing sale of clothing and gents' furnishings. All hands have been busy this week marking down prices, which are so low that the public will always remember the 17th of November as a red letter day in the history of the clothing trade of Peterborough. 3d113

Valuable To Know.

Consumption may be more easily prevented than cured. The irritating and harassing cough may be greatly relieved by the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam that cures coughs, colds, bronchitis and all pulmonary troubles. 2w45d

"Eureka" and "Golden Hair Wash."

These are two of A. Dorenwend's standard preparations. The "Golden Hair Wash" gives the hair that beautiful golden shade so universally admired; it does not injure the hair in the slightest degree. "Eureka" removes all superfluous hair from the face, arms or neck at one application. See that each bottle of either preparation bears on the label the signature of A. Dorenwend. For sale by all druggists everywhere. dw

The Modus Operandi

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and the Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in Chronic Complaints. 2w45d

BABY'S SKIN AND SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by Cuticura Remedies.

Our oldest child, now six years of age, when an infant six months old was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physician, who attempted to cure it; but it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid rash, ugly, painful, blotched, and malicious. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we were advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The effect was simply marvellous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.

Clear Skin, Pure Blood.

No mother, who loves her children, who takes pride in their beauty, purity, and health, and in bestowing upon them a child's greatest inheritance,—a skin without a blemish, and a body nourished by pure blood,—should fail to make trial of the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

I have seen the CUTICURA REMEDIES used for milk crust by a visitor in my house, and can testify that the cure was speedy and permanent. I have also used them myself, for eruptions of the skin on my little child, with satisfactory results in every respect. The skin was broken out and began to assume ugly proportions. I have also heard my neighbors speak of CUTICURA REMEDIES in the highest terms.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMP'Y OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,873,777.69, on 6741 lives. We have more-over $3,207,600.00 insured under 1,840 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,969 for $14,081,377.69.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,331.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $486,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,600 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in Income.	Gain in Assets.	Gain in Assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$169,482 60	$1,143,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	35,580 67	195,198 29	1,167,398 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,976 84	363,364 31	2,962,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 89	475,977 24	4,029,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,004 48	$10,873,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

It was the manner of death rather than death itself which seemed so horrible to our comrades as they took their last leave of us. Most of them were also without any clear hope beyond the grave. A day, even, to have sought divine favor would have been a priceless boon. Wilson was a professed unbeliever, and many a time had argued the truth of the Christian religion with me half a day at a time; but he said, "Pittinger, I believe you are right now! try to be better prepared when you come to die than I am." I could scarcely release his hand as he muttered, "God bless you," and turned away.

Shadrack was careless, generous and merry, though often excitable, and sometimes profane. Now he turned to us with a forced calmness of voice which was more affecting than a wail of agony as he said:

"Boys, I'm not prepared to meet my Jesus."

When asked by some of us, whose tears were flowing fast, to think of heavenly mercy, he answered, still in tones of thrilling calmness, "I'll try, I'll try, but I know I'm not prepared."

Slavens, who was a man of immense strength and iron resolution, turned to his friend Buffum and could only articulate, "Wife—children—tell"—when utterance failed.

John Scott was well educated, and had left a very pleasant home in Findlay, O. Father and mother, brothers and sisters have always been among the most respected of the citizens there. He had been married but three days before enlisting, and now the thought of his young and sorrowing wife nearly drove him to despair. He could only clasp his hands in silent agony.

Campbell had a half smile on his strong face, but it was terribly unreal, with no light in it, as he pressed our hands, and even muttered an unconscious oath, saying, "Yes, boys, this is —— hard."

But Ross was a marvel and wonder to us all. A cloud had long seemed to rest upon his spirits, but now completely rolled away. All foreboding and fear were gone in the presence of the reality. Others were bitterly and terribly disappointed; he was not. The gaunt specter he had so long faced came out of the shadow, and lo! it was disrobed of all terror! He was perfectly erect, with easy grace; there was not a sign of dread, while his eye beamed and whole face became radiant with the martyr's joy. "Tell them at home," he said, in a clear, vibrating tone, "if any of you escape, that I died for my country and did not regret it."

Brown, Knight, Buffum, Mason and myself—all that were left of the Knoxville party—were even more affected than our comrades, for we had not the awful excitement of coming death to sustain us. Had there been a gleam of hope of success how gladly would we have thrown ourselves on the guards and fought for the lives of our brothers! But the officers and the guard filled the door and entry, while the jail yard was also full of enemies. The sense of our absolute helplessness was most agonising.

All this transpired in a very few minutes, and even the marshal and others with him in the door showed signs of impatience, and urged that their time was short. I cannot help believing, for the sake of our common humanity, that they wished to hasten only because the scene was becoming too painful for them to bear.

Very brief leave taking was permitted with the eight who were in the other room. Robinson, who could scarcely stand, was hurried off with the rest. We heard the dreadful procession descend the stairs, and then from the window saw them enter the death cart and drive away. It was surrounded by cavalry, and thus passed out of sight. In about an hour the procession returned. The cart was empty!

On leaving us the procession had taken a course which soon carried them out of sight over the summit of an adjoining hill, and continued in an easterly direction till it reached the Atlanta city cemetery—a distance of probably two miles. What thoughts crowded through the hearts of the doomed men we know not; but it is to be hoped that in this last hour of life they realized that God was more merciful than man, and found that pardon which is never denied to those who sincerely seek.

CHAPTER XXII.

HEROISM ON THE SCAFFOLD.

The cemetery is beautifully located and finely kept. The scaffold had been built in a little wood at the southeastern side of the yard, then outside, but since included in its boundaries. A monument to the Confederate dead had since been erected in this cemetery, and a large portion of land deeded by the cemetery association for their burial, and it was at the edge of this plot that the great tragedy took place. No element of melancholy horror was omitted. A shallow trench had been already dug within a few feet of the long and hideous scaffold, so that the men as they drove up could look upon their own open grave. The scaffold, which had just been completed, consisted of a single long beam extending from one tree to another, to which the ropes were attached, and a narrow platform of loose plank extending under this, so arranged that the knocking out of props would cause it to fall. A considerable number of spectators were present, but not nearly so many as attended the execution of Andrews—no general gathering of the citizens being permitted—indeed the preparations had been carried on as secretly as possible.

Capt. Fuller, who had chased the men on the cars and attended the trial at Knoxville, was here also to see the end. He had been moved to come by a promise which he as a Mason had made to Ross, that he would mark the spot of his burial, and notify his father, in Ohio. He was faithful to his promise, though the notification, owing to the policy of the Confederate war department, could not be made until the close of the war.

Our comrades mounted the scaffold by means of steps from behind, and then stood, all seven, side by side, with the ropes dangling beside them. At the foot of the steps Fuller shook hands with Ross, for whom he declares he had come to feel a deep friendship. The clergymen, with their souls in indignant protest against the manner of death, had not accompanied the procession. There was no help, and in a few moments death in its most awful form was to come.

Yet the bravery of the seven was such as to command the admiration even of their foes. Capt. Fuller had attended many military executions during the war, for such things were fearfully frequent at the Confederate side; yet he says that he never saw men die so bravely as these. With uncovered faces they looked steadily and serenely on the surrounding foe. But they were not to die without a word of testimony that should be long remembered, and which to some hearts then present seemed the death knell of the Confederacy.

A TRAIN WRECKER ARRESTED.

Henry Romp, Charged with a Heinous Offence, Confesses His Guilt.

GODERICH, Nov. 13.—Henry P. Romp, an engine wiper of the Grand Trunk Railway, was arrested here to-day charged with having placed the obstructions on the track that so nearly derailed the 7.30 train on Saturday evening last. The case was worked up by Grand Trunk Railway detective Charles Spence of Toronto and Constable Yule of Goderich.

Romp, who does not appear to be perfectly sane, wrote a confession of having perpetrated the dead but assigns no cause for his action.

The engine struck the obstruction about half a mile south of the station and had it not been that Engineer Green had it well under control would have jumped the track and been precipitated over a steep embankment which rises from the river side.

After writing his confession the prisoner undertook to plead not guilty, but Mayor Seager after hearing the evidence committed him to stand his trial.

THE CORNWALL CANAL.

Navigation to be Opened To-morrow—Not to be Closed Sundays.

CORNWALL, Nov. 13.—Water will be let into the canal to-day and the dredge will start work to-morrow to dredge out the dam. It is expected navigation will be opened Thursday, providing the bank does not go out once more, which is not likely now.

About 2000 cords of stone has been dumped into the hole besides the large amount of earth.

The mills will not be allowed to use water until Monday and the canal will be kept open for navigation Sundays as well as week days for the remainder of the season.

A MYSTERY OF THE THAMES.

The Body of a Well-Dressed Woman Taken out of the River Yesterday.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The body of a well-dressed woman was taken out of the Thames this morning. There were marks on the body that gave rise to a suspicion that the woman had been murdered, but it is possible that she committed suicide and that the marks were received by contact with objects in the water. The police searched the casual wards of the various police stations in the hope of getting some clue to the murderer, but they were unsuccessful. They arrested a man who had a bowie knife in his possession, but there is no reason to believe that he was instrumental in the woman's death.

Windsor's St. Andrew's Society.

WINDSOR, Nov. 13.—These officers of St. Andrew's Society for the ensuing year have been elected: President, Thomas Gow; vice-president, G. Williamson; secretary, Wm. Kingsley; treasurer, George Bartlett; piper major, J. Rattray; chaplain, Rev. John Gray.

Damages for Seduction.

WALLACETOWN, Nov. 13.—Maodougall & Robertson of St. Thomas, solicitors for Tinsmith W. Cusack of Wallacetown, has entered an action against Furniture Dealer A. Cameron of Wallacetown for $2,000 damages, for the seduction of his daughter, Annie, a young woman 20 years of age, and formerly employed as telegraph operator here.

Heir to a Fortune.

WALLACEBURG, Nov. 13.—Wm. Hall, second son of Col. Hall, an old resident of Walpole, near here, has fallen heir to a fortune, which is supposed to be an annual income of £6,000 from land, and a personalty of some $200,000. The estate is near Mansfield, Nottingham, England.

Vandalism in St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 13.—Some miscreant mutilated the case of one of the two street clocks which Mr. Jackson placed outside of his place of business for the accommodation of the public. The pendulum of the other clock was taken away.

Three More Rochester Fire Victims.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 13.—Three bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Lantern works this afternoon. There were all crushed and bruised beyond recognition.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMP'Y OF CANADA.

HEAD OFFICE, MONTREAL.

Both in Magnitude and Profitableness, the Business for 1887 has been almost everything that could be desired.

The life policies now in force are 7,128 for $10,873,777.69, on 6741 lives. We have moreover $3,207,600.00 insured under 1,340 accident policies, so that the total current contracts of the Company are 8,069 for $14,081,377.69.

The income for the year shows the very large increase of $122,331.23 over the figures of 1886, the total being $495,831.54. The revenue is now half a million dollars per annum, or as mentioned in the report, over $1,360 for every working day in the year, and even this he believed was but a mere introduction to what it will be in a few years hence. The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

Period	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in emergence.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$169,482 69	$1,149,743 00
1876 to 1880, four years	38,580 67	195,188 29	1,167,386 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,976 84	363,264 31	2,962,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 89	475,907 24	4,029,373 65
Total in 1887	$495,831 54	$1,750,004 48	$10,873,777 69

It is very pleasing to notice that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

MUNCASTER'S

DARING AND SUFFERING.

It was the manner of death rather than death itself which seemed so horrible to our comrades as they took their last leave of us. Most of them were also without any clear hope beyond the grave. A day, even, to have sought divine favor would have been a priceless boon. Wilson was a professed unbeliever, and many a time had argued the truth of the Christian religion with me half a day at a time; but he said, "Pittinger, I believe you are right now! try to be better prepared when you come to die than I am." I could scarcely release his hand as he muttered, "God bless you," and turned away.

Shadrack was careless, generous and merry, though often excitable, and sometimes profane. Now he turned to us with a forced calmness of voice which was more affecting than a wail of agony as he said:

"Boys, I'm not prepared to meet my Jesus."

When asked by some of us, whose tears were flowing fast, to think of heavenly mercy, he answered, still in tones of thrilling calmness, "I'll try, I'll try, but I know I'm not prepared."

Slavens, who was a man of immense strength and iron resolution, turned to his friend Buffum and could only articulate, "Wife—children—tell"—when utterance failed.

John Scott was well educated, and had left a very pleasant home in Findlay, O. Father and mother, brothers and sisters have always been among the most respected of the citizens there. He had been married but three days before enlisting, and now the thought of his young and sorrowing wife nearly drove him to despair. He could only clasp his hands in silent agony.

Campbell had a half smile on his strong face, but it was terribly unreal, with no light in it, as he pressed our hands, and even muttered an unconscious oath, saying, "Yes, boys, this is —— hard."

But Ross was a marvel and wonder to us all. A cloud had long seemed to rest upon his spirits, but now completely rolled away. All foreboding and fear were gone in the presence of the reality. Others were bitterly and terribly disappointed; he was not. The gaunt specter he had so long faced came out of the shadow, and lo! it was disrobed of all terror! He was perfectly erect, with easy grace; there was not a sign of dread, while his eye beamed and whole face became radiant with the martyr's joy. "Tell them at home," he said, in a clear, vibrating tone, "if any of you escape, that I died for my country and did not regret it."

Brown, Knight, Buffum, Mason and myself—all that were left of the Knoxville party—were even more affected than our comrades, for we had not the awful excitement of coming death to sustain us. Had there been a gleam of hope of success how gladly would we have thrown ourselves on the guards and fought for the lives of our brothers! But the officers and the guard filled the door and entry, while the jail yard was also full of enemies. The sense of our absolute helplessness was most agonizing.

All this transpired in a very few minutes, and even the marshal and others with him in the door showed signs of impatience, and urged that their time was short. I cannot help believing, for the sake of our common humanity, that they wished to hasten only because the scene was becoming too painful for them to bear.

Very brief leave taking was permitted with the eight who were in the other room. Robinson, who could scarcely stand, was hurried off with the rest. We heard the dreadful procession descend the stairs, and then from the window saw them enter the death cart and drive away. It was surrounded by cavalry, and thus passed out of sight. In about an hour the procession returned. The cart was empty!

On leaving us the procession had taken a course which soon carried them out of sight over the summit of an adjoining hill, and continued in an easterly direction till it reached the Atlanta city cemetery—a distance of probably two miles. What thoughts crowded through the hearts of the doomed men we know not; but it is to be hoped that in this last hour of life they realized that God was more merciful than man, and found that pardon which is never denied to those who sincerely seek.

CHAPTER XXII.

HEROISM ON THE SCAFFOLD.

The cemetery is beautifully located and finely kept. The scaffold had been built in a little wood at the southeastern side of the yard, then outside, but since included in its boundaries. A monument to the Confederate dead had since been erected in this cemetery, and a large portion of land deeded by the cemetery association for their burial, and it was at the edge of this plot that the great tragedy took place. No element of melancholy horror was omitted. A shallow trench had been already dug within a few feet of the long and hideous scaffold, so that the men as they drove up could look upon their own open grave. The scaffold, which had just been completed, consisted of a single long beam extending from one tree to another, to which the ropes were attached, and a narrow platform of loose plank extending under this, so arranged that the knocking out of props would cause it to fall. A considerable number of spectators were present, but not nearly so many as attended the execution of Andrews—no general gathering of the citizens being permitted—indeed the preparations had been carried on as secretly as possible.

Capt. Fuller, who had chased the men on the cars and attended the trial at Knoxville, was here also to see the end. He had been moved to come by a promise which he as a Mason had made to Ross, that he would mark the spot of his burial, and notify his father, in Ohio. He was faithful to his promise, though the notification, owing to the policy of the Confederate war department, could not be made until the close of the war.

Our comrades mounted the scaffold by means of steps from behind, and then stood, all seven, side by side, with the ropes dangling beside them. At the foot of the steps Fuller shook hands with Ross, for whom he declares he had come to feel a deep friendship. The clergymen, with their souls in indignant protest against the manner of death, had not accompanied the procession. There was no help, and in a few moments death in its most awful form was to come.

Yet the bravery of the seven was such as to command the admiration even of their foes. Capt. Fuller had attended many military executions during the war, for such things were fearfully frequent on the Confederate side; yet he says that he never saw men die so bravely as them. With uncovered faces they looked steadily and serenely on the surrounding foe. But they were not to die without a word of testimony that should be long remembered, and which to some hearts then present seemed the death knell of the Confederacy.

(To be Continued.)

A TRAIN WRECKER ARRESTED.

Henry Romp, Charged with a Heinous Offence, Confesses His Guilt.

GODERICH, Nov. 13.—Henry P. Romp, an engine wiper of the Grand Trunk Railway, was arrested here to-day charged with having placed the obstructions on the track that so nearly derailed the 7.30 train on Saturday evening last. The case was worked up by Grand Trunk Railway detective Charles Spence of Toronto and Constable Yule of Goderich.

Romp, who does not appear to be perfectly sane, wrote a confession of having perpetrated the deed but assigns no cause for his action.

The engine struck the obstruction about half a mile south of the station and had it not been that Engineer Green had it well under control would have jumped the track and been precipitated over a steep embankment which rises from the river side.

After writing his confession the prisoner undertook to plead not guilty, but Mayor Seager after hearing the evidence committed him to stand his trial.

THE CORNWALL CANAL.

Navigation to be Opened To-morrow—Not to be Closed Sundays.

CORNWALL, Nov. 13. Water will be let into the canal to-day and the dredge will start work to-morrow to dredge out the dam. It is expected navigation will be opened Thursday, providing the bank does not go out once more, which is not likely now.

About 2000 cords of stone has been dumped into the hole besides the large amount of earth.

The mills will not be allowed to use water until Monday and the canal will be kept open for navigation Sundays as well as week days for the remainder of the season.

A MYSTERY OF THE THAMES.

The Body of a Well-Dressed Woman Taken out of the River Yesterday.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The body of a well-dressed woman was taken out of the Thames this morning. There were marks on the body that gave rise to a suspicion that the woman had been murdered, but it is possible that she committed suicide and that the marks were received by contact with objects in the water. The police searched the canal wards of the various police stations in the hope of getting some clue to the murderer, but they were unsuccessful. They arrested a man who had a bowie knife in his possession, but there is no reason to believe that he was instrumental in the woman's death.

Windsor's St. Andrew's Society.

WINDSOR, Nov. 13.—These officers of St. Andrew's Society for the ensuing year have been elected: President, Thomas Gow; vice-president, G. Williamson; secretary, Wm. Kingsley; treasurer, George Bartlet; piper major, J. Rattray; chaplain, Rev. John Gray.

Cameron of Wallacetown for $2,000 damages, for the seduction of his daughter, Annie, a young woman 20 years of age, and formerly employed as telegraph operator here.

Heir to a Fortune.

WALLACETOWN, Nov. 13.—Wm. Hall, second son of Col. Hall, an old resident of Walpole, near here, has fallen heir to a fortune, which is supposed to be an annual income of £8,000 from land, and a personality of some $200,000. The estate is near Mansfield, Nottingham, England.

Vandalism in St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 13.—Some miscreant mutilated the case of one of the two street clocks which Mr. Jackson placed outside of his place of business for the accommodation of the public. The pendulum of the other clock was taken away.

A Good Cause for Thanksgiving.

Some are thankful for the blessings of a good harvest, some for good health, some for a new baby, some for a good wife, and there are thousands bubbling over with thanks because they have a place like goughs', the wonderful cheap men, to go to for their boots and shoes. An immense stock going at less than half wholesale cost. The eighth wonder of the world is the marvellously low prices of boots and shoes at goughs', 375 george street.

Lafayette Carpenter's Death.

Yesterday Mr. Geo. Hilliard received a letter from a resident of Kinmount, dated Nov. 10th, stating that Mr. L. F. Carpenter, who was in that neighborhood selling fruit trees, had been taken ill and after four weeks' sickness had died. The writer said the unfortunate man had received the best of attention and decent interment. Mr. Carpenter was an old and well known resident of Peterborough, and was indeed quite a landmark in the town. He was at one time a wealthy man, but has of late years been in adverse circumstances. He will be greatly missed in town. He came to Peterborough a number of years ago from Rochester, N.Y.

Obituary.

The death is recorded, with regret, of Mrs. John D. Curran, who died at the family residence last night after a long and painful illness—cancer of the stomach. The deceased lady bore the intense suffering of her illness with patience and Christian resignation. She was a native of King's County, Ireland. For nine years the family lived in Lakefield, whence they removed to Peterborough in 1880. The deceased lady was highly respected in the town, and the people in the vicinity where she resided will miss a good neighbor, St. Peter's a faithful and devoted worshipper, and the family mourn the loss of an affectionate wife and mother. The funeral takes place from the family residence 308 Charlotte street on Friday morning at 9.15 o'clock.

The Game will Default.

To-morrow is the day set down for the final tussle, at Paris, in the intermediate championship lacrosse series, and several western clubs are to compete. The River sides is the only club east of Toronto in the competition, and the place of meeting was appointed for the convenience of the western clubs. In doing this the Association has effectively barred the Riversides from competing, for a trip to Paris and a couple of days' lost time are conditions upon which they are compelled to decline entering. There's no money in it, and the honor is but a hollow vanity after all. Had the place of meeting been fixed nearer Peterborough, the Riversides would probably have contended for the championship. As it is, the game will go by default on their part.

Your Opportunity.

G. C. Clark's clearing sale of clothing and gents' furnishings for the next two months will afford an opportunity seldom met with for obtaining first class new goods at less than cost price. Suits—ordered clothing—from $3 00 to $5.00 less than former prices; overcoats and pants at same rate; 50 dozen ties at 15 and 20c.; shirts from 25c. to 50c. less than regular prices. This is a genuine sale, and an unequalled opportunity to secure bargains.

The Trade Palace.

Mr. O. C. Rowse has proved the value and profit of a strictly cash business, and in consequence of the exclusively cash line of policy adopted by him his business has prospered and thrived until its bounds were too small to accommodate its increasing demands. The store has been altered and enlarged by the removal of the large stairway at the back and the continuation of the counters the full depth of the building. A handsome office will be placed in the rear end of the store. This expansion gives the required breathing-room for Mr. Rowse's business and he will be better able than ever to meet the wishes of his customers. The improvements are an evidence of his success as a dry goods merchant, and augur well for the future prospects of the Trade Palace.

Battalion Notes.

Last night battalion drill was held for the last time before inspection. There was a remarkably large turn-out, some of the companies having about their full complement of men. Col. Rogers was in command and the battalion was marched to the athletic grounds in Ashburnham, where they were drilled for about an hour.

The following notice appears on the order board:—

Nov. 9th, 1888.

The Battalion will parade on Thursday, 15th inst., at 9 a.m. for annual inspection. Every officer and man must be present.

By order,
R. W. BELL, Major,
Act. Adjt.

At the parade Tuesday night there were 216 men in line. It is confidently expected by the Acting Adjutant that the battalion will number 260 on inspection day, more than the full complement.

The inspection will probably be held on Riverside park. Lt.-Col. Straubenzie, D.A.G., will be the inspecting officer.

The paymaster of the regiment is in town.

Further Testimony.

The following are additional expressions of praise received by Mr. Bradburn from parties at a distance, with reference to the McGibeny family, who appear in the Opera House here on Friday and Saturday of this week:

From Uxbridge:

"The McGibeny's played here last night to a crowded hall. We were more than delighted. The programme, for pleasing variety and individual excellence, was certainly the best we ever had in Uxbridge, and this is the unanimous verdict."

From Port Perry:

"Rain and mud did not prevent the McGibeny family having a crowded house on Saturday night. They are a big success."

"EXCUSE me, sir! but can you tell me where that man, Kidd, is selling 5 lbs. of excellent tea for $1?" "Yes, certainly; 364 George street." dw

A Fire at Lakefield.

Booth's Woollen Mill Burned—The Place a Total Loss.

Yesterday forenoon Lakefield was again visited by fire. Booth's custom woollen mill (owned by the Lakefield Lumber and Manufactoring Co., and rented and occupied by Mr. J. E. Booth) was burned to the ground and became a total loss.

About 11 a. m. Mr. P. D. Strickland was driving by the mill, when flames burst suddenly and fiercely from a window, and in a few minutes the building was doomed. All the employees got out in safety, but only one carding machine was saved from destruction. The mill was a frame building valued at about $1,800, and was uninsured. Mr. Booth valued his plant and machinery at about $3,000, and carried a $1,000 insurance policy. There was, besides, a considerable quantity of uninsured goods destroyed.

The fire originated in the picker-room, and was not observed till the flames burst through the window. It burned very rapidly, and in a short time the destruction was complete. A large crowd of people assembled. The village hand engine and the fire engine of the saw mills were put in operation, and by the two streams of water they were successful in preventing the fire from spreading to Baptie's planing mill close by, which was also threatened with destruction. The saw mill turned out 70 hands and the government works 40 men, the these, with the assistance of the villagers, worked valiantly to save property.

That Appeal Case.

Judgment in the Case in Favour of Peterborough.

Following is the full text of the judgment given in the appeal case, Victoria vs. Peterborough, rendered at Toronto Tuesday:—

Victoria v. Peterborough (Sept. 26).—Judgment allowing appeal with costs. Robinson, Q.C., and Edwards (Peterborough) for appellants (defendants). Moss, Q. C., and Hudspeth, Q.C., (Lindsay), for respondents. Held, it cannot be said that before the Act, 42 Vic., cap. 47, when the boundary line between the two counties extended in a straight line between the townships of Harvey and Verulam until it struck the waters of the lake, near the front of the township of Verulam, the deviation in question, through the village of Bobcaygeon, until it rejoins the boundary road at lot 14, would not have come within the meaning of the statute, nor can it be said that the line marked down on the plan from that point to the bridge where the boundary line is again reached, might not have been within the meaning of a deviation. Much would depend upon the circumstances showing the necessity of leaving the true boundary line, but on the assumption that Victoria had in the original survey extended to the lake. Impossible to hold that a road running for the distance of several miles wholly in the one county, in order to form a junction with the true boundary road at the south, was such a deviation as was contemplated by the Legislature. The enactment declares that the portion of Harvey referred to shall form part of the county of Victoria as fully as it had always formed part of that county, leaving the lake as the only boundary for eight or nine miles between the two counties. If it had been intended to answer the former travelled road as being a road under the joint jurisdiction of the two counties, although not continuing to the boundary line between them, we should have expected to find a declaration to that effect. No limitation to be placed upon the very general words of the statute, and if according to the original survey the boundary lines between the two counties had run a certain distance, then have been interrupted by the lake for a distance of several miles and afterwards been continued in a southerly course, the words of the Act would not warrant us in holding an extension to unite these two boundary lines for several miles wholly within the one county as a deviation, so neither can we hold that the original boundary line between these two points still retains that character. The road and bridge in question are not part of the boundary road within the meaning of the Act, and the county of Peterborough is not bound to contribute to it. The county having contributed since the passing of the Act cannot affect their liability.

A Move in the Right Direction.

The motion, proposed by Mr. Moore and seconded by Mr. Yelland at the recent meeting of the council, to provide for the holding of a joint meeting at 7.30 in the evening, for the nomination of mayor and councillors, was a decided move in the right direction, and in the interests of the town. The nominations, under the present system, are held in the middle of the day, and at the different ward polling-places, thus depriving the mass of the electors from attending, and depriving them of a chance of calling their representatives to account. Discussion of public matters is what is wanted, and the plan proposed is the only feasable means of securing it. Those councillors who supported Mr. Moore's motion—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Hall (Adam), Moore and Yelland—were apparently anxious to have public discussion, of town affairs, while it may be assumed that those who voted against the motion preferred that matters should follow the old, take-it-for-granted course. The school debentures explanation made by Mr. Davidson was a sample of the range such discussions as those proposed would take. The public, through his explanation, now understand the position of the school debentures—that the low rate they were sold at neutralized the sinking fund—and a public discussion of matters would throw general light on all subjects. Last session the Legislature provided for the presentation of an annual financial statement by the 15th of December—it might have gone further and done better by requiring the nominations to be held at the one place and providing for the voting for councillors to be conducted in the same manner as that for mayor; that is, each ratepayer allowed to vote for three councillors in each of the four wards. Thus elected, a councillor would represent the whole town, and not be the mere representative of a ward, and sectional jealousies and preferences would be avoided. In such case every councillor could, undeterred by ward influence, work independently for the best interests of the town.

The Town Stables.

Mr. Tom Irwin has made a good job of the repairs to the town stables and it is expected after this they will be as sweet-smelling as a clover field. An iron-brick floor has been laid down with cement, sloping from both sides to the middle, accross which runs a covered gutter which will carry all liquid excretions off into the sewer. The horses will stand with their fore-feet on tan-bark, and every morning the stables will be well cleaned out. There are three single stalls and one double. In the cellar below six inches of gas-lime have been put on the floor, and this will keep the atmosphere pure to the smell at least. The horses will be in their old quarters once again to-night.

An Enterprising Farmer.

Mr. Alex. McLeod is a prosperous farmer living on the shores of Rice Lake near Harwood. It has been his usual practice to draw his grain every fall to Cobourg, but this year he decided upon a stroke of enterprise that will result profitably to him. He engaged the steamer Beaver and loaded on it the entire grain product of his farm this season—900 bushels of wheat and barley, principally the former. Last night the Beaver tied up at the Peterborough dock and the grain was sold to Mr. Jas. Stevenson at a price far in advance of what could be got in Cobourg. The steamer was unloaded to-day, and Mr. McLeod's pockets bulged out with the wealth the sale brought him.

The market building on market days is always piled up with scores of dressed hogs ready for shipment.
